TRACE GERMAN PLOT TO CHICAGO

MILLION AWARD GIVEN AGAINST SANITARY BODY

Master Finds for Contractor Duffy, Ousted from Drainage Job.

ON SUPPOSED PROFITS.

Sanitary district taxpayers stand to lose more than $1,000,000 if the findings of Master in Chancery Granville W. Browning are confirmed by the Circuit court.

The master's report in the case of Joseph J. Duffy vs. The Sanitary District of Chicago has been completed after a half dozen years of litigation. The finding is against the district.

In substance, the master's report, as it is diagnosed by sanitary district officials, holds that Duffy was unjustly deposed from his contract for the construction of the sanitary canal near Lockport by the sanitary district. The district took possession of Duffy's machinery and finished the job itself.

Contention of District.

The contention of the district is that, if Duffy had been permitted to finish his contract, the utmost that he could have been paid under his original contract was $615,000. The total cost of the work, including what was paid to Duffy before he was deposed, and that paid by the district to complete the work, was about $811,000, it is claimed.

The master's report, proceeding upon the theory that Duffy was unjustly deprived of his machinery, awards to him a total additional of $1,175,807, based on the presumption, it is asserted by the sanitary district people, that this would have been his income, had he not been disturbed.

In one instance, the master's report charges the sanitary district with an item of $515,000 for rent of machinery, originally owned by Duffy and sold later at auction by the sanitary district, which hasn't been used since 1908.

Statement by Trustee Clark.

The suggestion that the record in the case shows that Master Browning had a condemnation suit of his own pending against the sanitary district while he was sitting in judgment on the Duffy case and the viewpoint of the sanitary district trustees are summarized in the following statement from Trustee Wallace G. Clark.

"Master Browning's report in the case of Duffy vs. sanitary district finds that the district owes Duffy $1,200,000.

"According to the master's report, the district would pay about $2,000,000 for work that actually cost about $800,000, or a profit to Duffy of about $1,200,000 in excess of contract, or 150 per cent profit, which is inconceivable. As I read the contract the total Duffy could possibly collect would be the value of the machinery at the time it was sold at public auction under the contract for $105,000, when, according to the books of the district, it has claims against Duffy amounting to about $200,000.

Browning Claim Cited.

"I wish to call attention to the fact that during the pendency of the Duffy case before Browning a condemnation suit was pending in the Superior court of Cook county wherein the district sought to acquire certain land belonging to Browning or right of way for the District, Calumet-Sag channel. Browning sought for a long time to sell this land to the District

FIFTY ARRESTED IN RAIDS BY POLICE GAMBLING SQUAD

Four Places, Said to Be Handbook Offices, Visited in General "Clean-up" Expedition.

Fifty men were arrested in four raids on alleged handbook places yesterday by the police gambling squad. Two of the places raided, according to Detective Sergt. George O'Connor, received their service through a clearing house said to be owned by Mont Tennes. The following places were raided:

Room 728, Temple Court building, 219 South Dearborn street. John Reardon, 37 East Pearson street, alleged keeper, and three men arrested.

Baltimore building, 22 West Quincy street. W. W. Sowler, alleged keeper, and seven men arrested.

Stahl & Sells' cigar store, 2237 Cottage Grove avenue. F. W. Sells, part owner of cigar store and alleged keeper, and twenty-four men arrested.

No. 3416 South Wabash avenue, basement. John Mullen, alleged keeper, and twelve men arrested.

"HITCHING" FATAL TO BOY.

Herbert Pfieger Killed by Auto Truck as He Darts from Express Wagon.

"Hitching" cost the life of 11 year old Herbert Pfieger last evening.

Herbert, who lived at 5648 South Fifth avenue, was "catching on" the rear of an express wagon in Fifth avenue.

An automobile truck driven by C. E. Bartlett of 3352 South Park avenue struck the boy as he darted from behind the wagon. He died at the Wesley hospital.

CHARMER GETS HIS $500 BILL

Sleeps with It Pinned to Undershirt, but Gypsy Queen "Removes" It.

This is "The Story of the $500 Bill," or "How the Cook Was Nicked by the Gipsy Queen" would be as good a title for what is to follow.

August Bilka, as his name impiles, is a German. He is a chef at the Rienzi, Diversey parkway and Broadway.

August has been in this country six years. He was doing fairly well, having saved about $1,000, but he was ambitious to get rich quick.

One day—it was Sept. 4—August was walking in South State street. In the front of a poolroom at 514 his attention was arrested by the sign of a gypsy fortune teller. Among other things which the seer advertised was her ability to increase one's bank roll.

Enters the Den.

August looked up and down the street, and then darted in. He told the fortune teller he wanted her scheme of getting rich.

She led him through a course of questions that revealed the fact he had saved $1,000. In order to increase his wealth the fortune teller told him he must get a $500 bill and pin it to his undershirt over his heart. After four days he was to return to the clairvoyant's "parlors" for further instructions.

Gets the $500.

August went to the bank and withdrew $500 in a bill of that denomination. He hastened to his room at 665 Barry avenue and pinned the bill, according to the seer's directions.

On the fourth day he again visited the gypsy queen. He partly disrobed to show her that the bill was pinned over his heart.

The following day August returned. He was told that the charm was working "beautifully." It would be necesary for the queen to wear the bill next her heart for a day and a night if August were to get his "wish."

Fortune Is Promised.

She promised him that inside of three weeks he would be worth $10,000.

August took the bill from his undershirt and gave it to the queen. He was to call the next afternoon.

He called. There was nobody home. August told his troubles to the police. Care was taken that the newspapers did not get hold of the story.

Every day since then August has visited the South Clark street station to see Detectives Walsh and Maloney, who have the warrant for the gypsy queen's arrest.

"Yes," said August to a reporter for THE TRIBUNE, "I've traveled over 700 miles on street cars back and forth from the Rienzi to the police station. It has been eight miles a day for the last three months."

ROOSEVELT WANTS NATION TO CONTROL ARMS PLANTS.

Colonel Says Munitions Making Should Be Encouraged, but Supervised.

New York, Dec. 4.—Governmental control of munitions plants as well as universal military training are advocated by Col. Roosevelt as fundamental steps in a national preparedness program in a copyrighted article in the Evening Mail today.

Big munition corporations should be encouraged by the government, Col. Roosevelt said, but the government should exercise a control that would make it certain that their employés received a fair share of the profits.

The plants should be as widely separated as possible, he said, and none should be located east of Pittsburgh because of possible danger of capture by a foreign power invading the Atlantic seaboard.

LAUGHS AT ROBBERS; SHOT.

Saloonkeeper Takes Holdup as Joke and Mirth Brings Bullet from Thief.

Martin Byrne, saloonkeeper at 332 West South Water street, was shot under the right arm and beaten over the head with a pitcher because he laughed at a pair of holdup men who entered his place last night and attempted to rob him. Byrne reached for a revolver and one of the bandits fired. Byrne laughed and the other robber hit him with a water pitcher. Both ran. One, James Johnson, was arrested, and Byrne was patched up in the Iroquois hospital.

Report Submarine Attacked U. S. Ship; S. O. S. Cry Sounded

Unkown Vessel Off Crete Island; May Be Collier Caesar.

SPIES CRIPPLE LINER?

ATHENS, Dec. 4.—A wireless S. O. S. call reached Athens this morning from an unnamed American ship, the message stating that it was being attacked by an Austrian or a German submarine south of the Island of Crete.

Subsequent efforts to communicate with the vessel were fruitless.

The American legation here sent a report regarding the matter to Washington.

May Be U. S. Collier.

Th collier Cæsar, which is in eastern Mediterranean waters, may be in the vicinity from which the message was sent.

Word from the collier Cæsar, received in Washington and given out today, was that it sailed yesterday from Port Said, at the entrance of the Suez canal, for Alexandria.

NO REPORT IN WASHINGTON.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—The state department late today had received no official information regarding the reported attack on an American ship in the Mediterranean.

Officials thought there was little possibility that the collier Cæsar was the ship referred to in news dispatches as attacked by a submarine.

It was said at the navy department that the cruiser Des Moines probably was nearer the scene of the reported attack than was the Cæsar. Both reported early today that they had lost their anchors and suffered some other minor damages yesterday in a severe gale off Jaffa.

The disposition of the navy officials was to regard it as impossible that any American warship had been attacked either through accident or otherwise.

It was said by officials that an attack upon one of the Greek owned vessels of American registry might present a rather difficult problem, but that it was highly improbable that the United States would feel justified in making it an international issue.

SPIES DISABLE SHIP AT SEA?

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 4.—A telegram received at the local Great Northern offices here today hints that three men aboard the Great Northern steamship Minnesota, 750 miles from San Francisco bound for England with foodstuffs, are being held by the ship's officers.

According to the information, when the boat was at sea the machinery was found to have been tampered with and was badly disabled. The investigation is said to have led to the discovery of a plot to disable the ship and possibly to blow it up somewhere near the Panama canal.

The Minnesota, which is the largest vessel flying the American flag, is expected to arrive in San Francisco Monday.

Aid Reaches Minnesota.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 4.—The Great Northern steamer Minnesota, food laden, Seattle to England, headed up the Pacific coast tonight with two rescue vessels alongside. It probably will be several days before any one knows definitely just how it came into distress. But from the little that has developed it is probable mutineers among its mixed crew, taken aboard after difficulty at Seattle, wrecked part of its engines.

All efforts to communicate with the captain for further information have failed.

The only word came in a message reporting the crew virtually in mutiny and the engines damaged. The ship wirelessed a hurry call for aid. This was sent. Since then no word has come to throw new light on the case.

"A. S. B." OF ELEANOR CLUB NO. 6 NAMED IN DIVORCE CASE

Wife of Ottis M. Benedict Gets Decree When She Tells of Pictures and Note.

Who is "A. S. B." of Eleanor club, No. 6, 2155 Pierce avenue?

One morning Ottis M. Benedict showed his wife some photographs.

"It was in July, 1912," testified Mrs. Eva M. Benedict, 1134 Bryn Mawr avenue, before Circuit Judge Kersten, who granted her a divorce. "My husband took the pictures out of his pocket and showed them to me. I asked him who she was and he wouldn't tell me."

About a year ago, Mrs. Benedict said she found a pamphlet describing the work of the Eleanor club in her husband's desk. On the back of the pamphlet was inscribed "A. S. B., care Eleanor Club Six, 2155 Pierce avenue." There also were directions for reaching the place.

"I asked him about that," Mrs. Benedict testified, "and he said it was from the same girl whose pictures I had found."

LABOR PEACE CHIEFS CALLED TO NEW YORK

Grand Jury Investigates National Council Headed by Buchanan.

PRINTER HAS SECRET.

Federal authorities are investigating the activities of the labor national peace conference, of which Congressman Frank Buchanan of Chicago was formerly president. This is the organization repudiated by Samuel Gompers some months ago as attempting to influence labor leaders to call strikes in American munition plants.

The present investigation, which involves several Chicago men, is being carried on with a view to connecting this organization with the politico-industrial warfare headed by Capt. Boy-Ed and Capt. Von Papen, military and naval attachés of the German embassy at Washington, against the shipment of munitions to the allies. This information became known in Chicago last night.

The government has asked the withdrawal of Capts. Boy-Ed and Von Papen. It now seeks evidence regarding $150,000 of German government funds which, it is alleged, was supplied to the Labor National Peace council.

Three Subpœnaed Here.

Three or more Chicagoans, who are leaders of the Labor National Peace council here, or have been so connected in the past, were subpœnaed yesterday by the federal investigating committee in New York.

Another Chicagoan, C. H. Canode, a printer, who had done printing for the so-called peace council, was also subpœnaed.

William F. Kramer of the International Brotherhood of Blacksmith's, who was an officer of the Labor National Peace council, has gone to New York, it was stated at his home, and he is believed to be one of the men subpœnaed from Chicago.

Fowler Thought Called.

H. Robert Fowler of Harrisburg, Ill., who was general counsel for the labor peace council, is believed also to have been called to testify. The president of the council, who lives in Detroit, has received notice to appear before the federal inquiry body, and the belief is general that all officers of the council from all over the United States have been summoned.

The calling of these witnesses is the first intimation that the government has sowed the country with investigators who are seeking all ends of the supposed conspiracy.

League Ostensibly Patriotic.

The labor peace organization was ostensibly formed for patriotic and humanitarian motives, and early began a movement to stop the shipment of arms to the allies by legislation and to agitate for a nation-wide protest against turning the United States into an arsenal for Europe. It is the purpose of the grand jury to discover whether Capt. Boy-Ed and Capt. Von Papen were behind the propaganda, and supplying funds to the organization.

The department of justice is said to be seeking the indictment of Congressman Frank Buchanan, formerly head of the council; former Congressman H. Robert Fowler of Illinois; Herman Schulteis, Henry B. Martin, and David Lamar, known as the Wolf of Wall street.

Lamar is said to have been the go-between in supplying funds to the organization for the German attachés.

The name of Lamar, however, never appeared in connection with the peace council. The council maintained an expensive suite of rooms at the Willard hotel in Washington for several months, but it has not been conspicuous of late.

Canode Evades Questions.

Mr. Canode was extremely wary last night about making any statement,

"I have been told not to talk," he said. "The way I got into this thing was through some printing work I had been doing for the organization. When Congressman Buchanan got out of the organization last July and my bills were delayed I began to look around for the proper persons in the organization from whom to get my money. I had been getting it from Martin and Buchanan. Then I ran on some federal investigators who were also looking for the source of the organization's revenues. And we joined forces, as it were."

"In the course of your investigation were you told to ask Boy-Ed or Von

LATEST NEWS OF EUROPEAN WAR

ROME, Dec. 4, via London Dec. 5, 1:52 a. m.—The chamber of deputies today voted confidence in the government by an overwhelming majority. The vote was taken after a debate on the recent statement of policy by Baron Sonnino, Italian minister of foreign affairs, and a speech by Premier Salandra, who said that the government was fully aware of the gravity of the international situation, but that its confidence in final victory was in nowise shaken.

AMSTERDAM, via London, Dec. 4.—Mijnheer Schroeder, editor of the Telegraaf, has been arrested on a charge of endangering Dutch neutrality. The Telegraaf has been openly pro-ally.

COPENHAGEN, via London, Dec. 5, 3:53 a. m.—The Swedish steamer Norvik, from Grimsby for Stockholm with coal, struck a mine and sank. The captain, engineer, a stoker, a stewardess, and cook were drowned. The remaining fourteen of the crew were saved by the steamer Ambra and taken to Haugesund, Norway.

LINER IS A DOVE-COTE; PEACE FLAGS FLUTTER

BY CAROLYN WILSON.
[Staff Correspondent of The Tribune.]

ON BOARD THE PEACE SHIP, Dec. 4.—[Special.]—The dove cote is a-flutter with snowy white birds holding branches of olive in their papier maché beaks; garlands of twisted red and green interlace across the ceilings, reminding us that Christmas, the season of peace and good will, will find us stopping the war. Enormous Easter lilies engulf every electric light—expressive of hope and faith—faith that by then the "boys in the trenches" will be sowing the seed in their own little back gardens.

And at the other end of the boat thirty-six typewriters and eleven dictating and nine mimeographing machines stand ready for the fifty secretaries and stenographers who, in addition to the fifty-four reporters, will strew the world with peace propaganda.

Nothing is lacking—there is the bridal party, the threatening civilian who shouted "Gott strafe!" and menaced the whole expedition. Moving picture men, too, catch the slightest dramatic pose of all the important personages.

There are wonderful posters all over the boat crying "Stop the war!" decorated with skulls and other grewsome reminders of what we are going to.

The crowds on the dock are mildly curious and variantly interested. Remarks vary from "the poor simp" to "the savior of peace" and "a second Messiah."

A kodak man in New York begged me to accept two rolls of film as a present when he knew where I was going.

"It's my bit toward peace," he said. "God bless the crusade."

On the contrary, the taxi driver rebelled at being taken for the jitney ship. "Say, dis is a high class car. It ain't no Ford," he remonstrated.

There are several children on board, and the crowd snickered with delight when they saw the toys that little Billy Lloyd of Chicago had brought with which to amuse himself on board. There is a life size cannon, which goes off with a fine, loud bang.

I heard these Lloyd children, Marion, Billy, and Mary, train for their "children's crusade" on the Century coming from Chicago last night. They were given a liberal education in principles of arbitration, neutrality, economic independence, and freedom of the seas.

The last adieux have been said. Mr. Ford has been photographed for the 'steenth time; the groom, Berton Braley, has just pressed a solemn kiss on the lips of his bride: the curious as well as the pilgrims have grasped the hand of the prophet of peace, W. J. B., who arrived for the wedding ceremony; even the children have stopped pointing at the doves hidden in the greenery, to the strains of "The Pilgrim's Chorus," the latest crusade sets out, banners flying, to bring peace to the world.

FORD VOYAGE STARTS AMID WILD SCENES

Cheers and Catcalls, Flags and Peace Doves Mingle at the Pier.

TALKS BY CELEBRITIES.

New York, Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Amid scenes so extravagantly remarkable as to be almost beyond belief, Henry Ford's peace ship, Oscar II., backed out from its pier at Hoboken this afternoon, bearing a strangely assorted company.

The ship was scheduled to bear away toward expectant Europe at 2 o'clock, but a series of extraordinary happenings kept it at the pier until just thirteen minutes after 3. In the hour's wait the crowd of fully 12,000 that jammed the Scandinavian-American line dock and boiled over to the side streets, cheered, wept, laughed, and cat-called as Mr. Ford himself and one or another of his more or less celebrated passengers came to the rail to make speeches or otherwise to entertain.

Crowds Press on Celebrities.

Through such confusion as could scarcely be imagined, William J. Bryan, Thomas A. Edison, John Burroughs, the naturalist, and others of lesser note made their way, pointed at, plucked at, "God bless you-ed," to bid godspeed to the man who has made a success of selling automobiles and now essays to force back the tide of world war.

There were speeches in abundance on the dock and aboard the ship, where there was confusion "worse confounded." There was the band playing "I didn't raise my boy to be a soldier," there was Mr. Bryan, acting as witness to a hasty marriage, whose altar lights were banging flashlights, there was a Swedish steward running about with a squirrel in a cage and finally forcing it into Mr. Ford's stateroom, there were belated arrivals, including many college students, forcing their way past every one and tramping aboard, their trunks upon their shoulders, there were cheers for everybody and by everybody, and around and about and through it all pushed and jostled the crowd, waving flags, American, Swedish, peace flags, any kind of flags, and ceaselessly crying out for peace, peace, peace. And there was no peace.

Nobody to Assume Charge.

As it was at the beginning of the Ford peace ship plan, so it was at the pier today. Nobody knew where to go, nobody was in charge of anything, nobody knew anything except that here was a ship that Henry Ford was taking to Europe to stop the war, get the boys out of the trenches by Christmas, and lots of other things.

An intoxicated young man with a German accent shouted: "Gott Strafe Heinrich Ford"; women cried hysterically: "God bless Mr. Ford; God bless Mr. Bryan"; the band played "Onward, Christian Soldiers," and changed to the "Star Spangled Banner"; a man said to be a movie actor, dived into the water after the receding ship, and still the crowd cheered and laughed and waved flags.

Last Words from Leader.

The scene was hectic or enthusiastic, as one will, when Mr. Ford and Mr. Bryan went aboard, a few minutes apart. Many people took the former secretary of state for the pilot of peace, and cheered him as Mr. Ford, but the real Mr. Ford lost nothing of noise in his reception. And he loved it all, the cheering, the band and flag waving, the good wishes; that was plain.

When he gave his last message, a few minutes before the gangplank went up, he was smiling broadly and looked more alert than since he announced the peace ship plan to stop the war that has gained him world-wide attention. This was his message:

"My last word is 'boost, boost peace.' I don't know how this thing is coming out. I don't know what we'll do when we get over in Europe, but anyway I'm going to do the best I can."

Delays Benefit to Crowds.

The delays that kept the Oscar II. at its pier an hour and thirteen minutes beyond its sailing time must have taxed to the utmost the patience of Capt. Hempel, his officers and crew, as the eleventh hour jumble of breathless late arrivals and lost baggage got worse and worse. Had it not been for the delays, however, the crowd would not have had a performance that scarcely could be equaled outside of extravaganza.

It was after Mr. Bryan had visited Mr. Ford, had a brief conference with him in which he added his own "God bless you," after Thomas A. Edison had descended to the pier after wishing his old friend bon voyage, after John Burroughs, miserable with a bad cold and sorry he could not sail, had quietly slipped away, that the celebrities of the trip were lined up at the rail to entertain the gaping crowd.

Introduced from the Decks.

The stage manager was Lloyd M. Bingham, chiefly known as the husband of Amelia Bingham, the actress, who is enrolled and is sailing as one of the peace propagandists.

Resting one yellow spatted foot on the rail, and leaning genially toward the great crowd, Mr. Bingham introduced, like the interlocutor in a monstrous minstrel show, first Mr. Ford, then Judge Ben Lindsey of Denver, then the Rev. Dr. Jenkin Lloyd Jones of Chicago, then Lieut. Gov. Andrew J. Bethea of South Carolina, each with remarks that seemed to Mr. Bingham appropriate and to the crowd so ludicrous that they brought roars of laughter.

Nor were introductions enough for the master of ceremonies. He called in stentorian tones for three cheers for everybody, from Mr. Ford to Mr. Edison, whom he called "Theodore Edison." He made jokes about the Ford automobiles, about his wife, Miss Bingham, about the crowd, about everything—and nobody stopped him. The crowd craned its necks, guffawed, and asked, "Who is that fellow?" and through it all Mr. Ford smiled and bowed and threw kisses.

But even such scenes had to have an end, and the last trunk was got aboard, the last cheer given, the last speech made. The bos'n whistle piped, the Oscar II.'s whistle boomed, and slowly the ship slid past the pier, the rows of passengers that lined the rail, old and young, men and women—many of the latter—passing in review before the crowd, each one waving a handkerchief or American flag.

Stuffed Doves Are Everywhere.

Long before the Ford and Bryan party arrived at the pier there had been bustle and confusion.

At 1 o'clock, however, where had been simply noise was Babel and into it walked Henry Ford, Mrs. Ford, his son Edsel, a half dozen secretaries of all sorts, and a guard of detectives.

A group of Ford employés on one side and Columbia students on the other gave yells about peace, women screamed blessings, and Mr. Ford, taking a few steps up the gangplank, bowed right and left, beaming upon the upturned faces. A red sweatered newsboy reached up an old and badly soiled American flag.

"Whoop!" cried Mr. Ford, seizing it and waving it about his head. The cheer was more deafening than usually greets flag waving at burlesque shows. Mr. Ford pressed on up the gangplank and at its top was jammed immediately in a pushing, shouting crowd of passengers, crying out, "O, Mr. Ford!" "Peace, Hurray for Peace," and a variety of other things. Still smiling and bowing, but saying never a word, he rushed into the first stateroom that appeared, No. 2.

Almost the only time that door was opened, except when Mr. Bryan entered to talk to Mr. Ford, was when a conscientious steward eluded the police guard and pushed forward the cage containing the squirrel which some kind friend had sent tagged simply to "The Good Ship Nutty." The squirrel came back quicker than he went in. Later he was found in the steerage, chattering amiably. He was a peaceful squirrel.

Loud Greeting for Bryan.

Scarcely had the police established something like traffic lines in the crowded and confused hall when another cheer from the crowd announced that the great peace loving former secretary of state approached. Mr. Bryan also ascended the gangplank smiling and bowing. At last they got him into stateroom No. 2, and for a quarter of an hour he and Mr. Ford talked it all over.

The minute the massive form of the prince of peace reappeared he was called upon to enact another rôle, that of witness at a wedding. Burton Braley, the poet, was plucking at his black broadcloth sleeve.

"Mr. Bryan," he said, nervously, "I'm going to be married. Won't you be a witness?"

"What! Is there going to be a wedding?" asked Mr. Bryan in astonishment. Then, recovering his composure, "Yes, yes! I'll be glad to be a witness."

Married by Dr. Jones.

They had chosen the dark, low ceilinged first cabin dining room, and already the bride, Miss Marion Rubincam, a fashion writer, was awaiting young Mr. Braley. Beside her stood Dr. Jenkin Lloyd Jones. As Dr. Jones read the ceremony photographers stole quietly into the room, waiting only for him to pronounce them man and wife, which he did in this wise, in a quavering yet not unmusical voice:

"By virtue of the authority invested in me by the states of New York and Illinois, especially Illinois, where I live, I pronounce you man and wife."

A few minutes later Dr. Jones' attention was called to the fact that he had married the couple with a New York license aboard a ship tied up at a New Jersey pier.

"Well," he said slowly, "I think they're married all right, but if the young man wants to consult a lawyer, I'll marry them again according to international law after they pass the three mile limit."

Many Chicagoans Aboard.

Chicago was well represented in the Ford party. Those from this city were:

Miss Florence Holbrook.
Jenkin Lloyd Jones and wife.
Alfred W. Klefoth.
Mrs. William Bross Lloyd, three children.
Louis P. Lochner.
Henry C. Morris.
Mrs. William I. Thomas.
Carl D. Thompson.
Miss Carolyn Wilson.
Miss Marion Bolan.

Among the other hundred and fifty or so who sailed on the liner were:

The Rev. Charles Aked, San Francisco.
Mrs. Inez Milholland Boissevain, suffragist.
Mrs. Joseph Fels, Philadelphia.
Wilfred Grenfell.
Ellis O. Jones, author.
Judge Ben B. Lindsey, Denver.
Dean S. S. Marquis, Detroit.
Miss Katherine D. Blake, New York.
Mrs. May Wright Sewall.
Mme. Aimo Malmberg.
S. S. McClure.
Mme. Rosika Schwimmer.
Mrs. George Rublee, Washington.

Some Send Their Regrets.

Senator Helen Ring Robinson of Colorado couldn't sail at the last minute because her baggage missed connection somewhere, but she was not sanguine of success, anyhow.

Another whose absence was deeply lamented by one and all was Dr. Charles G. Pease, who objects to war and tobacco. Dr. Pease sent Mr. Ford a pathetic little telegram saying that his mother wouldn't let him go, and that he had lots of important professional engagements, anyway.

Mrs. Alice Park of Palo Alto, Cal., a prominent suffrage worker, boarded the ship at the last moment. She reached New York and found she had no passport. She made a hurried trip to Washington, reaching there late Friday night. She routed out of bed a state department clerk, who issued the passport. She boarded the ship just before the gangplank was raised.

"Should Have Stopped Trip."

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—James M. Beck, former assistant attorney general of the United States, in an address tonight before the Maryland League for National Defense characterized Henry Ford and those who will go on the mission of peace with him as an "idiotic lot of cranks who will trouble and annoy powers in war and by their efforts only further embarrass and humiliate the United States."

"Ford an his hand-picked set of cranks of 57 varieties," Mr. Beck continued, "should never be permitted to sail from our shores on their mission of peace. You laugh at it, but you little imagine how ridiculous it is going to make this nation look in the eyes of the world. It will be humiliating in the extreme.

"If I were the secretary of state I would never give Ford and any of his colleagues a passport and I would instruct the collector of the port from which they contemplate sailing, to refuse to give the ship its clearance papers."

Mr. Beck said the day was past when the United States was the friend of all nations, and he charged that some of the nations in the present conflict in Europe, who were our friends but a short time past, now hold us in contempt, while the kindly feelings of other nations toward us no longer exists. He scored the pacifists and those who charge that the cry for preparedness is but hysteria. He charged that William Jennings Bryan knew more about the scriptures than he did about the law.

Leader of Peace Ship Expedition and Aids.

The credit for the Ford peace ship idea is now given to Mme. Rosika Schwimmer of Budapest. At the Women's peace party meeting at The Hague last spring Mme. Schwimmer took a prominent part and later came to America to further the propaganda. While in conference with Mr. Ford as to plans to promote sentiment to stop the bloodshed in Europe, she suggested a large American peace mission, and the "peace ship" plan was born.

Asquith, Kitchener, and Balfour Meet French Premier and Ministers at Calais.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—The British prime minister, Mr. Asquith; the war secretary, Lord Kitchener, and the first lord of the admiralty, Arthur J. Balfour, accompanied by their naval and military advisers, conferred at Calais today with the French premier, M. Briand, and the ministers of war and marine. They returned to England this evening.

ANGLO-FRENCH BONDS DROP BELOW 97 3-4 FIRST TIME.

Issue Sells Under Prices Which American Syndicate Was to Maintain.

New York, Dec. 4.—[Special.]—For the first time since the Anglo-French loan of $500,000,000 was brought out the quotation on the New York stock exchange today broke below 97¾, at which level the price of the bonds has been popularly supposed to have been pegged.

There has been a great deal of talk recently as to the difficulties which the bond houses have had in disposing of the issue to small investors.

COMES TO INSPECT ARMS.

Russian Commission Will Watch Making of War Supplies by Factories in America.

New York, Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Aboard the steamship Kristianiafjord, which arrived today from Norwegian ports, was a Russian commission, sixty in number, head by Col. Theodore Kolontaleff of the Russian army. The commission has been dispatched to inspect arms and ammunition now being manufactured for Russia in this country, especially an order for 4,000,000 rifles being turned out in Connecticut factories.

RUSSIANS REPEL HEAVY ATTACKS ON BOTH WINGS

Slavs Regain Ground Lost to Teutons in South; Check Offensive on Dvina.

PETROGRAD, Dec. 4.—The following statement was given out by the Russian war office today:

An attempted German offensive in the region of Dvinsk, near Schischkuo farm, northwest of Lake Sventen, broke down under our rifle fire.

On the night of Dec. 2 the enemy, after a heavy artillery bombardment, launched an attack on the railway station at Old Podtcherevski, on the left bank of the Styr, southwest of Rafalovka. Our forces at first were repulsed, but regained toward evening the lost position. Our artillery by a concentrated fire on the Semki, on the left bank of the Styr above Czartorysk, threw the enemy into disorderly flight, causing them serious losses.

German Official Statement.

BERLIN, Dec. 4.—The German war office today issued the following official statement:

There have been no special incidents. The Russian official statement of Nov. 29, corrected in part in the German report of Dec. 2, is not in keeping with the truth in still other particulars. During a Russian surprise attack on Newel, to the southwest of Pinsk, which was only feasible under the guidance of local leaders well acquainted with the marshy, wooded territory, a division commander fell into the hands of the enemy. No other officers are missing. The statement that German or Austro-Hungarian troops were forced to retreat near Koelince and Czartorysk is untrue.

BERLIN SAYS RUSSIAN LOAN PROVED TO BE A FAILURE.

BERLIN, Dec. 4.—[By Wireless.]—The Overseas News agency asserts that it has received private advices that the Russian war loan has proved a total failure.

"Although 1,000,000,000 roubles were offered for subscription," adds the news agency, "the reports declare that during a preliminary period of four days and in two subscription days the subscriptions of the majority of the banks and government offices amounted to only 100,000,000 roubles. This is despite the fact that every effort was used to induce subscriptions."

BELIEVE KAISER READY TO QUIT

British Think First Step Toward Peace Has Been Made.

DENIAL FROM BERLIN.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—The decision of the German government to permit the discussion of peace in the reichstag is regarded here as the clearest indication that Germany is prepared to lay down her arms if acceptable conditions can be obtained.

Meanwhile the wildest rumors are current. The latest of these, coming from The Hague and obviously from a German source, is that the kaiser intends to proclaim peace on his arrival at Constantinople. It is asserted on the "highest authority," according to the rumor—but the name of this "highest authority" is not given—that the kaiser will send a letter to President Wilson urging him to accept the rôle of mediator.

Germany will offer to evacuate the invaded departments of France and all of Belgium except Antwerp and to negotiate with Great Britain regarding the possession of Antwerp. Poland will be declared autonomous, the invaded provinces of Russia will be restored, and Serbia's independence will be guaranteed.

On the other hand the "freedom of the seas" is to be guaranteed, and special privileges are to be granted to German commerce.

In case of a refusal of these terms, according to the rumor, Germany is determined upon a war of extermination.

Berlin Denies Peace Reports.

BERLIN, via wireless, Dec. 4.—Reports that the kaiser is soon to visit Constantinople on a peace mission were today authoritatively declared to be absolutely untrue.

Berlin newspapers, commenting on French statements that the Germans revive peace discussions every time they score a military success, declared these reports to be inventions. On the contrary, they said after each fresh German success the French manufacture reports that Germany is seeking peace to bolster up their own courage.

Pope to Seek Peace?

ROME, Dec. 4.—Germany has made informal suggestions looking to the establishment of peace through the papal consistory next Monday, according to reports current here today.

Cardinal Hartman of Cologne is said to have brought to the vatican the proposal that Germany will evacuate Belgium and northern France and agree to an autonomous government for Poland if the vatican will make an effort at the present time to bring about peace.

Cardinals representing the allied countries, particularly Cardinal Gasquet of France and Cardinal Bourne of England, are said to have already been sounded out with this proposal.

SAYS BRITAIN SHOULD HAVE HELD GERMANS AS HOSTAGES

Lord Headley, Addressing American Luncheon Club, Denounces Alleged Barbarity of Teutons.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Lord Headley, addressing the American Luncheon club yesterday on the subject of "Enemy Aliens," asserted that "when Germany first began violating the laws of humanity and civilization" Great Britain should have held 2,000 prominent Germans as hostages.

"Germany should have been notified," he said, "that unless she conducted the war according to all the laws recognized by civilized nations, these hostages would be shot. If a Zeppelin bomb killed a woman in London ten hostages should have been shot for it. After what I have seen of the horrors of these Zeppelin raids in London, I would not hesitate a minute to shoot such hostages."

ITALIANS, ON DEFENSIVE, REPULSE THE AUSTRIANS.

Rome Statement Tells of Hard Fighting in Tonale Zone and on Monte Nero.

ROME, via London, Dec. 4.—The following statement concerning the progress of hostilities was given out by the Italian war office today:

There were encounters between detachments in the Tonale zone, and we repulsed enemy troops near Sanber, Tolmino, Hospite, and in the Ledro valley, where the enemy delivered an attack on our portions north of Pre, which we recently captured.

On Thursday night, after concentrated artillery preparations, dense masses of infantry charged our trenches in the Mrzli redoubt on Monte Nero. Parties penetrated our lines in a few places, from which they were driven out after violent hand to hand fighting. After a desperate fight the enemy was compelled to flee, leaving, in addition to 500 dead on the field, 131 prisoners, including three officers.

As Instinctive as the Song of the Nightingale

Like the song of birds, the voice of a Sembrich and the Piano of a Pachmann, the Baldwin
Manualo
The Player-Piano that is all but human expresses the exact emotion of whoever plays it, because it responds to instinct. The instinctive feeling which, if you were a trained musician, would make the piano "talk" makes the Manualo "talk" with identical expression.

In Manualo music, the volume, the accent, the light, the shade, the very style of playing, are controlled from the one place where you are in constant contact with the instrument and where your musical feeling it naturally expressed—the pedals. Every particle of feeling which you are instinctively put into the pedaling is instantly and exactly pictured in the music.

This is why the Manualo gives complete satisfaction to everybody who plays it and hears it. Its music never becomes monotonous, because it always is the spontaneous, natural expression of your ever-changing individual musical feeling.

Our book, "The A B C of the Manualo," describes and illustrates the exclusive features which enable the Manualo to be the musical voice of whoever plays it. Send for a copy.

DECLARES SERBIA, TORN TO SHREDS, IS WEARY OF WAR

Ready for Peace at Any Cost, Bennett Says; Peter's Men to Join Allies in Greece.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.
[War Correspondent of The Tribune.]
[SPECIAL CABLE TO CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

MILANOVATZ, Serbia, via London, Dec. 4.—Austro-German military and civil authorities confidently expect to be able to reëstablish the Orient express service between Vienna and Constantinople by the middle of December.

The reorganization work is following the German, Austrian, and Hungarian flags down the Danube. Military traffic crowds the river and hundreds of refugees are carried gratis by the steamers back to Belgrade and other points along the northern Serbian frontier.

Feeding Starving Serbs.

German troops at Semendria are feeding 600 Serbian women and children daily. Serbian villages are being cleared of weapons, and the haul includes an extraordinary collection of Turkish flintlocks inlaid with mother of pearl and other arms of ancient pattern.

The inhabitants of Serbia are so weary of war that they yearn only for peace at any cost.

The weather is sharp and the roads are fearful. The Danube is thoroughly cleared of mines, but passages near the shore still are blocked for miles by sunken steamers of the Serbian merchant fleet.

Small Serbian towns possessing any military significance already are equipped with enormous electric light generators mounted on German auto trucks.

Bring In Many Serb Prisoners.

Hundreds of Serbian prisoners are being brought in daily from the south to the Danube.

The fighting qualities of the Serbs are praised by Austrian and German officers, one officer remarking that "the Serbs are not bad soldiers."

I have traveled 150 miles along the Serbian shore of the Danube and am writing this from the point where the Danube dips furthest south into Serbia.

GREECE NOT TO DISARM SERBS.

ATHENS, Dec. 4.—Part of the Serbian army of Col. Vassich, retiring from the region of Monastir, has crossed the frontier and taken refuge in Greece.

These forces, it was semi-officially stated today, will neither be disarmed nor interned. On the contrary, they will be allowed to make their way eastward through Greek territory and rejoin the Anglo-French forces near Guegyeli.

With the fall of Monastir the Serbs have relinquished practically their last grip on Serbian territory. Both in the north and south the Serbian armies have eluded their pursuers and have escaped intact across the Albanian frontier, fighting their way through snow filled mountain passes.

Monastir Retreat Well Timed.

The retreat from Monastir was so well timed that only a few prisoners are reported to have fallen into the Teutons' hands. Those detachments from Vassich's army that did not cross into Greece are moving westward to form a junction with other Serb forces resting on the Albanian frontier.

A picked band of Serbian comitadjis, noted for their bravery, made the last stand at Monastir and held off hostile forces twenty times their size, Saloniki dispatches reported today. They harassed the advancing Teutons day and night, leading them to believe they were opposed by a much larger force. In the final battle on the heights before Monastir this little force was slaughtered almost to a man. Less than 100 of them are believed to have been taken by the invaders.

Italians to Land at Saloniki.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Delayed dispatches from Rome, hinting that Italy plans to send troops to Saloniki as well as to Albania, further complicated the Balkan situation today.

This news came on the heels of reports from Athens that the Greek government would not disarm or intern Serbian troops taking refuge on Greek territory after the fall of Monastir, but would permit them to join the Anglo-French forces. Officials accepted this report as most encouraging in view of the pessimism prevailing during the last few days because of King Constantine's failure to make a definite promise to the allies.

Dispatches from Rome delayed several hours in transmission said that Foreign Minister Sonnino informed the ambassadors of the quadruple entente yesterday that Italy would coöperate both in military and diplomatic action in Greece.

More Prisoners for Germany.

BERLIN, via wireless to Sayville, L. I., Dec. 4.—Two thousand Serbians, partly prisoners and partly deserters, have been taken by the Teutonic forces in the last twenty-four hours, the war office stated this afternoon.

Reports Austrian Defeat.

PARIS, Dec. 4.—Austrian forces which occupied the Montenegrin town of Plevlje made determined attacks on the Montenegrin positions Thursday, but were everywhere repulsed, said an official statement from the Montenegrin war office today.

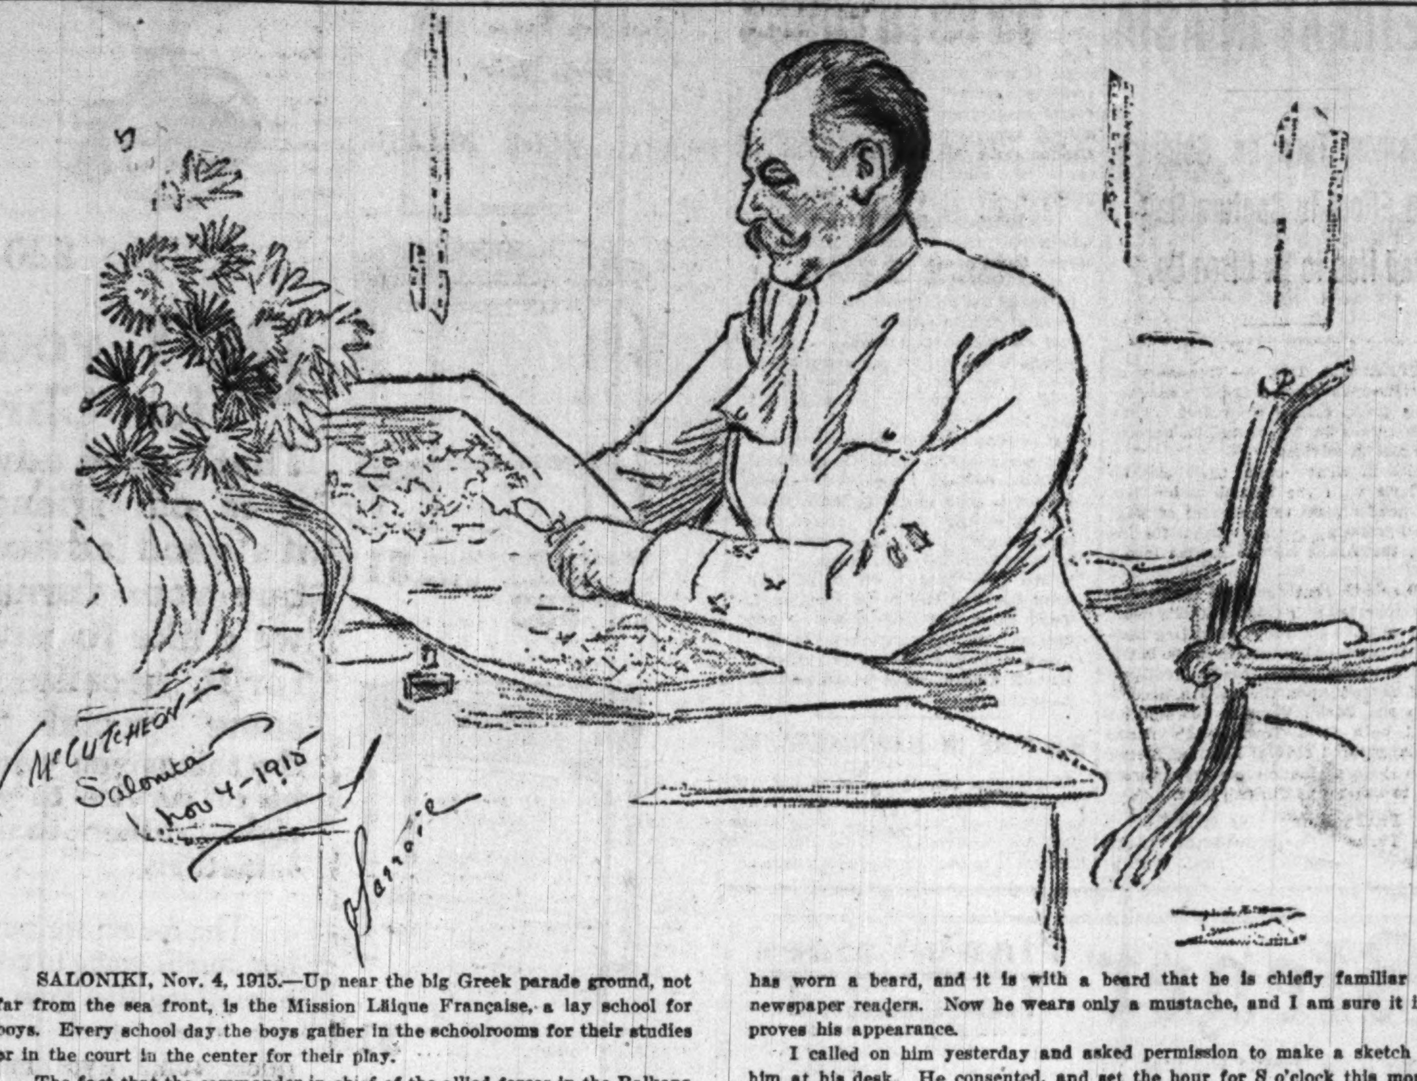
French Air Raid in Serbia.

SALONIKI, Dec. 4.—Two French air squadrons bombarded German and Bulgarian camps near Strumnitza and Uskub effectively today. They returned safely to the allied lines, despite a hot fire.

THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF OF THE ALLIES IN THE BALKANS.

Drawn by John T. McCutcheon and Autographed by Gen. Serrail.

[Copyright: 1915: By John T. McCutcheon.]



SALONIKI, Nov. 4, 1915.—Up near the big Greek parade ground, not far from the sea front, is the Mission Läique Française, a lay school for boys. Every school day the boys gather in the schoolrooms for their studies or in the court in the center for their play.

The fact that the commander in chief of the allied forces in the Balkans occupies with his staff a good portion of the building has not been allowed to interfere with the regular operations of the school.

At the front of the building paces an armed French soldier, while in the main entry way there are usually other soldiers either on duty or idly watching the schoolboys playing in the courtyard.

Upstairs on the second floor is the staff headquarters, where Gen. Sarrail, the commander in chief of the French and British forces, directs the operations of the allies.

He is a tall, handsome, soldierly looking man with a very high forehead, gray mustache, and a healthy complexion. Until within a few weeks he has worn a beard, and it is with a beard that he is chiefly familiar to newspaper readers. Now he wears only a mustache, and I am sure it improves his appearance.

I called on him yesterday and asked permission to make a sketch of him at his desk. He consented, and set the hour for 8 o'clock this morning. At that hour I was there, and found him in a simple dark brown uniform and amiably resigned to being sketched. The result is shown in the accompanying drawing.

The room he occupies as his headquarters is small and plainly furnished. A desk and several upholstered chairs, with some flowers on the desk and the mantel, complete the furniture of the room. On his desk was a big map of the Balkans, and from his window there was a broad view of the big parade ground, with the Gulf of Saloniki and Mount Olympus off to the south. It is a wonderful view, but I'm sure the general upon whose shoulders rests the destinies of the allied troops in the Balkans has little time to enjoy it.

MISSING WISCONSIN HUNTER SOUGHT BY 100 CITIZENS.

Eighteen Year Old Boy of Medford Disappeared Sunday—His Death Is Feared.

Medford, Wis., Dec. 4.—Nearly 100 Medford citizens today joined in the search for the 18 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Christ Dable who has been missing since Sunday. He left home on that day to go hunting and has not been heard of since. Up to last night it was thought he was visiting with friends. It is feared that he was killed.

SOCIALISTS IN REICHSTAG LEAD IN FOOD DISCUSSION.

Demand German Government Eliminate Middlemen—Official Control of Supplies Urged.

BERLIN, Dec. 4, via London, Dec. 5, 2:16 a. m.—The budget committee of the reichstag is devoting several days to the discussion of food problems. The Socialists are taking a leading part, two having spoken on Thursday and three on Friday.

These Socialist speakers fully approved the government's measures to protect consumers and secure a better distribution of supplies, but demanded that the government must go further and apply the card system to meats, lard, and virtually everything else and wholly eliminate the middleman.

One Socialist demanded that the government carry out the resolution already unanimously adopted by the reichstag, providing for the establishment of a central government office having complete control of food supplies.

VILLA ARMY RENEWS FIGHT TO BREAK CARRANZA CORDON

Battle Resumed in Sonora, Across Border from Arizona—Troops Hurried from Agua Prieta.

Douglas, Ariz., Dec. 4.—Advices received from Agua Prieta, Sonora, opposite here, stated that fighting had started between the Carranza forces guarding the Nacozari railroad and the Villa troops of Gen. Jose Rodriguez, who are trying to break through the Carranza lines between Fronteras and Esqueda. Agua Prieta almost was stripped of guns and soldiers to send reinforcements to the Carranza forces.

Gen. P. Elias Calles, second in command of the Carranza forces, who arrived in Agua Prieta today, hastily gathered early tonight all available soldiers of the garrison and left for the scene of the fighting. He was said to have taken nearly every machine gun in the town with him. A short time later reports received here said that a special train loaded with artillery left Agua Prieta for Fronteras.

GERMAN MEATS IN PLENTY.

Overseas News Agency Says That Census Has Proved Full Supply of Foods.

BERLIN, Dec. 4.—[By Wireless.]—"The results of the census of German cattle and other live stock just presented to the reichstag," says the Overseas News agency, "is generally satisfactory and affords further proof that the German nation has sufficient meat at its disposal."

RAIN DELAYS OPERATIONS ALONG THE WESTERN FRONT.

Paris Official Statement Says Fighting at Most Points Has Been Halted by Downpour.

PARIS, Dec. 4.—The following official communication was issued by the war office tonight:

> Bad weather continues to impede the operations. An intermittent cannonade has occurred at divers points along the front. Mine fighting of quite a spirited character has occurred in the Argonne and Haute Chevauchee and Les Eparges.
> In the Woevre our artillery demolished a large gun near Woinville, east of St. Mihiel.
> Belgian artillery succeeded in destroying the German works and preventing repairs from being made, especially around the German posts at Dentoren and Oudstuyvekenskerke.

WHITLOCK IS TO GO BACK.

State Department Officials Scoff at Report Germany Objected to Minister to Belgium.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—State department officials insisted today they had not changed plans to have American Minister Brand Whitlock return to Belgium. They scouted unofficial press reports that Germany was objecting to Whitlock's return.

ALLIES STAY PAT IN ALL DEMANDS MADE ON GREECE

Guarantees to Be Granted Is Belief as Fleets Patrol Coast and Troops Rule Roads.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

ROME, Dec. 4.—The allies have rejected the proposal of the Greek government, made in reply to the recent note of the allies, that the details of the freedom of action to be granted the Anglo-French troops in Macedonia and to the allied fleets in Greek territorial waters be settled by a commission made up of the general staffs of the allied and Greek armies.

The entente powers have demanded that Greece assent immediately to the demands already presented. The guarantees demanded undoubtedly will be given since the allied fleets already are policing the Greek coasts and the Saloniki railway is controlled by the Anglo-French troops.

Greek Railways to Allies.

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 4.—Greece has agreed to give the allies the free use of all railways in Macedonia and all Aegean harbors, including that of Kavalla, according to the Berliner Tageblatt.

"This means that practically the whole of Grecian Macedonia is delivered to the allies as a war base," said the Tageblatt. "Greece, however, has refused to disarm troops of the central empires if they drive the allies back into its territory."

SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION TO HAVE ANOTHER BUILDING

Charles L. Freer of Detroit Gives $1,000,000 for Edifice for Art Collection Donated by Him.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—A new million dollar building is to be added to the Smithsonian Institution here to contain the collection of paintings, engravings, porcelains, and bronzes given to the institution from time to time by Charles L. Freer of Detroit.

Mr. Freer has given $1,000,000 for the new building, plans for which now are being drawn. It will be located on the Smithsoian grounds in the mall, which extends from the capitol to the White House and which contains the Washington monument, the botanical gardens, the National museum, and other structures of national importance.

Secretary Walcott of the Smithsonian announced today that plans had been so far perfected that it was expected work on the building could be started during the coming spring. The collection represents periods of art beginning before the Christian era.

CARNEGIE FUNDS TO HELP BRITISH GOVERNMENT BONDS

United States Steel Paper Will Be Sold and Proceeds Invested to Change Exchange Rates.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—The trustees of the Carnegie hero fund, the Carnegie trust for the universities of Scotland, and the Carnegie Dunfermline trust have decided to sell at the current market prices the United States Steel corporation bonds held by the trusts and invest the proceeds in bonds of the British government.

It is explained that this decision was taken with a view of meeting the desire of the government that American securities held in this country should be realized in order to overcome the adverse rate of exchange.

The bonds amount to almost $25,000,000.

Two British Steamers Sunk.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—The British steamers Middleton and Clan Macleod have been sunk by submarines. Four of the Middleton's crew were killed.

ITALIAN CAPTAIN RELATES ESCAPE FROM A SUBMARINE.

Commander of Steamer Verona Says Heavy Sea Prevented War Craft from Firing Torpedo.

New York, Dec. 4.—Capt. Simone Guli of the Italian steamer Verona, which arrived here today after having been chased by a submarine in the Mediterranean on Nov. 19, said a heavy sea which caused the submarine to roll and pitch was the chief factor in enabling the steamer to elude the under sea boat.

"We were about 110 miles west of the straits of Bonifacio on Nov. 19," he said, "when a large submarine appeared on the surface about two miles off our starboard side, and slightly astern. There were no signals, and I immediately put on all speed and steered a course so that the submarine would be forced to take the heavy sea at a quartering angle.

"Although the sea which was then running was not heavy enough to materially bother the Verona, it caused the submarine to roll and pitch and the crew were unable to aim either of the two deck guns at us. We eventually escaped."

JAPANESE FLEET REVIEW HONORS AMERICAN SHIPS.

Cruiser Saratoga Given Leading Place When Warships Parade Before Eastern Emperor.

YOKOHAMA, Dec. 4.—Emperor Yoshihito reviewed the Japanese fleet here today in connection with the celebration of his coronation.

The United States cruiser Saratoga, flagship of the Asiatic fleet, had the place of honor, opposite the new 30,000 ton Japanese battleship Fuso. The commander of the American fleet, Rear Admiral Albert G. Winterhalter, and his staff accompanied the emperor on the battle cruiser Tsukuba. The American officers were much impressed by the many manifestations of friendship on the part of the Japanese.

From the heights surrounding the bay hundreds of thousands of persons saw the demonstration of Japan's sea power and heard the roar of guns which, firing simultaneously, discharged about 8,000 shots in giving the imperial salutes. There were 125 warships in line.

Believed in London Move Presages Action Against the Central Powers.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Roumania's unexpected action in commandeering all foreign shipping in its harbors overshadowed every other development in the Balkan situation tonight.

News of this warlike movement was telegraphed here on the heels of reports from Athens, apparently confirmed in Berlin dispatches, that King Constantine was about to give a satisfactory reply to the allies. It gave rise to fresh hopes that Roumania is about to cast its lot with the allies.

The Roumanian legation had no confirmation. Dispatches from two separate sources at Bucharest, however, declared the military authorities published the order today and that it will take effect on Monday.

The Roumanian prime minister refused to make any statement other than that the step was taken in the interests of the national defense.

Should Roumania suddenly enter the war, its first move probably would be to seize these vessels to aid in transporting Russian troops up the Danube into Bulgaria.

The news from Bucharest, it was pointed out, may explain Athens dispatches today reporting the withdrawal of Teutonic forces to the north, following the capture of Monastir.

ALLIES' FLEET BOMBARDS TURKS FROM DARDANELLES.

Constantinople Reports Heavy but Fruitless Cannonade—Artillery Active on Gallipoli Peninsula.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 4.—Continued bombardment of Turkish positions on the Gallipoli peninsula by allied warships is reported in an official statement issued by the Turkish war office. The statement says:

"On the Dardanelles front there have been artillery bombardments near Anafarta by enemy cruisers, near Ari Burnu by a torpedo boat and monitor, and near Seddul Bahr by a monitor and an armored cruiser. The bombardments were unsuccessful.

"Near Seddul Bahr, on the right wing, during a vigorous encounter the enemy fired a great number of shells against our center and our left wing.

"The English are using hospital ships for the transportation of soldiers."

Regarding the British retreat in Mesopotamia the statement says:

"Our forces dispatched from Aut-el-Amara, attacking the retreating enemy, inflicted heavy losses."

GERMAN PLOT TRAILED HERE BY U. S. AGENTS

Labor Peace Chiefs Summoned by New York Grand Jury for a Grilling.

Papen for your money?" Mr. Canode was asked.

"I can't answer that."

"Do you intend to tell the grand jury that the money was distributed by German agents?"

"I have been instructed not to talk. I can't give the names of the men subpœnaed even. I am going down to New York and answer any questions that I can, fully and freely.

"I will say that some of the information I have should prove very valuable to the United States. That is all. When I was hunting for my money there seemed to be a wild demoralization in the organization, and I was sent from one person to another. I have some inside information as to where the money came from, but I am not at liberty now to tell."

Repudiated by Gompers.

The motives of the Labor National Peace council first fell under general suspicion when Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, formally repudiated and cast off the implied alliance with the federation. At that time Milton Snelling, first vice president of the International Union of Steam and Operating Engineers, who had been persuaded by Buchanan to accept the vice presidency of the peace council, resigned from the latter organization.

Snelling declared he resigned because he discovered that the organization was more pro-German than pro-peace.

Can't Reach Clabaugh.

Hinton G. Clabaugh, chief of the local bureau of investigation of the department of justice, could not be reached last night.

"Mr. Clabaugh is at the theater," and "Mr. Clabaugh has not reached home," were the only answers that repeated calls elicited.

Lucien C. Wheeler, assistant to Mr. Clabaugh, declared that he knew nothing about the calling of the Chicago men to New York or of the investigation, except in the vaguest way.

"I heard some casual talk about it," he said. "I don't know the name of a single man subpœnaed, or exactly what the object of the inquiry is. I am engaged on criminal cases and Mr. Clabaugh is handling the civil cases. Therefore I am unable to give any information on the matter."

MORE GERMANS ARRESTED.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—After weeks of investigation covering the entire country department of justice officials were convinced tonight that they had under arrest most of the men implicated in plots to interfere with American commerce in munitions of war.

The arrest today in San Francisco of Baron von Brincken, who claims to be connected with the office of the German consul general there, is regarded here as one of the most important made in several weeks. The baron, according to information here, was a prominent figure in the plans of C. C. Crowley, arrested in the same city and charged with plots against munition factories.

Although officials would not admit that a direct connection has been established between the Crowley plots and those in which Lieut. Robert Fay and his accomplices were implicated in New York, it is understood many facts point to such a conclusion. If this proves true, the department expects within a few weeks to have completely defeated plans to interfere with munition shipments in the east to England, France, and Italy, and in the west to Russia.

Developments which have followed the request for withdrawal of Capt. Karl Boy-Ed and Capt. Franz von Papen, naval and military attachés of the German embassy, indicated today that the state department would conduct a wide investigation of foreign consular officials in the United States whose suspected activities, in some instances, are looked on with extreme disfavor. Should the investigation disclose that any of the officials have acted in a manner considered improper, their exequators will be cancelled or the state department will find other means of having them discontinued in the offices they hold.

It was said at the state department tonight that no decision had been reached in the case of Alexander von Nuber, Austro-Hungarian consul general at New York, whose name frequently has been mentioned in connection with the activities of Boy-Ed and Von Papen.

Germany to Demand Evidence.

Germany will not permit the cases against Capt. Ed-Boy and Von Papen to be closed with the mere request by this government for their recall. Germany will insist on a statement of the evidence on which the United States has taken this action.

Although no instructions have reached Washington from Berlin as yet there is good reason to believe that the German government will ask for a safe conduct for the recalled military and naval attachés, will insist on naming officers to succeed them, and will call on the United States to see that they are permitted to get to Washington in safety.

If the allies should refuse to grant such safe conduct to the successors of the recalled attachés Germany is likely to take another important step. It was learned today that a suggestion already is under serious consideration by the German authorities to call on the United States to send a cruiser to Germany to carry over the two successors to Capts. Boy-Ed and Von Papen.

German Agents Sentenced.

New York, Dec. 4.—Dr. Karl Buenz, managing director of the Hamburg-American lines, today was sentenced to serve one year and six months in the Atlanta, Ga., federal penitentiary following his conviction in the conspiracy case against the government.

George Koetter and Adolph Hochmeister, two other convicted Hamburg-American officials, received the same sentence. Joseph Poppinghause, the fourth official found guilty, was sentenced to serve one year and one day.

William Rand, counsel for the defendants, immediately filed an application for a writ of error, on which the case will be appealed to the United States Court of Appeals. The convicted officials were released on bail of $10,000 each pending a hearing of their appeal.

The men were convicted as a result of activities in dispatching twelve ships from New York to carry supplies to German raiders at sea, and filing false manifests to cover the shipments, in violation of the United States customs laws.

British Retreat from Bagdad.

ARAB TRAITORS FORCED BRITISH RETREAT IN ASIA

Tribesmen Turn on Soldiers, and Effort to Capture Bagdad Has to Be Given Up.

AMSTERDAM, Dec. 4.—Treachery of Arab tribesmen when Bagdad was within their grasp caused the retreat of the British forces in Mesopotamia, according to Berlin advices.

Hordes of Arabs made their way up the Tigris with the British under Gen. Townshend almost to the gates of Bagdad. Professing intense hatred for the Turks, the Arabs led the British into a trap.

Arab scouts, sent ahead of the British forces, reported only comparatively small bodies of Turkish troops defending Bagdad. At the crucial moment in the battle near Ctesiphon the Arabs suddenly turned fiercely upon the British, according to the Berlin Vossiche Zeitung, attacked both Gen. Townshend's flanks and slaughtered several hundred British troops before British artillery forced them to flee to the Turkish lines.

Pursued for 100 Miles.

The Turks have pursued the British nearly 100 miles down the Tigris to within a few miles of their base at Kut-El-Amara and are continuing their attacks, it was stated.

The belief prevails is Constantinople that the British will not make a second serious attempt to capture Bagdad. A Turkish statement says:

"We captured two transport ships on the Tigris loaded with food; two monitors, one carrying ten cannon and the other four cannon and three machine guns, and munition supplies. One of these ships is now being used against the retreating enemy."

A message from Constantinople claims a fresh success for the Turkish army in Mesopotamia, stating that it has captured two additional British gunboats equipped with 15 centimeter guns.

British Admit Defeat.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—An official statement issued today says:

> Gen. Townshend remained in occupation of the battlefield at Ctesiphon, beating off all counter attacks, till he had completed the removal of his wounded and of 1,600 prisoners; but in view of our heavy losses and the arrival of Turkish reinforcements he then withdrew.
> It is reported that our total casualties amounted to 4,567. On the night of Nov. 30-Dec. 1 Gen. Townshend fought a rear guard action against greatly superior Turkish forces. Our casualties in this action are estimated to have been 150 of all ranks.
> Two river boats were disabled by shell fire and had to be abandoned. Their guns and engines were made useless. By the latest reports Gen. Townshend was within a few miles of Kut-El-Amara, upon which position he is retiring.

BUY your furniture for Christmas now.

That's good advice; we're giving it to our friends candidly; and it's good advice wherever you buy your furniture. Of course we'd like to have you come to us for it, because we have gone to some special pains to provide the things you want; and our idea is to be of service to you, to help you buy right, rather than merely sell you something.

The reason for buying furniture now is that furniture is going to cost more after a few weeks. Everything that goes into it—fine woods, fabrics, dyes, steel, everything is advancing in price; some dyes much used in textiles for furniture are practically unobtainable.

We foresaw this result; we bought heavily in anticipation of it; we are giving our customers the benefit of this foresight in our prices.

The store is full of things suitable for Christmas gifts, or for the complete furnishing of an entire house. Anything bought here is exchangeable before or after Christmas; or the money paid will be returned if desired, at any time. But this is the time to buy furniture; and here are some of the things to buy. Scholle quality is always dependable.

STORES OF LOOP LABOR GRAFTERS' VICTIMS, CHARGE

Extortion Took Thousands from State Street Houses, Prosecutor Says.

Business in Chicago is said to have been hard hit by labor blackmailers in the last two years.

Evidence has been laid before State's Attorney Hoyne to show that many thousands of dollars have been extorted from loop merchants and business men.

One store is said to have paid $5,000 and another $2,500 to save themselves from the violence of wrecking crews and sluggers.

These facts were brought to light yesterday while thirty-two of the fifty-four men indicted by the November grand jury, arranged bonds before Judge Richard E. Burke, chief justice of the Criminal court, and were released.

Given Until Tuesday to Appear.

The remaining twenty-three will be allowed until Tuesday to give bonds. If they fail to appear by that time, Judge Burke announced, capiases will be issued for their arrest.

In a day of sensations it was reported that three of the indicted labor men had fled to Canada. Deputy sheriffs, who scoured the city with capiases, declared their belief that Thomas Crowley and Thomas Kelly had left the city.

Axel Alex was reported among the missing, but Attorney Frank D. Comerford said he was on his way back from a meeting of the American Federation of Labor in San Francisco and will be produced in court on Monday.

Death Threats for Case.

Assistant State's Attorney Charles Center Case, who had charge of the grand jury work, said that while the body was investigating the window smashing and blackmailing operations of the nine union labor czars and their satellites who rule Chicago, anonymous death threats had been received by him and by two members of the grand jury. These letters informed the recipients they would be killed if indictments were voted against labor leaders.

Mr. Case also said that he had learned that a number of witnesses who appeared before the grand jury and testified against labor sluggers had been the victims of vicious assaults by night from unidentified assailants.

Gives Names of Victims.

Mr. Case announced that the blanket indictment charging conspiracy against fifty-four men in 195 cases—only one of this kind of indictment was returned—included cases in which the following firms and institutions had been the victims:

Northwestern university law department (old Tremont hotel), at Dearborn and Lake streets; windows smashed.

North Side State Savings bank, 808 North Clark street; windows smashed.

Roseland Presbyterian church; blackmailed out of $200.

Alexander H. Revell & Co.

Ambrose Wosh, South Chicago; building blown up.

Levy on Loop Stores.

Mr. Case also declared that he had much evidence in his possession to show that a number of the big State street department stores had been forced to pay large sums of money as tribute to labor overlords. He admitted that he had heard that a large plate glass window in a State street store had been broken. The glass remained out of this window three months. Labor sluggers, it was said, refused to permit the store officials to replace the window and threatened to smash all other windows in the store. These labor men at last were paid $2,500, it is said.

Case Tells of Church Troubles.

"The case of the mulcting of the Rev. Robert O. Thomas of Roseland Presbyterian church," said Mr. Case, "was a particularly aggravated affair. The church was being erected at the time. A neighboring church had had some trouble with the unions, and the Roseland Presbyterian church was set on fire, apparently by mistake.

"Michael Boyle, one of the most unscrupulous of labor men, called a strike. He sent word to the Rev. Mr. Thomas that he would have to 'kick in' with $200. The minister was forced to visit Johnson's saloon, 333 West Madison street, to see the labor boss. The church finally paid $200, and the next day the work on it was allowed to resume. The money was paid by Ald. Hiram Vanderbilt.

Laugh at Detectives on Guard.

"The windows of the Northwestern university law department were smashed three times about a year ago. The university officials employed detectives to work on the case. While two of these detectives were watching the building one day the labor sluggers who had done the smashing drove by in an automobile and laughed at them.

"Robert Clayton, William Hipp, and Roy ["Muckles"] Shields smashed the windows of the North Side State Savings bank in the Bush Temple building. They started out from the loop in an automobile, and Clayton's wife was with them. As they whizzed by the Western Union Telegraph company's office at State street and Austin avenue they shot an iron slug from a slingshot through one of the windows.

Movie Theaters Wrecked.

"Some cases of damage done by labor wreckers to moving picture theaters are included in these indictments. I have much evidence of this kind. I have learned that the Band Box theater, recently opened in West Madison street, near La Salle, was held up for $1,000 by labor blackmailers. The work of labor wrecking crews in the California theater at Twenty-sixth street and Trumbull avenue will probably be laid before the December grand jury."

"The systematized blackmail of the nine labor czars who ruled the nine districts into which Chicago was divided for purposes of graft was directed at rich and poor alike. Methods used with rich business men, however, were marked by a certain crude diplomacy. The small business men were handed the 'rough stuff.'"

One City Inspector on List.

Before the return of the indictments on Friday State's Attorney Hoyne announced that five or six city inspectors would be indicted. As only one city employé was in the list, the prosecutor's statement is taken to mean the December grand jury may investigate charges against city inspectors. The single indictment was against Thomas Redding, foreman in the city repair shops at Ashland avenue and Twenty-second street. He was ordered suspended yesterday pending the outcome of the case against him. He is a brother-in-law of former Chief of Detectives John J. Halpin, now on trial for grafting in connection with the clairvoyant cases.

When Judge Burke's court opened in the morning thirty-two of the men under indictment were present with their lawyers. Three hours were spent in wrangling over the amount of the bonds. Assistant State's Attorney Case finally consented to bonds of $2,500 in each conspiracy, malicious mischief, and extortion indictment. This would have totaled $115,000 for each of the fifty-four men in forty-six indictments if they had been compelled to give the full amount.

In Sheriff's Custody.

All day the thirty-two men remained in custody of the sheriff, while efforts were being made to find bondsmen for them. Late in the afternoon, it began to look as if they would have to go to jail. At this juncture, Fred Mader, of the fixture hangers' union, eluded the deputies on guard and slipped out of the building. Bond for him was prepared later but he was not in court.

When prospects seemed gloomiest, Judge Burke cut the gordian knot.

Burke Comes to Relief.

"I will bar professional bondsmen and bond sharks," said Judge Burke. "But I will use my own discretion as to bondsmen. If a man like Tom Carey, for instance, should offer I would accept him for the entire fifty-four men, provided an additional bondsman worth $5,000 or $10,000 be obtained by each of the defendants.

"I will not approve a prohibitive bond. I want these men to have a fair show. Bondsmen need not schedule $230,000 in each case nor even $115,000. All I want to be sure of is that the bondsman is responsible and will produce the defendant in court."

These Furnish Bond.

A few minutes before Judge Burke announced he would adjourn court bond was furnished for the following thirty-two men:

William E. Geimer,
Frank A. Gardiner,
Lawrence P. Lindelof,
Charles Gibbard,
Harry H. Grass,
Elmer L. Hitt,
Ed Kenney,

When Ald. John Powers of the Nineteenth ward offered himself as a bondsman, Assistant State's Attorney W. H. Duval refused to accept him on the ground he was already on many bonds. He proved acceptable, however, to Judge Burke.

Blackmail, Kellman Says.

Hyman Kellman, who is a plate glass dealer at 1431 South Halsted street, telephoned THE TRIBUNE last night and said he is a victim of blackmail.

"I am 75 years old," he said. "I have been in business for twenty-six years, have never been bankrupt, never had a fire in my place, and my credit is good all over. I never did a disreputable thing in my life. I am nearly blind. I know no business agents. Indicting me means the ruining of a reputation that it has taken fifty years to establish."

WILSON WILL WED MRS. GALT DEC. 18 AT BRIDE'S HOME

Ceremony to Be Quiet; Only Kin to Be Present; Honeymoon Plans Kept Secret.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—The wedding of President Wilson and Mrs. Norman Galt has been set for Dec. 18, it was announced at the White House today.

The White House statement follows:

"It was announced at the White House today that the marriage of Mrs. Galt and the president will take place on Saturday, the eighteenth of December. As previously stated, the ceremony will be performed at Mrs. Galt's home, 1308 Twentieth street, Northwest. The only guests will be Mrs. Galt's mother, her brothers and sisters, the president's brother and sister, his daughters, and the members of his immediate household. No invitations will be issued."

Pastor Friend to Officiate?

The hour of the wedding and who will officiate is not made known. It is believed, however, that the Rev. Sylvester Beach of Princeton, N. J., a personal friend of the president, is most likely to perform the wedding ceremony.

It is probable the president will have Col. E. M. House as best man and Mrs. Galt, it is understood, will be attended by her sister, Miss Bertha Bolling.

Immediately after authorizing the announcement of the date the president left the White House for the home of his fiancée and they started for their regular Saturday auto drive.

As indicated in the formal announcement, the wedding will be quiet and informal. The president has made it known, both in official circles and among his friends, that it is desired that no gifts be sent. It is understood that ambassadors who have called at the state department have been so informed.

Honeymoon Place a Secret.

Regarding the honeymoon of the president and his bride no announcement or intimation came from the executive offices today. It is now believed, however, they will go to some point in the south, although friends of each have hinted they might pass the time in some quiet portion of New Jersey. Pass Christian, it was intimated, will not be favored.

BOY NOW RICH; BIG FEE ASKED

Attorneys Want $60,000 for Raising Poor Youth to Wealth.

LAD NOW MILLIONAIRE.

At 16 Charles H. Nichols is a millionaire. His mother does not now have to do sewing for fourteen hours a day to clothe and feed him.

This was brought out at a hearing yesterday wherein Attorney Robert Van Sands related the patient effort of three years, during which time he has been engaged, because he respected the memory of the elder Nichols, in obtaining justice for the youth.

The will contest, which has been ended with the result that young Nichols obtains his share of $3,000,000 left by Mrs. Abbie Nichols, his grandmother, and $1,000,000 left by his great-grandfather, Ezekiel Morrison, was brought into court yesterday on the plea of Attorney Van Sands that he be permitted a fee of $50,000 and that former Judge Charles S. Cutting be allowed $10,000 for work in connection with the estate.

Mrs. Carrie M. Tyler, an aunt of young Nichols, was the contestant.

The hearing was before Judge Horner in the Probate court.

"I have known Mrs. Lillian M. Nichols, the youth's mother, for a great many years," Attorney Van Sands testified. "I knew the boy from birth—was his father's attorney before the latter's death. I went into this case as much as a friend as I did in the capacity of attorney. At first it looked like a hopeless task. If we lost the case we would get nothing. If we won it they agreed to give us a large amount. Judge Cutting and myself labored night and day. I traveled all over the country to establish the boy's claim to the property and obtain papers proving his birth. Therefore, taking into consideration the vast litigation and work and the raising of this boy from a pauper to a prince, I think I have earned $50,000."

The bulk of the boy's property consists of the site on which the Hotel Planters is situation and the property on the northeast corner of Clark and Madison streets.

U. S. TAKES OVER CHICAGO BUREAU IN BUENOS AIRES.

Branch of Chamber of Commerce Advertising Illinois Products Under Government Control.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—The Buenos Aires branch of the Chicago Association of Commerce has been taken over by the American commercial attache in behalf of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce. The branch was opened originally to advertise Illinois products and to establish direct trade relations for firms in the Chicago district.

A special representative using the Buenos Aires office as his headquarters traveled over South America in the interests of the association.

Now that the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, of the department of commerce, is maintaining commercial attachés at Buenos Aires and three other South American cities, the association feels that the attachés are in a position to carry on the work established by it, and that the interests of Chicago business men will be adequately looked after.

ENTER THEATER BY FIRE ESCAPE TO SHOW FILM

Owners Lock Doors, but Renters, with Injunction, Get In Anyway.

Twenty-five men entered the Olympic theater at 10:30 last night through the fire escape with an injunction allowing them to show motion pictures. Klaw & Erlanger, owners of the theater, had forbidden the exhibition of motion pictures called "Fighting in France," showing the French side of the war.

The "Buffalo Times," owned by Norman E. Mack, leased the theater for four weeks from Klaw & Erlanger to show moving pictures. "The Fighting Millions," showing the German side of the war, was sent back to the Vitagraph company last night after being exhibited for one week, because there were flaws in the films and arrangements were made to show the French pictures for the remaining three weeks.

Pictures Are Forbidden.

Then it was that Klaw & Erlanger stepped in.

"'You can show any other pictures you please, but not those pictures,' they told us," says John F. Miller, Norman Mack's representative here. "We had paid our rent for the full four weeks, and so we determined to go ahead and show the pictures Saturday night anyway, as we had advertised them."

At 8:30 last night Miller obtained an injunction from Judge Frederick Smith enjoining the owners of the theater from interfering with the exhibition. Armed with this, he went to the theater, but found the doors locked and bolted.

Police Are Summoned.

Police officers were summoned to prevent interference, and Miller, with twenty-five men to reinforce him, entered the theater through the fire escape. The picture show was started at 11 o'clock five hours behind schedule time.

"The real trouble is the Hearst people," said William H. Rudolph, attorney for Miller, last night. "They are showing French pictures at the La Salle theater, and they feared our competition with pictures fresh from the French fighting front would interfere with them. So they used their influence with Klaw & Erlanger in New York to fight us. The same trouble has occurred in New York and Boston."

TRUST COMPANY OFFICIAL SEEKS CARLETON HUDSON.

Deeds to Property Held by "Count of Coxsackie" May Precipitate Court Battle.

An attempt to locate Carleton Hudson, known variously as Carleton Hudson Betts and the "Count of Coxsackie," is being made by Frank G. Gardner, treasurer of the Chicago Title and Trust company, which was named conservator of the estate of former Judge Arba N. Waterman.

Attorney Edwin Munger, who was appointed conservator of the person of the aged ex-jurist, has notified the New England sanitarium at Melrose Park, Mass., that the care of Mr. Waterman is now in the hands of the court. The first appearance of the deeds to the Waterman property which Hudson is reported to hold will be a signal for a court battle.

"We understand Mr. Hudson was in Chicago since a conservator was appointed, but we have been unable to locate him as yet," said Mr. Gardner.

Head School Assistants Tour City.

Members of the Head Assistants' association of the Chicago public schools took an automobile tour yesterday visiting points of interest involved in the plan of Chicago. New York Mayor Will Seek Father.

MISS MINNIE KLEINMAN

Minnie Kleinman wants her father. And this is the reason that she wrote recently to Mayor John Purroy Mitchel of New York asking him to find Harris Kleinman. Minnie couldn't do it herself, for she is only 14 years old, and besides she is an inmate of the Chicago Home for Jewish Orphans.

Yet she isn't an orphan. For her mother resides in St. Louis, where she recently married a carpenter of the name of Charles Coffy. Her father and mother parted in London when Minnie was only a year old.

Awhile back Minnie's mother came for her, but she wouldn't go, and now she wants her father, for fear she may have to go somewhere else. So she was immensely pleased when she got a note from Mayor Mitchel yesterday.

MILLION AWARD MADE AGAINST SANITARY BODY

Master in Chancery Finds for Contractor Duffy, Ousted from Drainage Job.

for about $8,000, which the trustees refused to consider.

"After a hard fought trial of some two or three weeks the jury assessed Browning's damages for the land at $3,500.

"According to the master's report, the master has not only charged two and one-half times the value of the machinery when sold at public auction pursuant to the terms of the Duffy contract, at which sale Duffy himself was present, but he has also charged the district with $515,000 for alleged rental, $470,000 of which is for rental after the sale, a case of eating the pie and keeping it."

Story of Litigation.

Duffy had a contract for the construction of three sections of the drainage canal, "through the rock" and on the Chicago side of the present Lockport controlling works. It was made Oct. 14, 1903. His sections were adjoining the Lorimer and Gallagher sections.

On June 9, 1906, the sanitary district board of trustees took possession of Duffy's machinery and closed him out as contractor. This action, it is contended, was taken after Isham Randolph, then chief engineer of the sanitary district, recommended such a step.

A new contract was made Sept. 5, 1906, which, the sanitary district holds, settled all pending differences between Duffy and the board, and disposed of the entire matter.

On Feb. 8, 1908, Duffy filed a bill in chancery in the Circuit court of Cook county, asking for an accounting. Judge Petit referred the case to Master in Chancery Browning.

Asked for Another Master.

Attorney Edmund D. Adcock, counsel for the sanitary district, filed a motion in the Circuit court, June 26, 1913, praying that the case be re-referred to a master other than Mr. Browning. In his motion Attorney Adcock, after setting out that Mr. Browning was the owner of "tract 86A" on the route of the Sag channel, which the sanitary district was seeking to procure, and did procure, after a jury trial, said:

"Your petitioner further shows that on account of the condemnation proceeding in which there is a controversy between your petitioner and Browning, it is improper that Browning continue to perform the duties of master in this cause. Your petitioner cannot in equity and good conscience determine the said condemnation proceeding by a settlement thereof or by a trial thereof so long as the said Browning continues as master in this cause.

Refused to Withdraw.

"In consequence of this condition as above set forth your petitioner, through its attorney, in company with the attorney for the said Duffy, appeared before said Master Browning on or about June 24, 1913, and stated to Browning in the presence of the attorney for Duffy the facts as here set forth, and that your petitioner believed it was improper that Browning continue as master in this cause; that if Browning did not choose to withdraw from the cause your petitioner would present to the court the facts as herein set forth and would ask that this cause be re-referred.

"The attorney for Duffy at the hearing protested against a re-reference, and Browning stated he would not withdraw; that he would oppose any proceeding before this court for the purpose of having a re-reference."

Judge Baldwin Denies Motion.

Judge Jesse Baldwin, as chief justice of the Circuit court, passing upon this motion July 13, 1913, refused to change the reference to Master Browning, saying:

"If this motion had been urged in November last, when it was before me, and if it had at that time appeared to me that there would be no hardship to the complainant, it seems to me that the fact there was a proceeding pending to take property belonging to the master was a very good reason for his declining to hear it further and for the court sending it somewhere else, without any reflections upon anybody.

"But it would seem to me, much as I think the proprieties would require that this hearing should originally have been before some one else, in equity, after all the testimony has been taken, and especially since you have taken several thousand pages after this matter was on legitimately here for hearing, it would seem to me inequitable to remove it and subject the parties to the expense and delay that is incident to it, because, while I am perfectly aware that the master will have to go over this in order to make his finding, nevertheless the fact of having the witnesses before him from time to time is of immense help in determining the conclusion.

Duffy's Rights Affected.

"So, if the matter affected only you and the master, I should regard it as a very clear case of requiring the right, as it does, primarily here, of Mr. Duffy, I see no other way than for you gentlemen to close your case, and if you are dissatisfied with his ruling or any portion thereof, present your dissatisfaction in the regular method, by exceptions to his report.

"It is a rather involved situation, one that ought not to exist, and yet one of the situations that may occur legitimately in a big city like this, where matters are so complicated."

17,000 Pages of Testimony.

Since the hearing started more than 17,000 pages of testimony have been taken and the estimate of the fees, running over the prolonged interval that the case has been in hearing, runs from $10,000 to $50,000, the sum to be determined later by the court.

Notice that the master's report had been completed was served upon the interested attorneys Friday. Objections by either side may be filed until Dec. 16.

Master Browning's report makes ninety-eight separate findings. The most important, from the standpoint of Duffy, is as follows:

"I find that the only thing that could excuse the act of the defendant in taking over the work from the complainant would be the completion of the work by the defendant at a greater rate of speed than that made by the complainant. In fact, the completion was greatly delayed by the defendant's taking over the work. I find, therefore, that the taking over was a wrongful act of the defendant, without warrant or excuse, and that the defendant must be held to the highest degree of responsibility and accountability, as the trustee of the complainant."

CARDINAL DENIES REPORTS.

Gibbons Angered When Quoted as Saying He Is Opposed to Preparedness Now.

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 4.—Cardinal Gibbons was vexed today when shown an alleged interview quoting him as "definitely taking his stand against preparedness."

"This is absolutely unauthorized," he said. "I have given no one the right to speak for me to this effect. The paragraph is entirely without authority."

They are of dainty silk nets and tulle, with messaline underdrapes, some embroidered with gold and silver thread, some with sequins and crystal bead trimming. Soft, rich chiffon velvet is effectively used on many—others are brilliant with silver cloth, or caught here and there with dainty flowers.

Each Is Lovelier Than the Other

And their special attraction lies in the fact that they answer so many purposes. For the formal tea, the dinner, a box at the theater or opera, and later at the ball—in any one of these attractive frocks you can feel confident of being perfectly gowned—women's and misses' sizes.

Afternoon Dresses—New arrivals in a variety of materials and pretty styles and exceptional values at $15, $18.75, $23.75 and up.

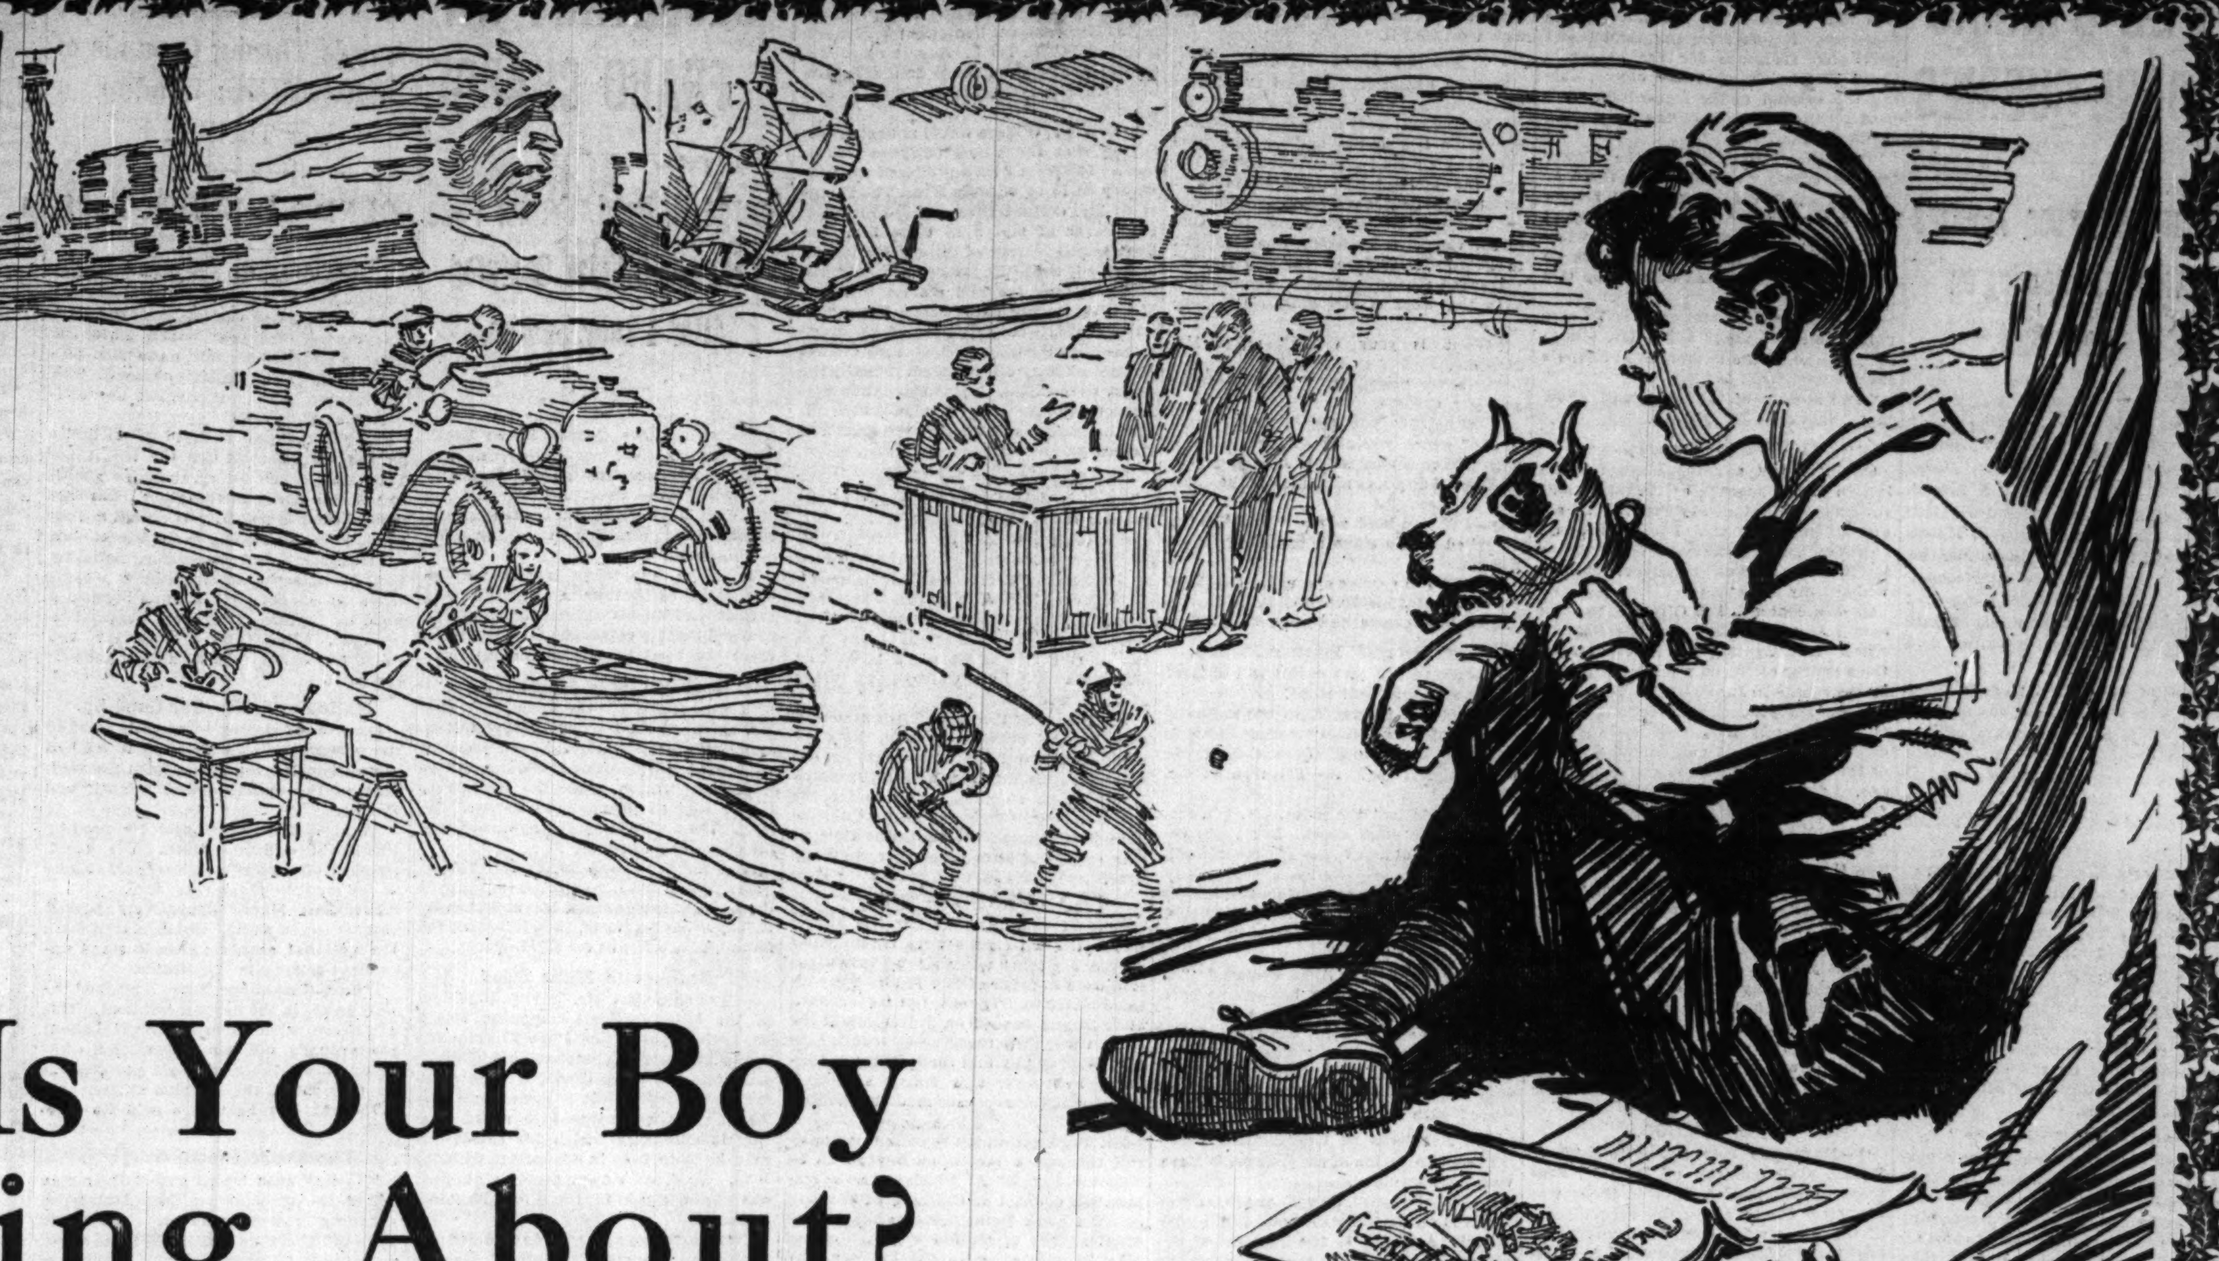
The American Boy
VOL. 17
NO. 1
Thanksgiving
1915
10¢ A COPY
$1.00 A YEAR



What Is Your Boy Thinking About?

What your boy thinks about now has everything to do with what kind of man he will grow to be. He grows as he thinks. His imagination is recruited from what he hears, and sees, and reads. If his hungry mind is well fed, and properly, he will grow into the right kind of a man.

You should guard his reading as carefully as his health. Clean reading develops the kind of imagination that gives him a wholesome outlook on life, broader visions and higher aspirations. If you neglect to provide him with mind-food, he will pick it up where he can. Mongrel literature develops a "scavenger" imagination.

Here is a monthly library of good, clean, censored reading—not the "sissy" kind, but the kind that will win the heart of any regular boy. At the same time he reads it he educates his mind to think far and big and straight.

The American Boy magazine is made for boys alone. They are entitled to a publication of their own just as you are entitled to your favorite newspaper or magazine—and they need it.

THE AMERICAN BOY

This magazine is like a big, wise, sympathetic and understanding brother to a boy. It cultivates and regulates his imagination. It inspires courage and fairness. It teaches him the rudiments of business. It shapes his character. It instills manly ideals. It holds his interest and will wean him away from the desire to read trashy stuff. It develops self-management, self-reliance and resourcefulness. It helps prepare him for the time when he strikes out for himself. It appeals to his sense rather than to his sentiments and it is not dull or preachy or wishy-washy.

The American Boy is the RIGHT kind of magazine for the red-blooded boy who plays ball, loves nature, likes to make things. It's just a true-blue boy magazine conducted by men who know your boy and what he likes.

Everything under the sun that interests and inspires, that amazes and amuses a real boy is in The American Boy in the course of a year. There's the fourth of the series about "Mark Tidd," the favorite boy character; Indian stories by a member of the Blackfoot tribe; pirate and adventure stories; athletic stories after a boy's own heart; a month-to-month review of the war by an authority; adventures of the Canadian Mounted Police; stories of business life and practice; stories of outdoor life, camping, fishing and hunting; articles on successful business boys of today; articles telling boys how to make money; articles on gardening, poultry, on construction of toys and articles of utility; biographies; articles on science and history; departments devoted to electricity, photography, stamp collecting, invention, carpentry, natural wonders, and so on, covering the whole range of boyish interests and activities. Every number has a profusion of photographs and illustrations of the kind that grip a boy. In fact, The American Boy is just the best pal any boy ever had!

Give your boy his chance. He wants to do things, but doesn't know how. Give him twelve big, happy, inspiring numbers of The American Boy, the right kind of magazine that makes the right kind of boy into the right kind of man.

If you haven't a son, you can send it to the boy of some relative or friend—or why not help that cheery little fellow who opens your office door every morning to become a big, successful man?

Christmas is coming; make some boy happy. It costs only a dollar—one dollar, little in amount, but big in results. Just pin a dollar bill to the coupon and mail at our risk.

That coupon will bring the biggest measure of Christmas joy a boy ever had! ☛

THE SPRAGUE PUBLISHING CO.
Publishers of The American Boy
No. 315 American Building　　Detroit, Michigan

This—the world's greatest Christmas gift for a boy—costs but $1.00 and gives him a whole year of good reading—$18.00 worth, measured by book standards.

Over 1400 Y. M. C. A. Secretaries and Public Librarians appreciate and endorse The American Boy. They say it is the most popular of all boys' magazines and the one they prefer the boys to read.

500,000 boys from 8 to 18 years read The American Boy every month. For 16 years it has been the leading boys' publication of the world.

LIVELY TIME HAD WHEN O'HARAS DODGE QUERIES

Lieutenant Governor Accuses Questioner in Hearing on State Cash Suit.

Barratt O'Hara, lieutenant governor of Illinois, and his brother F. H. O'Hara, secretary to Barratt at $200 a month, appeared as volunteer witnesses before Master in Chancery Roswell B. Mason yesterday and had a lively time under the questions of Fayette S. Munro, attorney for John B. Fergus. Fergus has filed suits charging improper handling of state funds by the lieutenant governor and others.

In refusing to answer Mr. Munro's questions, Mr. O'Hara took the position that the whole proceeding is irregular. In the first place, he said, the matters at issue are the business of the state and could not be discussed until they have been considered by that body or its proper committee.

Reticent on Making Answers.

Neither the lieutenant governor nor his secretary-brother was willing to answer the questions put to them by Attorney Munro. They had come to the hearing, they said, merely as a matter of courtesy to Mr. Munro that he might " secure some newspaper publicity " and did not intend to answer queries regarding the $10,000 they got for an ostensible white slave committee or any of the other transactions in which they are involved by Fergus' accusations.

"The Records Will Show."

Whenever asked concerning any particular transactions, both took refuge in the statement that " the records will show "; and when Mr. Munro pointed out that there could be no records of some alleged incidents, they replied that they could make their reports only to the senate or the supposed white slave committee. In case of dire necessity, a direct refusal to answer the objectionable question was resorted to; and Mr. Mason, as master in chancery, had no right to compel an answer.

Clashes Are Frequent.

Frequent clashes between attorney and witness marked Mr. Munro's examination of the lieutenant governor. There was a particularly bitter colloquy on the subject of senate resolution No. 77, which appeared to set aside funds for a Chicago office in the Tower building for the president of the senate and the senators. The Fergus complaint alleges that this resolution was never passed; and Senator Curtis, who according to the record of the senate introduced the measure, denies doing so.

" How about the expenditures made for the furnishing and upkeep of your office in the Tower building?" asked Mr. Munro, who takes the position that Mr. O'Hara used the state's funds to furnish his own private office.

Charges Gallery Play.

This Mr. O'Hara emphatically denied. Here is his answer:

" You, Mr. Munro, as a lawyer and a former member of the state legislature, know that the senate has the right to approve its own expenditures. You know that you are asking these questions just for the benefit of the newspaper men who are here this afternoon.

" For the newspaper men, let me say that for years the senate has appropriated a sum to furnish supplies, furniture and so forth for the offices of its members. It was from this fund that I purchased furniture for the offices in the Tower building. Those offices, during the session of the legislature, were used by the president of the senate and the senators.

" The furniture is still in the Tower building offices, and will remain there, or in some other safe place, until alterations are completed in the statehouse at Springfield, which probably will be within the next few months. The work on the statehouse has been delayed by this litigation."

" Was senate resolution No. 77 ever passed, Mr. O'Hara?" asked Mr. Munro at the close of the lieutenant governor's speech.

" The records of the senate will show that," answered Mr. O'Hara.

Refers to Records.

Q.—Have you any independent recollection of the passage of the resolution? A.—As before, let me say that the records are the best evidence. I do wish to say, however, that I do not consider it a valid resolution. It was introduced entirely without my knowledge.

Q.—We contend, Mr. O'Harra, that the record is false. This and the Baldwin school investigating committee resolutions appear as the only measures passed by the senate on June 30, 1915. Now, have you any independent recollection? A.—It is my understanding that the Supreme court has held that you cannot go back of the record of the house and of the senate. I did not preside all day on the 30th. I cannot have any independent recollection of bills and resolutions.

Once again Mr. O'Hara branched off into the byway of oratory.

" I want to say now," he said, " that I have always been scrupulously fair in presiding over the senate as its president. At the close of the forty-eighth general assembly I was given a unanimous vote of thanks for my fairness; and at the end of the forty-ninth I received a still more laudatory vote of thanks. This gold watch "—he drew a watch from his pocket—" was given me as a token of the esteem in which I am held by the members of the senate."

That $10,000.

Q.—Have you ever stated to John J. Brady, state auditor, or John K. Seagrave, his assistant, that if there was anything illegal about the expenditures of the white slave committee you would pay the $10,000 back yourself A.—I refuse to answer. That is a privileged communication.

Q.—Where is that $10,000? A.—Either in the hands of the committee as trustee or with those who agreed to print the committee's report.

Q.—Then we are safe in concluding that the money is in the hands of members of the committee or has been paid to the printer? A.—The purpose of this litigation is to block this committee's work and stifle its report.

Q.—Are you familiar with the state law by which all printing is covered by a general appropriation? A.—The law does not presume ignorance of the law.

Keeps Name of Printer Secret.

Q.—Will you tell us the name of the printer who is printing this committee's report? A.—That is the business of the committee and the senate. This committee was created by the senate, is liable only to the senate, and will report its affairs only to the senate.

Again Mr. O'Hara became oratorical.

" As a matter of fact," he said, " the state owes me money. I have paid out considerable sums to maintain an office which has been used almost entirely for state work. Nine-tenths of my time is devoted to state work. I have practically no law practice, and take up only the cases of poor people who are being persecuted and from whom I receive nothing in the way of compensation. I am interested only in working for the welfare of the common people of Illinois."

Regarding the reports, vouchers, documents, activities, etc. of the white slave committee, Mr. O'Hara would say nothing. All that, he declared, was the business only of the committee and the senate which created it.

Brother Next Witness.

Brother Frank H. followed the lieutenant-governor on the witness stand. In the Fergus bill, he is charged with securing from the state auditor the nine vouchers for split amounts totaling $10,000, the amount of the appropriation which the lieutenant-governor did not get for his white slave committee. One of the vouchers, for $5,500, was made out to Frank H. O'Hara " for salaries, reports and other expenses " in connection with the work of the white slave committee.

" What is your work?" asked Mr. Monro.

" I have none now," answered the younger O'Hara.

Q.—Where do you keep the papers and files of which you as your brother's secretary have the custody? A.—In my possession. I do not care to answer the question further.

Q.—Did you hold any position with the so-called white slave committee? A.—I did not.

Q.—Did you receive a voucher for $5,500 on or about June 30, 1915. A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you cash the voucher? A.—Yes.

"The Records" Friends Indeed.

Q.—Where did you cash the voucher? A.—The records will show.

Q.—Did you receive from the state auditor's office vouchers totaling $4,500 in favor of Claiborne S. Close, C. F. Trick, and Ralph Pope? A.—The records will show.

Q.—That's just the point, Mr. O'Hara. The records don't show. Don't you recall those vouchers? A.—The records will show.

Q.—Didn't you go to the state treasurer's office and cash those vouchers for $4,500?

At this point Brother Barratt jumped to his feet with a protest.

" This proceeding," he declared, " is entirely irregular We have come here merely as a matter of courtesy——"

" I beg your pardon," interrupted Mr. Munro, sarcastically. " I've heard you say that before. I am under the impression that you came because you were served with a subpœna."

Business of Committee.

The examination of the younger O'Hara was then resumed.

Q.—What did you do with the $5,500 you received on the voucher made out in your favor? A.—That is the business of the committee. I received that money as the committee's disbursing agent.

Q.—Have you paid out any of that money? A.—I don't care to answer the question. That is the committee's business.

Q.—Do you keep a bank account? A.—I would much prefer not to go into my own personal affairs.

Q.—Do you keep a bank account as disbursing agent for the committee? A.—That is between the committee and myself. I don't care to answer the question.

"Matter of Record."

Q.—What are the names of the members of the committee? A.—That is a matter of record.

Q.—Who made you disbursing agent of the committee? A.—That is in the records of the committee.

Q.—Do you know that all these matters are parts of the committee's records? A.—I believe they are.

Q.—Do you know that they are? A.—I believe that they are.

Q.—Do you disburse the funds by cash or by check? A.—I shall answer that question only to the committee.

Q.—How much of the $5,500 is still on hand? A.—I shall tell that only to the committee.

Q.—Do you know whether there is any at all on hand? A.—That is for the committee.

Satisfied apparently that he would learn nothing from either of the brothers, Mr. Munro ended his examination, and the hearing was adjourned until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning.

There was an incipient battle in the Tower building when James McQueeny, a process server, attempted to serve Barratt O'Hara and the lieutenant governor's secretary, C. F. Trick. According to McQueeny's story, incidents followed each other in rapid succession about in this way:

At first Mr. O'Hara would not be served, saying that the whole business was illegal. McQueeny then produced the necessary $1.10 as witness fees. The belligerent Mr. O'Hara then accused the process server of trying to bribe him, the lieutenant governor of Illinois. McQueeny explained that the $1.10 was only the usual witness fee and started to leave. Mr. O'Hara called him back. There was an argument—considerable of an argument—during which McQueeny's clothes became slightly disarranged. Finally the police were called. Mr. O'Hara then telephoned another lawyer, upon whose advice he decided to go before the master in chancery.

Testimony by Trick.

The most sensational testimony of the hearing came regarding Mr. Trick.

Mr. Trick is shown on the state auditor's records, according to the bill filed in Springfield Thursday, as having drawn $3,160 as an employé of the senate and the commission during the six months of the session. The testimony today was that during four of these six months he was working daily in Chicago at a salary of $40 a week.

When he took the stand Trick admitted that he had drawn pay from the state while he was working in Chicago, but declared that he had earned the $300 monthly which he received for seven months by dictating letters for the committee here in Chicago. At the same time he was employed by a typewriter company here.

Alleged Fraud Bills.

Four of the warrants for the $10,000 which the bill claims were fraudulently drawn for the " white slave " investigation were in favor of Mr. Trick. They totaled $2,195.80. Though not issued until June 30 and cashed on July 9, all at the same time, they recite on their face that they were to pay him for services in January, February, and March at $300 a month and for expenses incurred in those months.

Mr. Trick got on the regular senate pay roll through a resolution introduced by Senator Samuel A. Ettelson, now corporation counsel of Chicago, at $6 a day as chief clerk to the law secretary of the senate. The resolution was introduced May 26, according to the bill, for fifty days' back pay from April 5, and continuing to the end of the session in June.

According to records of salary payments, Mr. Trick should have been in the employ of the state, except for the first five days in April, continuously for six months. Paul Herbert, former vice president and general manager of the Rex Typewriter company, 1504 Steger building, Trick's former employer, indicated that most of the high priced services to the state were " absent treatment."

HONOR ELK DEAD TODAY.

The annual memorial services of the Benevolent Protective Order of Elks will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon in Cohan's Grand Opera house. The Evanston and East Chicago lodges will take part in the services, which are held also in other cities in the country today.

ARREST MISSING SECRETARY ON FRAUD CHARGE

George H. Boyd, Former Phee Company Official, Captured After a Long Search.

The search for George Home Boyd, secretary of the Phee Engineering and Construction company, ended prosaically yesterday, when detectives arrested him at North Halsted and Grace streets, just as rumor was promising an exciting chase to Honduras.

Mr. Boyd was taken into custody on complaint of Arthur A. Newton, vice president of the First National bank, who charged that he obtained a loan of $28,000 from the bank by misrepresentations.

Says He Was Messenger.

" I was acting for the company," said Mr. Boyd after his arrest. " My position in making the loan was that of a messenger boy. I merely went at the instruction of the corporation, made the statements I was told to present, and secured the loan. The entire amount was turned into the corporation coffers."

Bond for Boyd was fixed at $50,000.

Mrs. Boyd and her children returned to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Taylor, at La Porte, Ind., following the issuing of a warrant for Mr. Boyd.

Refuses to Make Good.

It was said that Mr. Taylor, president of the Miles & Scott company, was a heavy investor in the Phee Engineering and Construction company, his holdings amounting to more than $60,000, according to the report. It is understood that Mr. Taylor has refused to make good any indebtedness which his son-in-law may have to face in connection with the loan. Mr. Taylor owns nearly a hundred shares of stock in the First National bank.

Two attorneys yesterday acted as spokesmen for Boyd. Lemuel Darrow of La Porte, who says he is Boyd's attorney in that city, declared that it would be shown that Thomas Phee, who laid the blame for the trouble on Boyd, would have some ingenious explaining to do. The lawyer declared that Phee also signed the note on which the loan was secured.

This does not correspond with Phee's statement. He declared that the company was unaware that any money had been borrowed in its name until a note was presented.

Failed to Meet Loan.

In September Mr. Boyd secured certified checks amounting to $12,000 from the First National bank of La Porte without having credit at the bank. He then put them in for collateral at the Andrews bank there. When he failed to meet the loan at the Andrews bank the latter collected from the First National.

Attorney James T. Jeffery, who is Boyd's counsel in Chicago, yesterday asserted that it would be shown Boyd merely acted under instructions of the corporation by which he was employed and secured the loan at its direction.

SING SWAN SONG AT PANAMA FAIR

Crowds Throng Grounds of Exposition; Windup a Thriller.

SOUND MIDNIGHT TAPS.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 4.—The Panama-Pacific international exposition entered tonight into the realm of the past. And during that past nearly 18,750,000 persons attended the fair, more than 350,000 of them today, which is a record. The net profits of the exposition are estimated at $1,040,000.

Tonight the gay red and green lights shimmered above it for the last time. Thousands made merry, though an institution was dying in the night. Throngs danced their farewell. Flags that floated proudly during the day to the breeze—not at half mast, but boastfully, flaunting San Francisco's accomplishment—came down at sunset as the guns boomed a good-by salute from the exposition grounds, while forts around the bay made the hills reëcho with their answering salvo.

Nation and City Say Good-by.

Two sets of closing ceremonies marked the passing of the exposition which had commemorated for ten months the wedding of the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific.

At noon the nation said its good-by through President Wilson. His toast, sparked off by the wireless, paid tribute to the purpose of the great fair.

President Moore figuratively passed this on to the world. Bands blared forth the national anthem; crowds stood uncovered joining in the strains.

The sight was impressive; it marked the only pause in the day's merriment. This afternoon, while thousands reveled about the grounds, officials with solemn ceremony closed the gem city's palaces—the chapter out of the Arabian nights.

Tonight San Francisco said its farewell.

Thousands Crowd Grounds.

The tiny auto trains puffed their way about the grounds on their last trips, carrying merry makers. Thousands crowded the zone and joined in its spirit. Wistfully, it seemed, they peeped at "Stella," the most popular exhibit on the whole way—barkers shouted the joys of seeing the " diving girls " and the hundred and one other shows; diners overcrowded the restaurants and cabarets; the court of the universe could scarcely hold all those who wanted to join in the outdoor dancing; the odor of orange blossoms made it a night of romance.

Chant "Auld Lang Syne."

Just before midnight, however, the sound of revelry was hushed; silently the thousands gathered to chant " Auld Lang Syne " and " Farewell to Thee." On the stroke of midnight President Moore pushed a button shutting off the thousands upon thousands of lights.

High up on the Tower of Jewels a bugler sounded " Taps." Thousands of feet above, Art Smith, the daredevil bird boy, streaked " Farewell P.-P. I. E." in fiery letters behind his aeroplane.

Along the Marina 635 hidden mortars threw into the air bombs which exploded simultaneously in a deafening final fusillade. The exposition chorus and thousands of voices swelled in a mighty volume of song that reëchoed in the heart of the city.

The exposition was at an end.

San Diego Fair a Fixture.

San Diego, Cal., Dec. 4.—Official announcement that the Panama-California exposition, which was opened here Jan. 1 of this year, will continue throughout 1916 as the Panama-California international exposition, was made today by G. A. Davidson, president of the exposition, who has accepted the presidency of the new project.

A. LIGHT FLICKERS UP; SCORCHES HIS TORMENTORS

Partner, Lawyer, and "The Tribune" Listed Among "the Worms" Who Achieved His Undoing.

Sympathize with Mr. A. Light, the Armenian Hamlet!

From a lengthy chronicle just received from Mr. Light, it appears his dramatic ventures ended in tragedy because of " a certain convocation of worms."

A. Light sets out the personnel of his tormentors as follows:

The Chicago Tribune, a newspaper full of despised love towards A. Light and his literary enterprise.

Mr. K. Wilks, former partner whose heart hardened against A. Light, suffered him to be imprisoned, and made of him the most notorious geck and gull.

An attorney of very common promise by the name of Francis McDonnell, who many a time told Mr. A. Light that K. Wilks was an easy mark.

" These things will be published in my program," Mr. Light says, " whether The Tribune prints the truth of no."

TRADE VOLUME SETS A RECORD IN U. S. HISTORY

Business of Week, Measured by Checks on Banks, Is Unparalleled.

New York, Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Business in the United States this week, measured by the number and amount of checks drawn on banks, reached a greater pitch of activity than was ever before experienced.

Reports from all sections of the country telling of freight blockades on the railroads, enormous output of factories, mines, and mills, and liberal purchases in advance of the Christmas holidays, established a pretty general tale of prosperity every day, but it remained for today, when returns were compiled of the summary of checks drawn on banks and passing through clearing houses, to show that the immense volume of trade had increased the drawing of checks to an unparalleled amount.

A total not far from $5,000,000,000 summed up the whole country's check exchanges, the exact amount, according to the Financial Chronicle, being $4,936,000,000. More than half these clearings were at New York City, with $2,620,000,000. Chicago showed the next largest total with $318,000,000.

In comparison with every other week of American history, the checks drawn showed an increase. The gain over a year ago equaled 60 per cent. At New York the increase was nearly 100 per cent, owing to important financial operations this week.

GREAT PROSPERITY SEEN.

Unprecedented prosperity for the United States within a few months was the gist of a statement given out yesterday by Joseph E. Davies, member of the federal trade commission and former secretary of the Democratic national committee.

"If present conditions continue the United States will be, if it is not already, the richest country in the world," he stated.

"We are embarking upon a period of prosperity the like of which we have not heretofore seen, either in this nation or, it is quite possible, in any other. Reports from the country over show a common fact, in that there is general resumption of industrial activity."

Mr. Davies was at the Blackstone hotel for a few hours on his way from Wisconsin to Washington, D. C. He held a short conference with E. N. Hurley, president of the Illinois Manufacturers' association and also a member of the federal trade commission.

STANDARD OIL METHODS ADOPTED BY REVIVALISTS.

Minister Says He Found Company's Policy Suited to Work of Church —Meetings Begin Today.

BY THE REV. W. B. NORTON.

The teachings of the Standard Oil company are responsible for the methods and efficiency of a revival campaign which begins today in six of the parishes of the Protestant Episcopal church in Chicago. The Rev. R. W. Patton of Atlanta, Ga. leader in the movement, yesterday paid that compliment to the Standard Oil company.

"While I was engaged in missionary work," he said, "I wondered why the church was not more efficient. I inquired of a Standard Oil representative how it was his company could succeed in pushing its goods where we could not seem to get.

"We try to make the people see they want the goods we have and then we make it easy for them to obtain them," he said. "I made up my mind I would try to make the people see the value of the church and make it easy for them to engage in its work."

The Rev. Mr. Patton is accompanied by five other clergymen, who will assist in the Chicago campaign, which will continue for eight days.

The other ministers are the Rev. L. G. Wood, Charleston, S. C.; the Rev. W. C. Whitaker, Knoxville, Tenn.; the Rev. J. D. La Mothe, New Orleans, La.; the Rev. R. K. Massey, Lexington, Ky., and the Rev. Byron Holley, New Orleans, La.

CITY COURT CASES INCREASE

Report Filed of Business for 1915 Shows Growth in Municipal Tribunals.

The annual report of business transacted by the civil branch of the Municipal court for the fiscal year of 1915, ending Dec. 5, was submitted yesterday by Frank P. Danisch, clerk. The figures, compared with those of the previous year, show a decided increase in business. They are as follows:

Suits filed	66,529
Suits disposed of	69,387
Trial by court	67,778
Trial by jury	1,559
Suits dismissed	20,488
Suits nonsuited	1,244
Money judgments	$5,817,373.27
Executions issued	32,210
Mortgages acknowledged	40,185

The number of transcripts issued was 7,323.

Pastors to Enlist in 'Dry' Fight Today.

TODAY is enlistment day for the dry Chicago federation. Nearly 600 pastors have been personally requested to enlist workers in the fight to make Chicago dry at the next spring election.

The Rev. Charles F. Wishart, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, Twentieth street and Michigan avenue, took 1,000 cards to distribute and no pastor has taken less than 50.

Volunteers are to be requested to enroll themselves for definite services in the campaign.

The Hall and Summers dialogue debate, at which cards soliciting workers will be distributed, will be held at 2:45 o'clock in the Memorial Church of Christ, Oakwood boulevard, near Thirty-ninth street, and at 7:45 o'clock at the Grace Methodist Episcopal church, Locust and North La Salle streets.

BOY PLAYING WITH GAS JET THOUGHT OWN DEATH CAUSE

Mother Who Was Overcome with Two Other Children Tells of Warning Child at Inquest.

A doubt in the minds of the police as to who turned on the gas that killed Martin Devaney, 5 years old, and rendered Mrs. Devaney and two other children unconscious in their house at 1523 Devon avenue caused an inquest to be called yesterday.

From the testimony it was deemed probable that the boy, Martin, had turned the gas cock in play.

Mrs. Devaney said she often had punished the boys for playing with the gas jet.

The dead boy, Coroner's Physician Reinhardt said, was in an abnormal condition and might have died at any moment.

Christmas Sale for Trade Women.

The Woman's Trade Union league benefited from a Christmas sale yesterday at the Masonic temple banquet hall. Mrs. Leonora Z. Meder was general chairman.

PHYSICIAN LOSES TO BARLEYCORN; DIES A SUICIDE

Dr. M. W. Hall Takes Poison and Awaits the End as Family Watches.

Dr. Merritt W. Hall, 30 years old, fought it out with Old John Barleycorn yesterday—and lost. The young physician died of morphine poisoning in the home of his mother, Mrs. Martha Hall, 6412 Woodlawn avenue, at 11 o'clock

On Friday night Dr. Hall came home at about 9 o'clock seemingly despondent. Outwardly, however, he was calm. He sat down for a few moments, and then addressed his mother and his brother, Norman.

"I'm tired of life," he said; "I have taken poison."

Pleads with His Physician.

Mrs. Hall and Norman hurried to the telephone and summoned Dr. E. S. Stewart, 6116 Rhodes avenue. Dr. Hall was conscious and spoke to Dr. Stewart when he arrived.

"Never mind trying to do anything for me," he told Dr. Stewart. "Let the morphine do its work."

Dr. Stewart paid no attention to the request of the dying physician and hurried to ply him with emetics. He seemed to meet with success at first and the young physician appeared to emerge with a clearer mind.

"Please do all you can to save me," he pleaded with Dr. Stewart. "It was a foolish thing to do. I am sorry I did it."

Dr. Stewart applied remedies with renewed vigor, but he was not successful. The body was not removed, but the police and the coroner were notified.

Once Had Large Practice.

His two brothers, Norman and Desmond Hall, are members of the firm of Hall, McCleary & Co., school book dealers, 420 Wabash avenue.

"Merritt formerly had a large practice, and was keenly alive to his profession," said Norman Hall, "but he began to overwork himself and took liquor as a stimulant. It got the best of him. That is the only reason that I can assign for his despondent attitude."

Couldn't Shake Drink Thrall.

It was said the young physician had tried numerous times to shake off the thrall of liquor, but had been unable to do so. His business fell away and he presently made his office in the home of his mother. He had been in practice about five years and formerly had an office at 5352 Broadway.

It is believed that on returning home Friday night he swallowed the morphine before he entered the house. He had taken three grains of the poison.

TUMULTY CALLED A "LIAR OR POLITICAL TRICKSTER."

New Orleans Paper Assails Secretary for Statements on Alleged Wrongs to Nuns in Mexico.

New Orleans, La., Dec. 4.—Presidential Secretary Tumulty is "either a liar or a political trickster." This was the editorial comment today by the Morning Star, the Catholic organ of the south, on the secretary's statement that a book issued here, charging Carranza's men with brutal treatment of nuns and other Catholics in Mexico, was untrue.

PRIEST UPHOLDS EX-KING MANUEL AND FLAYS GABY

Mgr. Kelley Declares Stories About Former Ruler Were Press Agent Yarns.

Ex-King Manuel of Portugal was upheld as a subject of unjust and slanderous criticism and his reported amours with Gaby Deslys were characterized as base libels, circulated by a press bureau in Paris, in an address delivered before the Irish Fellowship club at the Hotel La Salle yesterday by the Rev. Mgr. Francis Kelley, president of the Catholic Church Extension society.

"There was absolutely nothing to the stories connecting Manuel's name with that of the dancer, Gaby Deslys," said Father Kelley. "Manuel was as decent and well behaved a king as there was in Europe. These wild rumors have been traced to a press agency interested in gaining publicity for the actress herself."

End of Nation Seen.

He also characterized the republic of Portugal as an enemy of all religion and predicted that at the end of the European war some of the large European nations would destroy it.

"Portugal is a republic of little merchants and little professional men," he said. "The dominant figure is Alfonso Costa. The republic's aim is to destroy the church. Costa says his plans look to its elimination within one generation. Of course in Portugal that means the destruction of all religion, the banishing of the name of God from the nation, for the same laws that aim at the destruction of the Catholic church naturally hit every religious organization."

Has Proof of Atrocities.

Mgr. Kelley prefaced his remarks with a statement regarding recent correspondence he had had with Joseph Tumulty, secretary to President Wilson, regarding alleged atrocities inflicted upon Catholics in Mexico. He says he has many fresh proofs of violence offered priests and members of the church in Mexico which he will submit to Washington.

MEDAL GIVEN COL. FOREMAN.

Officers of First Cavalry Present Commander with Jeweled Decoration on Anniversary.

Col. Milton J. Foreman, commanding the First cavalry, I. N. G., was presented with a diamond studded gold service medal by members of his staff at a dinner in his honor in the Congress hotel last night.

The dinner commemorated the twentieth anniversary of the colonel's services with the regiment. He enlisted as a private in Troop C, Dec. 5, 1895, and has gone up through the ranks.

The medal bore the record of the colonel's military service and rank, and was presented by Lieut. Col. Horace W. Wigham in behalf of the regiment.

400 FAMILIES TAKEN BY CLUB OF GOOD FELLOWS

One Man Speaks for 300 Business Men in Behalf of 1,600 Children.

Here's a Good Fellow who wants to provide a Christmas celebration for 400 families.

He came into THE TRIBUNE's Good Fellow department yesterday, explained his mission—which nearly took the clerk's breath away—and then proceeded to elucidate.

"It's a club," he said. "There are 300 of us in Chicago, all business men, and we are planning an automobile invasion of every part of the city. We'll take our wives and children along, and each machine will be loaded with toys, and dolls, and candy—all the Christmas things, you know.

"Yes, you heard me right. I said 400 families. That's only a little more than one to each member, and we can play Santa Claus to that many easily."

1,600 Children Cared For.

And so, at one fell swoop, something like 1,600 boys and girls, together with their fathers and mothers, have been assured of a call from Santa Claus, who otherwise might have forgotten them entirely.

Many clubs, societies, and other organizations told the Good Fellow department last week of their plans for making each individual member a Santa Claus on the day before Christmas. All have been supplied with the addresses of families known to be facing the prospect of empty stockings on Christmas morning, and each member has agreed, through the club representatives, to observe the Good Fellows' creed that no one is a real Santa Claus unless he carries his gifts in his own hands and makes his Yuletide visit in person.

That, as of course you know by this time, is the heart of this whole Good Fellow idea.

Never Before So Many Offers.

The week which closed last night set a new record for the first week of any Good Fellow campaign since the idea was launched six years ago. Never before have so many offers been made or so many families taken care of.

And in a surprisingly large proportion of the cases those enrolled have been men and women—and children—who were Good Fellows in former years.

"I am glad, indeed, to note that you are continuing the work this year. Four years ago I received, through your department, the name of the L—— family, who are now located at —— West North avenue. For the last four years both Mrs. V—— and myself have visited these people at Christmas as well as at other times, and we will take care of this same family this year, including the four children. I am writing you so that you will not give this name to any one else, for we will see that they are provided not only with their Christmas dinner but with as many of the adjuncts of Christmas as possible."

"Hocks" Cycle for Fine.

Mark Henry Jr., 4506 Beacon street, was forced to leave his new motorcycle with the Evanston police as security for his release yesterday after he had been fined $10 by Justice John F. Boyer for speeding.

CHANCE FOR A GOOD FELLOW.

Mary B. lives near the gas works in the Archer avenue district and does yeoman service in taking care of her five brothers and sisters when her mother is busy. Her favorite is Anna, whom THE TRIBUNE photographer found on her lap, and who is just getting old enough to take note of her surroundings. Mr. B., the father of the family, has tuberculosis. When the doctors said he could get well if he would go to the sanitarium he consented, but was reluctant to leave the children, who are from 3 months to 13 years old, knowing that times would be hard with them while he was away. Times have been hard, and the three bare little rooms which are their home have seen a grim struggle. There'll be no Santa Claus at the B. house unless some Good Fellow looks after them.

SOME JOB FOR JUSTICE.

Solomon and Savior Invoked by Attorney in Appeal from Federal Judge Geiger.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals will have to decide as between federal Judge Geiger's decision and Jesus and Solomon in a patent case.

Judge Geiger recently granted Carroll E. Cook, an inventor, an injunction restraining the Standard Optical company from infringing a patent on automobile goggles. John H. R. Jamar, chief deputy clerk of the district court, said yesterday Attorney J. Warner Beckstrom is preparing to appeal.

In his brief Attorney Beckstrom quotes the Bible to prove that Cook's patent is an old proposition, as follows:

"Ecclesiastes, i., 9: 'There is nothing new under the sun.' 'When the emotions are judges, facts make poor witnesses'; but ultimately there is no escape from facts, for 'Truth, crushed to earth, will rise again.'

ANTI-LOEB RULE FORCES GAIN IN BOARD CHANGES

Three Appointees of Mayor Thompson Are Opposed to Ousting Federation.

Opponents of the Loeb rule, which was designed to oust the Chicago Teachers' federation from the schools, have apparently gained one vote by reason of Mayor Thompson's three recent appointments to the board of education.

Answers to the questions submitted to the three new appointees were read yesterday before the council schools committee. Each of the appointees—Edward J. Piggott, Charles R. Young, and Charles Ffrench—indicated he was opposed to the Loeb rule. Mr. Ffrench flatly; the others with reservations.

The appointees asserted they had given no pledges relative to the election of the president of the board or the superintendent of schools.

Will Stand 11 to 10.

If these three men are confirmed at the council meeting tomorrow night they will succeed Trustees Sonsteby, Pietrowicz, and Roulston, of whom only one—Mr. Roulston—voted for the Loeb rule. The lineup in the board of education has been twelve for and nine against.

The confirmation of the mayor's appointees, it is believed, would make the lineup eleven to ten, or one short of the necessary majority to effect a repeal.

The schools committee voted without much argument to submit the answers to the council without recommendation.

SCHOOL ENGINEERS' RIGHTS.

More lawyers may violate the peace of the city civil service commission.

Three engineers in the Morgan Park schools and a janitor at the Clearing school were ordered discharged by the civil service commission on Nov. 1. A technicality in the ordinance of annexation offered an opportunity for the discharge of the men, and other men were appointed to their places.

Yesterday Angus Roy Shannon, attorney for the board of education, submitted an opinion to the board to the effect that the four men are entitled to their positions.

"These employés should be given the opportunity to protect all the rights they have by appropriate action in the courts," reads the opinion. They have been employed in the schools between fifteen and twenty years."

BROOKLYN MAN ENGAGED TO MISS THORNE, WINNETKA.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Thorne Announce Daughter's Betrothal to Guthrie Shaw—Miss Davis Wed.

An engagement that will interest north shore society is that of Miss Virginia Thorne to Guthrie Shaw of Brooklyn, announced by Mr. and Mrs. George A. Thorne of Winnetka. Mr. Shaw is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Guthrie Shaw of Brooklyn. Miss Thorne is now attending Wellesley college. Mr. Shaw is a graduate of Princeton and is a member of the Phi Beta Kappa scholastic fraternity.

At the marriage yesterday of Miss Ruth Davis, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Nathan S. Davis of 8 East Huron street, to Henry Corwith Dangler, son of Charles I. Dangler of Lake Forest, the bride wore her mother's wedding gown of white brocaded satin, with a wedding veil that has been an heirloom in the Davis family for several generations. The wedding took place at the family residence, the Rev. James S. Stone officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. Dangler will go at once to California for the winter. They are building a new home on Lake View avenue, which will not be ready for them until next fall, and they expect to return and spend next summer at Lake Forest.

Two debutantes made their advent into Chicago society during the day. On the north side Miss Katherine Carpenter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Carpenter of 945 North Dearborn avenue, was introduced at a tea from 4 until 7 o'clock, and in the evening there was a dinner dance for young people.

Pastor Accepts Call.

The Rev. Peter Peterson of Stanton, Ia., has accepted the call to become pastor of the Swedish Evangelical Lutheran church, Sedgwick and Hobbie streets, and will preach in the church today. He will not assume charge of the church, however, until in the spring.

PLENTY OF RINKS TO PRACTICE FOR 'TRIBUNE' PRIZES

Forty-two Good Skating Places Waiting for Freeze to Be Flooded.

HEY, SKIN-NAY!

Did you read Mr. Hyde's story in THE TRIBUNE yesterday telling you what they are going to do to give every boy in Chicago a chance to skate against other boys and win a prize, to learn how to skate, if you don't know how already, and to see the best fancy skaters in the world cut their fanciest figures for you free under the auspices of THE TRIBUNE?

Then did you get out your skates, rub, oil, and sharpen them up, in preparation for taking part in the greatest outdoor winter in Chicago's history?

Get Busy Now.

If you didn't, get busy right now. You will be behind if you don't start practicing up your stroke and working summer kinks out of your circles and jumps with the first freeze.

So, if you are 12 years old or over, read this list of practice and instruction grounds in the big city of Chicago which, through the park boards, the small park and playground commission, the Western Skating association and THE TRIBUNE will have ready for you.

List of Rinks.

Here are the names and locations of twenty-four playgrounds where skating rinks will be available:

Moseley—24th st. and Wabash av.
Drake—27th st. and Calumet av.
Fiske—62d st. and Ingleside av.
Thorpe—89th st and Buffalo av.

Special Prizes Ready.

Remember, THE TRIBUNE will offer special individual prizes and prizes for the playgrounds making the best showing.

Any boy above 12 years is eligible.

The season will wind up with a grand figure and skating carnival for the championship of the city, with additional prizes for the champions.

On the second and fourth Saturdays in January efficiency tests will be held in each of the twenty-four playgrounds in figure skating. The playground instructors will supervise the marking. A score of 40 in five events where 50 points would be possible will yield a bronze expert skater's button; a score of 42 will win a silver button, and 44 a gold button. THE TRIBUNE will give 150 pairs of skates to the playground which turns out the most contestants.

Here Are Stunts.

In the meantime, get out your skates and go to it on the following stunts:

Cut circle forward, not less than fifteen feet in diameter, right and left.

Cut figure 8 backward, two single strokes, one with each foot.

Cut outer edge, twelve strokes, each one-quarter circle.

Scull forward, feet parallel, distance sixty feet.

Broad jump, flying start sixty feet.

Cut figure 8 forward, two single strokes, one with each foot.

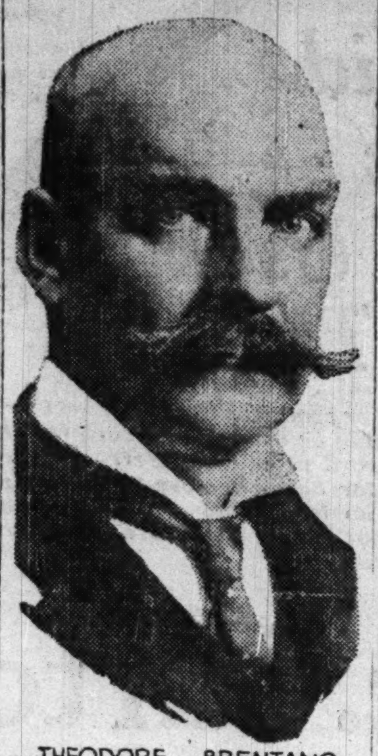
Cut double dutch, twelve strokes each, one-quarter circle.

Scull backward, feet parallel, distance 60 feet.

Skate backward, distance 60 feet.

Watch THE TRIBUNE for further details.

Closes 25 Years as Superior Judge.



THEODORE BRENTANO

MEMBERS of the bar will observe the twenty-sixth anniversary of Judge Theodore Brentano's elevation to the Superior bench of Cook county tomorrow. Later in the day the Superior judges will meet and elect Judge Charles McDonald to the chief justiceship, to succeed Judge Brentano. Other business will be the appointment of masters in chancery by the various judges. It is expected that the majority of the sitting masters will be reappointed. Judge Brentano tomorrow closes his twenty-fifth year on the bench and begins the term to which he was reëlected without opposition last June.

TERM IN PRISON BIRTHDAY GIFT TO OLD DOCTOR

Physician Just Turned 61 Is Sentenced with Druggist in "Dope" Case.

Dr. Arthur L. Blunt, on his sixty-first birthday, and William E. Wallace, a druggist at 3859 South State street, yesterday were sentenced by Judge Landis to terms in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kas. They were convicted of conspiracy to violate the Harrison anti-narcotic law by supplying drugs to addicts.

Dr. Blunt was given two years and fined $2,500. Wallace was sentenced to two years on the charge of conspiracy, five years on each of three other counts, all to run concurrently for five years, and fined $10,000. These are the government's first convictions of a licensed physician and a registered pharmacist in this federal district under the Harrison law.

Defends His Crime.

Dr. Blunt, in response to Judge Landis' question as to whether he had anything to say, offered a lengthy address in justification of his crime. The judge finally had to interrupt the defendant by insisting that he confine himself to matters relevant to the case.

"I believed," Dr. Blunt said, "that my medical diploma, my state license as a physician, and my government license to issue prescriptions would protect me. I believed that the common law of justice gave me the right to keep my patients from going insane and dying. I gave over 700 patients free treatment. I have never taken a grain of narcotic drugs in my life, and on this, my sixty-first birthday, one million dollars couldn't tempt me to do so."

Big Trade Revealed.

Judge Landis, in summing up the case, said a well organized plan to distribute drugs, with Dr. Blunt and Wallace as the chief factors, was uncovered in the trials. Much money had been made, he said, out of the filling of 28,000 prescriptions written by Dr. Blunt for drug addicts and filled by Wallace.

"This fact and the further fact that Wallace attempted to suborn perjury and intimidate witnesses made it imperative that Wallace be given a severe sentence," Judge Landis said. "Dr. Blunt's age will be taken into consideration in his favor."

Judge Landis granted permission to counsel for Mrs. Katherine Wallace, who recently obtained a decree of divorce from Wallace, to serve a notice on the convicted druggist to appear before Judge Kersten in the Circuit court tomorrow to explain his failure to pay $1,200 owing on alimony.

Dr. Blunt was released on $5,000 bonds. Wallace was locked up in the Du Page county jail at Wheaton in lieu of $20,000 bonds.

DEFECTIVE BABY WILL LIVE BECAUSE OF COURT ORDER.

Physicians Chosen to Care for Akron Child, in Which Parents Show No Interest.

Akron, O., Dec. 4.—Akron's "fish" baby will live, as a result of an order by Common Pleas Judge W. J. Ahern.

Physicians were preparing today for an operation that will correct its deformities. The infant's hands are webbed like a fish, the toes of one foot are webbed, and it has one club foot.

The baby was born a month ago, prematurely, while Judge Ahern was hearing a suit bgun by the mother, Mrs. Mary Katanich, who was suing her husband for alimony.

The father disclaimed parentage and the mother manifested no interest in the infant. Judge Ahern ordered immediate removal of the child, now weighing three pounds, to the city hospital, an operation to be performed, and every effort made to preserve life. The husband must pay expenses. The infant is being kept in an incubator.

Woman Autoist Freed in Death.

Dr. Gertrude F. Thompson of 716 South Euclid avenue, Oak Park, was exonerated by a coroner's jury yesterday from blame for the death of James Little of 3249 Warren avenue, who was killed by her automobile.

GOETHALS FINDS A CURE FOR SLIDES AT PANAMA.

Reports to Secretary Garrison That He Believes Limit of Present Movement Has Been Reached.

New York, Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Maj. Gen. George W. Goethals has made an exhaustive report to Secretary Garrison on the slides in the Panama canal. He believes the limit of the present movement has been reached.

"If experience counts for aught," he says, "there is no doubt that the means adopted and now in use will affect a cure."

GOES FOR LINCOLN RELICS.

State Historical Librarian Will Pack Up Exhibit for Transportation to Chicago.

Springeld, Ill., Dec. 4.—Mrs. Jessie Palmer Weber, librarian of the state historical library, left here today for San Francisco, where she will superintend the packing and shipment home of the Lincoln exhibit, which was the feature of the Illinois building display at the Panama-Pacific exposition. Mrs. Weber will stop off in Chicago to complete arrangements for displaying the Lincoln exhibit in Chicago during January and until after Lincoln's birthday.

FIRST OPERATIC NOVELTY IS PUT ON BY CAMPANINI

Montemezzi's "L'Amore Del Tre Re" Sung Yesterday at the Auditorium.

BY ERIC DE LAMARTER.

Cleofonte Companini's first operatic novelty of the season, Montemezzi's "L'Amore del tre Re," was sung yesterday afternoon at the Auditorium.

While the Boston company stole a march on the resident organization by giving performances of the work some weeks ago, Mr. Campanini's glory is not diminished by the fact, for the goodly audience's reception of the novelty was favorable augury for its enduring, if not feverish, favor.

Ferrari-Fontana to Sing.

The presentation surpassed that of the earlier season in some respects and fell short of it in others. One of the cast, Edoardo Ferrari-Fontana, has sung in all Chicago performances the rôle of the betrayed husband, and will add another to his grand total of eighty odd next Tuesday night, despite rumors to the contrary.

The plot will be recalled as having to do with a "triangle" situation solved by the aged king's meting of justice upon the guilty woman by choking her to death, painting her lips with deadly poison, and thereby trapping both the lover and the unoffending husband.

Score Is Effective.

Interest in Montemezzi's score grows with every hearing. Heavy, narcotic music it is, of an earnestness and a richness typical of the "younger Italian school" of operatic composition. That it reveals illimitable fantasy cannot be said; but that it is of the theater, compelling, the work of an excellent craftsman, effective, cannot be gainsaid. Portions of the second act, and the love music of the first are comparable with any pages in the repertory; and the third act's solemn spell (the scene, the bier of Flora, and exquisite as a picture) is sustained remarkably by the cunning fusion of old "church modes" and melodies, and the modern style of expression.

Clarence Whitehill, as the aged king, dominated the performance with a forceful impersonation. The agony of realization that suspicions as to the liaison were correct, he interpreted powerfully, and the revelation of the patriarch's heavy handed justice to the heart broken husband was a bit to be remembered.

Artist Scores Again.

Mr. Ferrari-Fontana's interpretation of the rôle of the lover has been analyzed in this column, and the tribute due a worthy effort is his again. Graham Marr, as the husband, sang with excellent tone and in good style, but the study as a whole was inadequate for the responsibility of the part.

Mme. Edvina made a beautiful picture as the wife, played the rôle effectively after the "repressed" manner, and, excepting for a tendency to "sag" in pitch during the exquisite love music, sang it eloquently.

The settings of the first and third act were well nigh unsurpassable, and the second was only relatively ineffective by reason of its plan.

The performance owed much to Conductor Ferrari, whose sense of dramatic appeal, equally with that of delicately poetic moods, was revealed in better light than in any previous appearance.

Trovatore in Evening.

The first performance of "Il Trovatore" this season was given in the evening, with Mmes. Frease-Green, De Cisneros, and Eden and MM. Guiseppe Corallo, Ancona, and Nicolay in the prominent rôles. Mr. Parelli directed a good performance, of which the newcomer, another tenor from Buenos Aires, was the popular favorite. His "Di quelle pura" aria was so roundly applauded, even after the curtain came down, that it was raised again and the number repeated. He is a youngster with a ringing tone and instinct for curtain calls. Those two attributes alone will carry him far.

BUSSE'S ESTATE LACKS $265,817 OF PAYING OUT.

Widow of Former Mayor Files Inventory of Assets and Liabilities —Personalty, $119,118.

The estate of Fred A. Busse, formerly mayor of Chicago, is $265,817.37 short. This is the gist of the statement filed yesterday by Mrs. Josephine Busse, the widow, showing an account of the liabilities, assets, disbursements, and cash received by her as administratrix of the estate of her husband. The showing was filed in the Probate court yesterday.

The recaptiulation indicates that there has been paid out $11,140.46, and that there are liabilities unpaid, consisting of claims allowed in the Probate court amounting to $187,789.94. There are claims pending against the estate to the total of $186,000 and the total disbursements and liabilities are $384,935.88.

The total personal property of the estate is $119,118.51.

How the Berry Ventilator Works

The Berry Window Ventilator is collapsible, operating like an accordion. It opens and closes with the window and lies flat on the inside of the window sill—out of the way when not in use. So simple, that to attach or detach it is but the work of a second. It does not interfere with the operation of the window in any way, as the window can be opened without the ventilator. When ventilator is open the window is SECURELY LOCKED. The amount of air admitted is easily regulated by raising or lowering the window.

POVERTY HOVERS AT FREAK HOME OF MAGIC KING

Reptile Queen Hard Put to Provide Monthly Frog for Her Coiled Asset.

MOVIE VOGUE IS DEPLORED.

BY HENRY M. HYDE.

"I'd be fixed for life if I could only locate John Fadden," said the Mighty Monarch of Magic, sadly, staring out through his big gold bowed spectacles at a world which has never been kind to art. "He's the best meal ticket in the freak business. When nothing else in the pit show would draw he was always sure fire. But I haven't heard from him in two years. Nobody seems to know where John is working."

The Mighty Monarch of Magic was in mufti. He was without coat, vest, or collar and he badly needed a shave. He was sitting on top of the battered trunk which holds the red and black tights, attired in which—when he can get an engagement—he appears as Mephistopheles and gayly picks innumerable twenty dollar bills out of the thin air.

Reptile Queen Charms a Stew.

There were five other big trunks in the little light housekeeping room up two flights of stairs on North Clark street. There were also two tables, a couple of chairs, and a great litter of posters and other miscellaneous properties. Over in one corner the wife of the Mighty Monarch was busy stirring a stew for breakfast on a two hole gas stove. Professionally she is known as The Rep-tile Queen. For domestic and economic reasons she was disguised in a long blue gingham apron. On a line stretched above the stove the result of the week's washing hung to dry.

The Rep-tile Queen's right to her title was demonstrated by the presence of Henry, the Whip Snake. Henry was coiled on a blanket which lay over the seat of one of the chairs. At the appearance of the stranger Henry thrust out his forked tongue and showed other alarming symptoms of reptilian displeasure. But he was quickly calmed by his mistress.

Henry Lapses Into Peace.

"Nice stranger, won't hurt Henry," she said, and like the docile family pet and professional assistant he is, the big snake promptly stopped sticking out his tongue and rearranged his eight feet of slender body into restful folds.

It was explained that in his unhappy and prevocational infancy in far away Texas, Henry suffered an accident which permanently deprived him of what should have been the last foot of his tail, but in his slightly abridged form he still retains the characteristics which give the family its name. When enraged, Henry, first setting his teeth into some solid body to get the necessary leverage, is accustomed to lash his enemy with the last six or seven feet of his body, inflicting, as the Monarch of Magic explained, "large red welts on the flesh."

Twelve Banquets a Year.

So pampered is Henry that for several years he has refused to take the six months' sleep during the winter time which is the habit of all normal reptiles. He prefers to remain awake and to feast once a month on a plump frog, taken from the supply of batrachians which hop around, in quite unconscious happiness, in the coal box back of the heating stove.

All of Henry's colleagues, including especially the famous rattlesnake family of twenty-three members, which is the special boast of the Rep-tile Queen, are already in cold storage for the season. They occupy a place in the Chicago warehouse which makes a specialty of storing the pets of the considerable unemployed snake charming population.

"Ain't it silly how hard it is to get folk to love up to your snakes," sighed the Rep-tile Queen.

"Snakes are all right," interrupted the Mighty Monarch of Magic, "but I sure do wish I could find John Fadden. I ain't even sure whether he's working at all or not."

John a Jewel of a Freak.

"What sort of a freak is John Fadden?" ventured the stranger, with one eye on the dozing Henry.

"John's the only real mummy in the country. He died about forty years ago and ever since he's been supporting some fellow or another. Still"—the Mighty Monarch of Magic sighed sadly—"the freak business ain't what it used to be. Maybe John wouldn't draw nowadays like he used to. Folks have got so they seem to like them paper mashy mummies they make in Boston just as well as good old John. It's kind of discouraging to a real artist the success some of these fakes have.

"But anyhow—I don't know why it is—but real freaks are getting harder to find all the time. Why you're hard put even to get a good, useful Fat Boy. Handsome Harry—poor fellow, he's gone now—was about the last of the lot. He actually weighed 375 pounds and we only billed him at 519.

Hirsute Nausea His Weakness.

"Harry was always very sensitive. He had the next pitch in the pit show to the Bearded Lady and we always had to be careful to keep the curtain up between them. It made Harry sick all over to look at her. Do you know about the best opening anywhere is for a real, good fat boy who tops 400. He can take down $100 a week easy.

"Outside of John Fadden, the surest fire freak in my experience is the Cigaret Fiend. All it takes is a tall, spindly, sickly looking young fellow with a hollow cough and a suit of tights, a couple of boxes of pils, and a good lecturer. I never seen it fail to get the money.

"But this season the whole business is sure on the bum. There are 5,000 freaks and pit show people in Chicago who are out of work. We blame it on the movies. Even the livery stables are full of animal acts that are out of work. Why the Skeleton Giantess on the floor above—she's always been sure of her $30 a week—is down to where last week she had to take a one day engagement at one of those State street houses, putting on seven shows a day and geting paid $3 for it."

Movies Due to Wane.

"But, dear," put in the Rep-tile Queen, "the movies can't last forever. Folks are going to come to their senses soon, and then they'll patronize the real thing again."

It is always the woman's part to cheer up and encourage the other half of the sketch. But the Mighty Monarch of Magic was not to be cajoled. He shook his head sadly. Something like a tear glistened behind his heavy spectacles.

"Ten years ago, when I was touring Yurrup as manager of Og, the A-rab giant—he actually stood eight feet in his socks—crowned heads was nothing to me. The first year I put on my Great Illusion"—he laid a thin hand on the trunk that still held the apparatus—"Maggie and I had forty weeks at $50 per. Now the best I get is a one day date at South Chicago. And Maggie's snakes are all in storage. It's hard to keep Henry in frogs—and he only eats one a month."

The Rep-tile Queen turned away and pretended to stir the stew. The Mighty Monarch of Magic stopped speaking and gazed out of the window with a faraway look in his eyes.

There are moments when the mere presence of an outsider is cruel. The stranger withdrew and slipped quietly down the long stairway, redolent with the odors of many stews bubbling over one hole gas stoves.

THE ELOPERS

A CATCH AS CATCH CAN ROMANCE

Miss Violet Thompson, 20 years old, said to be a daughter of a lieutenant in the Canadian army, and Ora R. Ackerman, a telegraph operator, were arrested by detectives yesterday as alleged elopers at the request of the police of Toronto, Ont.

Two days ago the local police received a telegram from Toronto stating Miss Thompson and Ackerman, who had been working in a newspaper office, had eloped and might come to Chicago.

Ackerman told an unusual story at the detective bureau, saying that Miss Thompson was engaged to be married to Hymas Newstader, a wealthy race horse owner of Toronto, but decided not to become his wife and threatened to take poison and end her life.

He said he left Toronto with her to "save her life." He denied that they were married, but admitted that they have been living together at 3400 Indiana avenue since their arrival here last Tuesday.

CHINESE WOMAN'S CLUB MAKES BIT OF HISTORY.

Celestials Meet Chicago College Women at Tea for the First Time in Stevens Building.

Celestial women made club history yesterday when the Chinese Woman's club met the members of the Chicago College club in the Stevens building for tea and entertainment for the first time.

There was a sensation when the little women with almond eyes followed Dr. Hie Ding Lin, their club president, into the college clubrooms for the innovation. Mrs. Chin Foin, wife of the proprietor of the Mandarin inn, was in the delegation of perhaps twenty Chinese women who were entering into public affairs as American women do. Miss Wang, a graduate of Wellesley college, was saluted by the alumnae of that institution in one corner of the room. Dr. Effie Lobdell presented the Chinese women.

Miss Wang gave an explanation of a Chinese woman's attitude to education. They believed in education 2,000 years ago when women were educated in China, she said. Then came a period of darkness when an emperor wished to perpetuate his dynasty. He ordered the books of China buried.

Miss Wang said that in north China the women would not break the conventions by appearing without skirts on the streets as in south China, where they wear pantaloons.

FOLSOM TAKES SUIT AGAINST HIS OLD "BOSS," THE MAYOR

Former Corporation Counsel and Assistant Appear in Case to Enjoin Thompson.

Richard S. Folsom, until a few weeks ago corporation counsel, and Charles M. Haft, who lost his job as first assistant in the corporation counsel's office when Folsom resigned, appeared in court yesterday and asked Superior Judge Sullivan to issue an injunction against Mayor Thompson.

The case involved was relatively unimportant, but the parts played by Messrs. Folsom and Haft aroused some interest. However, they denied that their connection with the case was born of politics.

"Mr. Folsom opposed to the mayor?" repeated Mr. Haft when the question was put to him. "Well, you know he always was a Democrat. I suppose the man who is seeking the injunction came to Mr. Folsom and me because he thought we were experts on this sort of case. No, theer's no partnership to be formed by Mr. Folsom and me."

SOUTH IN SADDLE IN LOWER HOUSE; READY TO DICTATE

Democratic Caucus Gives Its Approval to Men Chosen to Lead in All Committees.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Southern control was fastened on the house of representatives for another period of two years when the Democrats composing the majority of the house met this afternoon in secret caucus and formally approved the committee assignments reported to them by the majority of the ways and means committee.

To the south went the chairmanship of thirty-eight out of fifty-six committees, the chairmanship of all of the important committees of the house, with the exception of that on appropriations, and control of practically every committee in the house either of major or minor importance.

In addition, the south again will get the major portion of the house patronage, as the Democrats in caucus reappointed the "hog committee," which served in the Sixty-third congress and which is headed by Representative Humphreys of Mississippi as chief distributor of patronage.

No Objections Are Raised.

The caucus was called solely for the purpose of settling committee assignments and patronage distribution. The committee assignments had been made earlier in the week by the ways and means committee. They were approved without a single exception or a single objection by the house Democrats.

The patronage distribution will be made within the next few weeks. In order to give each member approximately $1,800 in patronage, a number of additional policemen will be added to the capitol roll on the theory that the building needs more adequate protection during the continuance of the European war, with the resulting animosities stirred up by the war in this country.

Hay Is Military Chairman.

By reason of the caucus action today the south controls both the house naval and military affairs committee chairmanships, as well as a majorty of the Democrats on each of those committees. The chairman of the military affairs committee is Hay of Virginia, and of the naval affairs the chairman is Padgett of Tennessee. The members of the two committees were reported exclusively in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE this morning.

The south also gets the chairmanship of these major committees: Ways and means, banking and currency, District of Columbia, postoffice and postroads, interstate and foreign commerce, judiciary, merchant marine, and fisheries, rivers and harbors, agriculture, foreign affairs, Indian affairs, insular affairs, immigration, and public buildings and grounds. The only important chairmanship awarded to the north was that of the committee on appropriations, which went to Fitzgerald, a Tammany Democrat of New York, who has always coöperated with the southern leaders.

DUNNE PICKS COMMITTEE TO SIFT HOOF CHARGES.

Names Three to Investigate Report Stockyards Refused Cattle from Certain Illinois Counties.

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 4.—In accordance with a house resolution calling upon Gov. Dunne to name three persons to investigate the charge that the Chicago stockyards have refused to accept shipments of cattle from certain counties in the state. Gov. Dunne today named the following men: George B. Van Norman, Chicago; W. L. O'Connell, Chicago; and Guy Houston, Blandinsville.

Orders by the Union Stockyards and Transit company, allowing shipments of cattle, sheep, and hogs from towns where foot and mouth disease is not prevalent became effective today.

TAX ON WEALTHY TO AID DEFENSE

Keating Will Offer Bill to Provide That Rich Pay Expenses.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—The levying of a national inheritance tax and of higher taxes on large incomes will be proposed by Representative Keating of Colorado, Democrat, as a means of meeting the cost of additional national defense. The Keating plan, which embodies the essential principles advocated by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, has been indorsed by the committee on industrial relations.

In a discussion of the Keating plan made public today the committee says:

"The Keating bill will provide sufficient funds to cover any program of preparedness, and yet it will take from the huge accumulations of wealth in this country less than was taken by similar taxes from the wealthy classes of England prior to the present war.

"The bill creates a 'national defense fund,' to consist of an annual appropriation from the general fund equal to the present annual cost of the army and navy, and of such additional funds for increases in the national defense as congress may determine to be necessary. These additional funds would be raised by inheritance and income taxes, the rates to be fixed by congress each year."

Must Not Overtax Poor.

Explaining the bill, Mr. Keating said: "The people will not and should not tolerate any plan for raising revenue that increases the cost of the necessities and small luxuries of the poor, or that reduces the incomes of families that are struggling along on small salaries. Such a plan is the proposal to extend the special war tax, to tax gasoline, to reduce the limit of exemption for the income tax, and, worst of all, to reëstablish tariffs by which the government revenues profit less than do the dealers who make these tariffs an excuse for high prices.

"Any increase in the burden of the military and naval expenditure must fall on those best able to bear it.

Division of Wealth Unequal.

"The report of Mr. Basil M. Manly, director of research and investigation for the United States commission on industrial relations, shows that:

"Between one-fourth and one-third of the male workers, 18 years of age and over, in factories and mines earn less than $10 a week. From two-thirds to three-fourths earn less than $15 a week.

"There are in the United States 1,598 fortunes yielding an income of $100,000 or more a year.

"Two per cent of the people own 60 per cent of the wealth. Thirty-three per cent of the people own 35 per cent of the wealth. Sixty-five per cent of the people own 5 per cent of the wealth."

POLICE SEEK NAVAL FORGER.

Secret Service Men Join Local Authorities in Search for Deep Sea Check Passer.

Dixon, Ill., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—The police of two states and secret service agents of the federal government are looking for a man named E. W. McVeall, who claims to be chief gunner's mate of the United States navy stationed at the training school at Lake Bluff, who has passed hundreds of worthless checks in Dixon, Aurora, Kenosha, and Milwaukee. Most of the checks are drawn on the Garfield Park State Savings bank, Chicago. The man wears a naval uniform with an ordinary gray overcoat. He indorses the checks Frank R. Hamilton and also uses the name of L. E. Lewis.

CONGRESS, HEED "ALFALFA BILL"!

Nation Prepared, No Mollycoddles, Is What Oklahoman Advocates.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Being a squawman and inclined to restful attitudes that would make a contortionist writhe with envy are among the attributes of "Alfalfa Bill" Murray, congressman from Oklahoma. "Alfalfa Bill" occupies cell No. 547 on the uppermost long white corridor of the house office building where members are alloted space to operate mail order business in seeds, pamphlets, pensions and promises.

The congressman from Oklahoma sits behind the most disordered desk in the building. It is covered with letters, envelopes, newspapers, corncob pipes, soiled collars, tobacco sacks, and empty matchboxes.

"Sit down; be with you in a minute," is the congressman's acknowledgment of the incoming visitor.

His Attitude When at Rest.

"Alfalfa Bill" is occupied with reading page one of a letter and exploring the desk jungle for page two. His right foot is drawn back on the chair near his hips. His chin rests on his right knee. His left leg is draped over one corner of the desk, allowing the pendent foot to hang limply over the side. The right hand holds one paper while the left reaches out for others.

The congressman is chewing on the frazzled end of a cigar which barely extends beyond the fringe of an uneven gray mustache. Abandoning the search for page two, "Alfalfa Bill" opens preliminaries to the interview by making efforts to "light up." He opens each of the three empty boxes in search of a match, tosses them back on the desk and borrows one, which he scratches on the white plaster wall at a convenient, much scratched patch within an arm's length.

Fears Schools Train Mollycoddles.

A stoic might call "Alfalfa Bill" unkempt. A more loquacious admirer has said that he looks as if he had stood in the rain in a $10 suit of clothes and then spent the night curled up on a seat in a crowded smoking car. "Oklahoma's Abraham Lincoln," as the Democratic congressman's friends call him, prefers brains to pressed pants, and sagacity to sartorial effects.

"I sometimes think our schools are turning out too many mollycoddles," says Mr. Murray. "We are producing too many womanly men and too many manly women. That's one thing that makes me favor preparedness to a certain degree. I favor a universal military training in the schools to square up the shoulders of our boys, teach them responsibility and the meaning of duty and instill the machine efficiency that is necessary to a perfect organization. Then put them back into civilian life.

Favors Military Training.

"Enlarge West Point and Annapolis, or establish more like them. Take graduates from these places and place them in the public schools, to teach mathematics and give military training. I am a Democrat, but I am not in favor of President Wilson's continental army scheme. The men belonging to that army would find it hard to get employment which would permit them a two months' furlough every year for camp life.

"There's nothing new in government. The people exercised the right of recall of judicial decisions in the time of Christ. It's petty politics and cowardice to look only upon the present. Statesmanship includes a greater consideration of the future.

"The trouble with woman suffrage is that you might not be able to get rid of it when it was not wanted. I know there are many women who ought to vote and many men who ought not, but progress must be along well defined rules. As population increases and congestion grows suffrage ought to be limited rather than extended."

Congressman Murray has his name in every railway coach in Oklahoma, where he was president of the constitutional convention and speaker of the first assembly. His name is signed to the "Jim Crow" law segregating whites and Negroes in public carriers and waiting rooms.

Murray's home is a large log cabin at Tishomingo, where he lives with his wife, who is a daughter of Douglas H. Johnston, principal chief of the Chickasaw Indian tribe. During the congressional session the Murrays live in Washington, where two of the congressman's sons, 10 and 12 years old, sell newspapers on the street during vacation.

'Cyclone' Davis, Lank and Lean, Texan All Over His 6 Feet 4

BY FLOYD P. GIBBONS.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Look through the open door of room 436 in the house of representatives office building and observe the tall hatrack that stands by the door. If the top of the standard is smothered beneath the tall crown of a black, wide brimmed sombrero of typical Texas proportions, then "he's in."

"He" is folded into a swivel chair by the window and in front of an orderly new desk. On one side of the desk a weather beaten suitcase leans lop-sidedly; on the other side is a new trunk with sticky green panels, bright nickel bindings, and innumerable bandages of new clothesline.

"Is this the office of Congressman Davis of Texas?" you ask.

The telescoped human being in the swivel chair promptly goes through a process of unwinding. There is an elongation of the torso, a projection of the head, an elevation of the chin, and a bewildering flaying of arms and legs.

Glad Hand for Visitor.

The extension operation is completed and 6 feet 4 inches of long, lanky, sawboned, bewhiskered hardiness stands at effusive attention.

"Howarye? Glad to see ye. Saw a feller other day about your size, but not so good looking. When'je come in? Don't seem to remember your name just now, but howaryeanyhow? Sit down and make yourself homelike."

Aside from being impressed with the vociferous and overwhelming reception, the interviewer is consumed with a keen desire to discover whether the congressman is wearing a shirt or not. Cuffs peep below the sleeves of the long blue "Prince Albert" coat that drapes the congressman's form, but above the vest there is nothing to indicate the presence of shirt or collar.

Muffler Instead of Collar.

The old subterfuge of using one's prophet beard to cover a dislike for neckties does not explain the mystery. The investigator who pries beyond the congressman's beard will find only a noncommittal but ever present muffler covering the neck and filling in all the space above the vest.

"I haven't worn a collar in twenty years now," said the congressman. "I do quite a bit of speaking and I find the old wave muffler more convenient. I have them made to order. My brother busted a bronchial tube once while making a speech and since then I have been taking extra good care of my neck and chest."

Does Congressman Davis speak? That's his middle name. That's responsible for his first name. That's why he's called "Cyclone" Davis from Brownsville to El Paso and Dallas to Galveston.

"I don't mind being called 'Cyclone,'" says the congressman. "Fact is, I kind of like it. Sort of distinguishes me from the other Davises; not that I am any better than any other Davis, but my mail comes straighter when it's addressed 'Cyclone' Davis than when they address me James H. Davis.

"Got that nickname back in '91. I was political lecturer for the Farmers' alliance and debated about the country with Sam Cary, son of old Gen. Cary, who ran with Peter Cooper on the greenback ticket in the '70s, and——"

Turned Loose in Texas.

"Popper. There's a call for you on the telephone," came the interruption from the six foot Texan at the secretary's desk. The 'Popper' came from Arlon B. Davis, 34 years old, who has three claims on greatness. He is the son of his dad, he was the youngest bank president in Texas, and the youngest mayor of the town of Raton, Tex.

"All right, —Davis," says the congressman over the telephone, which is not a bad variation for the customary wire introduction. The party on the other end of the wire was a woman writer wanting data on the life of "Cyclone" Davis.

"Just say that he was picked out of a palmetto tree one night before Christmas down in South Carolina and that his daddy turned him loose in Texas at the age of 4 and he's just been sort of wandering around since then. How's that?"

"Well, I was 6 foot 4 in my young days, but I'm 62 now and I guess I've shrunk up half an inch or so. No, mister, you don't want no picture of this miserable contortion of human physiognomy unless you have a set of steelbound and riveted cameras and a battery of photographers to relieve one another."

Just Feelin' His Way.

The congressman telescoped into the seat and resumed:

"You see we're new down here and we are just feeling our way now. I'm glad I have the chance to do something for the country and I want to do it. I have been talking all over the country for twenty-five years now. I've talked in every schoolhouse west of Chicago where the farmers was organized and from Canada to the Gulf.

"I was one of the organizers of the old Populist party and helped write the first national platform that included the income tax, the election of senators by direct vote, the physical valuation of railroads looking toward government ownership, and the initiative, referendum, and recall.

For Wilson but Agin Defense.

"I'm for Wilson, but I am not so strong on this national defense talk. All I think we ought to do is to treble the output of the Rock Island arsenal and put two or three more navy and army schools about the country and we'd be all right. I am not in favor of his big army and navy.

"Why, down in my state, in Hopkins county, where I belong, you could step out and blow the bugle blast and inside of one hour 3,000 men would step up to defend the colors. The trouble is there isn't five men in the country knows how to organize a regiment. We need more trained officers."

"Cyclone" Davis promises to be heard from before his term expires. He prides himself upon being able to quote whole chapters from the life and writings of Jefferson, and "allows" that President Wilson is "sure to be reëlected to continue cutting out his niche in civilization."

SENATE DEMOCRATS REVOLT ON WILSON'S CLOSURE RULE.

Caucus Fails to Sanction Plan Which Would Enable Majority to Choke Off Debate.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—The administration's scheme to extend secret control of legislation to the floor of the senate itself by means of a closure rule failed this afternoon when enough Democratic senators balked at approving an order to choke off debate at any time the majority wished to make its adoption by the Democratic caucus impossible.

The administration, without risking a vote, surrendered on the proposition and then put forward a substitute proposal, which calls for instructions to be given the senate rules committee to make a study of closure and to report the result of its study to the senate.

The failure of the secret caucus was a distinct disappointment to President Wilson and Secretary McAdoo.

NEW CONGRESS FACING MANY BIG PROBLEMS

Action on Defense and Revenue Questions Vital to Welfare of Nation.

NATION'S FORTUNES AT STAKE

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—When the Sixty-fourth congress assembles at noon next Monday the nation will enter upon a period of approximately seven months in which history will be written of greater moment to the future than any since the events of 1898, which made the United States a world power.

With the attention of the people focused upon Washington, ninety-six senators and 435 representatives will take stock of the "state of the union" and determine measures to maintain and improve the welfare and prestige of the American people. Upon the wisdom of these measures depends, as rarely before, the fortunes of the greatest republic in history.

The play of intricate political, economic, and social forces beneath the surface will shape the legislation which will determine whether the nation shall be safe from foreign attack and able to extend and protect its interests abroad, whether the nation shall be united and prosperous, and whether the Democratic administration shall be indorsed.

Defense Problem Important.

The more important subjects of legislation which the new congress will consider at this session are:

Defense—The administration army and navy program, representing the "middle ground" between the recommendations of the army and navy experts and the anti-preparedness views of the pacifists, will be opposed by the Republicans, who will advocate the comprehensive and practical plans proposed by the general staffs.

Revenue—The administration proposals to raise $112,000,000 additional revenue, required chiefly by national defense, by extending income and excise taxes will be met by the Republicans with demands for a revision of the tariff upward to produce $300,000,000 more income, the amount they contend represents the actual prospective deficit for 1917.

Swollen Fortunes to Be Treated?

Inheritance tax—Consideration of the report of the commission on industrial relations and of amendments offered to revenue bills will bring before congress the question of imposing a graduated national inheritance tax not only to raise revenue but to redistribute swollen fortunes.

War—The administration will propose amendments to the Sherman antitrust and the neutrality laws designed to stamp out war plots and simplify prosecutions for violations of neutrality, while various senators and representatives will urge an embargo on the export of munitions or an excise tax on arms and ammunition.

Merchant marine—The ship purchase bill revived by the administration will be opposed by the Republicans, who will offer alternative measures proposing a general scientific plan of upbuilding an American merchant marine and providing national auxiliaries.

Tariff Law Changes Sought.

Business—Congress will consider a multitude of bills, the chief of which will propose Sherman anti-trust law amendments to permit combinations in foreign trade and tariff law changes to prevent competition with cheap foreign products "dumped" on the American market.

Finance—The establishment of a rural credit system providing for loans to farmers on easy terms will be strongly urged, with administration backing, while from other quarters will come proposals for important changes in the federal reserve act involving principally the abolition of the advisory council of bankers and the controllership of the currency and provisions to extend American banking facilities abroad.

Conservation—Progressive legislation regulating the development of water power in navigable streams and providing for the lease of water power, mineral, and other natural resources on public lands will be fought by the water power trust and Rocky Mountain states seeking control of these national possessions.

Philippine Autonomy Fight.

Philippines—The administration bill providing automony for the Philippines will be opposed by the Republicans, who will expose the disastrous results of Democratic maladministration of the islands and experiments of extending native control of the government.

Immigration—A bill restricting immigration will be favorably reported by the house and senate committees and its advocates express confidence that if vetoed it will be repassed over the veto.

Treaties—The senate will consider the ratification of treaties under which the United States would acquire the Nicaraguan Isthmian canal route for $3,000,000, pay Colombia $25,000,000 for the loss of Panama and establish a protectorate over Haiti.

Closure—The Democratic plan to limit debate in the senate will be opposed by the Republicans on the ground that the scheme would strengthen party caucus control of legislation.

"Pork Barrel" to Be Assailed.

Economy—Various proposals to eliminate "pork barrel" legislation and establish a budget system of scientific and responsible appropriation of public money will be considered by the house.

Railroads—Regulation of railroad stock and bond issues by the interstate commerce commission again will be urged upon congress, but without the active support of the administration.

Prohibition—The anti-liquor organizations will attempt to force early consideration of the proposed constitutional amendment prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating beverages in the United States.

Suffrage—The two national organizations of equal suffragists will renew their fight for the constitutional amendment enfranchising women.

Children—Advocates of national legislation prohibiting interstate commerce in the product of child labor will concentrate their campaign on the senate, which killed the house bill in the last congress.

Many Other Questions.

There are dozens of other questions of public policy which will engage the attention of the legislators, but they will receive scant consideration at the forthcoming session, and it is not likely that more than a quarter of the matters of major importance will be disposed of before the senators and representatives close up shop.

The questions that will crowd to the fore in this session are those of an urgent nature from the viewpoint of immediate national welfare and those thrust forward from motives of political expediency Over the entire work of the session will fall the shadow of the approaching presidential contest ,and on the floors of the senate and house will be viewed the skirmishing of the opposing armies of politicians that will engage in that battle.

Presidential Timber in Congress.

There are in this congress a number of candidates for the presidency whose utterances and votes on public questions will be closely watched. In the senate are Sherman of Illinois, Cummins of Iowa, La Follette of Wisconsin, Weeks of Massachusetts, and Borah of Idaho, all listed as Republican presidential possibilities. In both houses there are powerful partisans of former Senators Burton and Root and Supreme Court Justice Hughes, whose qualifications for leadership of the party are widely discussed.

Although Speaker Clark and Senator Underwood will loom up in the proceedings of the session, it is not as presidential possibilities that they will attract attention. The renomination of President Wilson appears to be a foregone conclusion, and the political activities of his supporters will be devoted to promoting his candidacy for reëlection. Bryan, the chief disturbing force in the Democratic party, will fight Wilson policies through his supporters in congress.

Wilson Leaders Confident.

The Wilson leaders are predicting easy sailing through congress for the program of legislation which the president will present next Tuesday. They say the legislation he will initiate in this session added to that of the last congress and to the record of the administration in carrying out the foreign policies which "have kept the country out of war," will assure the reëlection of Mr. Wilson.

The Republican leaders say that before the session ends they will complete the exposure of the futility and failure of the Wilson domestic policies, of the political expediency which they allege is the inspiring force of the president's legislative program and of the weakness and vacillation of the administration in dealing with the European belligerents and Mexico.

The Democrats will find themselves in this session a less cohesive force than at any time since they broke Republican control of congress in 1910. Although they will have a majority of sixteen in the senate—compared with ten in the last congress—they will command only a bare majority of twenty-five in the house, which bids fair to be an extremely evanescent quantity.

Coroner's Jury Exonerates Slayer.

A coroner's jury yesterday exonerated William Mead, a coal dealer at 213 South Sangamon street, living at the same address, who shot and killed Eugene Doyle, formerly living there, Nov. 19, when Doyle and another man known as "Smith" rushed in and attacked Mead. The jury declared Mead was justified in shooting.

DR. BRUSHINGHAM WORKING TO AID MAYOR IN WARD?

Phone Message Brings Letter of Refusal from the Rev. Dr. W. S. Bryan.

Has the Rev. John P. Brushingham, Mayor Thompson's rejected appointee to the board of education, become one of Mr. Thompson's ward organizers in a final effort to whip recalcitrants into line to support the administration?

A few days ago the Rev. W. S. Bryan of the Church of the Covenant received a telephone message from a man who said he was Dr. Brushingham's secretary. The man asked Dr. Bryan to use his influence to bring into line to support the mayor the two aldermen from Mr. Thompson's own ward, the Twenty-third. In reply Dr. Bryan wrote Dr. Brushingham a letter in which he said he could not see his way clear to obey the request.

At Dr. Brushingham's home last night it was said that the minister was in bed. A request for the minister's secretary brought a man who said his name was Mr. Hadley.

"Did you receive a letter from Dr. Bryan?" Mr. Hadley was asked.

"Yes," was his answer.

"Did you call up Dr. Bryan and ask for his coöperation in securing the support of aldermen for Mayor Thompson?"

"No, I can't say that I did. Dr. Brushingham has a number of secretaries."

Dr. Bryan's Letter.

Here is Dr. Bryan's reply to the request which apparently came from Dr. Brushingham:

"Dear Dr. Brushingham: I received last week a message by telephone, said to be from your secretary, requesting me to influence the aldermen of our ward to support the mayor.

"The action of the mayor in closing the saloons on Sunday has won for him the commendation of not only the ministry.

But on Other Lines—

"I deem it necessary, however, to say to you that the action of the mayor in closing the saloons on Sunday, creditable as it is, ought not to be taken as binding on the ministry of the city to his support, irrespective of his actions in other directions.

"So far as I understand the attitude of the ministry of the city, but speaking directly only for myself, I feel it right to say in response to your request that if the mayor will take as definite a stand in the maintenance of the civil service and in the protection of our city from job hunters, high and low, and in the defense of honest and experienced officials and employés, he will confirm the good opinion which has been formed of him by his action in closing the saloons on Sunday."

The two aldermen from the Twenty-third ward are Thomas O. Wallace and John Kjellander. Dr. Bryan would say little about the letter when he was seen at his home last night.

"BIG BILL" ISSUE IN WARD FIGHTS

Aldermanic Politics Breaks Loose with Hot Charge by Stern.

'WHIP WIELDING' TOLD.

Aldermanic politics, initiating the 1916 spring campaign, broke loose last night with a Third ward explosion. In line with the forecast that skillful politicians have made, the big issue in the municipal primaries and elections is likely to be "for" or "agin" Big Bill. Note the following in which William A. Bither of the law firm of Bither & Goff, and a Thompson lieutenant, is severely criticized:

BY ALD. NATHANIEL A. STERN.

[Alderman from the Third Ward.]

On Monday, Oct. 11, 1915, I called at the office of Bither & Goff on appointment with Mr. Goff relative to a bill for an accounting where I represented the defendant. While I was sitting in the reception room waiting for Mr. Goff, Mr. Bither came in and asked me what I was waiting for. I told him I had an appointment with Mr. Goff.

He said, "While you are waiting, come in my office; I want to talk to you." We went into his office, closed the door, and Mr. Bither said:

"Stern, what in the h——l do you and Werner mean by voting against the mayor in the council. I am going to tell you something. If you do not come into our organization and go along with the mayor, we are going to wreck you, and I'll spend $5,000 in the Third ward to beat you.

Gives Him Four Weeks.

"Personally, I think you are a pretty good chap, and I like you, Stern, but this is politics. Now, I am going to give you four weeks to make up your mind as to whether you are going along with the mayor or not. Furthermore, I will expect you to come into our organization."

I told him that I was not antagonistic toward the mayor in any particular, but, on the contrary, would be only too glad to be with the mayor when I thought he was right, and that when I thought he was wrong I would vote against him. Then he charged me with following Merriam. My answer to that was that the four aldermen who preceded me on the roll call were usually with the mayor, and I had to use my independent judgment when it came to voting, and never at any time sought to follow Merriam.

City Hall Favor Dangled.

His final words were: "Well, Stern, you had better think it over. I am going to give you a chance such as was never offered to you before. We will return you to the council and it won't cost you a cent, and I want to tell you something else. You couldn't get anything in the city hall today. I would like to take you over and fix you up with the mayor. Now you think this over, and then come over and see me and I will take you over to Bill Thompson and put you in on the ground floor. You can't get into the mayor's office without me. Furthermore, Stern, what will happen to you when the mayor comes out into the ward and makes two or three speeches for our candidate?"

My answer to that was that I did not think that Mayor Thompson would take part in an aldermanic fight.

MAYOR TO TEAR INTO THE CRITICS OF MERIT BOARD

"Warm" Statement Announced for Today in Row Over Coffin and Geary.

Mayor Thompson yesterday assumed personal command of the fight made by the city civil service commission to maintain itself against the attacks and threats of prosecution that have been leveled at Commissioners Percy B. Coffin and Joseph P. Geary.

It was announced that the mayor will issue a "warm" statement today, tearing into the critics of his appointees. The statement will cover the seven violations of the law which the council finance committee cited as sufficient basis for suspending Commissioners Coffin and Geary.

The preliminary details of the administration's campaign were mapped out yesterday at a conference called by the mayor and attended by Capt. Coffin and Corporation Counsel Ettelson.

Another conference will be held today prior to the issuing of the mayor's statement.

"Was there any suggestion that the mayor would follow the recommendation of the committee and suspend the civil service commissioners?" Capt. Coffin was asked.

"Not the slightest," he replied.

The conferences, however, may result in the establishment of some new civil service policies in the city hall. It is intimated that the mayor is not altogether satisfied with some actions of the commission, especially in view of the censure they have evoked. Mr. Ettelson, it is said, will have a deciding voice in determining future policies.

Capt. Coffin, for the commission, issued a long statement attacking the finance committee's action, attributing it to "Merriamism."

CHARGES ARE FILED.

Charges were filed yesterday by the city civil service commission against Walter G. Leininger, superintendent of streets; Thomas L. Dooley, foreman of asphalt repairs, and James H. La Velle, foreman of street restoration. They have all been suspended. The specifications in Leininger's case allege among other things:

That he approved padded pay rolls.

That he purchased road oil at 7½ cents a gallon when the market price was 5 cents.

That he permitted employés to absent themselves from duty and receive pay at the same time.

That he allowed subordinates to waste materials and permitted them to work for private individuals using city materials for the work.

That his "wastefulness and inefficiency" caused the city the loss of $100,000.

That he permitted contractors to defraud the city.

The specifications in the cases against Dooley and La Velle are similar. The trial will begin Thursday or Friday. President Coffin said he will not sit on the trial board.

MONEY RAISED FOR CONVENTION

Democrats Go to Washington Today to Urge Chicago's Claims.

SULLIVAN IN PARTY.

Chicago goes to Washington today to tender to the Democratic national committee ample funds to finance the 1916 convention, a perfect convention hall, and more hotel rooms than all the other contending cities combined.

Next Sunday a delegation will leave to make the same sort of a proffer to the Republican national committee.

Gov. Dunne and Roger C. Sullivan will be twin cicerones of the delegation which departs at 10:30 this morning over the Pennsylvania. Secretary of State Louis G. Stevenson, Attorney General P. J. Lucey, and State Auditor James J. Brady will be the state officers with Gov. Dunne.

These Democrats Will Go.

In Mr. Sullivan's party, as an escort to National Committeeman Charles Boeschenstein, who is expected to land the convention for Chicago, will be these Chicago Democrats:

Joseph F. Connery,
John Barton Payne,
Robert M. Sweitzer,
Henry Stuckart,
A. J. Cermak,
George Spangler,
Frank Bering,
Eugene Beifeld,

John T. Connery,
Frank Ryan,
John C. Roth.

Chicago headquarters are to be opened at the Raleigh hotel.

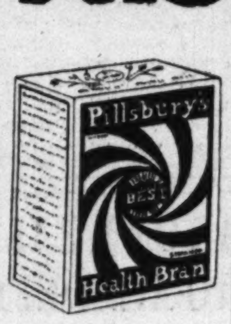
CHICAGO OR ST. LOUIS TO WIN.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—The fight for the Republican and Democratic national conventions has narrowed down to Chicago and St. Louis, according to the reliable reports from the national committee of both parties. There is a strong probability that the Democratic convention will go to Chicago and the Republican convention to St. Louis, although both cities are bidding for both conventions. Each city is prepared to put up $200,000 to land both conventions.

Bran Improves the Flavor

A mellow, mealy crispness—a rich, toasted, nutlike taste, is imparted to gems, cup-cakes and muffins by Pillsbury's Health Bran. After you have tried it you will want it at every meal just as you want butter, salt and sugar.

Pillsbury's Health Bran



is also a power for better health. The coarse, resistant flakes give bulk to the food both in the stomach and the intestines, enabling the digestive juices to act freely and promoting thorough, regular, gentle elimination. It is sterilized by a process discovered by the famous Pillsbury Laboratories.

Chicago Solvay Coke
"The Fuel Without a Fault"

Economy That Makes Low Prices

The fuel consumer gains by the "Nothing Wasted" method of making Solvay Coke. The manufacture of Solvay is conducted in airtight retorts in much the same manner as bread is baked in an oven. About one and one-half tons of the best soft coal are required to produce a ton of Solvay Coke, for in the coking process about half a ton of soot and tarry products is driven off, while all the fixed carbon remains. The economical fuel of today is not coal, for coal wastes too much in smoke, soot and ashes and

Waste Makes Cost

The saving of valuable products permits the sale of Solvay Coke at lower prices than hard coal, even though it is a superior fuel. This coke contains about 90% of fixed carbon to about 77% in anthracite, and also leaves less ash. Solvay Coke is furnished in all hard coal sizes.

No. 1 Nut is best for stoves and small furnaces, and also for banking fires in large furnaces.

Solvay Coke does not burn out fire-pots or grates

BENNETT VISITS BATTLEFIELDS ALREADY FAMOUS

Another Picture of the Scenes of the Great Anglo-French Offensive.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.
[War Correspondent of The Tribune.]
[Copyright: 1915: By The Chicago Tribune.]

GERMAN HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, Nov. 6.—During the days of the great September-October Anglo-French offensive—which turned out to be not so great as to results despite the vast scale on which it was projected—all train schedules went to smash soon after the passenger left the French frontier town of Audun-le-doman.

Whether you were traveling via Longuyon or via Longwy it was the same. From Audun to Longuyon is only fifteen miles, but our train was half a day making the distance. Every hour was a critical hour and the rule was "ammunition first." That rule was absolute. When the ammunition trains had rumbled by our train would manage to steal ahead a few kilometers pending the coming of more ammunition trains, which had the right of way. There was a rush of troops to the front, too, but even they did not have the right of way over ammunition.

Cheers from the Wounded.

The traffic we passed that was homeward bound—that is, bound to Germany—was mostly trainloads of slightly wounded men standing close packed in freight cars. They looked tired and grimy, but they had a good round cheer left in them for every trainload of fresh troops going forward.

The hospital trains carrying the heavy wounded were far less frequent. It was the old story of shrapnel again, the story of wounds which, though they put a man out of commission, do not shatter him.

From Audun-le-Roman and thence all the way across northeastern France the railway stations bear German signs lettered in black on boards that have been painted white, and these signs glare at the passerby from beneath the old French signs that used to give information to travelers. "Zum Bad," with an arrow after the letters, points the soldiers to the German bathhouses which have been established in or near all the railway stations in occupied France.

Warning Against Spies.

Another sign that you see not only at the railway stations and other places of public resort in occupied territory, but also in the restaurants, theaters, railway stations, and street cars of German cities—especially Berlin—warn soldiers to be careful in their conversation, for spies may be about. This is the terse German of it:

Soldaten!
Vorsicht bei Gesprächen
Spionengefahr.

From the northeastern border of France on through Longwy, Longuyon, Montmédy, Sedan, Laon, Soissons, St. Quentin, Peronne, Douai, and up to Lille and beyond, the railway station organization of the Germans seems perfect. There is no reason why a soldier should be either cold or hungry two minutes after he has descended from the train stopping at any one of these points or at a hundred others, the names of which would mean nothing to the reader who has not traversed the ground.

Soldiers Well Cared For.

The German soldier is scrupulously looked after. He is regarded as the most precious possession of his country, and he is treated as such. In return he is expected to value himself accordingly and to bear himself with dignity. One seldom hears loud talking in a group of German soldiers, and I have never seen any of them larking in an obstreperous way. When they feel happy and want to give vent to their happiness they sit down on the green slope of a railway embankment and sing sad songs to the general effect that they know not what is the reason that they so pensive are.

The traveler is well beyond Montmédy, which lies nearly twenty-five miles from the German border of France, before he gets the feel of big, noisy, anxious work in hand. The troop trains streaming forward with fresh men and streaming back with wounded become more frequent and the regulations governing the entrance and exit of civilians at railway stations grow a shade stricter.

Getting Into the Thick.

Now work your way thirty or so miles southwest from Montmédy and you reach the important town of Vouziers and begin to get into the thick of things. Villages are numerous and some of the least significant looking ones have acquired a deathless fame in the annals of this and other wars.

You are now in the northerly part of the Champagne and approaching the heart of the region wherein the French launched the most important part of their share in the September-October offensive. The sky is hung with the German captive balloons, that are of the color of ham casings and are shaped like a sausage. One, two, three—I count four hanging sentinellike in a slightly curving line that must be fifteen miles long.

A Cold Shift.

In each one a German officer who has accepted one of the most perilous and wearying forms of service his profession can ask of him is sitting with a telephone strapped over his ears and a notebook and field glasses around his neck. When they draw the balloon down to earth with teams of horses and a company of men at dusk he will be so cold that they will have to lift him out of the basket. His shift is for all day unless the French flyers end his career before nightfall.

WEEKLY REVIEW of the WAR

by CAPT. HENRY J. REILLY

GENERAL.

Several events in the last week indicate an effort on the part of the allies to draw closer together and to put the conduct of war in fewer hands. These are: The arrival in London of a Russian military commission, the assignment of Gen. Joffre to supreme command of all French troops except those in North Africa, and the announcement of Baron Sonnino, Italian minister of foreign affairs, that Italy has adhered to the agreement not to sign a separate peace.

FRENCH FRONT.

There has been nothing but local actions along this front. In London there is talk that there will be no attempt at another offensive in this theater of war until next spring.

ITALIAN FRONT.

Throughout the week the Italians have continued their attacks along the Isonzo, with Goritz as the main objective. Italian reports state their troops have steadily gained ground. This is denied by Vienna. If they have gained at all, the amount is slight, because otherwise they would be in Goritz.

RUSSIAN FRONT.

With the exception of a reported renewal of activity by the Russians in Galicia, there has been nothing of importance on this front. Russia claims a slight advantage in Galicia. This has been denied by the central powers.

THE BALKANS.

The campaign of the Austro-Hungarians against Montenegro has continued with German aid and a steady driving back of the Montenegrins. The northern Serbian forces hold but a small remnant of Serbia and are steadily retiring into Albania, losing many prisoners and guns as they go and leaving behind enemy prisoners. The troops of the central powers are reported to have already entered Albania in pursuit of the Serbians.

All rail communication in north and central Serbia is now entirely in the hands of the central powers and Bulgaria. In southern Serbia efforts by Serbian forces to break through and join with the northern force have failed. The Anglo-French troops, which are reported from Paris to number but 125,000, have been forced back toward the Greek border. Monastir is reported to be in Austrian and Bulgarian hands.

There are again rumors that Italy is sending troops to the Adriatic coast of Albania to aid the Serbians. This rumor has appeared periodically since the beginning of the present campaign in Serbia. So far there has been no official verification of it.

It is reported that the central powers have warned Greece that if she accedes to the demands of the allies with respect to their free use of Saloniki, the freedom of their troops from internment, if driven into Greece, and the policing of Greek waters by allied warships she will be considered as having acted in an unfriendly manner and treated accordingly.

While the allies are still exerting great pressure to induce Greece to accede to their demands, so far she has avoided doing so. Apparently her intention is to remain neutral if possible, and if impossible take that side which is physically strongest in the Balkans.

The reports from Roumania continue to be conflicting. Russia is said to have notified her that she has an army concentrated in Bessarabia and wishes its unobstructed passage through Roumania to Bulgaria. One report says that Roumania has returned an evasive reply, another that she has flatly declined and has demanded that Russia respect her neutrality.

She is said to have told the allies that they must put 500,000 troops in the Balkans before they can expect favorable action on her part. Other reports state that the central powers have concentrated a considerable body of troops on or near the northern part of the Roumanian-Hungarian border in such a position that they can readily act against either the Roumanians or the Russians should they develop a real offensive in Galicia.

The probabilities are that Roumania's future action, like that of Greece, depends entirely upon the physical force in the shape of troops which each side can bring to bear. There are still reports that Russia is getting ready to send an overseas expedition from Odessa to the Bulgarian Black sea coast. It is also said that Turkish troops and ships have been sent from Constantinople to protect this coast.

THE DARDANELLES.

In a local attack the Turks succeeded in capturing some British trenches.

PERSIAN GULF EXPEDITION.

The British now admit that their forces have retired a considerable distance below Bagdad. The Turks report that the British were defeated with a loss of 5,000 and were compelled to retire more than 100 miles.

SUMMARY.

The main campaign in Serbia has come to an end, the central powers and Bulgaria having accomplished their purpose of opening up and controlling the Belgrade-Constantinople railway and the practical elimination of Serbia as a combatant. The practical close of the campaign is important not only for these reasons but also because it shows the central powers to be strong enough to rest on the defensive in such theaters of war as they see fit and strike with an offensive where they wish. In other words, they still have the initiative.

The inability of the allies to put enough troops into Serbia to stop the campaign, their apparent inability at the present time to bring enough physical pressure on Greece and Roumania to compel accession to their wishes, and their failure to assume a general offensive in either the French or Russian theaters of war would indicate a lack of troops.

The question as to the number of troops which the allies can bring to bear at the present time is of extreme importance. Apparently what they have is not sufficient to put their enemies on the defensive. The first step in the defeat of these enemies would have to be sufficient pressure to put them everywhere on the defensive and make them follow the lead of the allies.

The last week has been a week of preparation, with reports and rumors of troop movements coming from the central powers, Russia, Turkey, and Italy. What the next movements will be it is impossible to say. It seems probable that the central powers will somewhere start another offensive.

OBITUARY.

AUGUSTUS PITOU IS DEAD; FAMED IN THEATER WORLD.

West Palm Beach, Fla., Dec. 4.—Augustus Pitou, actor, manager, and playwright, died at his home near Hobesound, Fla., today of acute indigestion. He had been ill only a few hours.

Mr. Pitou, after closing his active career on the stage, managed tours for a number of famous actors. His last venture was two years ago, when he was manager for Chauncey Olcott.

Mrs. Pitou will leave for New York tonight with the body.

Mr. Pitou became a manager when he carried through the country D'Ennery's play, "The Danicheffs," after its success at the Union Square theater in New York.

Some of the stars who played under Mr. Pitou's management were W. J. Scanlan, Robert Mantell, Joseph Murphy, Rose Coghlan, Chauncey Olcott, and Kathryn Kidder. Among his plays were "Sweet Inniscarra," "A Romance of Athlone," "Garrett O'Magh," and other Irish plays and American melodramas. His son is manager of the Illinois theater in Chicago.

LAWRENCE GUSTAV HALLBERG, one of Chicago's widely known architects, died last night at the Plaza hotel. He was born in Wenersnas, Sweden, in 1844, and after being graduated from Chalmers Polytechnic institute in Gottenborg went to London, England, where he engaged in architecture under Sir Digby Watts. He came to the United States and settled in Chicago in 1871. He had been engaged in the practice of his profession ever since. He was a fellow of the American Institute of Archtects, member of the Western Society of Engineers, the Chicago real estate board, and the Chicago Association of Commerce. He is survived by his widow, Florence Estey Hallberg, and four children—Mrs. Douglas Rankin of Hartford, Conn.; Mrs. Stewart Hodges, Lawrence G. Hallberg Jr., and Norman D. Hallberg. Funeral services will be held at the residence of his daughter, 61 Bellevue place, tomorrow morning.

THOMAS P. HICKEY, who for twenty years served as superintendent of Chicago streets, is dead at the home of his sister, Mrs. P. H. McMahon, 836 South Oakley avenue. He was 80 years old. Mr. Hickey was the owner of the steamer Kid Richmond, which took on over 1,000 refugees along the Chicago river at the time of the great fire. He had been retired from active business for twenty years. Mr. Hickey was born in Ireland and came to this country when 2 years old, settling in Oswego, N. Y. Fifty years ago Mr. Hickey came to Chicago.

WILLIAM RAMSEY, well known concrete contractor, died yesterday at his residence, 6605 Harvard avenue. He was born in Chester county, Pennsylvanuia, and came to Chicago in 1874. He was a past commander of Apollo commandery, No. 1, K. T., member of Englewood lodge, A. F. and A. M., Oriental consistory, and Medinah temple. He was formerly captain of company B, Second regiment, I. N. G. He is survived by his widow and one son.

DR. JOHN A. BRILL, one of the oldest and best known physicians on the northwest side, died yesterday at his residence, 930 North Ridgeway avenue. He was attending a patient when he was stricken with paralysis and died within twelve hours of the attack. He had practiced in Chicago for the last twenty-nine years.

LEWIS F. MUIR, writer of such widely sung ragtime hits as "Waiting for the Robert E. Lee," "Here Comes My Daddy Now," "The Barber Shop Chord," and others, died yesterday in New York of pneumonia, aged 30 years. He was known as one of the leading ragtime composers in the country.

DR. JOHN WALLACE ALLISON, twice a Democratic representative of the Kankakee district to the state legislature, died at his home yesterday after an illness of three months, at the age of 63.

ONE in every three motor cars manufactured during 1916 will be equipped with Goodyear Tires.

Motor car manufacturers jealously guard their good reputation in the choice of tire equipment.

The marked preference shown Goodyear over all other brands, by a long list of America's representative manufacturers, is so significant, that it calls for no comment.

The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company
AKRON, OHIO

Notice
European war demands have caused a shortage in the world's supply of materials used in the manufacture of White Tread Tires.
The color of Goodyear Tires may ultimately be changed from White to Black.
Our supply of the required materials assures the greater portion of our 1916 season's output of tires being furnished with White Treads.

Real Battery Service is service the car owner can take advantage of at any time—as often as he likes—service that is cheerfully rendered without carrying a feeling of any obligation with it. That is VESTA Service.

Take advantage of it. Simply drive around to our Indiana Avenue Service Station—your battery will be accurately tested; distilled water will be added and expert advice will be given regarding the care of your battery.

It makes no difference whether your battery is a Vesta. This service is free and applies to all automobile lighting and starting batteries regardless of make, age or type. Only when recharging, repairs or renewals are necessary will they be suggested and our charge for this work is very reasonable.

The most complete wiring department for automobiles in the West.

Lighting equipment of all sorts—lamps, bulbs, fuses, etc.

VESTA STORAGE BATTERY is the result of eighteen years' experience in building batteries for automobiles. Only the best materials and the "know-how" go into Vesta, insuring for it long life, capacity and power.

Winter Storage If you are going to put your car up for the winter your starting and lighting battery should be removed and sent to a service station where it can be kept on charge or prepared for dry storage. Should it not be convenient to do this, write for new booklet, "Timely Hints," which tells how to care for your battery through the winter.

Our service stations everywhere make a specialty of storing batteries for automobile owners during the winter months. The cost is very reasonable. Ask us.

BOY-ED AND VON PAPEN.

The precise nature of the offenses of Capt. Boy-Ed, German naval attaché, and of Capt. von Papen, military attaché, is not disclosed by the state department. There is an intimation that the request for their recall was not based on the Hamburg-American Steamship company case. Secretary Lansing merely states that their activities in military and naval matters were considered improper and that they are no longer acceptable.

The government cannot be indifferent to an affront to its dignity and the presumption is that before the pronounced ill feeling in Germany was given fresh cause, the offenses of the German officials in this country had become gross. They have abused the diplomatic privileges and the American government protects itself.

The feeling in the United States ought not to be one of unmeasured indignation, but it ought to come from an understanding. Otherwise we shall be either foolish or hypocritical.

The operations of agents of the entente powers in the United States are constructive here in order that they may be destructive in Europe. They are protected by law and custom and precedent. They have made the United States a principal source of supplies for the allies. American foods, horses, guns, powder, shells, acids, woolens, leathers, metals, and money are being sent to Great Britain, France, Russia, and Italy.

The accelerated industries of the nation and its surplus wealth are at the disposal of Germany's enemies and the law and precedents which protect our right to carry on all this trade are full of ironies. Great Britain may borrow money here, may use that money to convert any plant making castings into a plant making shrapnel; it may buy the product and ship it to the front, but Germany cannot put a cargo of coal on a ship and get clearance for that ship to steam out to meet a commerce raider and coal it.

International law asserts the perfect neutrality of our giving clearance to a ship carrying all sorts of supplies for a French or British army, but it will not permit us to allow a German warship to be revictualed by a ship going from an American port for that purpose.

Whatever the Germans try to do in utilizing our resources for their needs they encounter in each case either illegality or impossibility. That is not our fault. We have not made new laws for the conduct of neutrals in war. We have accepted the laws as they are, and although we might have been moved by sentiment to put obstacles in the way of the great trade in supplies which go to one set of combatants while the other is beginning to suffer for the lack of them, we wisely have not done so.

It is Germany's hard position to be in the grasp of sea power. Under the protection of that power our war industries, inflated to an extraordinary extent, find their products delivered. If Germans, despairing of interrupting this activity, which may prove to be the essential of their failure, turn to desperate methods in the United States, we shall have to punish the offenders when they are found, but for us to adopt a moral tone would be ludicrous.

If German officials accredited to this government permit their desire to help their country to overturn their discretion, if they take chances of being discovered in improprieties and in offenses against the United States, they will have to go, but the feeling in the United States more reasonably will be one of regret than indignation.

It will be worth considerable to us if we keep our sense of proportions working and do not permit prejudice to shut out the perspective.

SMALL NATIONS AND INTERNATIONALISM.

Americans as a whole feel rather keenly on the subject of the small nations. Two of them, Belgium and Serbia, have been practically obliterated, for the time being at least, because of their opposition to Germany, a large nation. Both of them had a choice between yielding a part of their sovereignty and being attacked. Sympathy for the small nation has come to be a tenet in our religion. There is no question in our minds that they were justified in resistance. But we have not really made any examination of the subject.

It is curiously in opposition to another favorite emotional attitude of Americans—internationalism. This country is not highly nationalized. The idea of international peace is irresistible to every one. It also is a part of our religion. The man who dares justify war on its own account utters blasphemy. To the mind of a certain part of our people, and a very noisy part, war is not justified at all. Nationalism is blamed. If there were no nations there would be no national ambitions, and if there were no national ambitions there would be no war. Hence patriotism is a crime. That is the extreme of the argument.

For the sentimental internationalists, to be strictly logical, should rejoice in the fall of Belgium and in the fall of Serbia, if not in the manner of their fall, at least in the fact. What makes internationalism conceivable today is exactly the loss of sovereignty of such states. Universal peace was literally unthinkable when a dozen or more barons in England claimed individual sovereignty. When every city was autonomous, every city had walls and troops. When they yielded their sovereignty to a central government their walls fell into decay and the soldiers were mustered out. The whole tendency of civilization has been the regrouping into larger units.

We in this country fought about precisely the same question. The south professed a belief in the sovereignty of every state. The north disagreed, and disagreed so effectually that the United States is spoken of as it and not they.

Our international pacifists are placed in a curious position. They want internationalism but they do not want to permit any capable nation to extend internationalism effectively. Belgium is justified. Germany and England are not. Patriotism, if they are logical, is a crime when victorious, but a virtue when defeated.

THE ENGLISH GENIUS AND THE GERMAN IDEA.

Carolyn Wilson, having been jailed in Germany, begs that no one inquire of her concerning England. Switzerland, France, Germany, Russia, all of them receive her official O. K., but of the British isles she begs to be excused from speaking.

We have been hearing a great deal of this sort of thing for the last two or three months. Much of our information has come from the English parliament itself. Certain sections of the English press have been voluble in their declarations that the conduct of the war has been unspeakable. It is common talk, at any rate, in England as well as in this country, that in important particulars the government has not governed. It has muddled through.

It brings up an interesting question. The English empire has dominated the earth for a century or more on and off. It has been considerable, longer than most empires. But when, since before the days of Queen Elizabeth, has the English government ever done anything but muddle through? When has it ever had a far reaching and far sighted national policy? There have been many brilliant statesmen, but when has the government coördinated all its forces to national ends, the way the Germans have done?

In spite of this the two boasts of the Englishman, that Britannia rules the waves and that the sun never sets on English possessions, are to her enemies disagreeably true.

Even her naval supremacy was not a preconsidered national policy. It just happened. When Henry VIII. broke off with the Roman Catholic church on account of his marriages and dispossessed the owners of church lands, the economic system of the country was not flexible enough to absorb the men who lost their jobs. Many of these vagrants turned to piracy, preying on all shipping, English included. Queen Elizabeth found them annoying. She subsidized them. That was the beginning of the English navy.

Her possessions usually came in the same haphazard fashion. Unlike the German method, the government did not say we want colonies in the far east. Her merchants went out and took them. The crown granted monopolies in the products of these foreign lands to various merchants. The East India company took India, and gave it to the government. The colonies in this continent grew out of concessions to favorites. They were given proprietary rights in the land. They did not govern for the interests of the British empire but for profit. Or the colonies were dumping grounds for bankrupts and convicts. Georgia was such a place; Australia another. The gold fever attracted more. The central government made few attempts to nationalize them. It simply protected them.

When Disraeli was premier he had an opportunity to take the Suez region. He took it. A merchant of no connection with the government on his own initiative negotiated with the sultan of Johore for the purchase of Singapore. He saw its strategic value and he bought it. It belongs to England. The English empire was slapped together in this haphazard way, not from a centrally directed desire for empire, but because individual Englishmen had imagination and initiative. Its government, in the German sense, has never been much of a government. Sometimes it was brilliant, sometimes stupid, but it was rarely, if ever, coördinated toward a fixed national aim.

Our history has been much the same. Our government has followed the tracks of our citizens.

The German genius, partly from geographical position, partly from political history, has been just the reverse. German power lies in the subjection of the individual to the community. The driving force of the community as a whole is then exerted along certain predetermined paths. The paths are determined by thoughtful and far seeing intelligence.

In this war there is a clash of the two theories of government, or the two kinds of communities. Napoleon made experiments along German lines. He saw the inefficiency of individualism. He saw that England was paying a price for it. Germany is the first efficient nation. It remains to be seen whether efficiency also has not its price.

JUNKETING IN THE NAME OF PEACE.

[From the Brooklyn Eagle.]

The latest of Henry Ford's vagaries is the most remarkable of all. Announcing a peace mission to Europe, he charters a steamship and invites as his companions on this extraordinary errand a number of more or less conspicuous people, who presumably share his views that it is practicable to get all combatants out of the trenches by Christmas. If Mr. Ford were not a highly successful business man and one of the shrewdest advertisers alive, we would suspect that this latest posturing as a peace angel was a symptom of insanity.

Leaving the United States, as it must, without a vestige of official sanction, this remarkable expedition will arouse the wonder of belligerent Europe. Public quarrels are not settled by private intervention or mediation. Mr. Ford and his missionaries will obtain no access to governing authorities to whom they are not officially accredited. Their futile parading in capitals where they are not desired and where they were not invited will merely arouse curiosity as to the mental processes that led them to expect satisfactory results from such a crack brained conception, with possibly unflattering reflections upon the common sense of Americans in general. The making of peace will of necessity be a profoundly solemn function, upon which personally conducted junkets can have no effect.

We are, however, promised one compensation for the ridicule that Mr. Ford's undertaking will surely arouse. Among the peace missionaries we note the name of William J. Bryan. If Mr. Ford shall succeed in removing him from this country for any considerable period, unloading him upon Europe, where the addition of one more burden would hardly be perceptible, we shall have some cause to be grateful.

LA MARQUISE DE FONTENOY

[Copyright, 1915, by the Brentwood Company.]

WHILE it cannot be denied that British diplomacy suffered a severe reverse in Bulgaria, largely owing to the tactlessness and incompetency of its envoy, Sir Henry Bax-Ironside, and has not been much more fortunate in its representatives at Athens and at Bucharest, it has been singularly successful at Rome.

If any doubt remained upon the subject it would be set at rest by the bitter attacks contained in the German and Austrian newspapers upon Sir Rennell Rodd, who for several years past has been accredited to the court of the quirinal as British ambassador.

According to the Berliner Tageblatt and other papers, Sir Rennell practically dominates the Italian royal family and the Italian government, largely through Miss Brown, who has long been the nursery governess of the children of the king and queen.

This royal couple are simply wrapped up in their youngsters, and it is insinuated by the German press that Sir Rennell Rodd and Miss Brown take advantage of the affection enjoyed by the small folk on the part of their parents to sway the latter in favor of British policies.

Of course the object of these attacks upon Sir Rennell is to excite prejudice, suspicion, and ill will against him in Italy and to impair his usefulness in behalf of his country.

But the German press would not be at these pains if they did not see in Sir Rennell an exceedingly shrewd and clever diplomat, to whose convincing arguments and persuasiveness it is largely due that the Italian government withdrew from the triple alliance and threw in its lot with the powers of the triple entente.

What exasperates the Germans more than ever in this is the fact that Sir Rennell was formerly one of their particular favorites, a man, indeed, who owed his rapid rise largely to his intimacy with the reigning house of Prussia. In fact, they formerly always expected that he would wind up his career as a particularly welcome representative of the British empire at Berlin.

Sir Rennell, when he first went to Berlin as a junior secretary of the British embassy there and as a member of the staff of the late Lord Ampthill, carried with him a letter of recommendation from Lord Rosebery to the late Emperor and Empress Frederick.

They took a great liking to him and after the tragic death of Emperor Frederick his English widow confided to young Rodd the extremely delicate task of writing a monograph of the monarch who lives in German history under the name of "Unser Fritz."

Rodd produced the most charming and altogether sympathetic portrait of that unhappy sovereign that has ever appeared. It was printed in several languages, the proceeds being devoted to charities designated by the imperial widow.

The book served to commend the author to the extremely favorable attention of Queen Victoria, who had been profoundly attached to her German son-in-law, and from that time forth Rennell Rodd's promotion was exceedingly rapid.

He became one of Lord Cromer's principal lieutenants in Egypt and was under fire during the insurrection in Zanzibar, which culminated in his driving out the usurper and the establishment of the late sultan upon the throne.

Then he was designated by the late Lord Salisbury to head the memorable mission to the court of Abyssinia, which attracted no end of attention among the warriors of the negus by the immense stature of the members of the embassy, most of whom were six feet three and six feet four in height.

Particularly well favored, Rennell Rodd married a very pretty woman, a Miss Guthrie of Craigie, in Forfarshire, who possessed a very large fortune in her own right.

After representing England at Stockholm he was promoted to the ambassadorship at Rome, where he enjoys a salary of $40,000 a year, the possession of a palace in the Via Venti Settembre, superbly furnished and equipped with everything necessary, including a $30,000 service of silver plate, the embassy having, moreover, a large and beautiful garden.

There is also at Sir Rennell's disposal a fine villa with spacious grounds at Posilipo, in the suburbs of Naples, on the water's edge, and which, belonging for many years to Lord Rosebery, was presented by him to the English government for use as a villegiatura for its ambassador at Rome.

Sir Rennell spent some months on this side of the Atlantic in 1908, being entertained by former Postmaster General and Secretary of the Navy Meyer and by Mrs. Meyer, among others, and he is well known in America as the author of at least half a dozen volumes of verse, of a monograph on Sir Walter Raleigh, and of a remarkable work on the princes of Achaia, the material of which he gathered while attached to the legation at Athens.

Baron Oscar von der Lancken, who henceforth will always be remembered in connection with the rôle which, as deputy governor of Brussels, he played in the execution of the English nurse, Miss Cavell, is recalled by many Americans frequenting cosmopolitan society in Paris as counselor of the German embassy there in the days when Prince Radolin was at the head of the mission in the French capital.

Baron von der Lancken holds a commission of captain in the Prussian regiment of Gardes du Corps, is married to an extremely rich woman, and conducted himself in such a fashion in Parisian society as to get on the nerves of his chief, Prince Radolin, who is a thorough man of the world and a grand seigneur in every respect. Prince Radolin became so convinced that the baron and baroness were hampering his mission of conciliation by their manner that he insisted on their being transferred to some other post.

The baron when in Paris rented a house in the Rue de la Ville l'Eveque belonging to the Prince of Arenberg. Subsequently the Von der Lanckens were stationed at Darmstadt, where they found themselves at the beginning of the present war.

CHRISTMAS SEALS—AND WHY.

THE consumption problem is so large that for its solution state agencies must be helped by voluntary organizations. In every case, work to control the consumption in a community begins with the activity of some voluntary organization. Such an experience as the following is common:

An inquirer asks about consumption in Galesburg. He is told that Galesburg is remarkably free from consumption. Yes, there is an occasional death from the disease but they are few. No, there are no cases in town now. No nothing is done. The matter never seemed worth considering.

The state federation of women's clubs having decided to investigate conditions throughout the state inquire into Galesburg conditions. They find what has been found everywhere else—that consumption is Galesburg's largest health problem. They find that the problem is so big that the Galesburg government is not big enough to handle it. They find the most heart-rending conditions in some Galesburg homes because of the disease. Nothing worse in Belgium, Serbia, or Poland.

As the result of their work the government takes its first step, whereupon the voluntary agency takes its second step. The government having gotten busy, the voluntary agency takes up some line of help. The kind of help varies. Generally, it consists in hiring a nurse. The nurse is called a tuberculosis nurse, but, as a matter of fact, she is a visiting nurse ministering to the community in many ways. The ladies' board holds its weekly meetings and the nurse tells her human interest stories.

The result is threefold. First, givers provide food, clothes and money for sufferers. Second, the proof of the need for a dispensary hospital or sanitarium is recognized and there is a gradual growth of conviction that the industrial and living conditions which bring about consumption should be remedied.

And so the influence of voluntary philanthropic organizations ripples out until every part of the life of the community is influenced by them. Experience has shown that when government becomes active in the repression of consumption voluntary consumption societies find that their work increases.

In the allusion to Galesburg no particular town is in mind. The statement is true of every town or else it will be true as soon as the town has progressed far enough. In the communities represented in a state tuberculosis society there are communities where the function of the local organization is to convince the community that they have a consumption problem and to persuade them to recognize it and start to work. There are other communities where the local government will be doing the purely medical work and the local organization provides the nurses and the help needed in the homes. In still others the local government provides hospitals, sanitaria, dispensaries, and nurses and the local organization puts in its time working for better industrial and social conditions.

The local organization does not go out of business and cannot. On the contrary, the amount of work done by the tuberculosis societies increases every year. The important and in most places the only source of financial support of the tuberculosis work is the revenue from the sale of Red Cross seals.

The Red Cross seals are printed and distributed by the American Red Cross. For the cost of printing and distributing the American Red Cross is paid 10 per cent of the receipts. The remaining 90 per cent of the face value of the sales is variously divided between the state and the local tuberculosis societies. The arrangement in Illinois is the one most employed. Under that arrangement the state society gets 12 per cent of the gross proceeds and the local society 78 per cent. This means that nearly four-fifths of the gross receipts from the sales is spent in the community where it is collected.

The work of selling the seals is done by unpaid volunteers. Therefore the expense to the local community of sales is not much more than the cost of material, the 10 per cent paid the American Red Cross.

Then for what do they spend the money? The largest single item of expense is for the maintenance of nurses. In some communities dispensaries are maintained. In some the chief effort is in the circulation of literature on consumption in general and for the individual consumptive. In others campaigns for sanitaria are run. In still others the money is expended in promoting systematic examination of working places and workingmen.

The seals are commonly known as Christmas seals. They are to be used around Christmas time. This means that this is the season for the sale of seals. And this means that upon the interest in consumption which will be displayed by the people of a community between now and Christmas depends the amount of money which will be available for the local society in its fight against consumption during the next twelve months.

The fight against consumption is being won. The gain each year is small, but it is something to turn a year by year increase into a year by year decrease. The best gains are in the larger cities. In many of the smaller cities the disease is still on the increase. The rate in the country has not yet shown signs of halting.

The situation is one that demands that every shoulder be kept at the wheel. In the larger cities each shoulder should stay at the wheel, because it is easy to see that the fight is going the right way. In the country each shoulder must stay at the wheel because the wheel is turning backward; it must be scotched, and the number of shoulders required to scotch it must be put to and held to the wheel.

Now is the time for universal interest in and knowledge of consumption.

Dr. E. L. Trudeau died at Saranac Lake on Nov. 15, 1915, aged 67. The American movement against consumption owes its existence to Dr. Trudeau. Dr. Trudeau was born in New York City in 1848. He graduated in medicine in 1871. In 1872 he developed consumption. In order to cure himself he went into the wooded highlands of northern New York state, and there, far from neighbors, in the midst of the wilds, he built himself a small cottage. In 1884 he founded the Adirondack Cottage sanitarium near the site of the cabin in which he lived while securing the arrest of his disease. In 1894 he founded the Saranac laboratory for the study of consumption. This was the first tuberculosis research laboratory established in this country.

Dr. Trudeau lived to see the institutions which he founded established on an enduring basis. He saw the wild region where he located converted into a district widely known and much sought by those with lung troubles. The Adirondack and the Adirondack sanitaria are known throughout the world.

What he gave to the Adirondacks is small compared with what he gave to the outside. There were hospitals for consumptives in England and on the continent before his time. But those old English, German, and Swiss institutions needed unhousing. They were massive, thick walled, small windowed institutions. They needed sunlight and air. Dr. Trudeau knocked down the walls of consumption hospitals from one end of the world to the other. He found the consumption hospital a mass of masonry; he left it an open porch. Great as was the influence on existing hospitals, it was far greater on the demand and supply of hospitals, sanitaria, and dispensaries. Where there was one consumption hospital when he came into the field there are now thousands. Where there was hospital supply for one community there is now supply for a thousand. Where there was popular demand for one hospital, sanitarium, or dispensary there is now demand for more than 10,000. Forty years is a long time in human achievement and much of evolution can be expected in such a span, but I think it conservative to say that had there been no Trudeau half the result in this direction of these forty years would not have been accomplished.

But even more important than the influence of Dr. Trudeau on the increase in the provision for people sick with consumption is the influence of his teachings on personal hygiene. A generation ago people were very much afraid of fresh air. One group was afraid of night air. About it there was supposed to be something peculiarly dangerous. In order to protect against this danger people slept in rooms where all the windows were closed tightly. Another group was very much afraid of drafts. They had themselves trained to detect slight drafts and, having detected them, they went to great trouble and tolerated very foul air to avoid them. There were no sleeping porches, cold sleeping rooms, no open window cars, and no fresh air fiends. If any care was given to a child it was coddled.

I do not mean to say that all children were coddled, for that statement would be far from true. There were parents who held that the way to bring up children was just to let them grow. Their children were not coddled. What I mean is that in that day when a parent planned to give extra good care to her child she coddled him. Now the parent planning to give good care to her child sees that she gets plenty of exercise in the open air without an excess of wraps. Now the children who are strong enough to stand anything are taught in the ordinary schoolrooms. The children who must be given extra care are taught in either open air schools or cold room schools. Illustrations of the growth in sentiment for good ventilation might be cited at great length. A great part of this is the lengthened shadow of Dr. Trudeau.

Dr. Trudeau was always a frail man, spare almost to the point of emaciation; he impressed one as not having more than enough vitality to live. Where the strength came from for the planning and carrying out of his plans was always a mystery. Occasionally he had spells and from some of these it seemed impossible for him to recover. For many years he lived more or less within the shadow of death. On one occasion, ten years ago, he said to me, as I am sure he said to closer friends on many occasions, that he did not want to die until he had secured for his institutions sufficient financial basis to perpetuate them. The greatest work that he could do in those last years was to see that his shadow lengthened. That was not the way he put it, but I think that is the way men feel about it.

And now what bearing has all of this on the sale of Christmas seals? Every man in this union is reaping some of the benefits of Dr. Trudeau's teaching. You and I, every one of us, is under obligation to him for having given us better ideas of how to live and some of us have had the benefit of sanitarium care. We can pay some of our obligation by buying and using Christmas seals. In this way and maybe in this way only we can add our mite to the lengthening of his shadow.

SACCHARIN.

A. V. writes: "I beg you to be so good and kind as to give us a long talk about saccharin, its merits and its demerits, the laws which prohibit its use in the manufacture of sweets of all kinds, pies, candy, pastry, and in wine and liquor making, sirups, etc. In Italy the importation of saccharin is prohibited; also its use, against which there is the same restriction there is in America against dopes of all sort."

REPLY.

The secretary of agriculture in food inspection decision No. 135 declared that he would regard foods containing saccharin as adulterated on and after July 1, 1911. The secretaries of the treasury, of agriculture, and of commerce and labor came to this conclusion because of a report by the referee board of consulting scientific experts.

The board found that the continued use of saccharin for a long time in quantities over four and a half grains a day is liable to impair digestion and that the addition of saccharin as a substitute for cane sugar or other forms of sugar reduces the food value of the sweetened product and hence lowers its value.

The courts always hold that a mixture, of which saccharin is one ingredient but the label of which does not state that saccharin is present, cannot be sold without committing a fraud. Sometimes the courts have held that where the label said that a mixture contained saccharin the sale of the mixture was not illegal if the amount of saccharin was small enough to be harmless. On this point the courts are not in agreement.

While saccharin is sweet like sugar it is not sugar, nor is it a food. Derived from coal tar, it is known to chemists as benzoic sulfonid. The only proper use for it is by people who, disposed to diabetes, must do without sugar. It would be far better for such people if they would learn to take their coffee unsweetened, since saccharin is indigestible and in fair-sized doses a harmful medicine.

BOOKS ON DIETETICS.

H. W. M. writes: "What is the best book on dietetics suitable for the public to read?"

REPLY.

The following are good books on the subject: Brewster's "The Nutrition of a Household," Lusk's "Fundamental Basis of Nutrition," Conley's "Nutrition and Diet."

BUILDING NEW PLAYGROUNDS.

Chicago, Nov. 29.—[To the Friend of the People.]—There having been an appropriation for a park in the Thirty-first ward, can you please state if it is in the hands of a committee to decide on the location, etc.? This is a greatly congested ward, especially the district of Englewood lying between Fifty-ninth and Sixty-third streets, on account of the Protestant and parochial schools, thus endangering the lives of school children, who have no place to play except in the streets. E. W. L.

The special park commission is now operating a playground at Fifty-seventh street and Princeton avenue and is building another adjoining the Earle school, Sixty-first street and Hermitage avenue, which should be in operation shortly after the first of the year. It was also intended to place a playground at the Beale school, Sixty-first and Sangamon streets, but approval of this ground has been withheld by the board of education, which is considering the building of additions to the school.

WALTER WRIGHT,
Secretary Special Park commission.

STREET NOW IN GOOD CONDITION.

Chicago, Nov. 30.—[To the Friend of the People.]—I have timed every street opening on Michigan avenue and not one was ever repaired inside of six months. Why should thousands of automobiles bump over those openings for six months to a year when the street can be repaired in six days? No one but an incompetent will admit that it can't be repaired in a week, if not on the day the street is opened.

JOSIAS C. PETERSON,
4724 Jackson boulevard.

This pavement is under contractor's guaranty. Serious difficulty was experienced in causing him to make repairs. Therefore, the delay. The street is now in good condition.

SOUTH PARK COMMISSION.

CAN SECURE DISCHARGE BY PURCHASE.

Chicago, Nov. 30.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Some time ago a friend of mine joined the army in Philadelphia, Pa., on account of being out of work. Now, his brother-in-law was killed several weeks ago, and it remains to him to take care of his sister—and several children, if I am not mistaken. Can he quit the army now?

MEYER JACOBSON,
1113 South Mozart street.

If he has had a year of honorable service he can secure his discharge by purchase, and if his family is destitute and he can verify this fact the chances are that a large portion of the purchase price will be remitted. If the man has had a year's service he should make formal application for discharge by purchase; if not, he should make arrangements to aid his dependent relatives until he has completed the specified time.

LEONARD WOOD,
Chief of Staff.

LIABLE FOR RENT.

Chicago, Dec. 3.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—In May, 1912, I took a lease on a flat for two years. At the end of this period, May, 1914, nothing was said about a renewal, but I continued to occupy the flat. However, I will say during the lease period a difference between landlord and wife, who occupied one of the flats, occurred, which caused him to take room elsewhere and she collected rent. The past June, 1915, she (the landlady) came and asked if I would renew the lease for two years longer. I refused, but did call to see landlord, who stated that he understood my lease was yet good, as I had lived in the flat more than two years. Recently I went to him and gave notice that after my month was up I would move and he stated he thought he could hold me to the old contract—that is, till May, 1916. Can he hold me for rent till May, 1916? L. H. J.

You are a tenant from year to year and as such are bound to pay rent until next May. Furthermore, you must give sixty days' notice to the landlord in order to be released in May. By holding over each year you have subjected yourself to a lease for one year on the same terms as your previous express lease.

PROCURING A DIVORCE.

Chicago, Dec. 3.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—My wife deserted me two years ago and I have not known even where she is, or her family either, since August, 1914, when I saw her. She refused to live with me at that time, saying she was going around with another man and preferred him. What evidence will be necessary for me to get a divorce? Will a sworn statement of the facts by me be sufficient, or will I have to get other evidence? J. L. T.

If she defaults you need only have two witnesses other than yourself to testify to her desertion and infidelity. If she defends the suit you will have to prove your case by a preponderance of the evidence.

LEGAL IF COUPLE RESIDES IN ILLINOIS.

Chicago, Dec. 3.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Kindly inform me if the following marriage was legal or not, of a lady divorced in Iowa in November of 1910 and married in Illinois in December of 1910. The records at court house in a city in Iowa show that she was not to marry in a year. C. L.

The marriage was legal if the parties intended to reside in Illinois at the time; that is, if the marriage took place in Illinois not merely for the purpose of evading the law of Iowa and the parties did not intend to return.

PLAY SAFE.

Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind., Dec. 1.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—In a representative government such as ours the only way we can get positive results is by focusing public opinion on the object sought. If we are ever to have adequate national defenses, surely now is the psychological time to act, while the public mind is focused on our present needs.

"Submarines vs. dreadnaughts," etc. Only those naval experts who have a knowledge of and have studied the naval aspects of the present war, and whose training fits them to understand its import, are at all qualified to decide on this. Miss Addams' opinion, along with yours and mine, and 99 per cent of our countrymen, is absolutely worthless, being based on sheer ignorance. We have paid naval experts of proved ability; their decision on this subject should be final, and is the only one worth a moment's consideration. From present indications they do not regard the dreadnaught as "old fashioned."

Miss Addams deals with our influence in international affairs. It is because we want our country to take the place and wield the influence in international affairs to which we believe her greatness entitles her, that so many of us wish to see her take adequate measures to develop her dormant national strength. A powerful and efficient navy is a powerful and efficient argument in the world's councils. Is there a country on the globe today with which our influence is strengthened because of our present military and naval weakness? Which wields the stronger influence in the world today, Japan or China?

No one knows which view is right in this controversy over national preparedness. If the advocates of preparedness are wrong and we as a nation make the mistake of following their advice we must pay for our folly by heavy, wasteful expenditures. If, on the other hand, the advocates of disarmament are wrong, and our country takes their advice, we will pay for our folly some day with a disastrous war, involving untold hardships and suffering, if not our national life. Why not play safe? L. D. ROWELL.

BRYAN AND BELGIUM.

Chicago, Dec. 2.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—In case of the neutralization of the Philippines, THE TRIBUNE pertinently asks Mr. Bryan what he would do in the event that some other power should violate the neutrality agreement. The answer is easy. What did he do when the neutrality of Belgium was violated? And, by the way, I follow THE TRIBUNE rather closely, but have not noticed that it was out of harmony with Bryan in the Belgium matter.

C. W. HUMMEL.

TRAIN THE BOYS.

Chicago, Dec. 2.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—We should train our boys for the military service while they are attending the public schools. In order to obtain this training why not detail a sergeant instructor from the line of the army to every public school which has a male attendance of a certain age and number, for the purpose of drilling these boys in the school of a soldier from the beginning to his position and duties in the company formation?

We all know that boys like to drill, and at the age when they are attending the public schools this instruction can be imparted where it will reach the greatest number and result in the greatest good at the least expense, and by the time the boys have gone through the public school the nation then will have a rising generation of military trained boys who have acquired the knowledge of military discipline and duties at a time when their minds were most disposed to learn.

A step further and we go into the high schools, where only a proportion of the graduates of the public schools enter. In a similar manner let us train these high school boys to become officers. By this method you will see that in a few years hence we shall then have produced a nation of well trained citizen soldiery at a minimum cost of production.

I have two boys attending the public school here in Chicago, and if these boys together with thousands of others, are not afforded an opportunity these days to acquire proper military training when will they? These boys will make better citizens with this training than without it. While I hope, even with this training, it will not become necessary for them ever to take up arms in the defense of their country, I should much prefer to have them prepared than not, should the emergency ever arise. Z. Y. X.

CAN'T READ BENNETT.

Massilon, O., Dec. 1.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I have about resolved never to read anything more written by your correspondent, J. O'Donnell Bennett. It has long been evident that Bennett is a thoroughly incompetent and unreliable witness. His ludicrous readiness to accept without question the statements and explanations of German officers, his blindness to the ethical aspects of the situations he discusses, his puerile and undemocratic susceptibility to the appeal of "the pomp and circumstance" of military imperialism, the unpatriotic objectivity of his judgments with reference to a power that has ruthlessly murdered American men, women, and children—all these characteristics are an offense to liberty loving, righteousness regarding, loyal Americans.

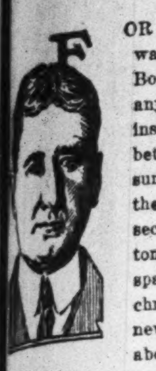
FOOTBALL

Mr. Herrick's article was written in New York on Nov. 28.

By Robert Herrick.



FOR the better part of two months football has crowded the war off the front page, at least in Boston newspapers. The Boston papers, I might add, seem grudging about the war any time; they push it into out of the way corners of an inside page, drown it in advertising matter, or squeeze it in between the last murder and the coming divorce. I presume that the newspapers in other parts of the country do the same thing, now that the war is getting on into its second winter; but one expected it to be different in Boston. Football—every sort of "sport"—has steadily gained space in the American newspapers. In Boston they even chronicle the games of innumerable fitting schools. If the newspaper is a fair exponent of what people are thinking about, Americans are thinking at this season a good third of the time about football.

Boston was given over this last week to the Harvard-Yale game. The hotels and clubs have been overflowing, and an air of willful jollity has pervaded the city. The game quite eclipsed the annual meeting of the National Academy and Institute of Arts and Letters. Our immortals were lost in the shuffle of football. Possibly they met in Boston during football week in order to assure themselves a better attendance from their members. If art and literature have become media for magazine advertising, why should not artists and men of letters become an appendix to football?

AT last the great day came, and half a hundred thousand people and more somehow got themselves out to Cambridge and over the peaceful Charles river, celebrated by our New England poets for other causes, to Soldiers' field and into the immense stadium before 2 o'clock. A great many of them went by motor; their cars were parked in every open field for a mile about the stadium. More than a million dollars was spent on the game, probably much more if we count the railroad fares, hotel bills, "celebrations"—alcohol and theater tickets. We are a rich people. The closely packed motor cars must have "represented" many more millions. The admission tickets alone cost over a hundred thousand dollars. Between the "halves" the ushers collected in tin sauce pans an offering for "European war sufferers," which amounted to $10,000, about 10 per cent of the cost of the tickets. Exactly the French tax "for the poor" on theater tickets.

And this was only one of the season's great games. Another is taking place today in New York between the Army and Navy teams, on which the expenditure will certainly be as large if not larger. We are surely a rich country, and there are a great many of us willing to pay liberally to be amused, excited, exhilarated, to live for a couple of hours in a vivid—if borrowed—emotion. In the spring it will be baseball. Yes, we are a rich people, and we are "crazy" over sport.

Inside the Harvard stadium the occasion was dressed with all the expected trappings, annual theme for reporters' pens. There were the tiers of human beings banked on two sides of the ellipse, the blue and the red colors, the bands, the animated "cheer leaders" with their megaphones and their acrobatic enthusiasm. There were the "squads," thirty odd, on either side of the gridiron, their sweaters conveniently ticketed with large numbers for the benefit of the spectators—I wonder if the ancient gladiators had that trick? The players were padded and swathed and armored in approved style. There were huge score boards, abundant "officials," college yells, songs, mascots, etc.—in a word, all the appurtenances of a "great game."

It was a mild fall day. The night before it had rained heavily, and the ground, in spite of the hay which had been spread to protect it, was so soggy that some fumbling might be expected. But the rain had providentially ceased, so that the 50,000 men and women were not to be disappointed. Many women in fur coats and lap robes assisted in this male celebration of football, and there were "old grads," boyish undergraduates, and the kind of florid citizen who attends any "sporting event." They put the yellow brown ball into play, and the narrow strip of turf between the steep sides of this new concrete coliseum became an animated kaleidoscope of legs, arms, bodies. Occasionally some one player squirmed himself loose from the mess, hugging to himself the ball, and rushed madly a few yards, only to be engulfed by a new formation of the kaleidoscope. Then the whistle blew shrilly, the mess assorted itself, and the operation was repeated. That is the way football looks to me. But from the packed sides of the huge amphitheater roars went up, punctuating the movements in the kaleidoscope beneath. It was a healthy enough human roar of delight. But occasionally as one side or the other made a dent there was a hoarser animal note of triumph in it, like the baby tiger's roar, reminding one of its fiercer prototype in the jungle. A little more and it would be the roar of Roman spectators in the old coliseum when the wild animals leaped onto the scene—the cry of predatory, blood lusting human beings. And as I looked down over the long, elliptic lines of faces—they were quiet now, waiting tensely for the next rush—I thought of all those ancient stadiums, coliseums, amphitheaters crumbling to dust in Sicily, Italy, Asia Minor, forever empty and abandoned. They, too, had once been filled with eager, excited, roaring throngs of men and women, feeding their emotions with "sport." Then the sport was wild animals and fighting gladiators; now football, less bloody, less blood tingling, too, probably.

IT was not a good game, at least so the young man at my side who plays football on his school team informed me. The Yale team was "outclassed." It could not stick, and was shoved again and again down the slippery gridiron in the wrong direction. There was no hope for it from the beginning, and as the quarters slipped by the roar from the benches was less hearty, less tingling with excitement. It takes a strong antagonist to bring out the full zest of sport, at least for the spectator. The crowd began to melt away at the edges before the last blast from the timekeeper's whistle blew. It seemed queer to me, an old Harvard man who remembered well the days when Yale scored all the victories—football, baseball, crew—to watch that score mounting up to forty-one points, the largest score Harvard has ever made over Yale. What did it prove? I asked myself as the last cheers died away, the last song was sung, and the stadium began to empty out over the little Charles just at twilight.

Next day many experts began to tell us what it meant: "Shevlinism" vs. "Haughtonism"—whatever they are—system and drill and organization against "individualism," etc. I don't know. These days we are so much impressed with the German method of organizing that we read a moral of that sort into anything. All I can see is that thirty odd young men who happened this year to be attending one large American university played football less well than thirty odd young men from another large American university situated about a hundred and fifty miles to the northeast. I remember that we used to generalize about these two institutions on the basis of their athletic accomplishments. We used to say that Yale had more "college spirit," enthusiasm, energy for life, etc., and Harvard had more refinement, intellectual interests, individualism, etc. Have they changed places in these matters since my day? I guess not. They are the same institutions for educating young Americans, more alike than different in their character. Football proves nothing, except possibly the superiority of one system of coaching and training over another for this year or this year and the next.

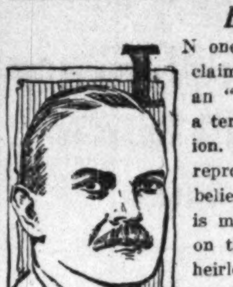
A YEAR ago England was playing football—professional football, for football is as professional in England as baseball is with us. There is no pretense of the teams "representing" anything except ability to play the game. England would not give up her great professional games of football, which were attended by 30,000 and 40,000 spectators, although her statesmen told her that the men in the gridiron and on the bleachers were needed in the trenches in Flanders. They kept up their football all that season. There is none this year. It took England a year to realize that in her great national crisis of self-defense football was no help, either to the spectators or to the nation. One wonders whether football and all her other sports have been any indirect benefit to the English nation. Englishmen are brave, but so are the Germans, who have no sports, and the French, who only recently have take to sport. Englishmen make good soldiers, but no better than Germans, Russians, Serbs.

Germany said before the war that England was so devoted to "sport" that she had degenerated, a seeming contradiction in terms! What the Germans meant was that a nation which devotes too much time, enthusiasm, and energy to its pastimes may lose something of the will to live, may become fundamentally soft. Not the players. But there are very few players compared with the tens of thousands of spectators who get a borrowed emotional satisfaction out of watching other people struggle before their eyes. Bleacher enthusiasm over sport implies neither personal strength nor personal hardihood, does not train in discipline and organization, does not even give bodily exercise. I leave the question of the moral worth of bleacher emotions to the psychologists. To me it looks very much like getting one's exercise by riding in a motor car or one's charity by reading in the newspapers about a rich man's benefactions.

America has become the greatest of sporting nations—on the bleachers. Does it mean that we could fight for our homes if we had to? I remember those moldering stadiums of bygone peoples who were once rich and loved "sport."

UNCHRISTIAN POLICY

By Edward Goldbeck.



IN one of his bellicose pacifist statements Mr. Bryan proclaims that President Wilson's policy of preparedness is an "unchristian policy." Probably he thinks that this is a terrible indictment, and many people may share his opinion. It is true that most Europeans would smile at such a reproach, but Americans may take it seriously, because the belief that life ought to be regulated by the rules of religion is more widely spread and more candidly held here than on the other side. It is a beautiful belief and the best heirloom left us by the Puritans. If religion does not permeate all our feelings and actions it is only an ornament for holidays, a jewel; but if it does it is a blood tonic, strengthening and refreshing us all the time. However, the foremost principle of spiritual life, may it express itself in religious faith or philosophical skepticism, is to be true toward one's self and not to indulge in hollow phrases there where sincerity is all important. If we say that we want American policy to be "Christian," if we quote the Bible to support a certain course of political action (as Roosevelt, Wilson, and Bryan are doing), then we ought to know what Christian policy means and what it commands or forbids us to do.

What can the foundations of Christian policy be? Mr. Bryan has not been explicit about this subject; he has only wondered in one of his recent enunciations "why the president should pass over the new gospel in which love is the chief corner stone and build his defense upon a passage in the old testament." To judge by this remark, which is up to now Mr. Bryan's only positive and palpable statement about his conception of a Christian policy, he seems to think that love should be the corner stone of American foreign and domestic policy. What are the characteristics of love? Love hopes, suffers, forgives, serves. These are beautiful qualities, and we all know how deeply the world is indebted to Christian love, but is it possible to recommend these virtues as a "leitmotif" to the government of a great nation? They are too passive, too Asiatic, to allow a statesman their integral and unqualified adoption. They do not make for growth and development; they do not stimulate initiative; they lack creative power. Imagine the leader of a nation who would only hope, suffer, forgive, and try to serve everybody indiscriminately, for of course brotherly Christian love can never be exclusive.

THE ruler of a state must not "hope," but calculate and foresee, as much as it is humanly possible; he must not "suffer," but try to fight physical, mental, and moral diseases; he must not "forgive," but reprove and punish the wrongdoers; he must not try to serve his fellow beings without restriction, but only his country. (Let "humanity" take care of itself, you worshipers of pale abstractions!) Measure your greatest men, Washington, Jefferson, Hamilton, even Lincoln's superhuman patience by Mr. Bryan's standard, and you will see that all these eminent citizens fall short of it. Not on account of their human weakness but because the standard itself is not fit to be applied to their work. That is perfectly natural, as Christ's realm was of the spirit only. He always refrained from political discussions, and when tempted by the Pharisees spoke the famous words, "Render to Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's, and to God the things that are God's!" These words have been admired by hyper-clever commentators as a model of ingenious evasiveness, but his attitude was the only one he could have taken, as nothing had any importance to him besides the education of the soul. The fact whether the state is governed tyrannically or liberally does not mean anything to him, whose only concern is the preparation for the state of God. "My kingdom," he says, "is not of this world." This explains why there never can be a Christian policy. The world is an illusion, the soul only is real, and Christ's advices are all given to the single human being, the temporary and responsible holder of this divine trust.

These advices can hardly be misunderstood. Christ preaches chastity, poverty, humility, nonresistance. All these virtues, if virtues they be, are incompatible with our idea of the state.

IT is true that Christ was present at the wedding feast of Cana and that he has sanctified marriage in the words: "What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder." But there is no doubt that he regarded chastity as the best condition for those who were to be his immediate followers and that he denied all family bonds. "Who is my mother?" he asked ruthlessly, "and who are my brethren?" And to his disciples he said: "If any man come to me and hate not his father and mother, yea, and his own life also, he cannot be my disciple." These words, if uttered today, would seem dangerous and revolutionary to any statesman, as we all regard family as the primordial cell of the national organism and as its most sacred and solid institution. But Christ wanted to strengthen the tie between mankind and God, even at the risk of loosening the ties of earthly affections. How could it be differently? If religion wants to detach us from this life, which with undue pessimism it calls a valley of tears, it cannot permit us to look with adoring eyes at the rainbow of love. No love, no family; no family, no state. But the theorists of government say that the inherent tendency and need of the state is to last, as no single generation can do its work alone.

The task which the state has to perform demands centuries, and the family only gives the guarantee of continuance. Moreover, the modern state needs masses for its development of a thousand different activities. The time is near when we shall refuse to a country like Denmark the title "state" simply because it does not correspond any longer to our idea of its power and mission, its duties, possibilities, and opportunities.

CHRIST'S second preaching was that of poverty. "Where your treasure is, there will your heart be also!" he declared. These words remind us of the dying Cardinal Mazarin, who threw a last glance of fondness and despair at his marvelous gallery of pictures and murmured: "I must leave all this!" Christ said: "Take therefore no thought for the morrow: for the morrow shall take thought for the things of itself." Imagine a statesman purposely acting on this principle! It is true that many of them are doing it from mental poverty and lack of foresight, but none up to now has dared to disguise a personal defect by this general rule.

Do you think I am taking Christ's words too literally? So, I think, they were meant to be taken. If we do not take them literally we shall soon be fooled by the will-o'-the-wisp of arbitrary interpretation. When the rich young man told the master, half boastingly, half wistfully, that he had done everything to gain salvation Jesus commanded him to sell all he owned and to renounce the world. It is not necessary to prove that a government cannot follow rules like this. You cannot make a man like St. Francis of Assisi secretary of commerce: it is the Turgot type we need. Every state tries to become rich and richer; it tries to ameliorate the conditions of our daily life and to cater to Jeremias Bentham's commonplace ideal of giving the greatest possible amount of happiness—i. e.: comfort—to as many people as possible. This tendency is not entirely materialistic; we simply know that the lily of idealism cannot grow out of the dirt of abject poverty and that there is a certain truth in the epigram, "Poverty is vice." There has never existed a community which did not strive for riches; even the religious orders which at first existed only by begging fell a prey to their own greed in the course of time. Wealth is the modern form of power, and the essence of the state is power.

Is it possible for a state to be humble? The Christian doctrine insists very strongly upon humility. Humility is closely connected with nonresistance. "Resist not evil; but whosoever shall smite thee on the right cheek, turn to him the other also. And if any man will sue thee at law and take away thy coat, let him have thy cloak also." It can only be repeated that these demands are inevitable consequences of the doctrine that life has no worth but as a preparation for the other, the real life; that the body is, to say the least, negligible, if not hateful, because it tempts us into sin.

The sacrifice of giving away coat and cloak is a trifle, if we are really convinced that personal property is not only valueless but hinders our evolution toward higher aims. And I can forgive any offense against my individuality, if this individuality is entirely merged into God and does not exist any longer as a separate unit. This alleged humility is the result of an immense pride, the pride of being one with the Lord and thereby exalted above all earthly wrong. But a state which would commit itself to the rules of humility and nonresistance would deny itself. The state expresses the individuality of a nation, and an individuality can only be developed in contrast to other individualities, by latent or open war. No development is possible for a human being or a nation without fighting, may the weapons be mental or material ones.

I cannot understand that men like Roosevelt, Wilson, and Bryan support or assail their respective policy by quotations from the scripture. There is nothing, absolutely nothing, which could not be proved by such a quotation, especially when it is interpreted, as it usually is, with a certain amount of casuistic ability. Pascal proved that long ago in his "Provinciales." And I suppose that Roosevelt and Wilson at least would admit in a tête-a-tête that the Bible is not infallible; that it is literature, not to be surpassed in power, wisdom, and sweetness, but literature, not revelation. So what is the use of recurring to the scripture, as if we could find in it a definite judgment and a satisfying answer to all our questions? Do they sincerely believe that? If yes, these prominent men are a little behind their time; if no, it would not seem a nice trait to use a venerable book which is sacred even to the nonbeliever for personal or party polemics.

THE state can only aim at self-preservation, self-development, and justice. In private life we may practice Christian virtues, and the more the better. Our natural instincts will prevent us from going too far. But a Christian policy has never existed and will never exist, because it is a contradiction in terms. Empty talk is noxious, and therefore I wanted to protest against this way of arguing with meaningless words. The greatest service a man could do this nation at the present time would be to teach people to despise phrasemongering. The issues at stake are so tremendously important that everybody ought to find out what he truly thinks, what he earnestly wants, and what his and his country's real interest is. Discussions like the Bryan-Wilson controversy about Christian policy are inane and misleading. They obscure the problem. This problem is not: Would Christ approve of preparedness? It is: Do you want the American nation to last, to grow, to develop?

Mirabeau said about Robespierre: "He will go far, because he believes all he says." So does silver tongued Mr. Bryan; like Robespierre, he is "l'ami de la vertu," a dangerous man in spite of his civic virtues, a lovable maniac.

BARES SYSTEM WHICH LED TO MISS CAVELL'S DEATH

By Philip H. Patchin.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—There was a chain and it had one weak link. There was an organization of trusted men and women, and somebody made a mistake or somebody told. And so Edith Cavell, the English nurse, died in the middle of a Belgian night.

She was a part of a system, the tale of which is a story of constant peril, dangerous work in the dark, secret meetings in secret places, stores of men, constantly watched by the eyes of spies, carrying with them the lives of scores of others. It is a story that has not been told before, but can be told now without harm.

The system was for the deliverance from Germany controlled Belgium of French and British soldiers who had been caught in the Germean net, but who had managed to escape the actual clutch of the captor, and of young Belgians, similarly situated, who wanted to get out of the country to England, and thence to France to join their king.

The system is comparable best to the underground railway of the United States in the ante-bellum days, when slaves were smuggled out of the south and passed from hand to hand until finally pushed over the Canadian border to freedom.

As a part of the system there are in use actual tunnels dug under the electrically charged wire entanglements set up by the Germans. The situation created, with the Prussians knowing what was secretly going on, but for months unable to stop it, was for the Belgians engaged like the days of the Terror of '93 in France.

While the evidence against Miss Cavell has not been published by the German authorities in Brussels, I am fortunate in being able to describe something of what has been going on in Belgium for the last year and to give a few details, which have come from Brussels since her execution, of the system of smuggling men out of the country which the Germans desire to stamp out and which is directly responsible for the death of Miss Cavell.

German legions swept into Belgium in August of 1914 with a suddenness that caught the Belgian government unprepared. The men of the nation were hurriedly called to the colors, and the gallantry of the Belgian army in stemming the tide of the oncoming Germans is well known.

But in many districts, so quickly engulfed by the Teuton flood, there were caught many able bodied Belgian men who could not get to their regiments. Again, as the Germans advanced, they overtook and surrounded many Belgian organizations. Thousands of prisoners were taken. These were transported to Germany.

But there were thousands of others, soldiers and civilians who should have been soldiers, who were caught within the German lines. The soldiers threw away their uniforms, dressed as peasants, and became nonmilitary citizens. The Germans went on and finally faced the French and the British.

The drive went into France. The Germans approached Paris, now holding large areas of France, as well as most of Belgium. British and French Battalions which had met the Germans as far from what had now become their front lines as the middle of Belgium, almost, were broken and scattered.

Hundreds of French and British soldiers were in the midst of the German army, some wounded, others unhurt, and uncaptured. The Germans were engaged in the victorious advance and had no time to search the country for stragglers. Shortly after, they were retreating, and had still less time to worry about the handful of men in their midst.

These luckless stragglers hid themselves away. They secreted in woods. The Belgian peasants furnished food and nursed the wounded. Time went on and the opposing armies settled down to a routine. Then the Germans scoured the country for British and French soldiers. They found a few. The khaki of the British and the blue uniform of the French soldiers disappeared.

Belgians managed to find civilian clothes for these soldiers in hiding. The British Tommies were kept hidden, for not knowing French, they were in the greater danger. The French soldiers, however, could readily masquerade as Belgian peasants, donning the simple dress of the countryside, and appearing stupid and speaking rough French when questioned by the German soldiery.

From this situation grew the "underground" system of travel, such as prevailed in ante-bellum days in America. Today in Belgium there is a great secret organization of communication, for the transport of men as well as of information. Its ramifications extend over the entire country. Mayors of towns and villages, municipal councilors, even Belgian priests, are suspected of taking part.

The main object, beginning a year ago, was to get out of the country the French and British soldiers who had been trapped, to nurse those who were wounded back to health, and to send out, also, Belgians of military age who were needed in the Belgian army.

For a time there was some smuggling of persons right through the German lines back of the British, French, and Belgian fronts. This was during the turmoil following the time when the Germans were forced back from Paris. This soon became impossible, and the Belgians were faced with the task of getting their men out across the Dutch border.

Here the Germans, after capturing Antwerp and obtaining thorough control of the country, established a line of sentries all along the border. The district in the north of Belgium along the frontier is called the Campine. It lends itself to smuggling. All along, on both sides, there are woods and thickets, swamps and canals. There were hidden passages through morasses, which local men knew but which were unknown to the Germans.

For the whole length of the Dutch frontier there was a German soldier every few yards, standing there with his rifle to prevent any one entering or leaving the country. This was not sufficient.

Sentries were rushed, killed or overpowered in the dark, and people kept constantly escaping from Belgium or entering that country. On one occasion last spring a German sentry was approached by a small group of Belgians arrayed like peasants. They engaged him in conversation.

Suddenly a Belgian flung a handful of pepper in the soldier's face. Another knocked him on the head and the whole group skipped across the border. There were many other instances of the kind. The sentries were doubled, but still escapes frequently occurred.

Then the Germans built a barbed-wire entaglement all along the line. The wires of the entanglement were electrified and more than one man was killed trying to make his way through. Frequently dead rabbits, electrocuted, have been found.

A belief that the talk the entanglement was electrified was German bluff was speedily dissipated when some one tried to get through and was killed. The border is about 125 miles long and now the entanglement extends the whole length.

Where they are roads there are two of these barriers with a building between, where all travelers are searched.

It is said that 1,500 French soldiers have been smuggled out of Belgium across the Dutch frontier. Once in Holland they are safe. They head for a British or French consulate, discuss matters with the consul behind closed doors for a few minutes, and shortly afterwards are bound for England and France, again to take up the rifle and enter the trench.

The number of British who have escaped probably runs into the hundreds, although there is no way of telling, for once across the border the fugitive never tells his experiences.

The Belgians who have slipped across the line from first to last must number thousands, aside from the ordinary run of refugees. Of these there were tens of thousands.

The hiding and transport of French and British soldiers was desperate work. The Germans were forever seeking them. The German secret service in Belgium is numberless. Every town, village, and hamlet has its informers. No one knows whom to trust.

The Belgians have learned never to talk about the war, never to express an opinion. There is no way of knowing when unfriendly ears are near, and life to those who are doing things their German masters think wrong is one long suspense.

The care of the wounded was even more difficult. It needed a large number of courageous, trusty men who, knowing that death would be the penalty, would nevertheless undertake the task. Money, too, was essential. The system simply grew up.

The leaders, feeling their way every inch, selecting assistants with greatest care, knowing that a weak link somewhere would mean disaster, went ahead. They worked slowly and quietly, picking men here and there whose integrity and discretion was beyond doubt. The final result was a pretty comprehensive organization which covered the whole country.

When from some ticket or hedge a British or French soldier made himself known to some passing peasant, a worker in the field, or a peddler with pack on his back the news was carried to the nearest commune.

Sometimes capture resulted if the information reached the wrong quarter. More frequently the result was that in the middle of the night the hiding soldier would be found and taken to some out of the way spot where he would be given food and given a chance to sleep.

Then would begin the journey across the country. Usually at night the fugitive would be taken from one place to another with guides who knew the bypaths and who could skirt German camps and outposts.

Right into Brussels were many of these soldiers taken and housed in the enemy's camp. This was most ticklish, for every other man in Brussels is said to be a German spy. The place is infested with them.

In Brussels there were evidently headquarters of some kind, places to which the refugees, now clad, of course, in civilian attire, might go.

A thrill went through the whole system a few months ago when certain British soldiers, with great daring, walked from their hiding places into the streets of Brussels to see the sights. They were lucky not to have been captured and by their foolhardiness to have caused an exposure.

From Brussels northward the system was the same. Getting across the border was one of the most difficult things of all. The barbed entanglement and the sentries formed an almost impassable barrier.

But there were ways. Along the border there were guides who, for pay, would undertake to guide a man through unknown and hidden passages to Holland and safety. It was risky work, and they earned their money.

It is rumored that in certain places long tunnels have been dug under the entanglement, starting many yards from the line in Belgium and ending well within Holland, both entrance and exit being well concealed from the sentries.

At another place, it is stated, there is a collapsible sort of bridge which can be laid over the entanglement. Another system is the use of a barrel-like affair which is pushed through the wire and through which fugitives crawl. It is possible that bribery and connivance of German frontier people may have proved helpful.

Apparently it was this system in which Miss Cavell was interested. Somewhere there was a weak link. Somebody told, or the German secret service found out something about the organization, and finally the scheme was disclosed.

Miss Cavell was not the only one involved; many other arrests were made, and the Germans hope that they have stamped out the system. Those who know Belgium and the Belgians who are still there, however, do not believe they have. Others will take the place of those who have been discovered.

There is not, however, much work to do now, as most of the British and French soldiers, as well as probably a majority of the Belgians of military age, have already gotten away.

'DEATH DUTIES' BRING BIG SUM FROM BRITONS

System of Taxes on Estates Causes Few Complaints by Owners of Property.

Realizing the general interest in the movement in the United States for a federal inheritance tax as a means of enlarging the national income and as a method of keeping swollen fortunes within bounds, "The Tribune" asked its London correspondent to present the facts as to the workings of the system in Great Britain. His letter follows:

BY PHILIP H. PATCHIN.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—For the fiscal year which ends next March the British government will derive the equivalent of $150,000,000 from the estates of those who have died during the preceding year and from those who are beneficiaries of wills and those who, in the absence of wills, are natural heirs.

The "estate duty," the "legacy duty," and the "succession duty," with certain other duties and taxes, are lumped together and commonly called "death duties," which will produce this great sum.

The revenue thus derived will pay nearly half of all the British national debt services, a trying expense in these days of great expenditures. It will pay for six full days of war, which might, in this great conflict of economics as well as of men, prove to be the winning six days in the end.

Not Equal to Income Tax.

The sum, which does not begin to equal the income tax returns, which are nearly four times as great, nor the excise or even the customs receipts, is greater than the cost of the American navy in 1914; it is 50 per cent more than the cost of the American army for that period.

Yet high as the British death duties are, and as remunerative to the government as they are, it is the opinion of the experts in this country that there is no tax which comes so near to meeting the two great ideals of taxation—efficiency and economy of collection and minimum of inconvenience and annoyance to the taxpayer. Britain is a land of taxation and taxes are on a dangerous upward trend on account of the war.

A cabinet minister warned the people the other day that they might yet have to sacrifice half their incomes. But in what grumbling over the burden there is it is noticeable that the death duties are not greatly criticized.

Few Complaints from Heirs.

There is a crude formula to illustrate why—the man who dies doesn't worry about the share the government will take from his estate, while the man who receives an inheritance is getting something more or less for nothing, and so he cannot complain.

"Few complaints come to us," said Mr. Alfred W. Soward, secretary of the estate duty office of the inland revenue office, in discussing a matter with the correspondent of THE TRIBUNE.

"Of course, the British people are accustomed to these death duties, which in one form and another go back to 1694, when the first was imposed; but, in spite of the fact that the duties have been advanced from time to time, there is no serious objection. I do not believe, however, that the duties will be increased, even in the face of great national expenditures on account of the war.

As producers of revenue the death taxes are admittedly most efficacious. Not only is the return to the government good but the cost of getting it is low, probably lower than any other revenue.

There is, however, an important effect sociologically, although how great it is is a matter of considerable dispute. England is a place of vast estates, great landed proprietors. There are three peers who own 2,000,000 acres between them, which is a vast amount of land in a small island like this.

The more valuable the estate a man leaves the greater is the share which the government takes upon his death. If a person leaves an estate valued at $2,500 the government takes 1 per cent. If it is valued at $5,000,000 or over the chancellor of the exchequer signs a receipt for 20 per cent of that value, or $1,000,000.

Big Estates Assessed High.

There is one case of a very wealthy man whose estate was taxed $12,500,000, to say nothing of the sums taken from those who inherited the property under the legacy and succession duties.

The enormous estates have been held to be dangerous to the wellbeing of the country by many statesmen, although those who have owned them naturally do not think so. The death duties have had a distinct tendency toward breaking up these estates, with the result that the small holders of land have increased.

By many this is considered advantageous, but those in favor of the preservation of the great estates, almost feudal in their nature, declare that the people who live on them as tenants are far happier and better off as tenants than as owners, and prefer to remain tenants than to acquire land for themselves. Partisans of this view hold that an enormous death duty will sooner or later result in breaking up the estates, destroying the leadership and protection of the great owners who look after the needs of their tenants, and thus ruin a large element of the British population.

Many Big Fortunes in Britain.

There is in England, as in America, another class, however, of wealthy people the curtailment of whose estates is almost unanimously considered a healthy thing. It is the merchant and "captain of industry" class. Enormous fortunes are accumulated by shrewd men, not so great, perhaps, as some of the greatest American fortunes, but averaging very high.

There are scores of millionaires in this country, probably more than in America, while the multi-millionaire class is, doubtless, less in number. These men grow rich by their own endeavors. They leave their money to their sons. These have never known work or responsibility, to themsives or to the public.

The curtailment of their fortunes through the imposition of great death duties is considered a splendid thing, calculated to prevent undue accumulations and to steadying a class that might otherwise become a menace to the general wellbeing.

The "estate duty" is a simple thing. If a man's estate is over $500 and less than $2,500 it pays a tax of 1 per cent. If less than $5,000 2 per cent, and so on up to an estate of $5,000,000, when the tax is 20 per cent.

The "legacy duty" is a tax paid by the man who inherits money or property. He pays it on the value of all personalty received by will or intestacy.

The "succession duty" is on all real property, and on personal property passing by settlement, such as a marriage settlement. The rates of legacy and succession duties are the same. The husband or wife, as the case may be, or the sons and daughters, or the ancestors, in other words lineal relatives, pay a tax of 1 per cent. Brothers and sisters of their descendants pay 5 per cent. All others—relatives or otherwise—pay 10 per cent. The duty is graded according to the natural rights of inheritance.

At the outset of the war, when it was seen that enormous numbers of men of property would lose their lives, a law was passed exempting from estate duty the estate of soldiers under certain conditions and limitations.

Property Values Shrunk in War.

The government, therefore, is not obtaining a vast increase in revenue from this source, and the shrinkage in values of property, owing to the war, offsets what gain there is to a very considerable degree. But on account of the war there is a distinct increase in estate duties on another account. It is the death of old people.

At the beginning of the present fiscal year the inland revenue commissioners estimated the death duties would be £27,500,000. Since then the estimate has been raised to £30,000,000, or by $12,500,000, largely owing to the premature death of elderly people.

BOLLINGER BABY MAY NOT HAVE BEEN MENTALLY UNFIT

Dr. John Dill Robertson, Chicago Health Chief, Writes Impressions to Medical Journal.

New York, Dec. 4.—[Special.]—It is now asserted that Chicago's defective baby was not necessarily a mental defective. Dr. John Dill Robertson, Chicago's health commissioner, has written to the Journal of the American Medical association a letter which appeared in today's issue in which he says:

"When I visited the German-American hospital eight hours before this baby died and made an examination of it and viewed the Roentgen ray pictures, I was startled to observe that this was not the defective baby that I had expected to see. At that time the baby was dying as the result of intestinal obstruction.

"There was nothing to indicate that this child would have been mentally defective except that which would come from absence of the sense of hearing on the right side."

Saloonkeeper Arrested on Charge of Getting Gambling Information Over Wire.

What is said to be the first arrest in years for a violation of the city ordinance concerning tickers used for the sending out of gambling information, was made yesterday when Thomas P. Wells, a saloonkeeper at 106 South Wabash avenue, was arrested on a charge of having such a ticker in his place.

LETTERS TO URGE DEFENSE PLANS ON WASHINGTON

Navy League Will Bombard Congress with Appeals Tomorrow.

If the plans of the Chicago section of the Navy league are carried out, several thousand letters will be sent to Illinois congressmen tomorrow—National Defense day. The letters will let the congressmen know the senders are "for preparedness."

"We hope that all patriotic citizens will demonstrate in this way that they are for preparedness," said George Lamberton of the Navy league. "We have not prepared a form letter. Any communication which is sent out will contain the sentiments of the writer alone, and will be sent because he is willing to take the time and make the effort to do it."

Points Urged by League.

Cards have been out from the Navy league headquarters suggesting the following program for tomorrow:

Write your congressman for an adequate navy.

Display in your home and office the stars and stripes.

Secure at least one new member for the Navy league.

There were numerous requests for the names and addresses of congressmen, following the mailing of the cards.

No big public meetings will be held in Chicago on National Defense day. There will be a number of smaller ones, however.

Find Members Enthusiastic.

"We find some of the branches of the league becoming so enthusiastic," said Emil C. Wetten of the Security league, "that they are not content alone with preaching the gospel of preparedness. They want to get out and drill."

The Hawkeye club observed National Defense day yesterday with a luncheon in the Auditorium hotel. Col. George T. Buckingham, president of the National Security league of Chicago, spoke. Guy Guernsey, president of the club, presided. There was a meeting of the woman's section of the league in the afternoon in the Hotel La Salle.

At a meeting at the Hotel La Salle of the committee on national defense, appointed by Mayor Thompson, plans for the work of the committee were outlined.

Mayor's Committee Wants Views.

Every member of congress from Illinois will be asked to make a statement regarding his views on national defense by the national defense committee appointed by Mayor Thompson.

The resolutions will be sent to the senate and the house with a memorial prepared by Edward E. Gore, calling upon congress to take proper measures for national defense. The following are the chief points in the resolutions:

The committee believes that since the compelling need of the United States is a strong navy and an adequate army, expenditures for river and harbor improvements, except for such projects as are now well under way, should for the present be discontinued.

It favors the enactment of such legislation as shall with the least possible delay result in the acquisition of adequate means of defense on land and sea.

Congressman Britten suggested that the ocnstituents of Congressman Buchanan be informed that he is publicly on record against an adequate defense.

WOMEN FOLK, ATTENTION! READ ABOUT SPRING STYLES.

"Short, Full, and Youthful" Will Be Fashion in All Garments—Sure Get a Sport Coat.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 4.—"Short, full, and youthful" will be the spring fashion for women's wear as a result of the decision of the style committee of the National Cloak and Skirt Manufacturers' association made public at its closing session here today.

Skirts will be short and full and coats will be shorter. Because of a lack of materials and dyestuffs, due to the war, which has stopped importations from abroad, colors and textures will be less varied, but the designer will make up for this with a wide range in cut and trimming.

Tucks and frills will emphasize the skirt fullness. Ripple effects will be good. Checks and stripes in all materials will be favorites, while dark, plain colors trimmed with vivid shades will be fashionable.

Pockets on skirts and cuffs on sleeves of bold design in prominent color contrasts will be a feature. Garments for middle aged women will be almost as jaunty as those for college girls.

Belted effects and deep yokes in separate coats will emphasize this tendency and no wardrobe will be complete without a sports coat.

The new styles were shown by living models before the delegates this afternoon and were accompanied by many "ohs" and "ahs" as the new creations were shown.

INFLAMED SKIN SOON SOOTHED BY POSLAM

If you are not familiar with the rapid action of Poslam in the treatment of skin troubles, you will be astonished to see how readily it takes hold and accomplishes its work.

Eczema, Acne, Tetter, Psoriasis, Skin-Scale, Salt Rheum, Barbers' and all forms of itch are especially responsive to its remedial virtues. Slight troubles such as Pimples, Red Noses, Rashes, Complexion Blemishes, etc., respond so readily that over-night treatment is oftentimes sufficient.

And as to the soap you use—if ordinary soaps irritate, try Poslam Soap, medicated with Poslam.

Millionaire Father Sends Two Men Here to Look for Son Who Disappeared in November.

Judge Granville Hogan and William S. Offer of St. Louis, Mo., arrived in Chicago last evening to conduct a search for B. A. Becker, wealthy St. Louis broker, who disappeared in front of the Great Northern hotel on Nov. 22. Becker, who is said to have been heavily in debt, made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors before leaving St. Louis.

"He said he would return to St. Louis as soon as he obtained a membership card in the Chicago board of trade," said Mr. Offer. "He has not been seen since. His father and his wife are almost prostrated."

"Mr. Becker Sr. is a millionaire retired capitalist of St. Louis," said Judge Hogan. "He is willing to pay all his son's debts if the young man will only return. If any one has seen him recently, I wish they would communicate with me at the Hotel La Salle."

TAKEN ON NEVADA CHARGE.

Cashier Accused of Embezzling $2,000 in Elko Arrested Here on Letter Clew.

Max Gussaroff of Elko, Nev., was arrested yesterday and held for the Elko authorities on a charge of embezzling $2,000 from a wholesale liquor dealer by whom he was employed as cashier. He was traced by a letter to his wife.

Re-elected Head of Eagles.

Walter J. Powers has been reëlected president of Chicago Aerie No. 19, F. O. E. Other officers chosen, after the initiation of a number of candidates, include: P. G. Wheeler, worthy vice president; Fred Leisen, worthy chaplain; W. J. O'Mara, secretary; Max P. Godenrath, treasurer; B. J. WOMAN'S SPIRIT LEAVES TO JOIN HER 'MAJOR JOE'

Mrs. Elizabeth Read Horr Could Not Live Long Without Civil War Sweetheart.

The sun's silver rays threw a halo round the all white head that lay on the snowy pillow of Mrs. Elizabeth Read Horr's bed, in the room at 4601 Beacon street a soft faced nurse bent over the sheets, and kneeling at the bedside was Miss Irene Horr with, dry eyed, muscle stretched countenance.

The face of her mother was thin, and pallid, and calm, and she was sleeping, seemingly.

"I knew I wouldn't long outlast Major Joe," said Mrs. Horr suddenly, weakly. "He went only eleven months ago, and I knew I wouldn't long outlast Major Joe."

Fought with Sherman.

"I wasn't calling him Major Joe when the war began, was I, dear? But then, you weren't born. Well, I wasn't calling him Major Joe. He became a private when he joined Sherman's army.

"And my Uncle Tom wrote him a letter—Uncle Tom's been dead these many years. But I guess you've heard of him from others besides me, though—Thomas Buchanan Read, my mother's brother—good old Uncle Tom.

"He wrote a letter to Joe, praising him for going to war. And then Joe became a noncommissioned officer and he went up higher, and so I called him Corporal Joe and Sergeant Joe, and so on.

Wrote Famous Poem.

"Then Uncle Tom wrote the poem—you know it, dear: 'Sheridan's Ride.' It made him famous all over the country. But it made me nervous where it showed war was terrible, but I knew I ought to be courageous, so I sort of leaned over backwards, and I wrote a letter to my Joe telling him I was sure he would take every risk.

"Then he came home a major, and we lived in Dubuque, Ia.—Major Joe and I—forty-five years and more. And then we moved here. And last December—yes, that's when he died. And I knew I shouldn't long outlast him."

The weary eyes shut for a few seconds. Then they opened, and she said:

"'The terrible rumble, grumble, and roar,
Telling the battle was on once more.'

"But Major Joe is farther than twenty miles away, isn't he, dear? But I'm going to see him."

It was at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon that she died.

NEW BUILDING FOR LOOP.

Sixteen Story Structure, Costing $500,000, to Be Erected at State and Randolph.

A sixteen story store and office building to cost approximately $500,000 is to be erected on the present site of the old Bay State building at the southwest corner of State and Randolph streets. The ground is the property of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, to which it was given by Francis Bartlett of Beverly, Mass. Plans for the building have been prepared by Mundie & Jensen, but it is not known definitely when work will be started.

THORNS IN THE ORANGE BLOSSOMS.

The vow that binds too strictly snaps itself.—Tennyson.

And thus with Mrs. Mae Stott Johnston. She was married to Dr. Charles H. Johnston, 1752 North Kedzie avenue, until yesterday, when the doctor bore some of her literature off to court. And the tenor of her plea was this:

". . . do not think this is sudden. I think we made a mistake in marrying. I am obliged to go to another man for everything I need or want, and he is looking after me. . . . I will help you in getting a divorce so we can be free.

"I long for a warm affection that you do not even understand. . . . I want lots of affection all the time. . . . With you it is only kindness. . . . "

Mrs. Johnston, her husband testified, is in Boone, Ia., with another man. He got the decree.

It is vain to look for a defense against lightning.—Publius Syrus.

Isadore Hirschberg's wife telegraphed him not to come home on Saturday, so he came home on Saturday. He is a traveling salesman and he thought the message sounded a little funny.

When he got home—so he told the judge in his plea for divorce—he found a note on the door that Mrs. Hirschberg was out. How well he knew it!

He organized a personal search and found his wife in a café with another man. He accused her and she admitted it, so he told the court, because she couldn't stand the lonesomeness.

The Hirschbergs' maid testified that her mistress often entertained her men friends when her husband was away on the road.

With man, most of his misfortunes are occasioned by man.—Pliny.

Erick Schrader, 423 Belmont avenue, came home, so he told the judge, to find another man. Immediately thereafter his wife, Mrs. Charlotte Schrader, moved out with all the furniture.

"I am an automobile racer and mechanician and racing driver," said Schrader, "and I had just returned from an event at Lake Forest. There was another man in the house."

Browne Douglas, an aviator, testified that Mrs. Schrader had represented herself as a single woman.

I do not love thee, Sabidius, nor can I say why; this only I can say: I do not love thee.—Martial.

It used to be—said Fred L. Proctor to the judge—the usual thing for Mrs. Proctor to say:

"I hope you come home with your legs broken, so that I can sit on the bed and tantalize you."

This did not serve to adorn Mr. Proctor's mental attitude with the suavity and calm that so well befits a husband. He said he didn't know what moment he might double up with arsenic cramps or get a welt over the head from behind.

"She used to read in the papers about women murdering their husbands," he said, "and she'd say she'd do the same thing and go free."

He got a decree.

Themistocles said to Antiphales, "Time, young man, has taught us both a lesson."

When Mrs. Bertie M. Strubel married Fred Strubel in New Jersey in 1908 she was 17 years old. Some time ago, Strubel told the court, she left him. Strubel is a professional singer.

"She was jealous," he said, "and when she wanted carfare I gave it to her and she went. I guess we are both wiser now."

Egbert Van Alstyne, a song writer, testified in behalf of Strubel and the decree was awarded.

To sing the same tune is cloying; but men are generally pleased with variety.—Plutarch.

So thought Ottis M. Benedict, according to his wife, who produced some letters and photographs in court yesterday.

"I took the photographs from his pockets in 1912 and asked him who it was," said Mrs. Benedict, "but he just grinned. I asked him if it was the girl in the office and he just grinned some more."

A card with the address of the "Eleanor Club Six, 2155 Pierce avenue—Humboldt 1907," also was offered in evidence. Mrs. Benedict said he finally left her and said it was no use to live together, for they were not chummy. And besides he was not faithful.

She got $1,000 alimony.

Marry, or not: whichever you do, you will repent it.—Socrates.

Christopher Mathiesen is a city fireman and lives at 5450 Kimbark avenue. He introduced Glen Shepard, a "man about town," to his wife.

Shepard, according to Attorney Chilton P. Wilson, is single and lives at 5464 Harper avenue and has plenty of money.

Mathiesen, also according to the lawyer, being a city fireman, is away from home a great deal. He has sued Shepard for $10,000.

The charge is alienation of affection.

Bert Broderick, 60 West Chestnut street, was told by his wife to "get out," according to his testimony before Judge Kersten.

"She said she wanted to be free again," he testified.

He was granted a decree.

Mrs. Anna Race Froenecke denied yesterday, in an answer, that she has been annoying her former husband, August Froenecke. Froenecke is a policeman and he asked that his former wife be enjoined from proposing remarriage at every hour of the day.

WILSON TO MEET DELEGATES TO SUFFRAGE CONVENTION.

President Will Receive Women on Dec. 14--Has Arranged Audience for Opponents Same Day.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—President Wilson today consented to receive 500 delegates to the convention here of the National American Woman Suffrage association, Dec. 14. He already had arranged to see a large delegation from the Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage next Monday, and a committee from the National Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage, Dec. 14.

Girl Cashier Swindled.

Miss Eleanor Kenny, employed in the office of the Singer Sewing Machine company, 4506 Broadway, was swindled out of $10 yesterday by two men, who confused her in making change for a small purchase.

SUNDAY TO PASS CHICAGO UP TILL SEPTEMBER, 1917

Evangelist Will Go to New York First to Attack Sin Where It Lives.

"Billy" Sunday, the evangelist, is not coming to Chicago Dec. 31, 1916. He is going to New York instead.

This doesn't mean he is going to pass Chicago by entirely, but simply that he will postpone the starting of his campaign here until Sept. 24, 1917.

Mrs. Sunday, the wife of the evangelist came to Chicago yesterday and conferred with the Chicago committee at the Hotel La Salle. She requested the postponement in the name of New York and of Mr. Sunday.

New York politics and Chicago weather were two items which figured in the count.

New York Has Site.

"Chicago has such beautiful fall weather," Mrs. Sunday urged. "It would seem to be a better time to come than in January. Then, too, the political situation in New York is more favorable now than it might be after another election. New York has its site for the big tabernacle all ready and Chicago is still debating. The ministers and churches of New York are united in asking for the early campaign."

After listening to Mrs. Sunday the committee passed a resolution in harmony with her request. The resolution must be presented to the committee of 100 before its final passage, but no doubt was expressed as to its acceptance.

To Meet Dec. 13.

Those who conferred with Mrs. Sunday were the Rev. James E. Walker, chairman; the Rev. Charles Bayard Mitchell, the Rev. J. S. Ladd Thomas, the Rev. S. G. Kindred, Bishop Samuel Fallows, the Rev. William C. Covert, the Rev. Charles F. Wishart, the Rev. M. P. Boynton, the Rev. S. J. Skevington, the Rev. William E. Barton, J. A. Hiller, A. M. Johnstone, George W. Dixon, William A. Peterson. A meeting of the committee of one hundred to ratify the action of the executive committee will be held Dec. 13.

Baby Smothers in Crib.

Joseph Berg, 7 months old, 5417 Lakewood avenue, rolled over on his face and smothered while asleep in a crib yesterday.

FORMER MRS. GOURAUD FILES ANSWER IN DIVORCE ACTION.

Russian Princess Accuses Husband of Being Infatuated with 15 Year Old Girl.

New York, Dec. 4.—Mrs. Aimee Crocker-Ashe-Gillig-Gouraud, the Princess Miskinoff, today urged the Supreme court to separate her from her fourth husband, Prince Miskinoff, a Russian prince.

The former Mrs. Jackson Gouraud, society woman and "first nighter" on the Rialto, filed a counter suit in reply to the prince's suit for divorce. She alleges the Russian has become infatuated with a 15 year old girl.

Prince Miskinoff, at the Holland hotel, tonight said it was because the princess had "an intense desire for a fantastic life, cafés, restaurants, and places of amusement." Furthermore, he contends, he desires custody of a baby girl, born April 11, 1915, which the princess in her suit does not mention. In refutation, she asserts there is no issue to their marriage, which took place June 11, 1914. They have been separated since July 1 last.

Mail Clerk Held for Theft.

Nicholas H. Taber, for thirteen years a clerk in the Canal street station of the postoffice, yesterday was arrested charged with stealing $9.50 from three letters. Postoffice Inspectors Otto and Jackson made the complaint. Taber waived examination before United States Commissioner Mark A. Foote, who held him for trial. He was locked up in the county jail in default of $2,500 bonds.

OUCH! LUMBAGO! RUB PAINS FROM SORE, LAME BACK

Rub Backache away with small trial bottle of old "St. Jacob's Oil."

Back hurt you? Can't straighten up without feeling sudden pains, sharp aches and twinges? Now listen! That's lumbago, sciatica or maybe from a strain, and you'll get relief the moment you rub your back with soothing, penetrating "St. Jacob's Oil." Nothing else takes out soreness, lameness and stiffness so quickly. You imply rub it on your back and out comes the pain. It is harmless and doesn't burn the skin.

Limber up! Don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle of old, honest "St. Jacob's Oil" from any drug store, and after using it just once, you'll forget that you ever had backache, lumbago or sciatica, because your back will never hurt or cause any more misery. It never disappoints and has been recommended for 60 years.—Advertisement

"Through hub-deep mud—where no rear-wheel-drive truck could possibly travel"—
Bell-Bockel Co., Quad Owners and Contractors at Altoona, Pa.

The Thomas B Jeffery Company
Jeffery
Kenosha, Wis. U.S.A.

December Is Quad Month

Jeffery dealers select a month when road conditions are exceptionally bad to demonstrate the amazing ability of the Jeffery Quad—the truck that drives, brakes and steers on all four wheels.

CELEBRATING the world-wide acceptance of the Jeffery Quad as the ultimate type of motor truck, Jeffery dealers this month are giving a series of remarkable demonstrations. Their purpose is to drive home more forcibly than ever before, the fact that this truck does everything the standard rear-wheel-drive type of truck can do, and then goes on doing things no other truck in the world can do. They have chosen the month of December, because heavy snow-falls, thaws and rains make the roads particularly bad at this time—and because it is under the most difficult conditions that the Quad most clearly demonstrates its superior ability. If you're not already thoroughly posted on the Jeffery Quad, see your dealer, or write the Jeffery Company for complete information.

World-Recognition

Originally designed and built by the Jeffery Company to replace the four-mule team in the United States Army, the Quad during the past year, by sheer merit of its performance, has met with tremendous success in commercial service in practically every part of the world. In this period, more than 2,000 Quads have been bought, built and sent into service from the Jeffery factory—a record never before equaled for trucks of similar capacity. Today the Jeffery Quad is known and recognized the world over as a super-truck.

The Only Truck of Its Kind in Existence

—the only truck which drives, brakes and steers on all four wheels. M. & S. Automatic Locking Differentials put the power of the motor into any wheel or wheels that can get traction when the others cannot. Internal spur gears, driving directly on the inner circumference of each wheel, give a tremendous leverage. Consequently, the Quad plows through mud, sand, gravel and snow, and negotiates grades which are impassable to other trucks.

Moreover, the Quad is exceedingly economical to maintain and operate. The big saving in tires is particularly notable.

What the Jeffery Quad Does

Pulls with all four wheels.
Brakes on all four wheels and drive shaft.
Steers on all four wheels.
Carries two tons on its back.
Goes through mud or snow up to its hubs.
Climbs difficult grades.
Travels through water 24 inches deep.
Turns within 18 feet.
Economizes tires.

These Men Have Seen the Light

Following is a partial list of concerns in this country which have bought the Quad and proved its superior ability in practical daily service. We have room for only a few of the many names. Notice the widely varying lines of business.

The United States Government; Standard Oil Company; Armour & Company; Du Pont Powder Company; Morris & Company; American High Explosive Co.; Copper Queen Consolidated Mining Company; Bissell Carpet Sweeper Co.; Pople Transfer & Storage Co.; Val Verde Irrigation Co.; Mogollon Stage & Express Line; Tom Reed Gold Mining Co.; Milwaukee General Construction Co.; Merrell-Soule Co. (Wholesale Milk); City of Whitewater, Wis. Fire Dept.; Marshall Oil Co.; Hart & Page (Road Builders and Quarrymen); Highland Brewing Co.; Burton Powder Co.; Wisconsin Veterans Home; Brook Hill Farm, Waukesha, Wis. (Dairying); General Asphalt Co. of Philadelphia (Contractors and Road Builders); City of Winston-Salem, N. C. (Road Building); Bethlehem Steel Co. and scores of other well-known concerns, which bought only after the most searching investigations.

Now Comes YOUR Transportation Problem

If you have not already seen the Jeffery Quad perform, you will surely want to witness one of the demonstrations conducted this month. Get in touch with the Jeffery dealer in your locality at once, or, if you do not know him, write the Jeffery factory, stating the nature of your haulage problem and we will gladly send you complete information in addition to putting you in touch with our nearest dealer. Find out now how the Quad will make money for you in your particular business.

Read What Users Say About the Quad:

Lack of space limits us to quotations from only a few of the many letters in our files showing how the Quad is out-performing other types of trucks.

ELECTRIC POWER—Before making the purchase of our Jeffery Quad, we looked into all the standard makes. We are satisfied that our decision was correct and that the four-wheel-drive, brake and steer truck is the only one which can be used with entire satisfaction through slippery and muddy roads.—Mississippi River Power Co., Keokuk, Ia.

LUMBER—We are hauling regularly two tons on our Jeffery Quad and have no trouble at all, even at the present time when the snow is 8 or 10 inches deep. We have reached the conclusion that there is no truck like the Jeffery Quad, and we think we have the worst proposition in the country for a truck to overcome.—St. Croix Lumber & Mfg. Co., Winton, Minn. [Hines Lumber Co.]

MINING—The Quad will carry its rated capacity where the P . . . . truck will not go at all; whereas, the P . . . . truck, with a rated capacity of 5 tons, cannot carry over two tons up the hills at our mines. The Jeffery machine makes faster time than the P . . . . car and will operate in deep snow at times when the P . . . . machine cannot be used at all.—Portland Gold Mining Co., Victor, Col.

ROAD BUILDING—We have had the Quad running continuously over rough roads, steep hills and in the mud. This truck has stood the test where several other trucks working in the same conditions were unable to do the work.—Lee Moor Contracting Co., Neenach, Cal.

GENERAL HAULING—These two Quads are each doing the service of ten mules.—G. Bedell Moore Estate, San Antonio, Texas.

GREAT LAKES FREIGHTING—Our Jeffery Quad has caused our business to be increased by one-third.—Hill Steamboat Line, Waukegan, Ill.

EXPRESS & TRUCKING—The Quad was able to make its regular trips through the mud when the road was impassable to the 14 and 18 horse teams for 7 and 8 days. The Quad has run to date 6,286 miles and the only replacements made have been a fan spider and a fan belt.—Jay S. Jones, Winnemucca, Nev.

ICE—We have used our Jeffery Quad going on two years and find it perfectly satisfactory in every respect. A rear-drive truck would have been of no use to us, as we are off pavement 2½ blocks and in the gumbo right on the banks of the Missouri River, and for ten weeks this past season we were constantly in the mud. The Jeffery Company are fine people to do business with.—Sioux City Artificial Ice Co., Sioux City, Iowa.

STANDARD OIL—Our first month's output with the Quad was a little over 27,000 gallons. The second month it was nearly 31,000 gallons. We make all our country trips with the Quad, from 20 to 50 miles out and back, over all kinds of roads, over stubble fields to threshing outfits, and have also gone over newly plowed ground to reach a tractor plowing outfit.—F. L. Williams, Standard Oil Agent, Kenosha, Wis.

OTHER OIL DEALERS—We have a . . . . truck about the same capacity as the Jeffery Quad. It is all right in good roads, but it would have been an impossibility for this . . . . truck to do what the Quad does, apparently with the greatest ease.—Richardson Lubricating Co., Quincy, Ill.

A charming girl, a village beauty, for five long years earns her living in a great city and despite its vast loneliness holds fast to the conventions. At last she meets the man of her dreams and marries him, only to find in the heydey of her happiness that he is a criminal. Shall she give way to despair or rise to fight for his rehabilitation?

Heart of the Sunset

By REX BEACH

Author of "The Spoilers," "The Net," "The Ne'er-do-Well," etc.

Illustrated. $1.35

HEART OF THE SUNSET
REX BEACH

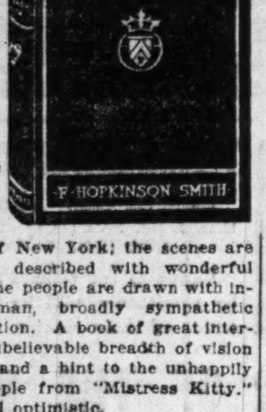
Rex Beach's foot is on his native heath again in his new novel of the Mexican border. Real incidents of before and after the landing at Vera Cruz are transmuted into colorful romance, intermingled with genuine humor and much that is thrilling. The hero is a Texan that the Mexicans hesitate to stir up in spite of their disrespect for everything American.

Felix O'Day

By F. HOPKINSON SMITH

Author of "Kennedy Square," "Colonel Carter of Cartersville," "Caleb West," etc

Illustrated. $1.35



A novel of New York; the scenes are real places, described with wonderful color, and the people are drawn with intensely human, broadly sympathetic characterization. A book of great interest, with unbelievable breadth of vision in the hero and a hint to the unhappily married people from "Mistress Kitty." Friendly and optimistic.

Then I'll Come Back to You

By LARRY EVANS

Author of "Once to Every Man."

Illustrated. $1.35

THEN I'LL COME BACK TO YOU
"ONCE TO EVERY MAN"

Full of gentility, refinement and charm. You will hear the rip and roar of mountain streams and foaming rapids, and know the joy of wild, oozing marshlands under crunching boots. You will get in touch with the crude, rough life of the Big Woods with its sawmills and big-fisted men, and beneath its sometimes ugly surface you will find refinements and comedies of life even as it is lived in the city, only cleansed and sweetened by the freshness and farness of the Big Woods

Mr. Bingle

By GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEON

Author of "The Hollow of Her Hand," "Mary Midthorne," "Brewster's Millions," "Graustark," etc.

Mr. Bingle
George Barr McCutcheon

Illustrated. $1.35.

Mr. Bingle, a poor, childless clerk, is elevated to an important position in the world as a man of great wealth. He takes his love of children with him—also children of whom in time he accumulates a dozen. What happens afterward it would be unfair to tell. You will laugh at and with Mr. Bingle and you will cry over him

Thirty

By HOWARD VINCENT O'BRIEN

Author of "New Men for Old."

Illustrated. $1.35

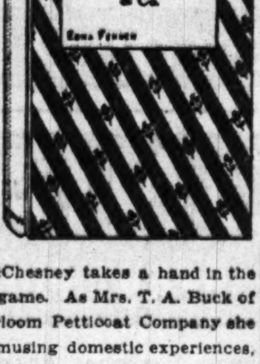
How Brent Good comes into the life of a wealthy girl, the surprising results, the strange love story, are incidents of this novel containing real people, not characters of fiction. He walked into her life one morning, a big, odd figure, half mirth-provoking, half impressive—and she could not forget him.

Emma McChesney & Co.

By EDNA FERBER

Author of "Roast Beef, Medium," "Buttered Side Down," "Dawn O'Hara," etc.

Illustrated. $1.00



Emma McChesney takes a hand in the matrimony game. As Mrs. T. A. Buck of the Featherloom Petticoat Company she has some amusing domestic experiences, and as dictator of women's fashions she keeps things humming in the business world in her characteristic way. Rich in human philosophy.

Contrary Mary

By TEMPLE BAILEY

Author of "Glory of Youth."

Illustrated. $1.25

CONTRARY MARY
TEMPLE BAILEY

A new old-fashioned love story of a strong and loyal woman and an unspoiled man. Mary Ballard will not take the path of ease that her rich family and lover offer her, and her passion for independence wins for her the name "Contrary." When the real lover comes Mary is ready, and with him goes forth to meet the world.

Rose o' Paradise

By GRACE MILLER WHITE

Author of "Tess of the Storm Country," "From the Valley of the Missing," etc.

Illustrated. $1.35

ROSE O' PARADISE

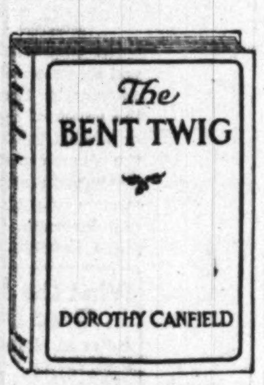
A story of the "squatters" or "short-wood-gatherers" living near Lake Cayuga. They are a treacherous, dishonest people, who beat their women and punish their young; hated and feared by the people of civilization with whom they rub elbows. A story of strong men and women with a trickle of civilization seeping down to the vitals of their lives and changing the whole scheme of things for them.

The Bent Twig

By DOROTHY CANFIELD

Author of "The Squirrel Cage," "Hillsboro People," etc.

$1.35



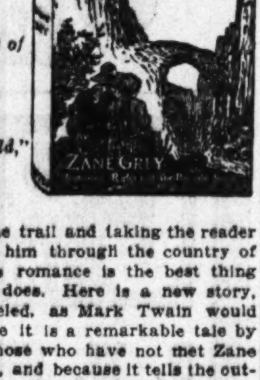
The "Twig" is Sylvia Marshall, a lovely typical American girl, bent by the customs, traditions, ideals of her western home and by the integrity of her mother's character. The story is of the influence on Sylvia of her mother's personality, of her girlhood environment and of her personal beauty and charm.

The Rainbow Trail

By ZANE GREY

Author of "The Light of Western Stars," "The Lone Star Ranger," "Desert Gold," etc.

Illustrated. $1.35



Hitting the trail and taking the reader along with him through the country of adventurous romance is the best thing Zane Grey does. Here is a new story, double-barreled, as Mark Twain would say, because it is a remarkable tale by itself for those who have not met Zane Grey before, and because it tells the outcome of some of the stirring incidents in "Riders of the Purple Sage," which book is familiar to most of his readers.

The Prairie Wife

By ARTHUR STRINGER

Author of "The Hand of Peril," "The Shadow," etc.

Illustrated. $1.25

THE PRAIRIE WIFE
ARTHUR STRINGER

A young woman of rare delicacy and charm, reared in sheltered surroundings, falls in love with and impulsively marries a stalwart young fellow rebuilding his fortunes in the Northwest. How they saw it through together and how their love weathered the storms she tells in a frank, natural and humorous way.

The Money Master

By SIR GILBERT PARKER

Author of "The Right of Way," "Seats of the Mighty," "Judgment House," etc.

Illustrated. $1.35

THE MONEY MASTER
By GILBERT PARKER

The Story of Julia Page

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

Author of "Mother," "Saturday's Child," "Poor, Dear Margaret Kirby," etc.

THE STORY OF JULIA PAGE
BY KATHLEEN NORRIS

Illustrated. $1.35

Julia Page grew up in San Francisco a daughter of the poor. She hungered for the better things of life and was determined to have them, cost what they would. A picture of unfaltering faith and courage dominates the story and shines out in Julia's love for Jim Studdiford, a thing too precious to be bought by silence.

The Turmoil

By BOOTH TARKINGTON

Author of "Penrod," "The Gentleman From Indiana," "Monsieur Beaucaire," etc.

Illustrated. $1.35

THE TURMOIL
by Booth Tarkington

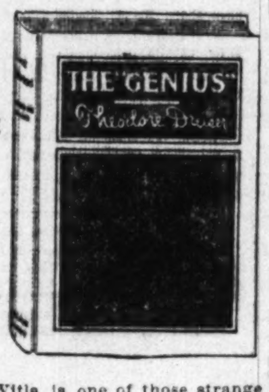
The hero is the son of a middle-West millionaire, whose outlook is bounded by the "bigness of business." He has no desire to be a captain of industry, but his father is relentless and forces him to go to work. The turmoil of the factory cannot kill the boy's dreams, however. The girl with whom he falls in love accomplishes more than the father has been able to do, and more than the father ever hoped for.

The Genius

By THEODORE DREISER

Author of "The Financier," "Jennie Gerhardt," "The Titan," etc

$1.50



Eugene Witla is one of those strange personalities which occasionally spring up among the humdrum types of common life, an exotic flower in a vegetable garden. He is brilliant, irregular and unstable, attracting and repelling in turn. At the height of his success he finds his "Impossible She," only to have abysses open that lead almost to insanity.

NO BASEBALL FOR BIG NINE; GAME DROPPED

Trouble Over Summer Play Causes Action; Called "Sport for Pros."

BY KEENE GARDINER.

Baseball as an intercollegiate sport was handed the knockout wallop yesterday at a meeting of western conference representatives in the Auditorium hotel. Unless overruled by faculty opposition within sixty days, Albion Small of the University of Chicago, as chairman, will announce on Feb. 5 the dropping of the diamond sport by the Big Nine.

By a vote of 7 to 2 the resolution, which will be submitted to the various faculties, was passed, after a debate which lasted most of the afternoon. Just what two schools opposed the motion was not announced by Prof. Moran of Purdue, secretary of the body. This action means that the baseball schedules drawn by conference coaches and directors at their meeting last Saturday will be considered null and void.

Hold Baseball Is Pro Game.

Because baseball belongs to the realms of professionalism the representatives decided it had no place among college sports. Just as football was regarded as a simon pure college activity, so the professors held that baseball should remain with the professionals. It also was cited that it was impossible to keep college baseball entirely clean, and unless it could be considered strictly as an amateur sport it did not belong to the universities.

Furthermore, it was shown that most of the trouble caused over eligibility in the past involved students who had played the diamond game professionally during the summer months. Despite affidavits to the contrary sworn to by athletes, it has been proved that they had made perjurers of themselves, and this also tended to bring about the radical change.

Retain Eligibility Rules.

In the skirmish preceding the assault on the spring game a resolution was introduced asking that the rule regarding scholastic eligibility and one year's residence be rescinded. This was lost by a vote of 6 to 3. What three schools voted for this motion was not given out, but it was rumored that Wisconsin, Illinois, and Iowa led the opposition.

To make a student's status as an athlete as formal and clear as possible all who engage in any sport hereafter must sign their eligibility blanks in the presence of a committee at their respective institutions. Heretofore the coach of any sport attended to this formality. Secretary Moran also was instructed to collect all the blanks used by the various schools and from these to draft a standardized blank to be used universally.

Fight Secret Football Drill.

Football also took up part of the session and a few minor changes were made in the conduct of the game. At the last meeting of the board a suggestion was made limiting secret gridiron practice to two nights a week. This matter was brought to the attention of the members again, but was voted down. To pacify those opposing too many secret drills a resolution was offered to permit open practice for all students at least once a week. This motion was carried.

Reports had been circulated around the Big Nine that some of the football squads had organized before Sept. 20 of each year in violation of the present rule. Because of the premature practices several suggested that no special time be set for the starting of football work. A committee consisting of Profs. Teeters, Goodenough, and Small was named to investigate conditions.

Devotees of soccer and golf, who at the last session endeavored to bring these sports to an equality with football, track, and basketball, failed to do so at yesterday's meeting. Several sought to have the conference recognize both soccer and golf as intercollegiate activities, but failed to carry the resolution.

Discuss Cross Country Run.

Cross country runners also were considered. It was understood by some of the representatives that the effects of these five mile grinds were injurious. This matter also was discussed at the last meeting, and each school was asked to make a report. Only the University of Wisconsin presented its paper, showing that cross country running was not as detrimental to athletes as is usually thought. Profs. Pryer, Pooley, and French were named as a committee to investigate.

Dates for indoor and outdoor track meets, swimming, and tennis conference events were announced, with the locations. The indoor track and swimming championships were awarded the Northwestern university, with March 17 and 18 as the dates. The first night will be devoted to preliminaries. Chicago drew the outdoor track championship for June 3, and also the tennis championships for May 25, 26, and 27. Javelin throwers will be given a chance to demonstrate their ability, for the javelin throw was added to the track program.

All Schools Represented.

Prof. Albion W. Small of the University of Chicago was chosen as chairman, and Prof. Moran of Purdue was reëlected secretary. Every conference school was represented with the following present: Chicago, Dean A. W. Small; Illinois, Prof. G. A. Goodenough; Indiana, Prof. C. J. Sembower; Iowa, Prof. W. J. Teeters; Minnesota, Prof. James Paige; Northwestern, Prof. V. Pooley; Ohio, Prof. T. E. French; Wisconsin, Prof. J. Pryer; Purdue, Prof. T. F. Moran.

ENGLEWOOD MEN LAND FOUR JOBS ON STAR ELEVEN

BY OTTO A. ENGEL.

Quantitatively speaking, the sport of football among Chicago high schools was a pronounced success, as more youngsters played this season than ever before in the history of athletics. Qualitatively the season was one of the poorest experienced in the annals of the game. This was thoroughly demonstrated in the Thanksgiving day contests on foreign fields.

But if one were to pick here and there one of the best elevens of recent years could be assembled. At that the season didn't produce the bright stars of other years, but collectively they would have "made up" much better than some of the all star elevens of previous seasons. This year's crop of leading prep youngsters was of an even grain, with no single player standing heads and shoulders over another.

No Defeats for U. High.

During the season University High of the Suburban league went through its schedule without a defeat and because of its record was considered as one of the strongest teams in this section of the country. Englewood, as champion of the Chicago organization, won its title without losing a contest, but defeats at the hands of Clinton, Ia., and Oak Park in the pre-league games and by Sioux City, Ia., on turkey day marred what would have been a good showing. Two of these defeats probably would be called "hard luck" beatings.

Every other heavyweight team—and there were eighteen this year—lost one or more games. Why more elevens failed to show clear records probably was due to the absence of team work, so commonly lacking in most games this year. The punch to gain consistently wasn't there, while the defense of most schools was none too strong.

Englewood Gets Four Men.

Individually Englewood possessed the best bunch of stars. Four drew honor positions. University High, favored by many as the best team in the county, was awarded three places, while the remainder of the first eleven was divided among Crane, Hyde Park, Morgan Park, and Oak Park. Seven teams were represented in the second eleven, with U. High drawing three positions, New Trier and Wendell Phillips two apiece, and Oak Park, Hyde Park, Evanston, and Englewood one each.

L. Anderson of Englewood and Edwards of Morgan Park proved to be the best ends in the county. Both youngsters were of aggressive types. Edwards was largely responsible for putting his team in the race with his offensive playing, while Anderson also was of the same type, ever forceful and alert with each play.

Two Powerful Tackles.

In Jerry Vondras of Crane and Repetto of Englewood the league produced two of the best tackles in years. Both played a powerful game in the line, frequently spilling plays before they were under way. Without Vondras in the Englewood game, Crane would have been sadly trounced, but he stopped many fierce onslaughts until he was forced to quit because of injury.

Harris of University High and Harper of Hyde Park supported their centers in regular collegiate style. Little ground was gained through either player and when the opposition was stopped several times it sought other means to advance the ball than through the guard positions.

Reber of University High was one of the most accurate centers in either league. He passed the ball with speed and with each pass charged fiercely, usually getting the jump on the opposing player. Defensively he proved to be an excellent tackle.

Wolfe Gets Quarter Job.

Quarter Back Wolfe of Englewood was ranked among the best open field runners of the season. His style of play, similar to that of Maulbetsch of Michigan, proved bewildering to his opponents, and as a result he got away with many long runs. In calling signals he shouted in clear tones, so clear in fact that even the spectators got every number. On defense he was a fierce tackler.

Annan of University High, Steger of Oak Park, and Heeren of Englewood were named for the backfield trio. The worth of Annan as a member of the Hyde Park team two years ago was shown by his selection as a member of the all-star team of 1913. With Steger he carried off the scoring honors of the Suburban league. In Heeren Englewood possessed one of the best line plungers it has had in years. Although weighing 180 pounds Heeren was shifty in the open field and gained consistently for his team.

AURORA LOSES 13 TO 12 CLASH TO HAMILTON

Failure to Try Line Plays Near Goal Costs Visitors Victory.

New York, Dec. 4.—[Special.]—With 4,000 shivering spectators looking on, the eleven of the Hamilton institute triumphed over the East Aurora, Ill., High school team today in the intersectional football game at Washington park. The score was 13 to 12. Had Quarter Back Babcock of the western eleven used a little more judgment, however, in the last few minutes of play, gloom instead of joy might have hovered over the Hamilton institution tonight.

With the backfield working in perfect harmony and smashing its way at will through the Hamilton line in the last quarter, the East Aurora boys worked the ball down to within ten yards of the Hamilton line, and a touchdown meant victory. On two drives the ball was advanced to the six yard mark.

Place Kick Blocked.

Instead of trying two more line smashes in an effort to gain the necessary two yards for another first down, Babcock called Frank Hanny back for a kick from placement. It was blocked and Center Peters of Hamilton pounced on the pigskin and with a fifty-eight yard run brought the ball away from the danger zone. Then wisely Lamie Crovat, the Hamilton quarter back, drawled his signals as the remaining seconds of play ticked by.

Hamilton scored all of its thirteen points in the first four minutes of the game. Al Formosa for Hamilton kicked off. The East Aurora boys rushed for the ball with a fumble resulting and Hamilton recovering the pigskin twenty-eight yards from the goal line.

Score on Forward Pass.

A forward pass, entirely across the width of the field, Crovat to Formosa, was made successfully, and the latter stepped across the line for the first touchdown. Crovat then proceeded to kick the ball between the uprights.

Again Hamilton kicked off, and again there was a fumble by the westerners, but this time they recovered the ball. A punt was in order, and Hanny sent a high spiral down the field to the Hamilton ten yard line. Crovat, the Hamilton institute quarter back, gathered the ball in his arms and ran ninety yards for another touchdown for the New York school boys. He failed to kick the goal, but the score after these first few minutes favored Hamilton institute, 13 to 0, quite a mark for the western youngsters to shoot at.

Then Outplay Home Team.

After these points were made by the New Yorkers, the Illinois schoolboys waged much the better battle and outplayed their opponents by a good margin, but, while they were able to gather twelve points in the second period, they were not able to pass the thirteen mark and go home with a victory.

Following the two rapid fire touchdowns by Hamilton, which was all of the scoring done in the first period, the westerners cut loose in the second quarter and made two touchdowns, but failed to kick goal each time, and so wound up the period with the score at 13 to 12, the same score as the final result.

SCORNS DOCTOR TO SEE BATTLE

Dan McKetrick, manager of Young Ahearn, who is to battle Mike Gibbons at St. Paul Friday night, was a visitor in Chicago for a few hours yesterday. McKetrick, who has been on the sick list for several days consulted a physician on his arrival and was ordered to remain here for a couple of days, but refused. He was afraid if he did he might miss seeing his protégé scrap the Phantom, so he departed at 10 o'clock last night. Before going McKetrick said: "I think Ahearn has a great chance to beat Gibbons."

Larney Lichtenstein, who is in New York, wires that he has booked another match for Joe Welling, his lightweight star. Welling is going to battle Phil Bloom at the Claremont rink in Brooklyn early in January.

SINAI VICTOR IN TANK MEET.

Sinai Social center swimmers won a close meet from New Trier High school at Sinai last night, 53 to 50. The result hinged on the last event, the championship relay, the social center quartet entering this event with a margin of one point. Competition was by secondary and championship events, three places counting in the former and four in the latter. The north shore preps won the majority of firsts in the junior events, and Sinai in the senior contests.

George Schaefer, New Trier, broke an A. A. F. record in existence for three years in the plunge for distance, lowering the former time of :36 4-5 for the 60 foot distance held by Leonard Fish, Sinai, to :33 4-5. Pope, New Trier, and Coverick, Sinai, engaged in an even race for individual honors.

DE ORO RETAINS BILLIARD TITLE; SETS NEW MARK

BY J. G. DAVIS.

Alfredo De Oro of New York retained the world's three cushion championship by defeating August Kieckhefer of Chicago, 150 to 93, in their match, which finished last night at the Inter Ocean building. The young Chicago player was unable to make any greater headway in the final block than on the preceding nights, and scored thirty points while the veteran was making his complement of fifty in forty-nine innings.

Interest nearing the finish centered in De Oro's effort to break the low game record for a championship match and average over one. Several ciphers in the concluding stanzas made his success look doubtful, but in the forty-ninth inning he went out with a run of eight, which riveted his record and gave him five innings to spare.

Makes Wonderful Shot.

De Oro started his octet with a kiss on on a five cushion shot, the red ball just turning the cue ball for the count. He ran five more and then had the three balls close together on the foot rail in a seemingly nonscorable position. He went around the table off the white and caromed with the red, which had been gently forced over near the left side rail. It was a great calculation shot. This left him a three cushion bank, which he made.

The champion again played wonderfully well and was favored by luck, as he got scores on no less than five occasions on small kisses. Kieckhefer failed to perform as well as on the previous night and missed a number of shots usually counted as certainties for a player of his ability. He will have to strengthen his defensive play a lot in order to cope with the strategy of the champion.

Champion Takes Early Lead.

De Oro added a single to his score of the night before and early in the game it was evident he was out for the record, as he played with great care. In the fourth inning he opened his score with the first of his kiss-ons. In the tenth session he scored on a double kiss and got a natural leave. At the end of the tenth inning he was leading, 13 to 4.

Kieckhefer was getting little to shoot at. He found the going hard, but picked off a few points and at the twentieth inning was only seven to the bad. The next ten innings found both players scoring well, the champion leading, 28 to 19, at the end of the thirtieth inning.

De Oro began to fall below his average of one, but a run of five in the thirty-sixth inning rehabilitated him. Kieckhefer was going poorly and could get nothing but singles. De Oro reached 40 in the forty-first inning and then, after making two singles in seven trials, made his driving finish.

Not a Single Safety.

Not a single safety was played during the entire match. Former Champion Huey was criticised for his actions in trying to bother De Oro. He sat behind the Cuban's chair and at one time put the champion's hat on his head as he sat waiting for his next turn at the table.

DE ORO — 1 3 1 2 0 0 1 0 3 2 0 1 2 0 0 0 2 1 0 0 2 1 2 1 1 0 0 1 0 1 1 2 0 0 1 5 0 0 0 2 1 1 0 0 0 0 0 1 8—50. Innings, 49; high run, 8. Grand total, 150. Innings, 145.

Ellis to Play De Oro.

It was announced that Charles Ellis of Pittsburgh had posted a forfeit with the Brunswick company to meet the winner of the De Oro-Jevne match. Ellis and De Oro will play a match Tuesday night at the Inter Ocean building, having donated their services to the Chicago Bowling Protective association. Tomorrow night De Oro will play Al Wessling at Weeghman's room.

Bill to Steve.

[Copyright: 1915: By Ring W. Lardner.]

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—Steve. Now Steve I dont want you to get sore or nothing when I tell you what Im going to tell you and I dont want you should think Im sore at you because they couldent nothing be father to the truth. You will allways be my old pal Steve and we will be jest as good frends like we allways been but this here is the last letter you will get from me Steve and thats what I want to tell you a bout.

I finely got in tuch with Gussy again this wk. and I happened to be going passed her old mans house and seen her in the window so I went up and wrapped on the window and she was crying like her hart would brake and of coarse I knowed she wasent crying a bout the war or the weather but was crying on acct. of her and I haveing this here quarl. So I beckoned to her to come on out the doors a min. because I wouldent go in the same house where her brothers at so she throwed on her coat and come out and I says come a long and take a walk and we started walking along the st. and dident say nothing for a wile and finely she says how are you comeing with your plans to get hold of a divorce.

So I went up and wrapped on the window.

So I says I could get a divorce in a wk. if I wanted it but I dont know weather I want it and she says why not and then some thing choked up in my throte and I couldent say nothing for a wile but finely I come out and owned up that I dident want no divorce on acct. of me likeing her so well and that was partly it Steve and partly because I was pretty near allmost starved to deth and sick in tired of liveing in a place where the dust keeps getting in your throte and makeing you cought. So then she broke down to and says she liked me as much as I liked her and why dident we call the quarl a draw and make up and I says all right but on 1 conditions that you dont have none of your famly over to the house more then onct a mo. at the inside. So she says if she give up a point to me that our quarl wouldent be no draw unlest I give up 1 to her so I says go ahead and name your point and lets hear it.

So then she says I would half to give up writeing these here letters to you because she dident want me to be spending so much time writeing letters to nobody unlest it was to her. So I says it cant be your jelius of poor Steve and she says yes it can be and thats just it. I says but he aint no girl but hes a man and she says it dident make no diffrunts because I spent as much time writeing the letters as if he was 2 girls. So I says I couldent deside nothing like in a min. and would she give me time and she says she would. Then she went back to her old mans and I went down town and as luck would have it I run into a couple men I know name Mr. Patterson and Mr McCormick and both of them smart men and I run in to them seperatily and not to gather but they both of them says the same thing and what they says was why dont you cut out these here letters because every bodys sick in tired of them. So I says well if I dont write the letters what will I write and they both of them says that was up to me.

So I called up Gussy and told her O. K. I would quit writeing to you and she says all right she would come right home and would bring some groserys a long with her. So she come home and we sined up a agreemunt that I wasent to write no more letters after this 1 and she wasent to have her famly hanging a round the house all the wile.

She says she would come right home and would bring some groserys a long.

Dont be sore at me Steve because I still think as much of you as ever but I dont think so much of you that Im going to starve to deth on your acct.

Hear after I will write some thing diffrunt for Sun. and I dont know yet what it will be but you can get a hold of a paper next wk. and it will be in it and I hope I can think of some thing easy to write and some thing that will last a long while.

Good buy Steve old Pall and Mary xmas to you and evry body in the old burg and may be we will supprise you and come down there for xmas. Respy. BILL.

POTSY BREAKS HIS JAW AGAIN

Urbana, Ill., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Potsy Clark, the Illini quarter back, who broke his jaw in the Illinois-Rolla football game and played the rest of the season in a special mask, designed to protect the injured member, can speak of some more hard luck. The football fracture knit perfectly and Potsy joined Coach Jones' basketball squad this week.

He bumped into another candidate—bing—and noticed that his jaw didn't feel just right. An X-ray picture showed a fracture in another place. Zuppke's star will live on gruel and talk out of the corner of his mouth for a month, and will not play any more basketball. "Baseball is good enough for me," he said.

When Clark and George Halas, another gridiron player, both had fractured jaws it was the first time that type of injury had happened in Illinois athletic history.

DEATH CLAIMS ANDY FREEDMAN

New York, Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Andrew Freedman, capitalist and former owner of the New York National league club, died in his apartment at Sherry's today. Some time ago he had a nervous breakdown and recently he suffered an attack of grip. The two combined are thought to have caused his death. He had intended leaving town for a long rest.

Freedman was 55 years old. He was born in this city and never married. Until a short time ago it was his boast that he had never been sick a day in his life.

He was an organizer of the Casualty Company of America, a director of many other organizations, and a member of many clubs.

DETROIT 'PREPS' IN 0-0 CONTEST WITH EVERETT

BY WALTER H. ECKERSALL.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 4.—In the battle for national interscholastic honors the Detroit Central High school and Everett High of Boston played to a scoreless tie today on Navin field before a crowd of 12,000 persons. While the local eleven displayed the greater strength, it lacked the punch to cross the goal line, being stopped five times inside the Everett ten yard line because of the game and determined defense of the eastern boys.

Most of the battle was fought in Everett territory. On numerous occasions the Detroit boys advanced by a varied assortment of line plunges, end runs, and forward passes, but never were able to continue the attack long enough to cross the goal line.

Everett Attack Weak.

In offensive playing the eastern eleven was quite helpless. It never attempted a forward pass, and its plays consisted mostly of weak attempts to penetrate the local line.

Once, in the opening period, Everett showed strength in attack, but thereafter it was helpless. Detroit fumbles gave the easterners the opening in that quarter. In the third period the Detroiters were close to the goal almost continuously, once being on the five yard line, but each time they were held for downs.

Play on Soft Field.

The contest was played on a field too soft for the best results, but there was little fumbling after the first period. Lineup:

DINNER FOR PREP WINNERS.

Englewood High school football and soccer players, winners of Chicago league championships this season, were fêted last night at the Grand Pacific hotel. Including invited guests, nearly 100 were present. Principal James E. Armstrong acted as toastmaster. Walter McCornack, former Dartmouth and Northwestern coach and an Englewood alumnus, was the principal speaker. McCornack played on the first Englewood eleven in 1889. Other speakers were Dr. Otto Windheim, member of the 1909 championship team; Coach A. E. Bardell of the football squad, Coach A. Paterson of the soccer squad, and Peter Peel, donor of the soccer trophy won by Englewood in the championship game with University High yesterday.

PREPS MUST PLAY AT HOME.

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 4.—Principals of St. Louis high schools have agreed that high school athletic teams of this city shall not be permitted to represent the schools in games in other cities and that games shall not be played in St. Louis with teams from a distance of more than twenty-five miles.

SYRACUSE PLAYS TOMORROW

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 4.—The football game scheduled for this afternoon between Syracuse university and Occidental college will be played here Monday. The postponement was occasioned by uncertainty as to the time of the visitors' arrival. The Syracuse team was delayed in getting here by a slide of earth at Dunsmuir, Cal., which blocked the passage of the train.

DE PAUL BEATS BEVERLY TEAM BY 30-7 SCORE

Pond Scores Three Times as Chicago Preps Down the Eastern Stars.

Beverly, Mass., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—De Paul academy of Chicago upheld the reputation of the west in football by running over the strong Beverly High school eleven today, 30 to 7. Although the visitors outweighed the local boys, their game was so superior they probably could have walked off with the victory even without that advantage.

Five touchdowns were marked up by the Chicagoans. Ed Pond qualified as the Johnny Maulbetsch of prep football by crossing the Beverly goal line three times. In addition, Pond did much to put the ball within scoring distance twice, when Schneider and Capt. Val Grundman were rushed across for the other Chicago scores. In five trials Capt. Grundman was unable to register a goal after touchdown. Herron saved Beverly from a shutout by counting a touchdown and booting the following goal late in the fourth quarter.

Passes Bewilder Beverly.

Playing on a heavy field, the superior weight of the westerners undoubtedly helped some, but most of their ground was gained by persistent use of a complicated system of passes which bewildered the eastern preps. When weight counted most was on the defense, and Beverly had so few chances to advance that its handicap was too slight to furnish a respectable alibi.

De Paul really scored seven touchdowns, and Pond deserved four to his credit, but an adverse ruling by the officials offset one counter made by the little half back in the opening period. De Paul lined up quickly after a sharp scrimmage, and Pond sailed around left end and across the goal line, but Beverly protested that De Paul had not had seven men in the line when the play started. The protest was allowed, and there was no scoring in the opening quarter.

Claims Lines Short.

Pond made his first touchdown early in the second period. Immediately Capt. O'Donnell of Beverly claimed the yard lines were short, and there was a tiresome delay while some one dug up a tape measure. Then it was discovered Chicago had actually been gaining six inches more than the necessary ten yards for every first down.

After the tangle had been straightened out De Paul went after the Beverlyites with renewed vigor, and before the period closed Schneider had been sent over for the second Chicago marker. Pond counted in the third and fourth periods, and Val Grundman made the fifth De Paul count in the third quarter.

Hamilton, quarter for the western preps, was Pond's nearest rival for individual honors. The Chicago pilot seemed to sense the weaknesses of Beverly right from the start, and his generalship never was at fault. He shot double and triple passes with unerring accuracy, and when plunging was in order he always seemed able to direct the attack at the proper spot.

Ball Fumbled Often.

Fumbles were frequent because of the wet field. De Paul suffered most, largely because it was generally the aggressor. The westerners also were often the victims of penalties. Most of the trouble was due to over eagerness on their part, and most of the penalties were for offside play. Although it was a terrific battle from the opening whistle, De Paul played a clean game throughout. It was the general opinion that De Paul just knew too much football for Beverly.

After a scoreless first period, in which De Paul lost two bright openings through fumbles, the visitors started their march to victory by blocking a Beverly attempt at a field goal. From the locals' forty yard mark fake kicks, forward passes, and ends around plays worked the ball to the ten yard line, from where Pond dived through center for the first score. Shortly afterwards De Paul smashed its way to the five yard line from midfield by straight football, and Schneider went across for the second touchdown.

Fake Pass Nets Score.

In the third quarter De Paul resorted to shift plays and passes. One toss from Hamilton to Lynn netted thirty yards and put the ball within Beverly's ten yard mark. This time Val Grundman went over on a fake pass formation. Plain line plunges, with an occasional dash around end, helped Pond to his second touchdown before the period ended.

A fifteen yard dash by Gauer straight through the Beverly line put the ball on the local fifteen yard mark in the last period. Grundman gained half the distance needed, then Pond crashed through for his last touchdown. Three successive passes put Herron across for the Beverly score just before the final whistle, and the quarter back kicked his own goal.

Tonight the De Paul boys were guests of Beverly's beaten eleven at a dance in the city hall. Capt. Valentine Grundman led the grand march with Miss Kathleen Fullerton, who recently was voted the prettiest girl in Beverly High school. After a sightseeing trip along the north shore tomorrow the Chicagoans will start for home. Lineup:

SOCCER HONORS OF COOK COUNTY TO ENGLEWOOD

Beats U. High Eleven for Peel Shield, 3-0; Losers Present Crippled Team.

BY PREP.

Scoring one goal in the first half and two in the second, Englewood won the Cook County High school soccer championship by defeating University High 3 to 0, at Fifty-second street and Cottage Grove avenue yesterday.

The victory gave Englewood possession of the Peel shield for a year, while the players received fourteen silver medals donated by Albert H. Loeb.

The winners of the Chicago High school championship were able to present their best lineup, but University High had a patched aggregation. Two of the Midway boys were declared ineligible on account of studies and their center forward had not been in school long enough to qualify for the championship match.

Better Team Wins.

Englewood was the better team all through, showing stronger combination and better knowledge of the game. Six University High boys played finely, but the others kicked the ball at random. They played hard enough and might have held Englewood to one goal, but for poor team work by the backs.

Miller, who is substitute goalkeeper for the U. High team, was crowded by his own defense, but apart from this he punched the ball away too much, instead of catching it and throwing it out.

The field was in fine shape and a fair sized crowd was out. University High had two cheer masters on its side of the field. Play was fairly even in the first ten minutes, and although Englewood had two corner kicks, neither was dangerous.

Englewood Gets Score.

Englewood scored ten minutes after the start, when Helman centered the ball and the University backs cleared weakly, giving Smith an opening at short range, which he utilized.

University High got one corner kick, and nearing the end of the half Albright sent in the best shot made by any of his team, but Michaels cleared.

Englewood added another goal after three minutes of play in the second half, Miller clearing a rush weakly and Wright scoring from close in. The Midway attack was weak in its finishes. Englewood scored its third goal when Smith counted from fifteen yards out, with the best shot of the day. Right after this University High made a spirited attack, and for a moment or two there was a scrimmage in front of the Englewood goal, but the attack failed.

Stars of Contest.

Frazier, Sproehnle, and Florsheim put up a fine defense for the losers. All the Englewood men played well, the left wing and center being strongest on attack. Lineup:

Englewood [3].		University High [0].
Michaels	Goal	Miller
Wetzel	Right back	Bensley
Cohen	Right half back	Frazier
Palmer	Cent. half back	Carry
Brown	Left half back	Sproehnle
Welman	Outside right	Randall
Bromstedt	Inside right	Lyndon
Smith	Center	Albright
Wright	Inside left	Long

DEFERRED GAMES ON SOCCER CARD

Four matches are carded for this afternoon in the third round for the Peel trophy, all having been postponed from last Sunday because of rain. The champion Pullmans will meet the Campbell Rovers at Fifty-second avenue and Madison street, and as the Rovers are stronger than earlier in the season they should give the Carbuilders a hard fight.

Chicago Americans will tackle the Fram eleven at Forty-second and Chicago avenues, and the Chicago Swedish eleven will meet the Caledonians at Galvin field, One Hundred and Seventh street and Vincennes avenue. The Chicago Screws will travel to Joliet for a game with the steel team. International Harvesters will play Ockie at Forty-eighth avenue and Sixteenth street.

One match is billed in the national amateur championship event, McDuffs playing the Hyde Park Blues at Fifty-second street and Cottage Grove avenue. Kenwood and Washington Park will meet in an exhibition match at Washington park. All games start at 2:30.

The Mohawks will tackle the Paramounts at Tigers park, Ferdinand street and Kilpatrick avenue, the match being for the championship of Austin. Kickoff at 2 o'clock.

Penn Soccer Eleven Wins.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 4.—The University of Pennsylvania defeated Harvard in an Intercollegiate league soccer game, 2 to 1.

MOTORISTS APPEAL FOR COURT RULING ON WAR TAXATION

BY L. M. STEFFENS.

The so-called registration taxes which are levied against the automobile owners yearly to maintain the state highways and other public roads amounts to approximately $20,000,000 annually. Horse drawn vehicles are neither taxed nor restricted from crossing and recrossing state lines and have the same privileges that are afforded the automobilists. The many motorists who pay three taxes—one for registration of the car, one for operating license for its driving, and one under the personal property tax—are carefully considering the question of war preparedness, for they feel that the motorist will be the substantial contributor to this proposition.

Numerous arguments are raised daily and discussed by the state lawmakers as to whether it is constitutional to tax an automobile owner for registration in excess of the clerical cost of issuing the identification number, as he is paying a tax for personal property. In the Mississippi and Ohio Supreme courts it was decided that it is unconstitutional to tax an automobile owner for state registration. New Jersey's courts decided that more than one tax could be imposed, and other courts have ruled variously showing a vague disposition in the matter. Because of the conflicting opinions rendered by the various courts in New Jersey the American Automobile association carried the case to the United States Supreme court, and a ruling is expected in the next few months.

Why the lawmakers should pick out the gasoline and petroleum products and automobiles as a particular object upon which more than one tax should be imposed, when petroleum products have become an absolute necessity as a producing factor in promoting industry in this country, and the automobile has proven itself to be an economizer for transportation, is a source of unconcealed surprise to the motor car owners.

Both the automobile and its cost increasing fuel are included in the revenue producing plans put forward by the leaders in congress, and it is conservatively estimated that not less than $20,000,000 to $30,000,000, and perhaps more, would be obtained from the owners of the 2,300,000 motor vehicles now in use in the United States.

GRAPPLERS DRAW IN CONTEST FOR TITLE AT C. A. A.

BY HAMMERLOCK.

The middleweight wrestling championship, which both Walter Willoughby and Ernest Kartje claim, was fought for at the C. A. A. last night. The bout resulted in a draw after forty-five minutes of strenuous work. Kartje won the first fall over Willoughby in 31:03 minutes. After they had been on the mat for nearly fifteen minutes in the second bout the referee stopped the battle and called it an even break.

Kartje claimed the decision, but as he refused to weigh in for the match he was turned down. Willoughby made the required poundage.

A date will soon be set for another bout. Both the wrestlers agreed to meet at the C. A. A.

Earl Caddock, the Iowan, who weighs 185 pounds, threw his opponent, Karl Schultz, heavyweight champion of the German navy, in two falls, in 8:00 and 8:30. Caddock showed great speed and outclassed the German by a large margin. He is the boy who put Joe Stecker on the map.

Paul Martinson, the Hindoo Killer, defeated Prindle by throwing him in the two bouts, the first in 13:08 and the second in 4:22. Lou Talaber, Turner champion, won two falls from O. Donaldson, the first in 15:00 and the second in 7:37.

BY RAY C. PEARSON.

Next Friday night St. Paul, Minn., gets into the big ring, pugilistically speaking, for before the Capital City Athletic club Mike Gibbons, the "big whale" of the middleweights, better known as the "Phantom," is to battle no less prominent a scrapper than Young Ahearn of New York. It took a long time for any promoter to land the signatures of these two artists of the ring, and according to good information which comes from St. Paul the chances are they would not be hooking up now except for the fact that Gibbons is afforded the opportunity of milling in his own home town.

When one terms Gibons and Ahearn artists there is no exaggeration, for their long suit is cleverness, although the Phantom must at the same time be given full credit for the possession of ability to punch. Gibbons carries sufficient force behind the punches he delivers with either hand to stop an opponent when he cares to take the chance that such an undertaking entails. His last performance against Packey MacFarland at the Brighton Beach motordrome in New York, in which he was outpointed after going ten rounds without landing a punch hard enough to even muss Packey's curly locks, cannot be taken as a criterion of Mike's hitting powers.

Weight Too Low for Mike.

Gibbons made 147 pounds for the Packey bout and, regardless of the fact that he used the statement after the bout that he was too weak from taking off weight to do himself justice, it is a fact that he never should have permitted himself to enter the ring at that low figure. Gibbons has declared that he would meet McFarland in another contest if Packey permitted him to weigh in at 150. This can be taken with a grain of salt, for Mike evidently learned his lesson the other time.

To enter the ring with a reputation like Mike Gibbons had and make such a miserable showing against a former lightweight certainly is not calculated to make a fighter foolish in future contests, and it is pretty nearly a cinch that this same Mike Gibbons will never again meet another opponent who forces him to scale between the century and a half poundage. In making his match with Ahearn Gibbons plainly shows that he is going to do business at the regular middle weight notch instead of trying for the heavy welterweight figure.

Ahearn a Middleweight.

Ahearn is a middleweight, one of the 158 pound kind, and he has to do a little training to make it. Gibbons may even get down as low as 152 pounds without handicapping himself either in hitting power or strength to go the ten round route at a lively clip. He showed that he was strong when he fought Eddie McGoorty ten rounds and was supposed to weigh in at 158 pounds. When it came time to step on the scales McGoorty was at 158 pounds and Gibbons notched the beam at 151½ pounds.

Inasmuch as Gibbons and Ahearn are to scrap at 158 pounds both are certain to enter the ring without handicap and the man who wins will do so on his merits. It will be a meeting of a pair of boxers, and any attempt to pick the winner in advance of the actual hostilities isn't soft business. Some of the dopesters have it figured out that Ahearn is so far superior to Gibbons in cleverness that he should be able to outpoint the Phantom by a big margin without doing much damage. The others—those who favor Gibbons' chances—don't consider that Ahearn has anything on Mike in the matter of cleverness and they point to Mike's punching ability as an advantage which should result in his bringing home the bacon.

Lots of times the clever bird is the one who cops, while at others the puncher has been able to spoil all the advantage gained by cleverness with a single punch. But in the present match the writer believes that when it comes time for the maker of bets to set the odds he will find that the dope favors the Gibbons party, principally because those who follow the game do not believe that the easterner is more clever than the St. Paul man, and also because Mike will have the advantage of scrapping in his own town where the newspaper decisions are more likely to give him a shade the best of it in case the finish is close.

Ahearn comes west with a big hurrah. He is called one of the cleverest boys that ever drew on a glove. Nothing is said about his hitting ability, and even his manager, Dan McKetrick, never has done much talking about. His past record does not show that he ever earned laurels as a puncher, so he must be termed a clever speed artist minus the wallop.

Ahearn to Rely on Speed.

Ahearn's chances for victory over Gibbons depend on how fast he travels. Mike has demonstrated a number of times that he has speed. He showed it when he defeated Jimmy Clabby, the Hammond middleweight, who is some fast himself, and he repeated when he fought Eddie McGoorty. So if Gibbons sets the fast pace that he set against Clabby and McGoorty, the work will be cut out for Mr. Ahearn. The latter will have to tear loose from the first bell and keep doing every second until gong clangs if he is to be returned the winner. And while Ahearn is doing this he will have to be doing something besides offensive milling. He will find it necessary to combine his offensive with his defensive milling, for if Gibbons gets to him with a solid wallop from either mitt the chances are it will be curtains.

BURNS FAVORITE OVER WILLIAMS IN RING BOUT.

New Orleans, La., Dec. 4.—Despite efforts of friends of Kid Williams to make him the favorite over Frankie Burns for the bantamweight championship fight Monday night Burns was still a 6 to 5 favorite over the champion tonight. Local fans who have been the heaviest bettors claim that Burns is in first class condition and that his smashing right and left body punches will wear Williams down early in the fight. Several of the out of town sportsmen also favor Burns after seeing the champion work out. Authorities state that, while Williams seems fast, he lacks aggressiveness in his workouts, whereas with Burns it is different.

JOHNNY ERTLE KNOCKS OUT YOUNG O'LEARY IN THIRD.

New York, Dec. 4.—Johnny Ertle of St. Paul, claimant of the bantamweight championship, scored a technical knockout over Young O'Leary of New York in Brooklyn tonight. O'Leary was unable to continue after the third round of their ten round match. Ertle weighed 114½ pounds and O'Leary 116.

KILBANE AND DUNN INDICTED

Elyra, O., Dec. 4.—Johnny Kilbane of Cleveland, champion featherweight, and Manager Jimmy Dunn of Cleveland were indicted by the Lorain county grand jury today for assault and battery on Jack Garvey, a Cleveland fight manager.

The Modern "Neal Way" Recognized as "World's Greatest Treatment" for Drink or Drug Users

ESTABLISHED IN 60 AMERICAN AND FOREIGN CITIES

Attractive Business Propositions For Doctors or Business Men In Unoccupied Territory.

The beautiful story of the "Neal Way" reads like a page from romance. Doctor B. E. Neal originated and perfected the world famous Neal treatment after years devoted exclusively to study, investigation, and experiment, and made his first public announcement in the daily press only six years ago today.

After observing the remarkable results in many cases for several months, Hon. J. E. Bruce, an Iowa Senator and Banker, came to Chicago, bought the Chicago Hospital and opened the head NEAL INSTITUTE, located in the restful quiet of the beautiful Drexel Boulevard residential district.

Already over three score other splendid Neal Institutes have been established by local bankers, business and professional men in principal American and foreign cities, and tens of thousands of high class men have been PREVENTED from becoming "WRECKS," and other thousands considered almost "beyond all earthly help" have been RESCUED.

The secret of this world-wide success of the "NEAL WAY" is that it removes the CAUSE and overcomes effects of using Drink or Drugs in a less number of DAYS than the WEEKS required by the "Old Way." Each patient is given a fine private room in which he is assured the liberty and "service" of modern Hotels or Clubs and the privacy of his own home.

Senator Bruce makes his headquarters for the international extension work of the "Neal Way" at the head NEAL INSTITUTE, No. 811-T East 49th St., Chicago (phone Oakland 439.) He invites personal calls and letters from all interested in considering an attractive business proposition in other American and foreign cities, and those desiring personal, confidential information about Neal Three Day Treatment.

BOOK PIN MATCH FOR $800 PURSE

One of the biggest money bowling matches billed here in several years was booked yesterday between Bob Rolfe and the "Count," the men agreeing to hook up for $400 a side at Blouin's alleys in Blue Island Monday night. Conditions are ten games, total pins counting.

Rolfe's opponent has been in Chicago only a few weeks, but has cleaned up considerable money betting on his own game. He hails from Luxemburg, but is unable to return home an account of the war. Meanwhile he is spending his time in traveling through the country bowling all comers.

P. HEINS SECOND IN ALL-EVENTS; FIVE PINS SHORT

Edgewater Bowler Loses His Chance for Chicago Lead by Poor Finish.

Paul Heins' brilliant attempt to take the lead in the individual event of the Chicago Bowling association tournament proved the feature of yesterday's work at the Randolph alleys. The Edgewater Country club man missed the mark by five pins, largely through a count of 188 in his final game after he had started well. Heins was not the only bidder in action, as second place in the doubles also fell. Louis Levine and Oswald Carmichael posted 1,232, sixteen pins back of the Dernbach brothers. The five man yield did not show much.

Heins had a lot of company in his march to second place in the singles, James Danek of the Lipmans showing 618, Tony Karlicek and Fred Thoma tying at 616, and Homer McCoy dropping 611, eight men beating a 200 average during the day. The two man event installed several new teams in the first ten places, Smith and Nettenstrom shooting 1,193, Brennan and Collier getting 1,182, Steers and Thoma getting 1,178, and Aubert and Owens 1,177. For PLAYERS of WHIST

by A. R. METCALFE

THE psychology of auction is the most fascinating feature of the game. It finds its expression in play far more than in bidding, contrary to the belief of most beginners. The methods of west, in the deal which follows, is worthy of study. The hands:

N:
S—K, Q, 7.
H—A, 10, 9, 6, 5, 3.
C—K, Q, 4.
D—7.

W:
S—A, 10, 9.
H—7, 2.
C—A, 10, 8, 6, 3, 2.
D—A, 8.

E:
S—6, 4, 3.
H—K, Q, J, 8.
C—5.
D—K, 10, 9, 5, 8.

S:
S—J, 8, 5, 2.
H—4.
C—J, 9, 7.
D—Q, J, 6, 4, 2.

Score, 0—0. West dealt and bid one no-trump, north two hearts, east two no-trump and the bidding closed. North had the initial lead.

THE PLAY.

Tricks.	N.	E.	S.	W.
1	H6	HJ	H4	H2
2	QS	3S	2S	10S
3	KC	5C	7C	6C
4	QC	4S	9C	8C
5	4C	D8	JC	AC
6	H9	HQ	D2	H7
7	D7	D5	DJ	DA
8	H3	D9	D4	10C
9	H5	H8	5S	3C
10	H10	HK	8S	2C
11	HA	DK	D6	D8
12	7S	6S	JS	AS
13	KS	D10	DQ	9S

West secured nine tricks.

West realized after the first trick that game was impossible unless the club suit could be brought in. Had he played clubs at trick 2, however, north would have shifted to spades, and west would have lost the game, if not his contract.

The play of the spade was clever, west having calculated the effect it would have upon the mind of north. After the second round of clubs west held the game secure, no matter what his opponents did thereafter.

Had north made the ace of hearts, he never would have had an opportunity to win with the king of spades.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES.

Chicago.—[To the Editor.]—During the play of a deal it is discovered that the declarer has four cards remaining, dummy two, and the opponents three each. If it can be proven that the declarer played two cards from the dummy on one trick and none from his own hand, what is the penalty? J. N. H."

Answer: The deal is void even though it may work an injustice to the nonoffending pair. The law states that "If before, during, or at the conclusion of play, one player holds more than the proper number of cards and another less, the deal is void."

JOHNSTON GIVEN FIRST PLACE IN TENNIS RANKING

California Star Placed at Top; Leads Also in the Doubles.

New York, Dec. 4.—William M. Johnston of San Francisco was placed at the top of the national tennis ranking list for the season in the singles and paired with Clarence J. Griffin of San Francisco at the top of the doubles in the report officially issued today by the committee of the United States National Lawn Tennis association. The findings were made by F. C. Inman, W. L. Pate, and William Hall.

Miss Molla Bjurstedt of Norway headed the list of women players who were rated.

Johnston's right to No. 1 was established by his record in the national championship, in which he defeated Karl H. Behr of New York, R. Norris Williams of Philadelphia, and Maurice E. McLoughlin of San Francisco on successive days.

McLoughlin Close to Second.

The committee admitted that there was only a slight shade between Williams and McLoughlin and that justice might have been done in rating McLoughlin in second place instead of third.

The ratings of the first ten and the class one in the singles out of 100 names follows:

No. 1, William M. Johnston; No. 2, R. Norris Williams; No. 3, Maurice E. McLoughlin; No. 4, Karl H. Behr; No. 5, T. R. Pell; No. 6, N. W. Niles; No. 7, C. J. Griffin; No. 8, W. M. Washburn; No. 9, George M. Church; No. 10, W. M. Hall.

Class 1—J. J. Armstrong, Leonard Beekman, C. M. Bull Jr., H. T. Byford, W. F. Johnson, Robert Le Roy, Dean Mathey, Harold A. Throckmorton, S. H. Voshell, and I. C. Wright.

Rating of first ten pairs in doubles:

No. 1, W. M. Johnston and C. J. Griffin; No. 2, M. E. McLoughlin and T. C. Bundy; No. 3, G. M. Church and Dean Mathey; No. 4, R. N. Williams and W. M. Washburn; No. 5, W. T. Hayes and R. H. Burdick; No. 6, I. C. Wright and W. F. Johnson; No. 7, T. R. Pell and B. C. Prentice; No. 8, H. H. Hackett and W. M. Hall; No. 9, F. C. Baggs and S. H. Voshell; No. 10, E. P. Larned and F. C. Inman.

Rating of first ten women in singles out of twenty-five names:

No. 1, Miss Molla Bjurstedt; No. 2, Mrs. George Wightman; No. 3, Mrs. Marshall McLean; No 4, Miss Florence Sutton; No. 5, Mrs. Barger Wallach; No. 6, Miss Marie Wagner; No. 7, Miss Anita Myers; No. 8, Miss Sara Livingston; No. 9, Miss Clare Cassel; No. 10, Miss Eleanora Sears.

Committee Makes Rule.

In its report the ranking committee, because less than 100 players sent in their records, recommends that it be made compulsory for clubs holding tournaments to file a complete record of the tourney within ten days of its completion with the committee, on penalty of losing its tournament next year.

The net receipts of the national tournament at the West Side Tennis club were $16,000, slightly larger than any sum ever received when the tournament was at Newport, R. I.

Colorado Aggies Pick Captain.

Fort Collins, Colo., Dec. 4.—Capt. Shepardson has been elected to lead the Colorado Agricultural college football team for 1916. Shepardson played center of this year's team, which won the Rocky Mountain conference championship.

CHESS and CHECKERS

by HARRY F. LEE

A MATCH for the chess championship of the United States and a purse of $2,000 has been arranged between Frank W. Marshall, present champion, and Jackson W. Showalter, from whom he won the title.

Marshall is to receive $800, and of the remaining $1,200 the winner is to receive $700 and the loser $500. The match will be played early in the new year, and will excite much interest, for both men are noted for their enterprise and originality.

Games are to be played in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, and Louisville or Lexington, each city to have two victories and intervening drawn games.

The death of Dr. Adolf Decker takes from "the poetry of chess" one of its noted composers, a man of great talent and high ideals. He was uncompromising in his demand for pure mates and economy of force, thus producing simplicity, a characteristic of true art. The following problem, heretofore unpublished, is one of Dr. Decker's latest compositions:

CHECKER NOTES.

In the Chicago championship tourney now being played at the South Side Checker club the following players have qualified for the knockout finals, which will be played on Sunday, Dec. 12, at 2 p. m.: Hartshorn, Wendemuth, O'Brien, Tanner, Scott, Schockiy, Howey, and Levy.

Play is continuing in the Chicago Checker league. The Bridgeport team leads with two matches won and none lost. The following teams are in the league: Bridgeport, Sussmans, Lake View, Chicago Elevated, Peoples Gas company, and Wabash Y. M. C. A.

The surprise of the city tourney was the failure of John Howe Jr. to qualify for the major tourney. This brilliant young player was evidently caught off his stride.

NARROW ESCAPE FOR AMATEUR IN CYCLE CONTEST

New York, Dec. 4.—Edward Jensen, wearing the C. R. C. colors, saved himself from serious injury tonight by hanging to the top of the new saucer track at Madison Square Garden when his bicycle tumbled over a banked turn in the fourth heat of the amateur race. He was severely bruised.

Nelson Johnson of the C. R. C. won the final half mile handicap in :59 4-5. Joseph Naphtal, C. R. C., was second; Fred Taylor, Newark, third, and Chris Dotterweich, Newark, fourth.

Alf Grenda, Australia, won the one mile professional in 1:57 1-5. Jacob Nagin, Newark, was second; Robert Spears, Australia, third, and Ernest Ohrt, San Francisco, fourth.

Bike enthusiasts believe the six day race, which begins tomorrow, will be more open than for several years. The teams entered are:

Fred Hill, Boston, and Alfred Grenda, Australia.

Reggie McNamara and Bobbie Spears, Australia.

Oscar Egg, Switzerland, and Marcel Dupuy, France.

Jake Magin, Newark, and Percy Lawrence, San Francisco.

Norman Hansen, Denmark, and Worthington Mitten, Davenport.

Joe Kopsky, New York, and Gus Wohlrab, Jersey City.

Tim Sullivan, New Haven, and Norman Anderson, Denmark.

Jimmy Moran, Chelsea, and Bobbie Walthour, Atlanta.

Charley Piercey and Gordon Walker, Australia.

Peter Drobach, South Boston, and Frank Corry, Australia.

Ray Eaton and Eddie Madden, Newark.

Paul Suter, Switzerland, and Vincenzo Madonna, Italy.

Joe Fogler, Brooklyn, and Clarence Carman, Jamaica.

Rudolph Ruddi-Busse, Austria, and Leon Van Der Stuyft, Belgium.

Willie Hanley, San Francisco, and Alfred Halstead, Sacramento.

George Sears, France, and Victor Linar, Belgium.

FAVORED BY WOMEN WHO LOVE TO DRIVE

Mrs. Harlo R. Grant, 3059 Washington Boulevard, is one of the many Chicago women of social prominence who delight in driving an

EIGHT CYLINDER KING

"It is so big, safe and dependable," wrote Mrs. Grant, "and easy to manage—never a minute's trouble—no cranking or work of any kind. Because of its wonderful, noiseless eight cylinder motor, I can go faster than I'd care to, then slow down till the car barely moves, without shifting gears. And it is handsome—everybody admires its lines, and honest, substantial appearance."

Formerly $1350, now $1150 F.O.B. Detroit

Consider this a personal invitation to ride in a King. Then, by experience you will understand why the King "Eight" at $1150 is the choice of so many people who are well able to pay more.

You are going to buy a car anyway. Why wait until spring? The time of all the year when you need a car most is in the winter months to come, and the car you will enjoy most is this perfect winter and summer car—the new Jeffery Sedan with the double body.

We have made special arrangements to take care of you with one of these cars, as late as it is. The Jeffery factory is but one hour from Chicago and, if you have your order now, we can still have one of these cars ready for you Christmas, without fail, as you want it—with your monogram on the doors—the most marvelously beautiful and luxurious enclosed car you have ever dreamed of. We can arrange to have the car delivered to your home Christmas morning if you wish.

Be a Real Santa Claus This Year

The Jeffery Demountable Sedan already has changed all old time ideas of enclosed cars. It is a Sedan body, built on a new idea, in two pieces, so the upper part may be taken off in the spring and the regular summer top substituted. Both portions of the body are built and fitted together at the Jeffery plant and it should not be confused with makeshift tops added to open car bodies.

It cannot be distinguished from the most costly old type enclosed body, yet the added cost is but $165. It is the first enclosed car of its quality to sell for less than $2000, yet the price is but $1165.

To have your car ready for Christmas delivery you will have to act at once, however. Call, write or phone NOW. We shall be glad to show it to you at any time, any place.

'ECKIE' NAMES FOUR OF WEST FOR ALL-STARS

Chamberlain, Buck, Dunnigan, and Bierman on All-Americans.

BY WALTER H. ECKERSALL.

Following the sounding of taps after the playing of the Army-Navy game, which closed the most successful football season in the last decade, writers and critics of the gridiron game will attempt to do their usual duty in honoring the best players in the country by selecting an All American team—this aggregation to be composed of players who have been of the most value to their respective elevens.

An impromptu meeting of coaches, officials, and former football players was held at the Hotel Astor on the eve of the annual battle between the Army and Navy elevens. The consensus was that the brand of football played by western elevens this season was equal to that displayed in the east, and several even argued that the western article was superior to that produced by eastern aggregations.

Following such opinions, which were unsolicited by the writer, it is only fair to consider some of the western players whom eastern critics have not seen in action in the selection of an All American eleven. The four western performers picked undoubtedly could make any eleven in the country. They have played stellar and consistent football all season and should receive recognition from eastern critics and writers.

Western Stars Play in East.

There have been many star football players on eastern elevens who were western products. Pudge Heffelfinger, former Yale player, still considered one of the greatest guards in the history of the game—although he played years ago—and Tom Shevlin, former Yale end, are from Minneapolis. Elmer Oliphant, former Purdue player, now of West Point, who defeated the Navy single handed and who never was even mentioned as an All American selection when at Purdue, is now boosted for a half back position for the simple reason that eastern critics have seen him in action and know his value to a team.

As brought out in previous articles regarding all star selections, such an eleven must be fortified in all departments of offensive and defensive football. It must have the combination of the old and new game, must be fortified with kickers and forward passers and players of football intelligence. The team named possesses all these gridiron essentials, with the west awarded its fair quota of representation. None will dispute the choice of Barrett of Cornell as quarter back and captain. The leader of the big Red eleven piloted his team through the entire season without defeat. He used rare judgment in directing his attacks and was a factor in every victory won by Cornell.

Barrett Star on Offense.

On offense, Barrett carried the ball on direct passes from the center whenever Cornell needed ground. He generally made the needed distance. When he was in doubt he booted the ball out of danger. He was equally strong in plunging through the line or running the ends and a valuable man in the interference. On defense he played full back position. He caught punts in faultless fashion and was ever on the alert to intercept forward passes. He also was a deadly tackler.

Lamberton of Princeton is placed at right end, particularly because of his playing in the Yale and Harvard struggles, although he showed stellar work in other games. Eastern officials agree he is one of the best wing men seen in the east in a number of years. They assert he knows all the fine points of the position and was a powerful factor in preventing the Tigers from suffering worse defeats at the hands of their time honored rivals.

Left end position is awarded to Chamberlain of Nebraska. The Cornhusker is a player whom the eastern critics and writers have not seen, but if they had the opportunity to take slants at his play in the Notre Dame and Iowa games they undoubtedly would consider him as a candidate.

Chamberlain Speedy End.

Chamberlain is 6 feet 2 inches tall, weighs 194 pounds, and runs the length of the field in football togs around 10 1-5. In track regalia he has covered the century in even time on several occasions. He is the type of end who would fit into the machinery of any eleven in the country. He can run the ends, hit the line, and can throw forward passes half the length of the field with nearly the accuracy of a baseball. In the Notre Dame game, which resulted in a 20 to 19 victory for the Cornhuskers, Chamberlain made a pass of forty-five yards, one of the longest completed throws on record. His defensive playing is in accord with his offensive play.

Gilman of Harvard, looked upon by Crimson men as one of the best linemen in the last ten years, is placed at right tackle. The Harvard athlete is over six feet tall and tips the scales at close to 200 pounds. Despite his weight, he is a fast, active player who knows all the points of the offensive and defensive play of the position.

Spears of Dartmouth is selected for right guard. The Hanover lineman has been a tower of strength offensively and defensively to his team for the last two years. He has seldom been held on even terms by an opponent this season and, in some cases, the coach of the opposing eleven has arranged his offense in such a way that two men were delegated to take care of him. He was fast and active and generally mixed in every play.

The pivot position is given to Cool of Cornell, one of the best centers seen by the writer since the days of Germany Schulz, former Michigan player who was an All-American selection in 1906. In the Cornell-Michigan game the Ithacan was all over the field. On offense he rushed through the Wolverine line to take off one of the secondary defense after he had passed the ball. He did the same after he had thrown the oval to Barrett for the latter to kick. He made innumerable tackles on these kicks, and they were not of the arm and neck type, either. On defense he played open center and several times was of great assistance to the ends in checking the best planned Yost plays. His passing was faultless.

Dunnigan of Minnesota is awarded the left guard position because of reliable playing in all Minnesota games, the results of which placed the Gophers in a tie with Illinois for the western conference honors. Dunnigan has all the qualifications for the position.

That Buck of Wisconsin, selected for left tackle, will receive consideration from eastern authorities is assured. In fact, a number of critics who already have named their honorary elevens have placed him on their first team. Suffice to say, he is one of the best tackles seen in the west in years.

Bierman Placed at Half.

Bierman of Minnesota is placed at right half back. He is a powerful line plunger, a good end runner, valuable in the interference, and a good kicker. His defensive play was equal to his offensive work, and it would be an unfair matter to keep him off any eleven.

Tibbott, Princeton's main ground gainer, is placed at left half back. The Tiger is a player of the Bierman type. He weighs in the neighborhood of 175 pounds and has the physique and stamina to stand the mauling of hard fought contests. He is a remarkable drop kicker and was the main factor in Princeton's victories over Dartmouth, Syracuse, and Rutgers.

Capt. Mahan of Harvard should be the unanimous choice for full back. The Crimson player performed in Ted Coy fashion, being of the all around type of football man. There was nothing on the gridiron that he could not do and do well.

With either Mahan or Tibbott to do the field goal kicking, Barrett the punting and forward passing, Chamberlain and Tibbott to run the ends, and Mahan and Bierman to plunge through the line, the combination named would be hard to stop and would be equally strong on the defense.

FOLDS GETS BEST SCORE IN SHOOT

A strong wind blowing off the lake yesterday made high scores impossible in the weekly shoot of the Sportsmen's club at Lincoln park. Charles W. Folds made his first appearance on the grounds and led the field with 88. Of the professionals Murry Ballou was high with 92. W. D. Stannard, also a professional, was the only one to turn in a perfect score of 25. Scores:

Event No. 1, 100 targets—Charles W. Folds, 88; J. Gooch, 83; Murry Ballou, 92; W. Duvall, 70; W. H. Fisher, 46; L. W. Jones, 69; Dr. Hooper, 68; M. E. Bosley, 83; W. D. Stannard, 87; L. B. Clarke, 82; W. R. Clifford, 81; Dr. Belknap, 77; J. Day, 52; W. Graham, 70.

MISSOURI VALLEY SLAPS AT SUMMER BASEBALL PLAYING.

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 4.—The Missouri Valley conference closed its annual meeting today after deciding that a college student will be considered a professional if he plays baseball for money during the summer. No action was taken on the suggestion that college men be allowed to compete during the summer under the colors of various athletic clubs. Thanksgiving day football games were allowed.

INDORSE CHICAGO PLANS.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—A resolution was adopted in the annual meeting of the Interlake Yachting association today, indorsing the movement in Chicago, originated by the Associated Yacht and Power Boat Club of America, to form an organization similar to the Interlake to take care of the Western Power Boat clubs. The reading of a letter from Robert E. Power, editor of the Power Boating magazine of Chicago, regarding the frequent changes of power boat rules to meet the constant advancement in building boats and engines, caused considerable discussion but no definite action was taken. There were twenty-one clubs represented at the meeting.

KOHLEMAIEN LEADS IN RUN.

New York, Dec. 4.—Hannes Kolehmainen, champion cross country runner, added to his laurels today by winning the Metropolitan cross country championship, six miles, in 32:53. The Irish-American A. C. won the team prize.

E. C. PATTERSON PICKS ALL-STAR ELEVEN OF WEST

Play More Consistent than in East, Says Collier's Expert; Russell Chosen.

BY E. C. PATTERSON.
[In Collier's of Dec. 11.]

Football in the middle west not only maintained a high average of excellence this last season but it achieved an even more noteworthy claim to consideration; for it maintained also a high average of consistency where in most other football sections of the country upsets were more frequent than anything else.

Football, under the new game, where there is such constant handling of the ball, has come to a place where uncertainty rules almost as largely as it does in baseball. In the east, for example, Princeton beat Syracuse 3 to 0, Syracuse beat Colgate 38 to 0, Colgate beat Yale 15 to 0, yet Yale downed Princeton 13 to 7.

Play to Form in Big Nine.

In the west, and especially in the Western conference, there was very little of this amazing weirdness of form shifts. Illinois and Minnesota were regarded early as the two best teams in the conference. They met and fought to a well matched draw. And then after this both proceeded to defeat Chicago and Wisconsin without any great amount of trouble. Illinois, with her full strength on the field, had slightly the bettter team, but on the season's results the conference championship must be divided between Illinois and Minnesota. Both had very fine elevens, well coached by Zuppke and Williams, and both were blessed not only with speed and power but with varieties of play.

Outside of the conference draw, Nebraska had an exceptionally good season with a high class machine to send against her opponents, but no just comparison can be made, as Nebraska failed to meet any of the conference leaders.

Maroons Prove Surprise.

While Minnesota and Illinois ran true to form, Chicago and Wisconsin furnished surprises. Wisconsin was a disappointment, just as Wisconsin has been before with material that looked first class. And Chicago, rated well below most of the others early in the campaign, did much better than even her most ardent partisans had ever hoped for, again showing the genius of Coach Stagg. Few thought Chicago had a chance against Wisconsin, yet Stagg surprised the talent by winning one of the hardest games fought in the west.

Michigan probably was the biggest disappointment of them all. Before the season began Coach Yost looked for a successful year. But at the finish he had known the worst season in all Michigan history, having been crushed by M. A. C. and Cornell and having lost to Syracuse, with only a scoreless tie at Philadelphia against Pennsylvania. Cornell ran up the largest score against Michigan ever made under the Yost régime. The climax came when Michigan was unable to score on Pennsylvania, a team that had lost most of its games in the east and some against much smaller colleges and universities.

Games Draw Big Crowds.

Football interest was never keener than through the season just closed. Crowds ranging from 18,000 to 25,000 saw the leading games played in Chicago, Minneapolis, and Madison, and there was always sufficient amount of open play to keep the spectators at high tension.

THE ENDS—In selecting an all-western team there was probably a better balanced field to pick from than many seasons had shown before. In any number of instances there were three or four men for each place with only a slight margin between the leaders and those next in line.

This is shown in considering the ends. Squier of Illinois and Baston of Minnesota were the two leaders, yet Quist of Minnesota and Chamberlain of Nebraska were only a stride behind.

Many critics considered Baston one of the greatest ends that ever played in the west, yet he had no margin over Squier, the Illinois star, who worked at a disadvantage early in the year through injuries, but who finished with even more brilliance than he showed last year. Both Baston and Squier were powerful defensive players, good at turning in end runs or smashing off tackle plays. Both were fine blockers and tacklers, and Baston was a first class man, carrying the ball on the many Minnesota shift plays where the ends were called upon frequently for offensive work.

Many Stars at Tackle.

THE TACKLES—The selection of the two tackles is an even harder problem. Among the leaders there were Buck of Wisconsin, Rundquist of Illinois, Shull of Chicago, Petty of Illinois, Randolph of Northwestern, and Boughton of Ohio State.

Buck was the best tackle in the west and one of the greatest in the land. He was both big and shifty, with a fund of experience, and it was almost impossible to start a successful drive through his position. His play carried both versatility and power, and on several occasions the score against Wisconsin would have run much higher except for his alertness at stopping the attack.

Next to Buck comes Rundquist of Illinois, another alert, strong tackle who played his position well above normal ability. Rundquist had little over Shull of Chicago, but what advantage there was belonged to the Illinois star, who was a big factor in his team's success. Buck and Rundquist belong to the fast, shifty school of tackles who cover more than their share of ground and who work equally well breaking through on defense and opening up for their backs upon attack.

Picks Blocker and Dunnigan.

THE GUARDS—Blocker of Purdue and Dunnigan of Minnesota are the two first selections [illegible] the guard positions. Their play was wonderfully consistent all the season. Blocker was one of the best all around forwards in the west. He has played center, guard, and tackle for Purdue, and has played all three positions well, showing unusual versatility. He was faster than the average guard and a good man at sizing up the attack quickly and charging to meet it.

Dunnigan of Minnesota gets the other guard position, although he has not drawn as much experience as some of the others. But the Minnesota lineman was a hard, consistent player, one who met each attack strongly and one who, like Blocker, was quick to diagnose the play.

Among other first class guards were Sinclair of Minnesota, Hanschman of Illinois, Stromberg of Northwestern, Barron of Iowa, and Stewart of Illinois. But none of these quite came up to all-around worth of the two selected.

Watson Best at Center.

CENTER—Watson of Illinois was the best center in the middle west. His play was consistent throughout, as he had but one bad pass in the season's big games.

Watson stands as an accurate passer despite the fact that no man was called upon for a greater variety of passing. In the numerous Illinois shifts he was called upon for short, quick passes and for much longer ones, requiring great steadiness and coolness under fire. Watson was also equally alert upon attack and defense. He could always be depended upon to feed the ball to the backs in the right way, one of the main requisites for first class center play.

Hanson of Minnesota ranks next to Watson, and the Badger was not very far behind. Fisher of Chicago was another high class center, but not quite good enough to displace a player of Watson's worth.

Pete Russell at Quarter.

QUARTER BACKS—The west as usual had more than its share of fine quarter backs. The main battle for first place rested between Russell of Chicago and Clark of Illinois. Upon actual ability there was very little to choose, as both were stars. Clark was handicapped by injuries, playing in nearly all the games with an aluminum mask that protected his broken jaw. He was a finished quarter back, but not quite the equal of Russell, who played in every contest and who with a much weaker team showed a mixture of brilliant and consistent play that gives him the award.

Clark and Russell were not the only good quarter backs in the west. Driscoll of Northwestern, Long of Minnesota, Gross of Iowa, Whitaker of Indiana, and E. Simpson of Wisconsin are other good men. But none of these showed quite the polish and finish and all around value of the Maroon veteran, who was the mainstay of his eleven and who was even better in the big games under hard fire than in most of the other contests.

Macomber and Maulbetsch.

HALF BACKS—Pogue of Illinois, one of the most brilliant half backs developed in the west in a long time, was forced out through injuries too often to be considered. Macomber of Illinois is not only a star running back but combines the other essentials for first class play. Macomber knew how to use his toe as well as his legs and his head. He was a kicker of unusual ability, saving his team from defeat in the Ohio State game through a field goal. Macomber was also good at the forward passing game, and a half back with all this versatility can hardly be overlooked.

Nor can Maulbetsch of Michigan be passed up because the rest of his team happened to be so very far below average form. Maulbetsch was as great a line plunger as ever when given the chance, but, as he himself remarked, "It is hard to gain ground when you are tackled by three men before the ball is passed." Where Maulbetsch showed vast improvement was upon defensive play. Here he was at least 50 per cent better than ever before, making the majority of tackles in the Cornell, Syracuse, and Pennsylvania games.

Macomber and Maulbetsch would make an ideal pair to carry the ball and to fit in various attacking combinations. Not for behind either is Byers of Wisconsin, who was one of the most consistent ground gainers in the west.

Bierman a Great Full Back.

FULL BACK—The best full back in the west was Bierman of Minnesota. With Solon disqualified, the Minnesota captain played the position to the eminent satisfaction of his team and his coach. He was the best line plunger in his section, hitting the line not only with power but with the added faculty of picking the right hole to travel through. Bierman belonged to the alert, open eyed type of full back who doesn't plunge in blindly, but who knows where to run.

Wyman of Minnesota gets second place, with Patterson of Northwestern deserving mention. It isn't often one team has two men so capable of playing the full back position so well.

No Weak Spot on Team.

THE ROUNDUP—This All-Western team would stand as one of the best selected in a long time.

It would have a fine line flanked by two exceptional guards. Defensively this line would have unusual aid in Maulbetsch, Bierman, and Macomber. Any opposing eleven, however strong, would find the task of gaining ground a difficult assignment. In Russell it would have a fine field general and a quarter back of keen ability along all lines.

MAJORS SCHEME TO CIRCUMVENT FREAK PITCHES

Plan Legislation to Head Off Illegal Deliveries Like Emery or Mud Ball.

BY I. E. SANBORN.

Concerted action to discourage the efforts of pitchers to invent new freak balls has been predicted for the annual meetings of the American and National leagues scheduled for next week. Few fans understand just why.

Its object is not to handicap pitchers by prohibiting the use of any legitimate method of increasing their skill, but to provide in advance, if possible, a means by which umpires can cope with any situation that may arise in future if a pitcher seeks to gain an unfair advantage by some method not at present forbidden by the rules. The chief reason is that the introduction of these freak kinds of delivery usually lengthens the time between pitches, and it already has been discovered that most of the time wasted in a ball game is consumed by the pitcher.

Spitters Consume Time.

When two hurlers addicted to the spitball work against each other it has been proven that it requires considerably longer to play a nine inning game than when two men who depend entirely on curves and fast balls are opposed on the slab. The explanation is that it takes more time to moisten the ball for a "spitter" than it does to get ready to deliver a curve or fast ball. And although a pitcher may deliver only one spit ball in every dozen pitched, he must be equally deliberate every time he pitches, otherwise the batsmen would detect the difference.

So far as indicated in advance, it is not the intention of the rule makers to attempt to legislate the spitball out of baseball, as it would prove too severe a handicap on some of the hurlers and might even wreck some pitching staffs. But hurlers can be discouraged from inventing new ways to delay games.

Rule to Head Off Freaks.

The latest freaks have been eliminated simply by enforcing one of the existing rules, which forbids damaging or discoloring the ball in play. The emery ball and the mud ball were ruled out under that section of the playing code, but you never can tell when a pitcher will come back in the spring with a new one that will not violate existing rules. By heading this off no hardship will be done any pitcher.

Prohibiting the emery ball put Russell Ford out of business. This former Yankee star owed his prominence to his discovery of a freak, which he kept secret for several seasons, with the help of Eddie Sweeney, his catcher. Not until Ford jumped to the Federal league did the real secret of his peculiar delivery become generally known. Then every pitcher began experimenting with it, but the magnates jumped in and put on the lid before it became general. The emery ball required roughening a small spot on the cover of the ball, and Ford used a piece of emery paper to scratch the horsehide's surface. Hence the name. The ball would break "in," "out," or "down," according to the location of the rough spot when it left the pitcher's hand.

Mud Ball a Variation.

The mud ball was merely a variation of the emery ball, and worked on the same principle. George McConnell of the Whales has been credited with its discovery, but the origination of the idea belongs to Jim Lavender of the Cubs. Lavender was one of the first to pick up the emery ball when its secret was disclosed, and he had acquired pretty fair control of it before it was ruled out. That was in the summer of 1914.

Last spring Lavender showed up at Tampa with a new method of pitching the emery ball which he thought might get by. During the winter Jimmy discovered that by wetting a small spot on the cover, then touching that spot to the ground, enough dirt or sand would adhere to the ball to make it act in the same way as if the cover had been roughened with emery.

Lavender's Scheme Spiked.

He demonstrated his discovery to Manager Bresnahan and a bunch of us, and claimed to be able to deliver that mythical thing, a "raise," simply by holding the ball with the mud spot on top. It did look as if this delivery overcame the natural force of gravitation, at that. But Manager Bresnahan spiked Lavender's idea instantly by declaring that the umpires would stop him immediately on the ground that he was intentionally discoloring the ball; and that prognostication proved correct.

McConnell was a member of the Cub squad in Tampa, and gained the idea, which afterward was heralded as the mud ball, from Lavender.

The spit ball imbedded itself firmly in baseball because there was no rule forbidding it. Its delivery did not discolor or damage the ball in any way except to make it more difficult for the fielders to throw, and that handicapped the team in the field, so could not be forbidden on the ground of unfairness.

Big Moose Masters Spitter.

Although he was not the originator of the idea, Ed Walsh is the man who really put the saliva into baseball, because he was the first to master that style of delivery sufficiently to make it deadly. Elmer Stricklett generally is credited with the discovery of the spit ball. He brought it to the White Sox training camp in Marlin, Tex., in the spring of 1904, the year Ed Walsh joined the team. But Stricklett had not perfected the delivery, and was not strong enough to make it highly effective, although he later had considerable success with it in Brooklyn. Jack Chesbro of the New York Yankees picked up the same idea and began working with the spit ball, but did not master it that year. In fact, he pitched away the game that would have won the pennant for New York that fall and gave it to Boston instead on a wild spit ball.

Walsh had a world of speed and nothing else when he broke into the Sox camp, and on the advice of Fielder Jones and Billy Sullivan took up the spit ball.

TY COBB LEADS A. L. SLUGGERS FOR NINTH TIME

Detroit Star Never Deposed as Swat King Since He Broke Into the Majors.

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

A glance at the official American league batting averages just released indicates that Tyrus Raymond Cobb, the famous Detroit outfielder, is even better than ever. The figures show him as leading batsman once more and it is the ninth successive season which he has led them all. In fact, he has led the hitting ever since he started as a regular in the major league, from 1907 to 1915 inclusive. His mark this season is .370, which is thirty-eight points better than Eddie Collins, the White Sox star, who gets credit for second place.

Besides continuing his tremendous batting stride, Cobb set a new American league record for stolen bases, his total this year reaching ninety-six. The best previous mark was eighty-eight, made by Clyde Milan of the Washington club in 1912.

Cobb Excelled Only Twice.

In Cobb's nine years his batting mark has been excelled only twice, but in neither case did his opponent play in enough games to deserve credit of leadership for the season. In 1908 Dode Criss, pinch hitter and pitcher for the St. Louis Browns, had a higher mark, but was at bat only eighty-two times. In 1910 Joe Jackson had Cobb's mark bested by 7 points, but had been up to hit only seventy-five times.

While Eddie Collins deserves credit for second place in 1915 with a .332 average, he was below Gregg of Boston and W. Davis and Thompson of Philadelphia, but none of the three appeared often enough to be considered. The little Sox second baseman excelled Cobb in one particular. He led the league in bases on balls with a total of 119. Cobb was tied with Shotton of St. Louis and Bush of Detroit with 118.

Fournier Tied for Third.

It is noteworthy that a White Sox player shared in the honor of finishing third in hitting, for next to Eddie Collins one finds the names of Jack Fournier of the White Sox and Tris Speaker of the Red Sox, each with an average of .322. Joe Jackson, who was a White Sox player for the last half of the season, is rated about eighth in the league with a mark of .308.

In contrast to the marks of other seasons, the White Sox, as a team, finished third in batting with an average of .258. Detroit was first, 10 points better than the south siders, and Boston was second with .260.

HERZOG TO QUIT AS RED LEADER?

Cincinnati, O., Dec. 4.—The Commercial Tribune today publishes a story to the effect that it is more than an even money bet that Charles L. Herzog will not return as the 1916 manager of the Cincinnati Reds. "The report is not idle rumor," so the story goes, "but the general consensus of belief expressed by men either directly or indirectly connected with the local club.

"The chief reason for a change in management is no doubt the bitter dislike many Red players have for the Maryland cantaloupe king. It seems not to be the familiar aloofness and suspicion that certain ball players always feel for their manager, but a deep rooted dislike founded upon what the players term his harshness, his sarcasm, unfairness, and the fury of his tongue.

"The men cherishing such feelings are among the most intelligent and likeable on the club, and their combined voice necessarily must be harkened to. They say that Herzog's abuse and that alone drove Marsans to the Feds. Calmly and without fear they swear so long as Herzog is at the head of the club just so long will they refuse to sign Cincinnati contracts."

The story goes on further to say that Jack Hendricks, manager of the Indianapolis American association club, and Tommy Leach are being considered for the managership in case Herzog is let out. Herzog will be sent to some club suitable to him. He would be willing to play in either Chicago, Brooklyn, or Boston.

COMISKEY DENIES FOURNIER TRADE

Baseball managers of the American league are trying to talk Charley Comiskey into the mood of trading Jack Fournier, the hard hitting French boy of the White Sox. However, indications are that Comiskey will listen to none of the pleas.

The latest report is that Branch Rickey, leader of the St. Louis Browns, is coming to Chicago in a few days for the express purpose of making a Brownie of Jack. Owner Comiskey of the south side team was told of the report yesterday and his answer was short and decisive. "No chance."

President Johnson of the American league yesterday confirmed the report that he was going to Cleveland to fix up matters with that club, but denied the report that the Indians were for sale.

"I think matters will be fixed up all right so that Charley Somers will remain at the head of the club," said Johnson. "The report that Jim McAleer was trying to buy the club is unfounded, and I think conditions over there are not so bad as reported. I shall go over there in a few days to talk matters over with Somers and his creditors and feel positive that there will be no change."

Excommunication of Robert the Pious

REPRODUCTION OF A PAINTING by J. P. LAURENS

The Tribune has secured reproductions of the most famously beautiful pictures that, until fear of their destruction by Taube bombs caused them to be hidden, hung in the famous Luxembourg galleries in Paris. On this page is reproduced another of the series which will appear each week in The Sunday Tribune.

By ANNE ELLIS.

ROBERT, the son of the butcher, Hugues Capet, ascended the throne of France while Europe trembled under the belief that in 1000 the end of the world would come. It is not surprising that this fear overhung the feudal world, palsied as it was by constant strife, ruled by avarice, swayed by prejudice and superstition. It is small wonder that the new king, Robert, by education and for propitiation, was pious. He began his reign in mercy and gentleness. The chronicler says he was "Compleat both in body and mind, of a handsome stature, a sweet and grave air, a composed and sage humor, having been nurtured to piety and good learning."

He built fortresses and churches, fed his subjects with the money his predecessors had kept for their pleasures. He took the part of the serfs against the overlords and, according to the chronicle, he "delighted to sing and compose words and notes in honor of God and of his saints." But Robert was not only pious, also he was fearless. In the constant and fierce wars for power he helped the weak against the strong—in the councils of the barons he was for justice against might. Before he had been long on the throne peace ruled in France. He was beloved. There was order out of chaos. And then came the woman.

She was Berthrada, sister of Rudolph of Burgundy and widow of Eudes I., earl of Chartres. There were two reasons why Robert could not marry Berthrada. First, as the chronicler expresses it, "He had held a child with her at the holy font," and, second, she was his cousin. But Berthrada would be queen, and Robert loved her.

Hoping that the bishops of France would remember his piety he called them in council and set his woes and his desires before them. And partly because of his piety and partly because the clergy of the times were baronial and loved his steadfast ways, they agreed to grant him a dispensation. All but Abbon, abbot of Fleury, an obdurate man, who said that the canonical obstructions could not thus be set aside. In spite of him Robert and the fair Berthrada were wed. Then the chronicler resumes: "The abbot of Fleury bestirred himself with much heat to have the marriage dissolved. Over the Alps came the legate of the pope to excommunicate the bishops who authorized it and the two contracting parties provided they did not separate forthwith. But Berthrada clung to Robert and he refused to put her by. Again came the legate and for this disobedience brought the dire interdict of the church to all France."

The faith which later earned for France the title of eldest daughter of the church was already the motive power of her people—so humble did they submit to the interdict that even the personal servants of the king deserted him. Berthrada's maid alone remained to serve the royal pair, and she threw whatever came from their table to the dogs, considering it unholy to eat the meat that they had touched. And now the queen, according to the miracle-mongers, gave birth to a monster. Some historians say that it was for this proof of heaven's disapproval that Robert put Berthrada by, but others, remembering the journey the two took to Rome to appeal to the pope, say that it was because he was moved by the humility and the suffering of his subjects.

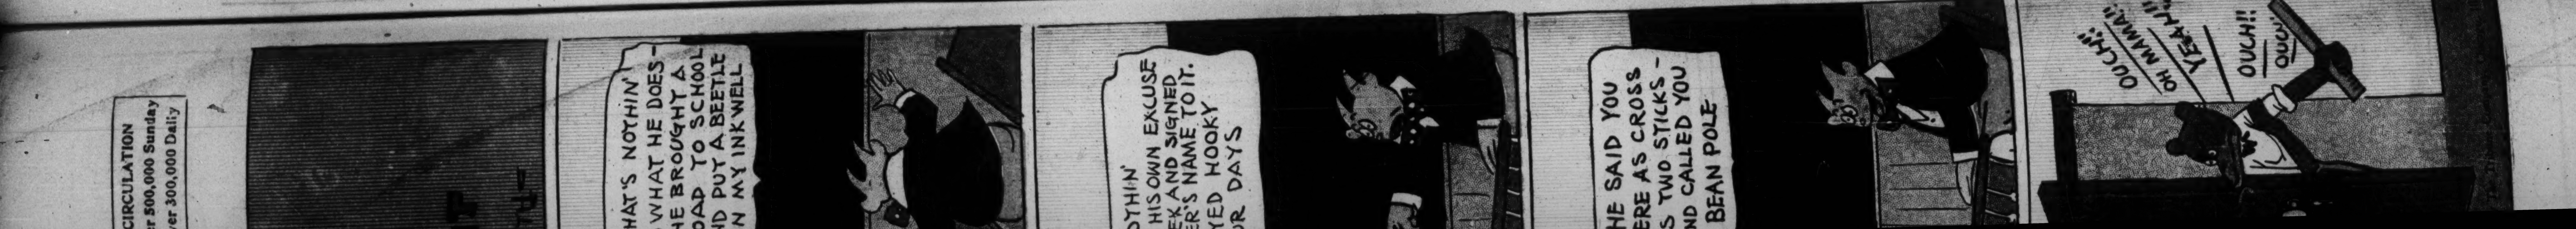
Whatever was his motive it certainly was not love for the woman he afterwards married. Constance, called Blanch, is an historical example of cruelty.

Jean Paul Laurens, the painter of this picture, has been called the painter of death. He delighted in the earlier part of his career in the morbid, in tragedy of a lurid sort. He has painted the death scene of Cato, Tiberius, Maximilian, and many other tragi-grewsome incidents historical. Later this love for the grewsome was transmuted into the love of the melodramatic, and most of his pictures, as is this particular example, are the outcome of the pleasure he took in this taste. He came into fame by a sort of flip of the coin of chance plus one happy sale.

In 1863 the French government organized a famous exposition called the "Refusee." It was for the purpose of encouraging a group of young artists whom the intolerance of the critics had barred from the salons on account of their leaning toward radicalism, anathema in those days. Among the Refusee were Harpignies, Fantin-Latour, Whistler, Cazin, and others. Laurens, too—although he was less radical than the rest. A connoisseur after seeing his work at the exposition bought one of his pictures and the two circumstances were the beginning of his success.

Before the Refusee he had wandered from place to place with a band of traveling painters—with a meal today, two tomorrow, and none the next day. Decorating churches, painting statuary, now in the cities, now in the country, sure of nothing but ambition and lavish of nothing but talk. Now two of his pictures hang in the Luxembourg, an honor for which most artists would gladly give up ten years of their lives. One is the "Men of the Holy Office" and the other the "Excommunication of Robert the Pious."

Next week another painting from the Luxembourg galleries will be reproduced.



The FLIGHTS of FRANCOIS

A JEST THAT SAVED

by Victor Rousseau

The Courageous L'Anglois, Snubbed But Still Indomitable, Goes Biplaning to Calais in Search of a Porter for Gen. French. He Captures One and Returns to Find Himself a Diplomat of Highest Merit—Although He Did Not Mean to Be.

"IT is a high honor, L'Anglois, and bestowed upon you in recognition of your services to France," were the words that Gen. Joseph Joffre had deigned to extend to me. Apparently he had forgotten them, for subsequently he reproved me angrily, stating that I had been selected for the honor inasmuch as I was the only member of the aviation corps with enough knowledge of English to be qualified to assist Gen. Sir French.

Ma foi, I appreciated the distinction; but I did not appreciate becoming Sir French's body servant. I grant that the English leader may not have known that I, François L'Anglois, was of the volunteer section and not a regular soldier. Still, it was a degradation, and only my duty to France sustained me in this new rôle that had been thrust upon me.

Gen. Joffre had summoned me to his tent one morning and addressed me thus: "You will fly to Montcourt, on the right flank of the Fifth corps, arriving there at 7 this evening, and take into your machine an English officer of high rank, whom you will convey to my headquarters."

Then followed the compliment to which I have referred. And when I met the English officer I recognized him at once as Gen. Sir French, the commander of our insular allies.

Immediately I understood that a situation of tremendous importance for France had been precipitated. It was an open secret among the few of us who followed the course of events intelligently that Germany had approached France through the medium of an unimportant personage with a view to the cessation of hostilities, upon the basis that the Teuton should restore to France her stolen provinces. It was rumored, too, that Lord Gen. Kitchener had received with a frenzy of wrath the intimation of this news, and had sworn that if France even considered the terms he would withdraw every English soldier from French soil.

So much was current in the army. To reject the offer—yes, that was the duty of France, we all agreed. But to refuse to discuss it—that was another matter. Manifestly France, the light of civilization, could not allow herself to be domineered over by Kitchener. And the Englishman, having crossed the channel, was reported to be sulking, like Napoleon in his tent, in one of the northern cities, awaiting Gen. Joffre's reply.

Naturally there were both consternation and divided counsels among us all. Gen. Sir French was reported to be hurrying to a certain place to meet Gen. Joffre, with a view to acting as intermediary in the dispute. Gen. Pau and Gen. D'Amade were to assemble there also, to deliberate what answer should be returned to the British bulldog, and there were several minor officials, among them M. Viviani, the French prime minister, and M. Poincaré, the president of the republic.

No sooner, then, had I recognized Gen. Sir French as my passenger than I understood the crucial moment to be at hand.

Now I, François L'Anglois, am a man of quick likes and dislikes. As soon as I recognized my visitor it was my resolve to show him all that traditional courtesy of the Parisian. I bowed to him as though we were in some drawing room together; I clicked my heels and doffed my cap. Hurt and bewildered by his contemptuous stare, nevertheless I persisted in my endeavor to prove that the entente was more than a surface union of convenience. I set myself out to ascertain Sir French's views upon the duration of the war, with deference and humility. I spoke of the regeneration of Russia, the noble courage of England, and this in terms which would have won a Frenchman's heart. But since he only stared at me the harder, and began to grunt, I took as cordial a dislike toward him as I realized he had taken to me.

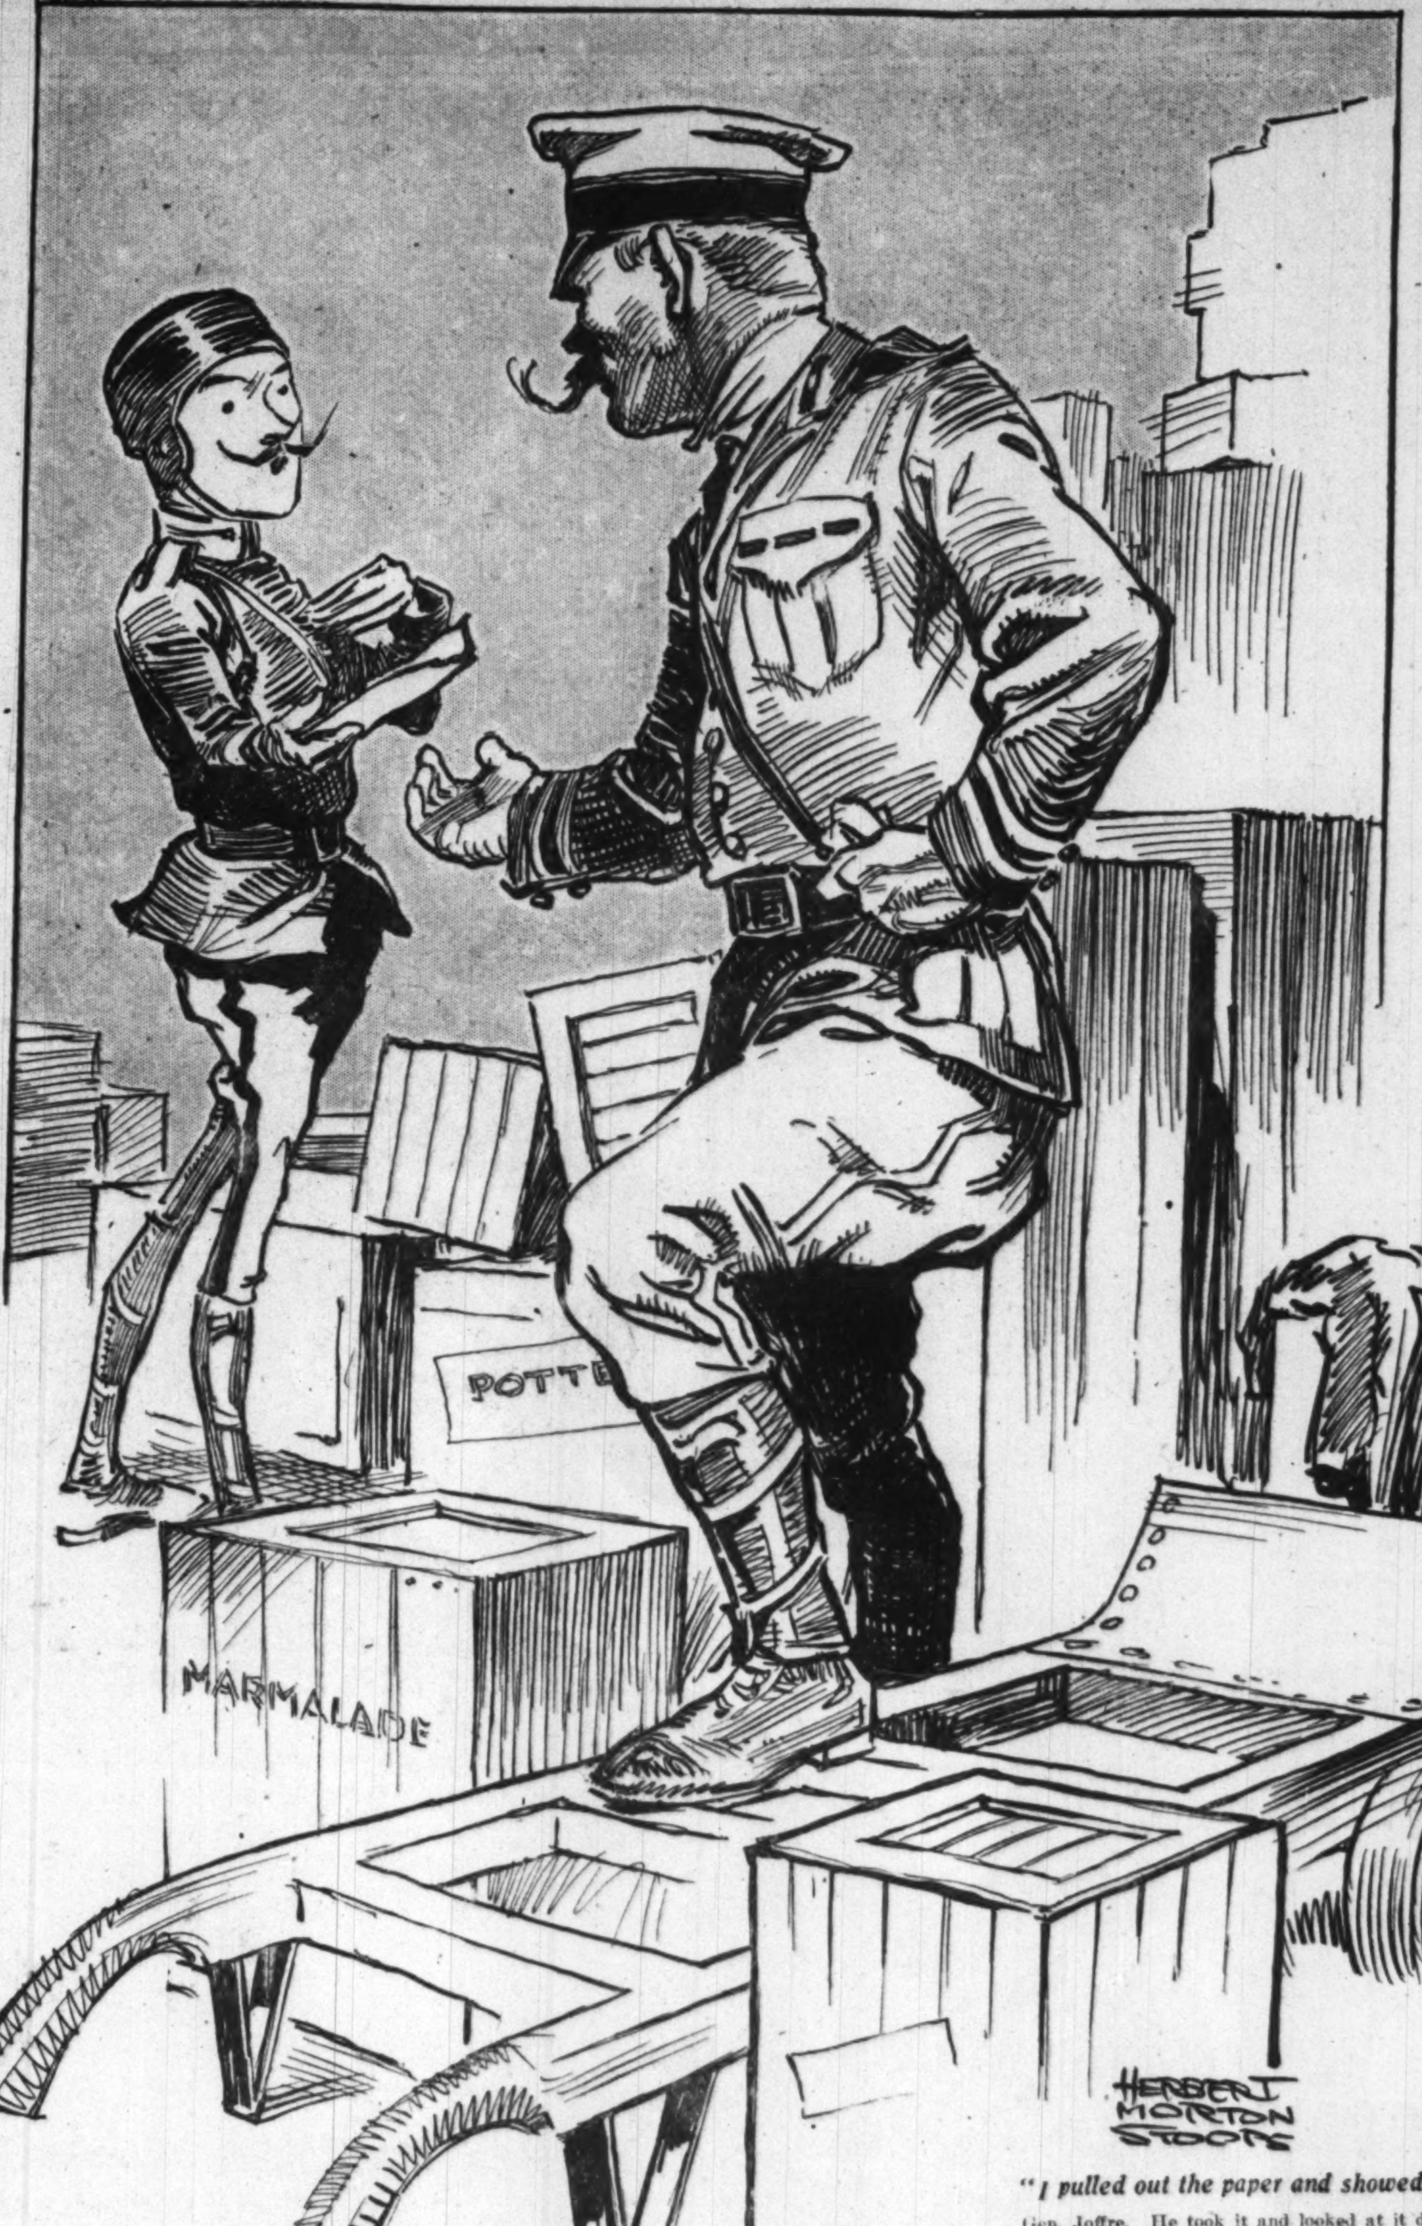
Ma foi, what is it in two men that makes them friends or enemies at a glance? I did not like Sir French; there was about him something of the unsympathetic, the isolated, the self-absorbed. I imagined that the vexation which he was trying so vainly to conceal must be due to some similar opinion which he held of me. I tried once more to soften his ill humor. I uttered a mot, I told a drollery. But at the last he turned on me with so fierce a gesture that I lapsed into silence. Never a word passed his lips, and by the time I deposited him at the headquarters of Gen. Joffre I realized what instinct had always tried to teach me—that the alliance between France and the islanders was a crime against nature. And I swore that never, if I could help it, should Gen. Joffre send a soft answer to Kitchener and beg him to come to the conference.

Judge, then, the depth of my disgust when Sir French, having greeted Gen. Joffre and made arrangements for the discussion on the morrow, looked upon me as his servant and asked me to fill the portable bath tub which had been sent on by automobile.

It was my feigned stupidity that brought down on me the rebuke from Gen. Joffre to which I have alluded. However, he softened his aspersion by adding: "It is a high honor that has been bestowed upon you, L'Anglois, for you will understand how necessary it is that Gen. Sir French should have only trusted men about him. You will, then, obey him in all things most scrupulously, for the honor of France."

Could I, after those words, do anything but obey when Gen. Sir French directed me to take out his pajamas and to affix a fresh collar to his shirt for the morrow? I ground my teeth, but I obeyed. And all that evening, as the other members of the conference came in, one by one, in automobiles, Gen. Paul Pau and Gen. D'Amade, and MM. Poincaré and Viviani, I listened to the greetings with my face set and my teeth gnashed as I scrubbed the boots of Sir French for the glory and honor of France.

I pass to the next morning. I have handed Sir French his boots, in which he can see his bulldog of a face, so brightly they shine. I have put a fresh collar upon his shirt. I have folded up his pajamas and handed them to his chauffeur, who grins despicably. Now I am waiting in his room, not having been told to go, and being desirous of obeying him scrupulously. Within the adjacent room the conference is assembling. Doubtless, when all is ready, they will lock the doors and thrust me outside. And yet, so strong are the passions already aroused, that they cannot refrain from the preliminary discussion of the situation.



"I pulled out the paper and showed it to him."

"To reject the Teuton's offer is my own advice," said Gen. Joffre, "but to be hectored in so summary a manner, as though Gen. Kitchener suspected me of intriguing with the enemy—my blood boils at it! I revolt instinctively. I cannot endure the humiliation, I, a Frenchman."

I paraphrase slightly, for Joffre's remarks were more restrained and less eloquent; yet they stirred me so that involuntarily I broke into muffled applause and called down maledictions upon Lord Kitchener.

"But it is his way," replied Sir French, my master, in soothing tone. "Remember, general, that we must not allow our personal feelings to stand in the way of duty."

"If he would come here," suggested Joffe, a little mollified. "If he would come, instead of waiting for me to ask him, thereby signifying acceptance of his terms. I tell you——"

Their voices died away for a time. Presently I heard Gen. Joffre resume: "As our discussion may be prolonged, we may as well have the lunch baskets brought in, to avoid interruption."

Meanwhile my blood was boiling again as I reflected upon the humiliation which this insatiable Kitchener demanded from Gen. Joffre. If I were he how I would spurn England, Kitchener, Sir French! They should be as the dust under my feet. I—

"Orderly!"

I entered at the voice of Joffre.

"L'Anglois, will you be so kind as to bring the lunch baskets from the car?" he asked.

"With alacrity, mon général!" I responded, and, hurrying out, returned with two baskets, one containing choice viands and the other clinking bottles. I placed these on the table, where the glasses already stood, and Gen. Joffre uncorked a bottle of champagne.

"Not for me, thanks," Sir French remarked, as Joffre, with exquisite courtesy, began to fill his glass.

"But, Sir French, what will you drink, then?" he inquired in consternation.

"Water will suit me very well," returned the islander. "The fact is, champagne disagrees with me. I never touch anything but stout, porter, or ale."

"Unfortunately—" began Joffre, when I interrupted.

"Pardon me, mon général, but I can procure for Sir French what he has demanded," I said.

"Trust a soldier for knowing where the liquors are to be had," said M. Poincaré, smiling.

I ignored his words. It is not for a civilian to jest at a soldier; on the other hand, I honored the company in which he found himself too much to show resentment.

"If you will sign a requisition, mon général," I began, hastily scribbling with a pen upon a pad of paper. What I wrote was this: "The bearer, M. François L'Anglois, of the volunteer section of the aviation corps, is fully authorized by me in his demands."

Gen. Joffre read it and smiled.

"If I did not know you, L'Anglois," he remarked, "I might suspect you were about to demand the treasures of the Louvre or the requisition of a dozen automobiles."

"Mon général," I returned stiffly, "never yet have I betrayed your confidence. In time of peril, when the instinct of France, noble and serene amid these turmoils, calls for the sacrifice—"

"There, that will do, L'Anglois," he answered, signing the paper and handing it back to me.

And so I left the cottage, and a moment later I heard some one pass through the room behind me and lock the door. The conference, so momentous for Europe, was in session. Outside were parked a half dozen automobiles, also my biplane. I stepped in, rose, circled once or twice above the roof, and then flew northward in the direction of Calais. There only could I hope to find what I required, for there was practically no civilian traffic in the nearer towns. Calais, however, being the terminus of the transchannel steamships, held out good prospects of supplying me.

How I laughed at the jest I planned! It was a three hours' flight to Calais, but the longer the journey lasted the more my drollery pleased me. Truly, it was epoch-making; it was the type of jest that goes down in history's pages. And Gen. Joffre had instructed me to obey Sir French scrupulously. Here was my opportunity to do so, and, at the same time, to demonstrate my disdain.

I had started about 11; I sighted Calais at 2, and beyond it, the level sea. I circled over the busy docks, dropping to a few hundred feet, so that the soldiers might see that it was a French biplane and not a Teuton with bombs; then, volplaning downward gracefully, I came to a halt in the open space before the railroad station.

Instantly an Englishman with a captain's stars on his shoulder came up to me.

"Who are you? Your business?" he demanded.

For answer I thrust out at him the paper signed by Gen. Joffre. He took it and looked at it dubiously.

"That isn't stamped or sealed," he said. "You will have to come to the office of the commandant."

With a shrug of my shoulder I left the biplane, which the captain had placed under the care of a soldier, and accompanied him to the commandant's office at the head of the dock. As the commandant was engaged for the time, we halted outside, and I looked at the busy scene before me.

I had never imagined such a sight. All along the length of the dock and in the streets everywhere, forming huge mountains of obstruction, through which men walked by narrow lanes, were piled the provisions for the English army. There were enough to feed ten million men. Gross eaters that the English are, it seemed impossible that they could consume one-tenth of all these supplies. Packing cases of all sizes and dimensions were piled head high. Here was an entire mountain of marmalade, here another of plum jam. Here were a thousand barrels labeled cheese. Here were bully beef and biscuits. Here was a little hill of mustard. Here was a great hill of pickles.

And, swarming everywhere among these mountains, were English soldiers of the army service corps, trundling cases on trucks from the station, shifting packages, and for all their efforts hardly making the least impression upon the masses of food destined for the coarse English stomachs. Hardened to war as I had become, it was, in its way, a revolting scene. The thought of the consumption of so much food sickened me. Yet it was fascinating to watch the men at work, orderly as bees, while a monster of a dock hand or porter, dressed in the common khaki of the English soldier, shouted instructions.

A few minutes later I was ushered into the office of the commandant. The captain, having explained the situation, handed the commandant my paper.

"What is your business here?" he asked me.

"To be fully authorized in my demands, according to the instructions of Gen. Joffre," I answered haughtily.

"But the nature of these demands?" he insisted.

"Those given through me by Gen. Joffre, monsieur."

I knew he was at a disadvantage, for it was clear that he had recognized the signature. I did not expect him to persist in questioning me, but I was unprepared for the extraordinary deference that he assumed.

"M. L'Anglois is acting according to his instructions," he said to the captain. "Do not let him be molested."

I bowed and went outside. Through the window of the commandant's office, which was a wooden structure erected temporarily at the head of the wharf, I saw him watching me. But, unconcerned, I set about my business.

I looked at the brawny, beefy overseer upon the dock. He was an elderly man, a little stout in build, just such a man as I required, I thought. My first idea had been to kidnap him, but, on regarding him more closely, as he towered above his men, I came to the conclusion that he would be too heavy for my machine, in case he offered resistance after we were inside. I considered him carefully and, approaching him a little more closely, saw him watching my movements with a certain approach to wrath.

"Who are you? What are you doing here? Have you an order to be on the wharf?" he inquired, in very fair French for an Englishman.

"I want you, monsieur," I answered.

He glowered at me. "What for?" he demanded bluntly.

"It is my purpose," I replied with a bow, "to take you for a ride in my biplane." With which I pulled out the paper and showed it to him.

He looked at it; he looked at me, and then at the piles of provision boxes. Then he put on his coat and stuck his handkerchief up his sleeve.

"When do you want to start?" he demanded.

"Immediately, monsieur," I said. "It is a three hours' journey and we cannot arrive now until 6 o'clock, by when it will be growing dark."

He accompanied me without a word along the wharf, past the office of the commandant, whom I saw still watching me, and to the biplane. And now, for the first time, a little fear was mingled with my amusement. This overseer was evidently of importance, having had superintendence of all the provisions that entered Calais. It might be that Gen. Joffre would not appreciate my enterprise. However, we were in the biplane. I placed the foreman at one extreme end, that his weight might counterbalance that of mine and the motor, and we started on our long journey.

And now, remembering the treatment I had received from Sir French, I was minded to show this fellow that I, too, could be English upon requirement.

"Tell me," he said presently, turning toward me and speaking with a tone of command, "what do you Frenchmen think of the long delay in moving forward? Is it understood in the ranks that the British army is already well toward organization and will be dispatched in the spring?"

I turned and glared at him; then, with a short grunt, such as Sir French had given me, I raised the vertical rudder, and we ascended.

I felt the Englishman's eyes burning a hole in my back. When he spoke again it was in tone singularly suave.

"I asked you two questions a little time ago," he said.

This time I grunted, in the manner of Sir French.

He moved in his seat, causing the biplane to tip. I swung half round, facing him.

"Sit down!" I roared. "I have no time to be bothered with Englishmen."

The giant collapsed in his place. When at last, overcome by curiosity, I looked at him again, his face wore a singular smile.

"I have never been spoken to in that manner in my life before," he said.

"We live and learn," I answered. "Thus it was that Gen. Sir French addressed me yesterday."

He nodded. "I understand. And you are repaying me in the same coin?"

"I wish a thousand devils would fly away with England and all her people," I cried angrily, still feeling the humiliation of my duties as Sir French's servant. "I tell you we French hate you and only look forward to the day when you will leave France. Do you think we fear your pompous, haughty, bulldog ways? When we Parisians meet a savage dog we muzzle him. Do you think it is pleasant for us to know that your Kitchener has threatened to abandon France unless Gen. Joffre demeans himself to him?"

"L'Anglois," he said, "you are the most extraordinary person that I have ever met."

"I am more than extraordinary, monsieur," I retorted.

"What, then?"

"A Parisian," I grunted, as Gen. Sir French had done.

After that there was silence. We sped the length of the Somme, behind the lines of France. Beneath us rattled the rifles, the guns boomed incessantly. Sometimes we saw little black figures crossing the fields, like ants, and falling down; the trenches were like winding ribbons underneath. I saw the old foreman's eyes dilate.

"You seem to like the sights of battle, monsieur," I said.

"I used to be a soldier in my younger days," he answered.

And now we were nearing the headquarters of Gen. Joffre. I saw the cottage, I shut off the motor, and in a magnificent volplane we descended. So accurately did I measure the course that we came to earth almost exactly in a line with the automobiles, and not ten paces from where the driver of Sir French's car still sat upon the box. He looked at me and began to grin maliciously. Then he looked at my companion and the grin died on his lips; he sat as if he were frozen.

"The conference continues?" I demanded.

He made no attempt to answer me. But that was the precise moment when the conference broke up. The door was opened and the inmates trooped out together—Gen. Joffre, Gen. D'Amade, Gen. Paul Pau, Sir French, and Messrs. Poincaré and Viviani. They saw us, and they seemed to stiffen just as the driver of the car had done.

It was one of those supreme moments of life which come to us once in a lifetime. Rarely is one sufficiently master of one's self to seize them. But I knew that I was master of the situation, and I advanced and spoke.

"I have fulfilled my task, mon général," I said.

"Name of a dog! What task?" shouted the old hero Joffre.

"I have accomplished the mission which was given to me, mon général. I have brought Sir French a porter. Pardon my delay, but it was essential that I should go to Calais to procure one, since that was the nearest point at which porters are now attached. I have obeyed the wish of Sir French scrupulously, mon général. Moreover, I have brought a stout porter, as I think was required of me."

But I could say no more, for the supreme audacity of the jest seized me and stifled me with emotion. I looked at Gen. Joffre; but he was not looking at me. He was staring at my companion.

"It is Lord Kitchener!" shouted Poincaré, civilian-like, unable to control himself.

"I am pleased to meet you, general," said my companion, advancing stiffly and bowing, then rendering the military salute. "I received your invitation sent through your orderly."

"My orderly!" exclaimed the hero. "The orderly of France, her savior, general! For I verily believe that François L'Anglois is the most crack brained fool in the whole army of France!"

WREST BE THE TIE THAT BINDS.

(This is the story of the woman behind—the wife of a hero of the screen. For perfectly apparent reasons her name is withheld.)

CHAPTER I.

TO Just Myself, Lonely Fireside, Homeland Desert.

Dear Just Myself: Dan and a company have gone away up in the northern woods of Canada to take a picture, and tonight I'm so desperately lonely I'm going to talk things out with you, Me. I like to write, and to express myself even on paper will be a relief. I feel so choked—suffocated, mentally panicky!

"To express myself will be a relief."

It doesn't seem possible that only two short years ago I was an ideally happy woman. It seems æons and æons ago. I can't realize that so many changes could take place in a space of twenty-four months. But the fact remains. Two years ago, in an ordinary little five room flat, doing my own work—all but the washing and ironing—tending the babies, and, on rare, rare occasions going out with Dan on a regular spree to a show with chop suey later—I was happy, while today, in my modern, garden flanked, servant attended bungalow, I'm more miserable than I ever thought would be possible for me to be—for I'm not naturally a dumpy person. I'd so much rather laugh through life than cry through it. It looks, though, as if I were to have no choice.

It was five years ago that I met Dan. He was working in a little stock company in St. Louis. The leading man who had been there when I joined was taken ill and Dan was given his place. I was only the ingenue, but from the moment our eyes first met it was a case of being able to see nobody else in the world after that. I wasn't a particularly good actress and had no delusions regarding myself, so, when Dan asked me if I'd be willing to marry him and quit work—he didn't believe in women in professional life—I never hesitated for a moment.

After we were married we boarded for a while, but, when I knew there was to be a third member of the family, I insisted on taking a tiny apartment. I'd always wanted a home of my own, but had been unable to gratify the desire, owing to circumstances thrust upon me by fate. Now there was nothing in the world to prevent. Accordingly we took the little apartment, furnished it simply but cozily, and I cuddled down to life—real life—as warmly and contentedly as if I had never known the drive and excitement of outside work. Fundamentally, you see, I was a home woman and I seized with avidity the chance to make my home my forte.

We hadn't much money—but I didn't mind that. I discovered that I possessed a genius for managing and making a little go a long way. Dan was as proud as a peacock of me, when, after some little dinner party had gone off successfully, I would tell him how little the whole thing had cost. He'd grab me and crush me to him—in that way that has made his love making so popular on the screen—and say between the kisses that always left me breathless and wholly his:

"You wonder child, you! You wonder child! No wonder I'm crazy about you!"

"No wonder," thought I—and still think—that I was crazy about him. O, no wonder!

After the baby came it seemed to me I was simply too happy to contain myself. We named her Glory—she was such a rosy, roly poly, giddy little thing—always laughing and spoiling for a romp. Her father simply couldn't keep away from her, and many were the after the theater parties held at our house with Glory as the guest of honor. Not good for her, perhaps, but certainly not harmful. You should see her today! Health personified and she looks just like her father.

Later Linna came. Just as dear as Glory—but different. Quiet, thoughtful, and sedately humorous rather than rollicking in her fun. They're great friends, though, my two babies—"some small team," their father calls them.

It was just two years ago this week that Dan came in one night greatly excited.

"What would you think, Doll," he asked, "of having your husband's salary raised a mere hundred per week?"

"I'd think somebody good was about to die young," I replied. "Don't fool me, Dan. You know how that sort of thing simply isn't done at the Happy Hour."

He grabbed me in his arms, babies and all. "It was done in a happy hour, though, Doll," he said. "I've just signed a contract with the Great Western Photoplay corporation and we're going to California next week." He sat down and took us all on his lap. The babies in disgust squirmed to the floor, so then I had all his arms and attention.

"And we're going to have a bungalow and a garden—just think, Doll, the babies can play out all day—and you'll have help with the work—and money for clothes, the kind I've always wanted to give you and couldn't—and I'll be working days instead of nights so we can have all our evenings together. And, Doll, to think that you'll see California! My wonder girl in wonderland! Whew!"

I pulled his head to my breast, laughing at his enthusiasm. In spite of his age—32—and the dignity that was his on occasion, he was just such a great big boy at heart.

"I suppose you know what it's all about," I said. "And I'm beginning to see light, but I don't exactly understand, Dan. Tell me just what has happened and how it happened." So he told me.

"He'd grab me and crush me to him."

The founder and part owner of the motion picture company in question had been visiting in the city with relatives, with whom he had gone to the Happy Hour that night to witness the performance. He had sent in his card to Dan after the first act with a request that he be allowed to pay a visit to the dressing room. He had gone, armed with a contract, for, it seemed, Dan was just the type they had been wanting for romantic lead. Would Dan come?

Dan spoke immediately of me and the babies. Mr. Chilcotte—that was the man's name—waved his objections away.

"Bring 'em along, of course. Finest place in the world to raise youngsters. I have five of my own and none of 'em knows what a doctor looks like. Sure—bring 'em. Expenses paid and all that."

It sounded too good to be true. But Dan produced the contract—and it was a bona fide contract. I had been in the theatrical business long enough to know that. Evidently, quite evidently, fortune had decided we were worth a smile and she was determined to make it an extremely pleasant one.

Well, there followed a week of hurried preparation. Mr. Chilcotte wished us to start almost immediately, as work was about to be begun on a big picture in which he wanted Dan as lead. So, responding to necessity, I did two days' work in every one of that week, with the result that at the allotted time Dan and the babies and I boarded the train, sped on our way by the loyal friends who had been ours during our stay in St. Louis.

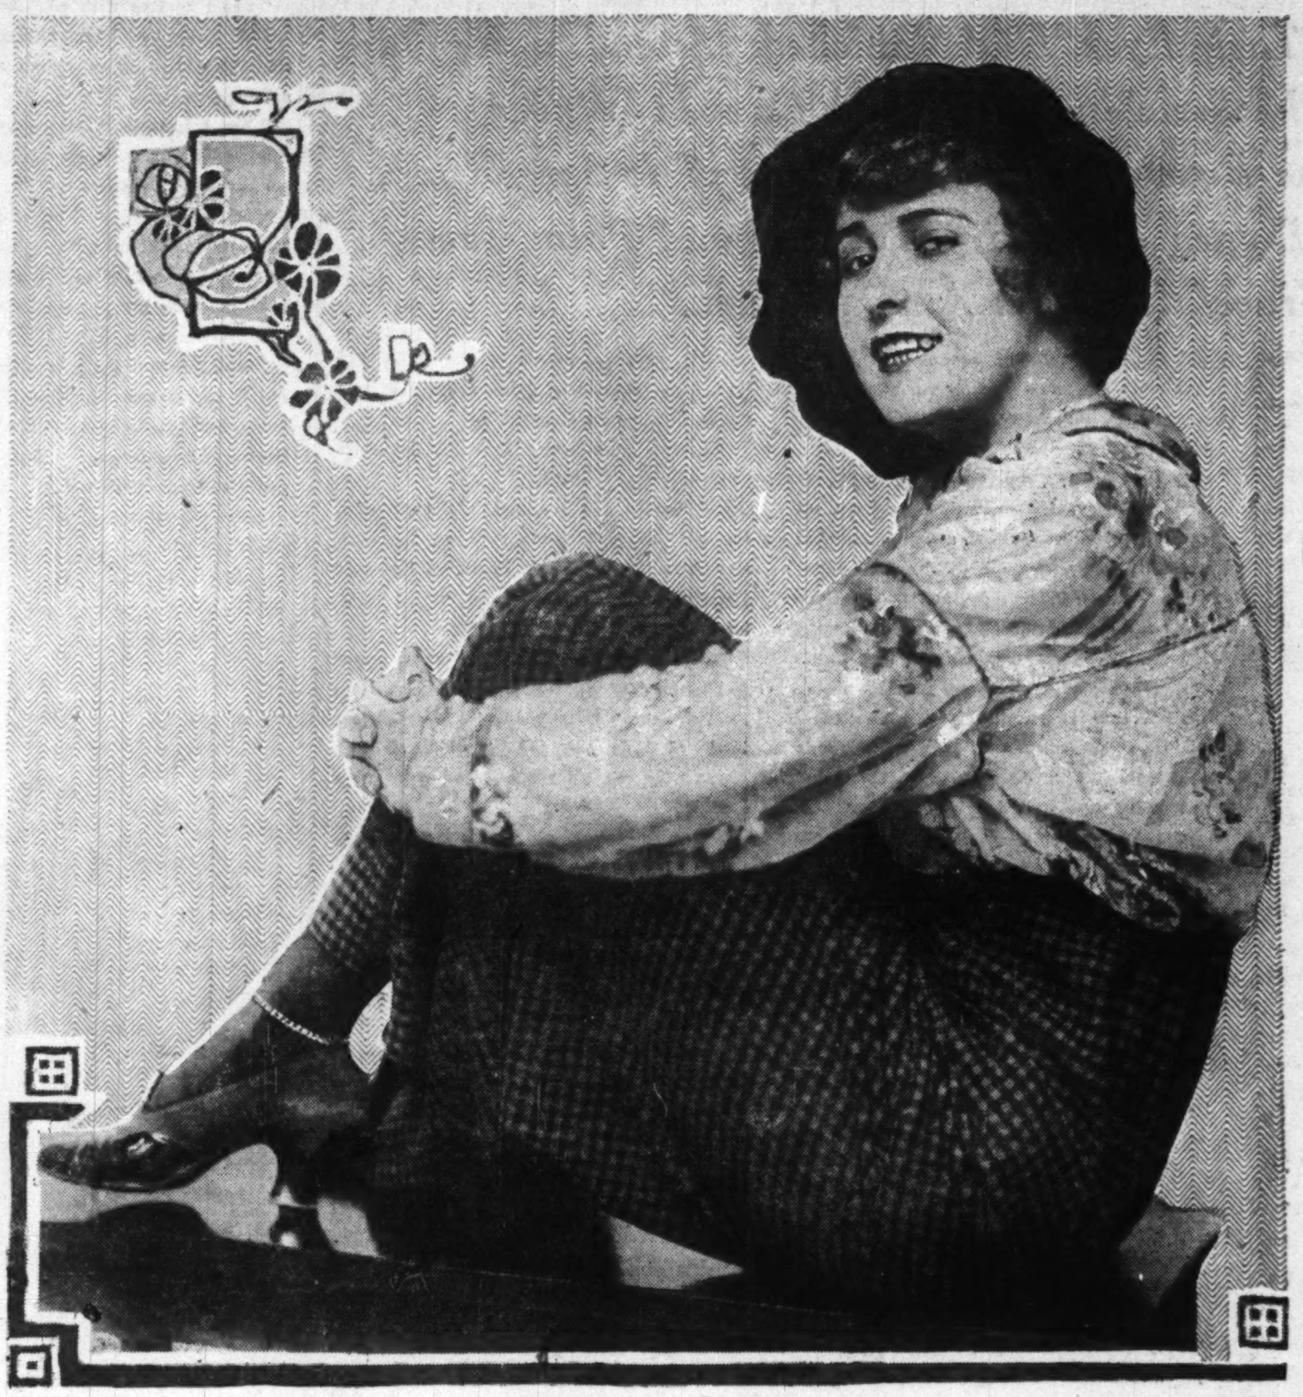
The Frame of Public Favor



Pearl White

"PEARL OF PATHE'S" picture has appeared before in the Frame, but again she has received enough votes to place her here. Rather an interesting story is told about how she happened to become an actress—she was on the stage before going into pictures. A traveling man halted on his way through the Ozark mountains in Missouri before a lonely log cabin, the first habitation he had seen in six miles. After the hospitable cottagers had given him supper they sat down around the fire to chat. Suddenly the little tow-headed girl piped up, "Mister, I can act," and then assumed an oratorical posture and repeated a scene from Hamlet, word for word. The traveler, who was a theatrical man, was deeply impressed, and with her parents' reluctant consent took Pearl into one of his companies and gave her $5 a week and "grub" until shortly she earned her way to a much better position. She played in various companies for a number of years and then joined the Pathe company, with which concern she has been since. She was born in Missouri in 1899, is Irish-Italian by nationality, has reddish blonde hair and greenish yellow eyes. She is five feet five inches tall. Her hobbies are all outdoor sports. She also writes scenarios and is an ardent dance fiend.

ANSWERS TO MOVIE FANS.

INTERESTED: Dear lady, when you subtract 1882 from 1915, what do you get? Your answer is the answer to the question.

SUB-GRADUATE: If one is to believe Miss Cunard herself, she is neither dead nor married. Francis Ford is with the Universal company in California. He has been married, but whether or not the ties have been severed I do not know. I understand that some effort toward divorce is being made.

H. C. F.: I think the thing for you to do would be to send me a stamped, addressed envelope for the conditions governing the sequel to be submitted to "The Diamond from the Sky." No, you are not supposed to write another sequel. Merely give your idea in 1,000 words or less. It is the plan to make the sequel a serial.

MARY J. AND JANE W.: I should hate to have you die, but an office rule forbids my giving away photographs. It is nice of you to want to know what I look like. Yes, "Broncho Billy" is married. Pauline Frederick was born in 1885.

MOVIE FAN: No, indeed, Alice Joyce has not left pictures. Lottie Pickford is not married to Irving Cummings. There will be thirty episodes to "The Diamond from the Sky." Anita Stewart has been working in moving pictures for about four years.

FERDINAND: Send a stamped and self-addressed envelope for an article on the doubling process and how to become a motion picture actor.

S. B. A.: I am delighted to know that you enjoy the Right Off the Reel page. Thank you for telling me that you do. Regarding my name, your guess is correct. In the Famous Players' production of "Little Pal" George Anderson took the part of John Grandon. In "The Dawn of a Tomorrow" David Towell was Mary Pickford's lover.

MRS. NELSON R.: Won't you please send a stamped and self-addressed envelope for conditions governing the "sequel" contest? The conditions make everything so plain. You are supposed to send in an idea for a complete sequel, but the idea must be expressed in 1,000 words or less. Lottie Pickford is married to Bert Rupp. Charlotte Burton is not married, Irving Cummings is not married, and William Russell is not married. Neither is George Periolat. I am glad you wrote, and hope you will not hesitate to write any time you feel I can be of service to you.

KATE C.: Thank you, ma'am. The Japanese actor playing in "The Clue" was Sessue Hayakawa. He is with the Lasky company. Yes, his work is splendid. He is the husband of Tsuri Aoki, the adorable little Japanese girl you so often saw with him in pictures.

DOROTHY: Owen Moore is affiliated now with the Fine Arts company. This is a branch of the Triangle Film comporation.

ANXIOUS: Dead? J. Warren Kerrigan? I shushaynot!

MARY LOUISE L.: Grace Cunard did not play in "The Million Dollar Mystery." Ed Coxen plays opposite Winifred Greenwood. No, dear heart, Mr. Chaplin is not crazy. No trouble at all.

PEARL M.: I am glad to be able to tell you that Sydney Ayres took the part of the blind man in "What the Blind Man Saw." Mildred Adams and Doris Pawn are the two actresses playing with him. It was a Universal production. Thank you for your words of appreciation and your wishes for luck.

KATHRYN: In the Kalem production, "The Third Commandment," Robert Ellis played with Miss Courtot and Mr. Moore.

I LOVE YOU: Just for that—address King Baggott, in care of the Universal company, 1600 Broadway, New York. Thank you, my dear.

JAMES: Far be it from me to sit calmly by and allow you and your chum to quarrel every time you come back from the theater regarding Charles Chaplin. So he insists that Mr. Chaplin is deaf and dumb, that he is a Pole, and that his name is Chaplinski. Well, well! Tell said chum Mr. Chaplin both hears and speaks, that he is an Englishman, 25 years old, and not married. I hope you had a good big wager on, for this is the time you sure would win it.

ALYCE B.: How awfully flattering to know that you start your Sundays by reading the Right Off the Reel page! Thank you for being so interested. There's no doubt but that Mr. Henry B. Walthall could teach dramatic art had he the time, but I reckon he has his hands full with the work he is doing for the Essanay company. Address him in care of that concern, 1333 Argyle street, Chicago. The number of votes received each week decides which picture will appear in the Frame. Y'wekkum.

B. G.: Antonio Moreno does not play opposite Norma Talmadge any more, for the very good reason that Miss Talmadge has gone to the National Film corporation, Los Angeles. Owen Moore played opposite Mary Pickford in "Mistress Nell." Yes, J. Warren Kerrigan lives in California. His mother does not appear in pictures. There is nothing to forgive. I am only too glad to answer any questions you may care to ask me at any time.

J. R. W.: No, Florence La Badie is not married. Frank Farrington is—to a nonprofessional. Elizabeth Forbes has been married, I understand. Your enjoyment makes my pleasure. Thank you.

E. R. PICKFORD: Address Mr. Bushman, in care of the Metropolitan company, Los Angeles, Cal. I am qutie sure he will answer your letter if you will inclose a stamped and self-addressed envelope for reply. Yes, he is married. Address Jack Pickford, in care of the Selig company, Los Angeles, Cal. He is Mary Pickford's brother.

IN MOVIE LAND

STRUCK FOR A BATH.

Strikes are the fashion. Even Charlie, the big elephant at the Selig zoo, took a whack at one. Nobody knew just what troubled Charlie. However, he was peeved about something and snapped the heavy chain that bound him to an iron ring in the concrete floor and off he went on a regular stampede. Small trees were pulled up by the roots or snapped in two; then a bath in the muddy waters of the Los Angeles river. This latter luxury evidently restored his good temper.

WHEN YOU KISSED ME.

Soliloquy of a famous motion picture star upon beholding an old photograph.

When you were a monkey and I was a pup,
One day I thought you would eat me up.
You frightened me so that I couldn't speak,
Though you tried to explain with a "squeak, squeak, squeak!"

I was standing still on my little fours,
Watching them take an "out of doors,"
When, all of a sudden, plink, plank, plunk,
I turned around and saw you, Monk!

"Kiss me!" you said, but I didn't know
What you meant. I was scared. I turned to go.
But you put out a paw and pulled me back
While my cold little nose received your smack.

Of a sudden there came a shriek—like this:
Some one cried, "Would you look at the darlings kiss!"
And folks came running, and then, O, O!
They made you do it again, you know!

I'm a big dog now—that time's far away,
But never will I forget that day,
For 'twas then I entered the "movie" game,
In which I since have riz to fame.

And I'm vurr', vurr' grateful! Monk, to you,
Who started me, my thanks are due.
Ah, day I thought I would be et up!
When you were a monkey and I was a pup.

GASOLINE UPSETS A SCENE.

If there is one prayer that Van Dyke Brooke prays regularly it is: "Deliver me from cats!" If a member of the tribe feline happens to be near, either previous to or during the filming of a scene, work stops until the intruder is ejected and Mr. Brooke regains his normal poise.

Gasoline, the Vitagraph cat, to whom he has a special aversion, is aware of this feeling on Mr. Brooke's part and at every opportunity inflicts her presence on the director. During the taking of the first scene in "Saints and Sinners," on which Mr. Brooke was working with Maurice Costello as star, Gasoline invited two of her friends to visit the studio. Calmly walking over to where he was busily directing, the three sat watching him.

When the director caught a glimpse of Gasoline and her friends, he grabbed a broom and started for them. Into a scene being taken by Sidney Drew ran the cats, followed by the irate Mr. Brooke, completely disrupting its action. Gasoline, however, eluded the broom at every swipe and, running into the next studio, still followed by her visitors, occupied the center of the stage, where George D. Baker was at work with Edith Storey. Having driven them from the studio where he was at work, Mr. Brooke was satisfied, but not so Mr. Drew and Mr. Baker, whose expostulations heated the atmosphere around Mr. Brooke's ears until they burned.

The Black Pearl ~ by

"The Desert, Which Had Lain Vast, Dun Colored, and Unbroken Before Their Eyes, Had Vanished; Instead, a Sapphire Sea Sparkled in the Sunshine, Its White Capped Waves Breaking Upon the Beach. Upon One Side of It Spread a City with White Domes and Fairy Towers, and Palm Trees Uplifting Their Graceful Fronds Among Them."

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTER.

Hanson, a theatrical man searching for new "acts," drops off the train at Paloma, in the Salton sea district, and learns that Pearl Galloti, "The Black Pearl," whom he has long wanted to see and sign for an engagement, is dancing at a benefit. He attends, is entranced by her talent, but more—is entranced by the girl, to whom he secures an introduction. The same night he meets Bob Flick, one of her suitors, and almost fights with him, but the Black Pearl interferes. She finally fans Flick's jealousy into flame by walking home with Hanson.

CHAPTER II.

HANSON had decided that the best way to gain certain information he desired was to seek the barkeeper, who, after his constitution, gossiped as naturally and as a volubly as a bird sings; so quite early the next morning he sauntered into Chickasaw Pete's place.

Jimmy, who was industriously polishing the bar and singing the while one of the more lugubrious and monotonous hymns, looked up with his customary little chuckle.

"Feeling fine, ain't you?" he said derisively. "Want to start right out and corral the whole desert, don't you? Think you can travel right over to San Bernardino yonder? Looks about three miles off, don't he?"

"Me?" said Hanson, expanding his chest. "I feel like I was about 16. Like I was home in Kaintucky, jumping a six bar fence after a breakfast of about fifty buckwheat cakes and sirup."

"That's the way it takes them all; but you just wait until about noon, and you won't feel so gay," warned Jimmy. "What are you doin' today, any way, hunting more trouble?"

"Not me," cried the other. "I came here to the desert pearl fishing."

"That's a good one." Jimmy's chuckle expanded into a series. "But you ain't the only one. There's Bob Flick, for instance, as you discovered last night."

The smile went out of Hanson's eyes, his face set. He ceased to lounge against the bar and involuntarily straightened himself:

"What about Bob Flick?" he asked.

"Lots about Bob." Jimmy's tone was equable, but he shot Hanson a quick glance. "He was our faro dealer for a while, but he's interested in mines now. He's dead sure. Come to think of it, he's a lot of dead things," he mused; "but don't ever confuse him with a dead one." Delight at his own wit expressed itself in mirthful chuckles. "He's dead game, and he's a dead shot, two important things for a man that's playing to win when in certain localities, and he's dead certain that he's the God appointed guardeen of the Black Pearl."

"What's she got to say about it?" growled Hanson.

The barkeeper shrugged his shoulders. "Ask me what the desert out there's thinking, and I'll tell you what's going on inside the Pearl's head. Say," animatedly, "I told you to ask me about those emeralds last night, didn't I?"

The manager laughed shortly. "I saw 'em close, son, after I left you. I know stones. Square cut emeralds. Lord! They sure cost some good man his pile, and he was no piker, either."

"Bob Flick," said Jimmy, with a glow of local pride. "Kind of thank offering, when the Pearl found him in the desert after he'd been lost three days. Bob was new to this country then and reckless, like a tenderfoot is, and the first thing he did was to go and get lost. Well, they had several searching parties looking for him, but the Pearl, she got on her horse and went after him alone, and, by George! she found him, lying about gone in a dry arroyo.

"Bob said he'd been wandering round crazy as a loon, seeing three big lions with eyes like coals of fire stalking him night and day, and him always trying to dodge 'em. He says at last they came nearer and nearer until he stumbled and fell, and then he felt their hot breath on his cheek, and he knew nothing more until he finally realized that some one was trying to pour water down his throat and he kind of half come to himself; and suddenly, he said, that awful gray desert, worse than any hell a man ever feared, seemed all kind and tender like a mother, and then, some way, it burst into bloom, and that bloom was the Black Pearl bending over him. O, you ought to hear him tell it! Well—she got him up on her horse and got him home, and her mother nursed him back to health. And since that time Bob ain't never felt the same about the desert. You couldn't drive him away now.

"When he was well enough to travel, he went to Frisco and ordered a jeweler there to get him the handsomest string of matched emeralds that money could buy. The fellow was a year matching them, had to make two trips to the other side. They do say," Jimmy lowered his voice cautiously, "that Bob's father was a rich man and left him a nice little fortune, and that he blew every cent of it in on those stones. The Pearl certainly likes jewels. All the rings and things that she wears were given her by the boys."

"Umm-m-hum. Great story!" he nodded perfunctorily. "Guess I'll take a walk." He strolled toward the door.

"Bet I know which way you're going," chuckled Jimmy, as he disappeared.

The unspoken surmise was perfectly correct. Hanson took his way slowly and with apparent abstraction in the direction of the Gallito home, and it was not until he was at the very gate that he paused and looked up with a start of well simulated surprise.

The house stood beyond a garden of brilliant flowers, and in the shadow of the long porch—a porch facing the desert and not the mountains—sat Pearl, swinging back and forth in a rocking chair and talking impartially to the blind boy, who sat on the step beneath her, and a gorgeous crimson and green parrot, which walked back and forth in its pigeon toed fashion on the arm of her chair, muttering, occasionally screaming and sometimes inclining its head to be scratched.

"Good morning," called Hanson in his blithest, most assured fashion. "Can I come in?"

"Sure," drawled the Pearl. "Hughie and I were just waiting for company, weren't we, Hughie?"

The boy tossed his head impatiently, but made no answer. From the moment Hanson had spoken he had assumed an air of immobile and concentrated attention, tense as that of an Indian listening and sighting in a forest, or of a highly trained dog on guard.

"Take you at your word," laughed Hanson, and swung up the path, a big, dominant presence, as vital as the morning. "Howdy," he shook hands with Pearl and then turned to the boy, but Hugh drew quickly away from that extended hand, quite as if he saw it before him.

Hanson raised his eyebrows in involuntary surprise, but his good humor was unabated. "What's the good word with Hughie?" he asked genially. "I can't call you anything else, because I don't know your last name."

"My name is Hugh Braddock," said the boy coldly.

Again Hanson lifted his brows, this time humorously, as at a child's unexpected rebuff, and looked at Pearl, and again he experienced a feeling of surprise, for she was gazing at Hugh with a puzzled frown, which held a faint touch of apprehension.

"Then," Hanson looked from one to the other, but spoke to Pearl, "you ain't brother and sister?"

"No," said Pearl, and it disturbed Hanson more than he would have dreamed to notice the change in voice and manner. The warm, provocative, inherent coquetry was gone from both smile and eyes; instead of a soft, alluring girl ready to play with him a baffling, blood stirring game of flirtation, she was again the sphinx of last night, whose unrevealing eyes seemed to have looked out over the desert for centuries, until its infinite heart was as an open page to her, and she repressed in the scarlet curves of her mouth its eternal, secret enigma.

"We are brother and sister." Hugh edged along the step until he could lay his head against Pearl's knee. "But we're not blood relations, if you're curious to know." The insolence of his tone was barely veiled. "My mother was a circus woman that Mrs. Gallito knew. She deserted me when I was a baby, and Mrs. Gallito has been all the mother I ever had or wanted, and Pearl the only sister. I was born blind."

"O, Hughie," remonstrated Pearl, "you've got no call to say that. He don't see with his eyes," she turned to Hanson, "but I never saw anybody that could see so much."

"How's that?" asked Hanson easily. He was used from long experience to the temperamental, emotional people of the stage, and he had no intention of being daunted by any moods these two might exhibit.

"Hughie, what color are Mr. Hanson's clothes?" asked Pearl.

Still with a petulant, disdainful expression, the boy leaned forward and ran his long, slender fingers with their cushioned tips over Hanson's coat. "Brown," he replied indifferently.

"He can tell you the color of every flower in the garden, just by touching them," explained Pearl. "He knows all the different kinds of birds just by the whirr of their wings. He can tell the color of every dress I wear. He——"

But Hugh has risen. "I don't like you to tell strangers about me," he cried with passionate petulance, "and you know it. I'm going to find mother."

"Well, tell her that Mr. Hanson's here," called Pearl after him, unaffected by his outburst. "He hasn't taken a shine to you," she remarked frankly to Hanson.

Again he was disturbed to notice that she seemed to give this obvious fact some weight. She had rested her chin on her hand and was gazing meditatively at the gay garden. A shadow of disappointment was on her face, and more than a touch of it in her voice.

"That don't bother me," affirmed Hanson confidently. "All that I'm caring about is whether some one else shares his opinion." His bold gay eyes looked straight into hers.

"I wonder who?" drawled Pearl. The gleam of her eyes shining through narrowed lids and black, tangled lashes flicked him like the tang of a whip. "Maybe you mean Lolita?"

The parrot, which had perched on her shoulder and was tweaking her ear, now hearing its name, looked up, fluttered its wings and called out in a gruff, masculine voice: "Mi jasmin, Pearl. Mi corazon."

"He's talking for me, sure," said Hanson, who knew enough Spanish to make out.

"O, damn," said the parrot disgustedly; "why the hell can't you shut up?"

Hanson gave a great burst of laughter. "Lolita and Hughie are well matched when it comes to politeness."

"They got the artistic temperament, and me, too, and mom, also," said Pearl. "That's what the newspaper boys always wrote about me when I was on the road."

The manager did not miss the opening. "Look here," he said earnestly; "ain't you tired loafing around here? I guess you know what I'm in Paloma for. I've made no secret of it. Now all you got to do is to show me your contract with Sweeney and I'll double what he gave you, play you over a bigger circuit, and advertise you, so's before your contract with me's expired you'll be asked to do a few turns on the Metropolitan opera stage of New York City, New York."

"Love me today," sang Lolita, meltingly, if with grating harshness.

"That's right, Lolita, sing your pretty song," coaxed Pearl. "Come on, I'll sing with you." She lifted her languorous eyes and sang softly, almost under her breath, but straight at Hanson:

Love me today,
Love me an hour;
Love is a flower,
Fading alway.

The blood surged to his temples at the direct challenge, he half arose and leaned toward her. Then, as she laughed at him, he sat down. "Treble Sweeney's offer, by God!" he said hoarsely. "Cash down beforehand." He brought his fist down on the arm of the chair with a crash.

"O, I ain't ready to make any plans yet," Pearl announced indifferently. "I want to talk things over with Pop first. He'll be down from the mines before long, maybe today."

She sat for a few moments in silence, her eyes fixed on the far purple hazes of the desert. "O, I wish there weren't so many of me," she said at last and wistfully. "After I'm 'out' a while I'll get to longing so for the desert that I'm likely to raise any kind of a row and break any old contract just to get here. I can't breathe. I feel as if everything buildings and people and all, were crowding me so's if I didn't have a place to stand; and then, after I'm here a while, I got to see the footlights, I got to hear them clapping, I got to dance for the big crowds. O, Lord! life's awful funny, always trying to chain you up to one thing or another. But I won't be tied. I got to be free, and I will be free." She threw out her arms with a passionate gesture.

"You'd be free with me," he cried.

But, if she heard him, she gave no indication of having done so. "Can you ride?" she asked presently.

"You bet," said Hanson eagerly. "I was born in Kaintucky. Just tell me where I can get a horse here, and——"

"I'll lend you one of mine, and we'll have some rides. I'll take you out on the desert. It ain't safe to go alone. You see those sand hills yonder? Do you think you could walk out to them and back?"

"Sure," said Hanson confidently and looking at her in some surprise.

Pearl laughed. "O, Lolita!" she cried; "a tenderfoot is sure funny. The chances are, Mr. Hanson, that if you started to walk around those dunes you'd never get back. Goodness! ain't that mirage pretty!"

The desert, which had lain vast, dun colored, and unbroken before their eyes, had vanished; instead, a sapphire sea sparkled in the sunshine, its white capped waves breaking upon the beach. Upon one side of it spread a city with white domes and fairy towers, and palm trees uplifting their graceful fronds among them.

Hanson rubbed his eyes and looked again. It was the first time that he had ever seen one of these miracles of illusion, and he became so absorbed in it that he failed to notice that some one else had entered the gate and was making a leisurely progress toward the house.

It was Bob Flick, and Rudolph Hanson could not repress a slight scowl at this unexpected appearance of one whom he was constrained to regard as more or less of an enemy, and certainly this morning as a blot upon the landscape.

Without a smile, but politely enough, Flick greeted him, after speaking to Pearl, who looked at the newcomer with a sort of resigned resentfulness. Lolita, however, made up what was lacking in cordiality. With a loud squawk of welcome she flew to Flick's shoulder, uttering guttural and incoherent expressions doubtless meant to convey endearment.

"Call Mom, Bob," commanded Pearl lazily, and Flick obediently stepped inside of the door in search of Mrs. Gallito. She must have been near at hand, for she and Flick emerged before the manager could do more than give Pearl a glance of eloquent disappointment, which she returned with teasing mockery.

Mrs. Gallito had evidently been making a toilet, and it is to be regretted for her own sake that she might not have reserved all of her appearances for the evening, for this brilliant desert sunshine was pitiless in revealing those artificial aids with which she strove to re-create and hold her vanished youth and bloom.

Bob Flick she evidently regarded as a matter of course, but at the sight of Hanson she showed unmistakable pleasure.

"Hughie told me you were here," she said, sitting down beside him and patting somewhat anxiously the mass of canary colored puffs on the back of her head "and I been hurrying to get out before you got away."

"I wouldn't have thought of going before you came," Hanson assured her. She smiled and bridled a little, evidently well pleased.

"Has Pearl told you that her Pop'll probably be down today?" she leaned across Hanson to speak to Flick.

?" he asked in his smooth, mines that Mr. Gallito is ed Hanson, determined to keep in the conversation.

"Up in Colina." It was Mrs. Gallito that spoke.

An up-darting gleam of suddenly aroused interest and curiosity flashed for a moment in Bob Flick's eyes. Was it possible that at the mention of that name Hanson had started and that something which might have been taken for the shadow of dismay had overfallen his face?

"Fine mining camp," Flick commented "You know it at all, Mr. Hanson?"

Hanson had scratched a match to light his cigaret, but now he lifted his eyes and looked across its tiny flare straight at Flick. "No," he said indifferently, "never was in it in my life."

His tone and manner were both open and convincing, and yet the ruddy color, as Flick noticed with merciless satisfaction, had not returned to his face.

"He's an awful queer man," confided Mrs. Gallito in a low voice to Hanson. "I suppose," with a sigh, "it's the Spanish of him. Just think," she spoke as one who has never overcome an unmitigated wonder, "born in the sawdust same as me; his folks from way back all in the business, and him with no use for it. Never rested till he got away from it. Why, he didn't even want me to train Pearl, but," and here triumph rang in her tones, "he couldn't help that. She took to it like a duck takes to water. Always ready for it, never cried or complained at the long hours."

"She's sure got cause to be grateful to you." Hanson spoke sincerely.

"I wouldn't have known what else to do with a child," said Mrs. Gallito simply. "I always saw them trained that way. But her Pop didn't stand for it."

During this conversation Pearl and Flick had risen and, with Lolita still on Flick's shoulder, had sauntered down through the garden.

Seeing this, Rudolf, with his customary philosophy, made the best of the situation. "Well," with rather vague gallantry, "I don't see how he can stay away from a home like this."

"It's the Spanish of him." This was Mrs. Gallito's explanation of all the eccentricities in which her husband might indulge. "And," with unwonted optimism, "maybe it's a blessing, too, 'cause he's awful queer. And, maybe he's what they call a man's man. Why, you might think he lived all by himself up there in Colina; but he don't. He's got more old Spaniards around"—she raised her eyes—"and they're the awfullest! Cutthroats and pirates, I call 'em. They come up from the coast. And it's funny, too," she exclaimed in a sort of querulous wonder, "because Gallito's awful respectable himself."

"That is queer, isn't it?" His tone was politely interested, but his errant glance strayed to where Pearl and Flick stood gazing over the vast spaces of the desert, flooded with illimitable sunshine.

But Mrs. Gallito needed only a modicum of interest upon which to launch her confidences. "Yes, he certainly is queer, and Pearl's like him in lots of ways. Neither of them can stand anything holding them. They're always wanting to be free, and they both got the strongest wills."

"And does he ever bring his cutthroat friends here?" asked Hanson.

"My, no!" cried Mrs. Gallito. "It wouldn't be safe."

"I think it would be as safe here as in the mountains."

"He don't keep 'em there long, if they're wanted bad," whispered Mrs. Gallito. "He knows more than one secret trail over the mountains."

Hanson was beginning to show a more genuine interest now, and, spurred on by this flattering appreciation of her revelations, Mrs. Gallito went on.

"If you won't ever tell," she bent toward him after glancing about her cautiously, "I'll tell you something. Of course, I'd never mention it if I didn't feel that you're as safe as a church and one of our very best friends."

"You haven't got a better in the world," he fervently assured her, his curiosity really aroused now.

"Well," glowing with the importance of her news, "did you ever hear of Crop-eared José?"

It was with difficulty that Hanson repressed a long, low whistle. "I should say," he answered. "He's been wanted by the police of several states for some time, and since that last big robbery they've had sheriffs and their parties scouring the mountains."

For once Mrs. Gallito really had a piece of news which was sure to command the most flattering attention.

Crop-eared José was a famous and slippery bandit, and his latest exploit had been the robbery of an express car and subsequent vanishing with a sum approximately $30,000. It was supposed that he had jumped the train while it was making its slow progress across the mountains at night and had lain on the top of the car until what he regarded as the proper moment for action had arrived. He had then slipped down, forced the lock on the door, held up both messengers, making one tie and gag the other, under his direction, and then himself performed that office for the first with his own skillful hands. After that, to open the safe, take the money, and drop from the train was mere child's play to so accomplished a professional as José.

"Gallito's got him." Mrs. Gallito enjoyed to the full the sensation she had created, and then a sudden revulsion of fright took her. "But, for goodness' sake, Mr. Hanson, don't let on I told you. I—I wish I hadn't spoke," she whispered.

"Trust me," comfortingly. "Now don't give it another thought. I'll forget it on the spot, if you say so."

"Gallito'd kill me"—she still shook and looked at him fearfully.

"O, come now," his tone was infinitely reassuring; "forget it; I have already. Such things don't interest me."

"Love me today, love me an hour," sang Lolita, and his eyes turned to the two at the gate, still chaperoned by the faithful parrot. In them was a flash like fire on steel, as they rested on Bob Flick. Then he turned again to Mrs. Gallito. "Forget it," he said again, as he rose to take his leave; "and believe that I have, too."

But his musings on his way back to the hotel would certainly not have proved calming to that lady could she have but known them.

"Gosh!" he muttered, "and I thought it had broke, this blessed blind luck of mine, when I heard 'em mention Colina; but it's holding after all, it's holding. I guess what I know now about the whereabouts of Crop-eared José just about offsets anything Pop Gallito may know about me and anything that Mr. Bob Flick can discover."

Pearl's father came the next day, an older man than Hanson had imagined and of a different type. There was no smack of the circus ring about him, no swagger of the footlights; nor any hint of the emotional, gay temperament supposed to be the inheritance of southern blood. He was a saturnine, gnarled old Spaniard with lean jaws and beetling brows. His skin was like parchment. It clung to his bones and fell in heavy wrinkles in the hollows of his cheeks and about his mouth; and his dark eyes, fierce as a wild hawk's, were as brilliant and piercing as in youth.

Little resemblance between him, gaunt and stark and seamed as a desert rock, and his tropical blossom of a daughter, and yet, indubitably, Pearl was the child of her father. The secretiveness, the concentrated will, the unfettered individuality of spirit, which protected its own defiant isolation at all costs, the subtlety, the ability to seek sanctuary in indefinitely maintained silence, these were their traits in common.

Hanson, Gallito met with grave and impersonal courtesy, which, the former was relieved to feel, held a real indifference. There were many moths ever circling about this glowing flame of a daughter. Gallito accepted that, met them, observed them, and assumed those introspective meditations in which he seemed ever absorbed.

There was evidently an understanding between Pearl and himself, but no show of affection, and what small tenderness of nature the Spaniard possessed appeared to be bestowed upon Hugh.

Grim and silent, sipping a little cognac from a glass on a table by his side, the old man would sit on the porch for an hour at a time listening to the boy playing the piano in the room within.

Flick and himself also seemed on fair terms of friendship and would hold apparently endless discussions concerning various mining properties. It was understood that Gallito had come down now to give his opinion on some claim that Flick had recently staked, and they two, usually accompanied by Hughie, would ride off over the desert and be gone two or three days at a time.

Hanson, finding that the theatrical tie, "we be brothers of one blood," had not that potency for Mr. Gallito that it exercised for his wife, and that it was not for him as for her the open sesame to confidence and friendship, speedily ceased to strike this note and approached him on the ground of pure business. The offer he had made to Pearl he repeated to her father.

And Gallito had gazed out over the desert and considered the matter with due deliberation. "Sweeney's been writing to me considerable," he said at last. "He's made a good deal better proposition than he did last year."

"I told your daughter I'd double any offer Sweeney made," Hanson said, and then expatiated on the advantage of the wider circuit and increased advertising that he proposed to give.

Gallito nodded without comment. Again he seemed to turn the matter over in his mind. "I'll write to Sweeney," he said finally, "and get him to give me a statement in writing of just what he proposes to do, a complete outline of his plans down."

The manager could not restrain the question which rose to his lips: "But your daughter, is she willing that you should make all these arrangements?"

Gallito looked at him sharply from under his beetling brows. There was surprise in his glance and a touch of cynical scorn: "She knows that I look out for her interests."

Another query crossed Hanson's mind, one he had no disposition to voice. Was the understanding between father and daughter, and this apparent and most uncharacteristic submission to his judgment on her part, based on a common passion, acquisitiveness? He thought of Pearl's jewels. More than once he had seen her lift her fingers and caress the gems on her hand, just as the Spaniard sat and shook his buttons and nuggets of gold together, pouring them from one palm to another, his frowning gaze fixed on the ground before him.

"Yes, I'll write to Sweeney," continued Gallito. "It'll take a few days, though, before I can get his answer." He looked at the other man questioningly. "It might be a week in all. I don't want to keep you here that time. I could write you."

"Nothing to do just now," said Rudolf easily. "Left things in good hands, business running easily. Came down here to stay a while, need a vacation. And, Lord! This air makes a man feel like he never wanted to leave."

To this Gallito made no comment and as there was nothing further to say the subject was for the time dropped between them.

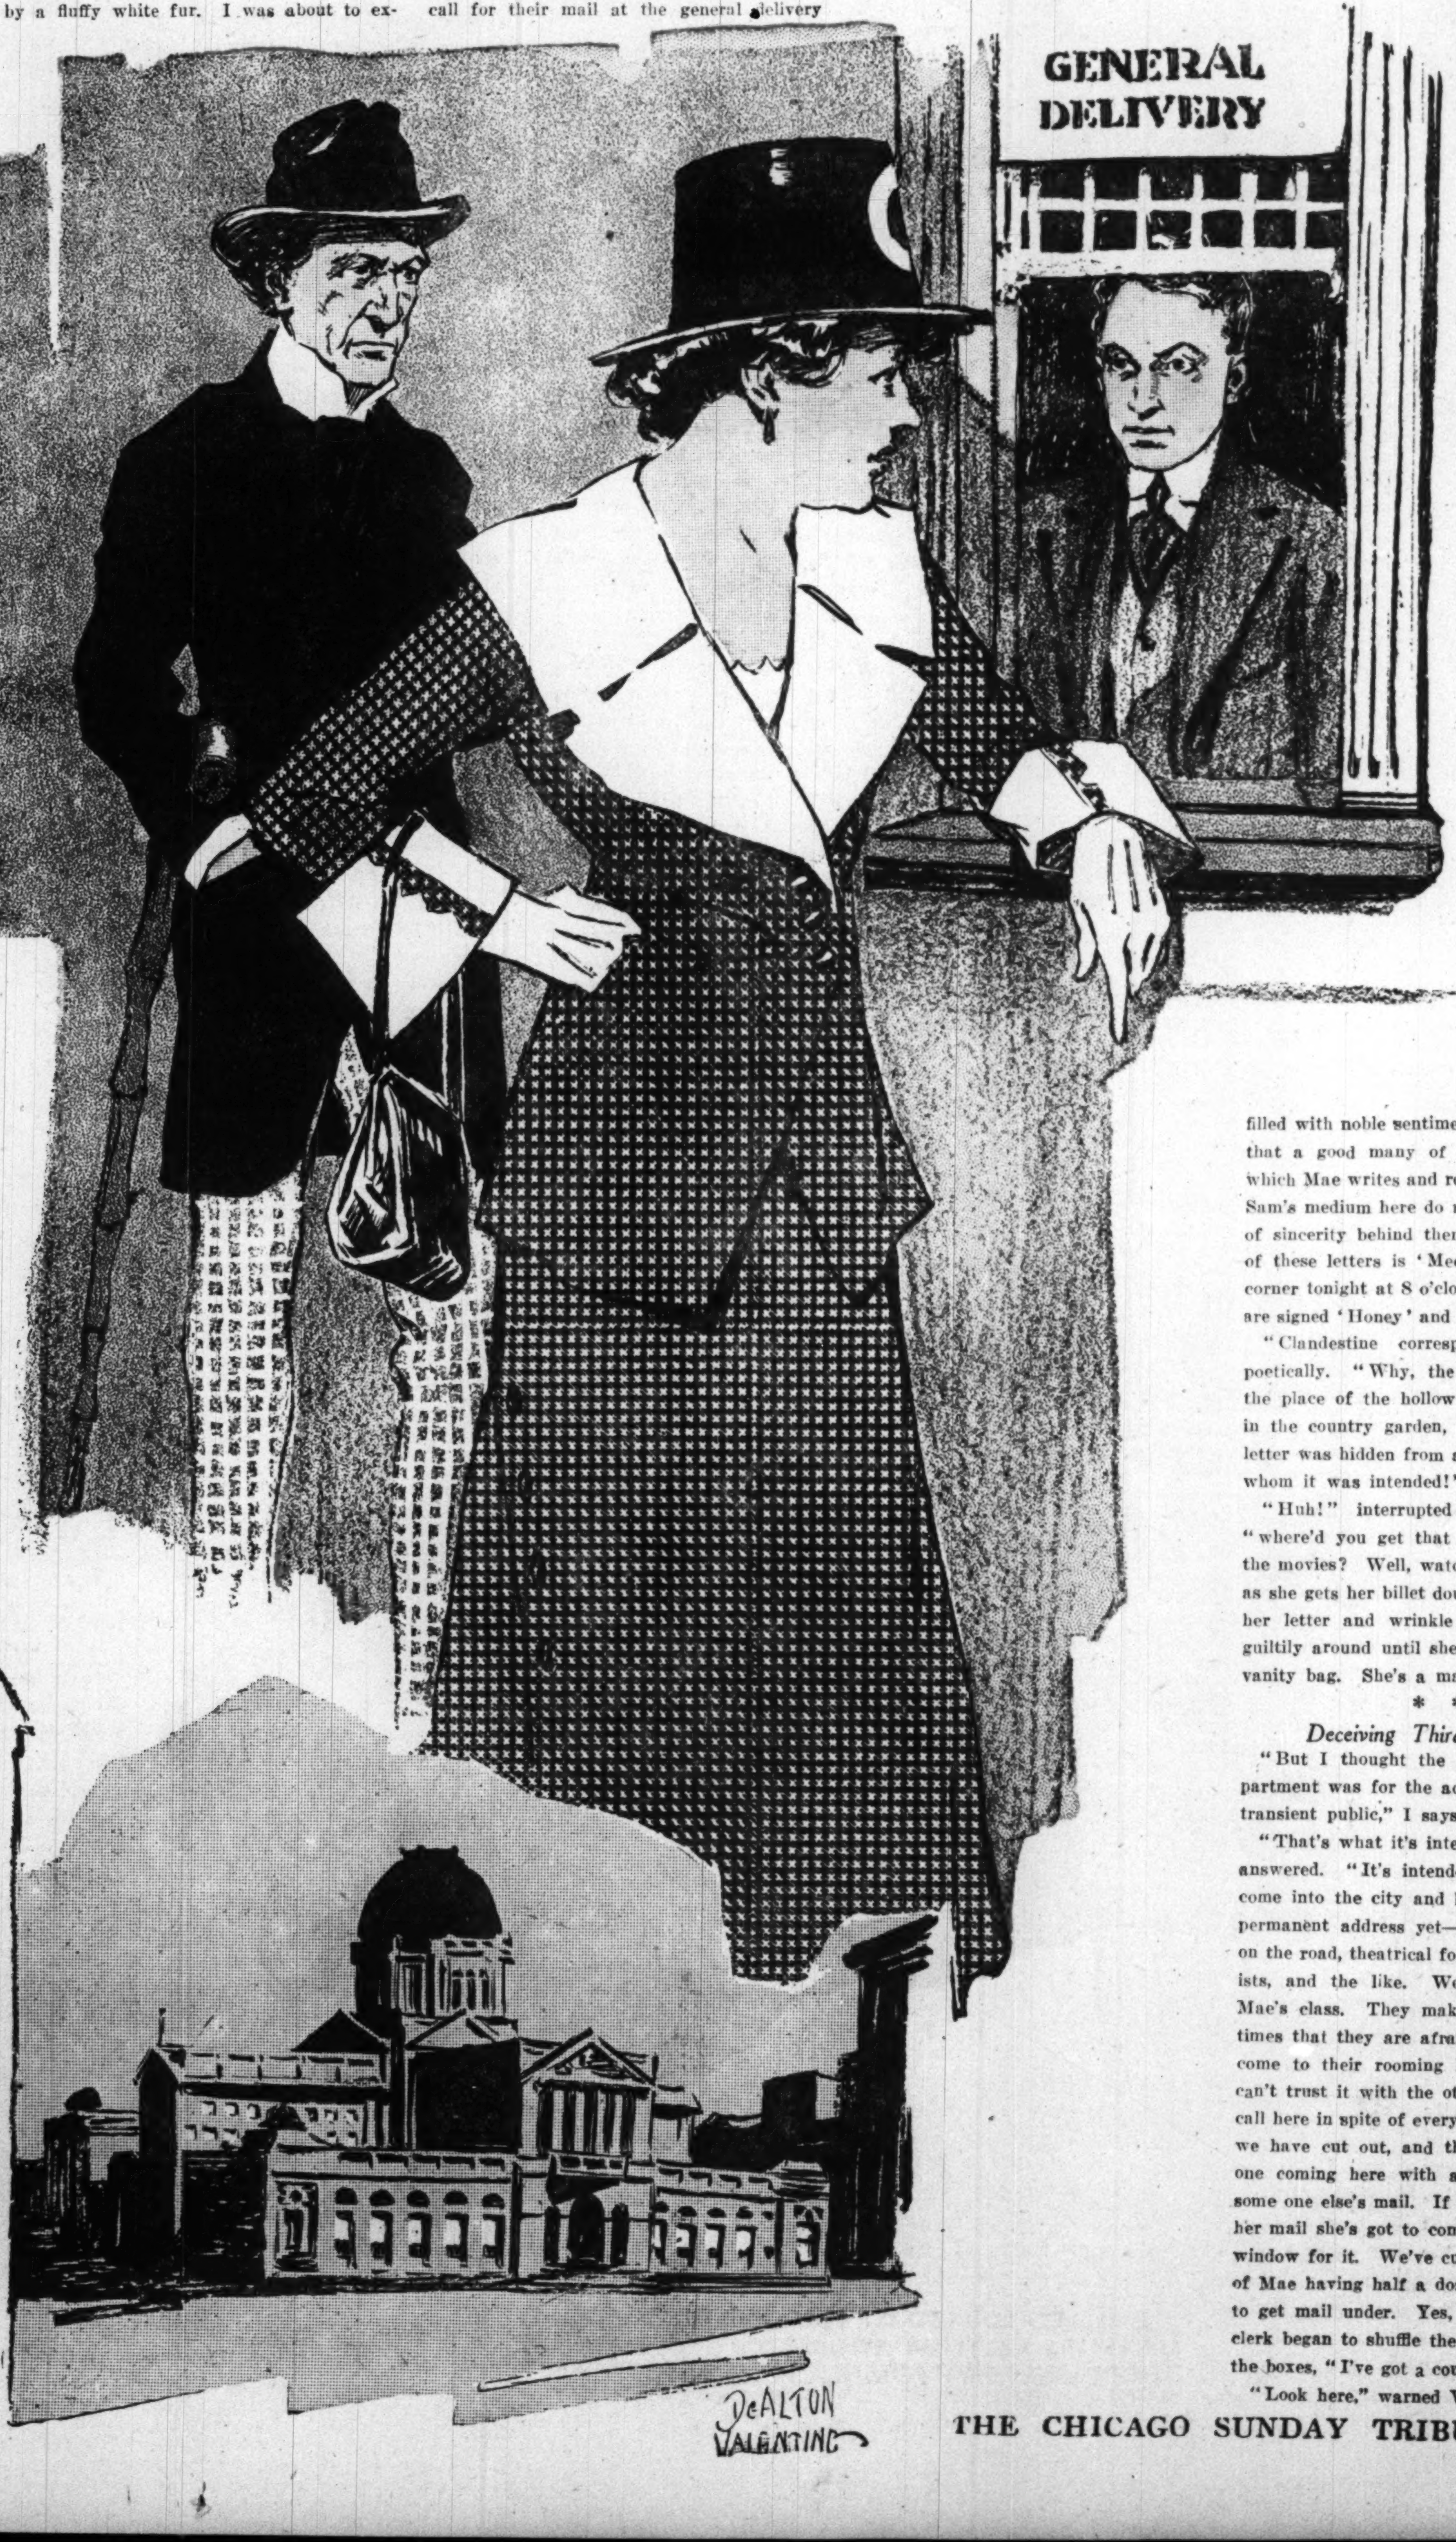
GALLITO LOOKED AT HIM SHARPLY FROM UNDER HIS BEETLING BROWS, ... "SHE KNOWS THAT I LOOK OUT FOR HER INTERESTS."

"NO, ALL THE LETTERS THAT THE GIRLS GET AT THE GENERAL DELIVERY WINDOW AREN'T FLIRTATION NOTES," DISCOVERS ONEY FRED SWEET

There Was Another Sort of Missive Waiting for Violet When She Should Call Next Day.



THERE wasn't a thing for Mae—not even a glossy finished postal card bearing a colored photograph of some city's public building. On this visit to the window for women at the general delivery section of the Chicago postoffice Mae had drawn a blank.

I felt sorry for Mae. She was such a swell appearing girl and you could see she was disappointed by the way she tugged at the black spotted veil that made no pretense of hiding the complexion which she had aided partial nature in producing. Mae raised her unnatural eyebrows a trifle and I was on the verge of explaining to her that she was but one of the 11,000 callers at the general delivery that day, and that, according to figures, at least one out of every four callers was bound to be disappointed. Mae was wearing one of those new style black hats that had a man's hat shape to it, and her white throat was attractively if not sufficiently protected by a fluffy white fur. I was about to explain to her that the figures of the month previous showed that the department had handled around 55,000 letters that had been insufficiently addressed. Maybe some one had put the wrong street or number on her letter. Maybe——

"The h—— there ain't anything for me!" interrupted Mae.

It was in a husky voice that she voiced her disappointment, and she gave a heave of her shoulders that wafted through the wire grating a breath of cocktails and perfume and stale cigaret smoke.

Now, I had been anxious to have the general delivery foreman let me assist at one of the windows for women, but when the vision of Mae had disappeared from in front of the grating I scratched my head and asked the clerk if Mae was a fair sample of all his callers.

The clerk smiled sadly.

"I'd hate to say that all the women who call for their mail at the general delivery windows are like her," he answered, "but in spite of all the department can do, I'd say that at least a third of the callers at the two windows for women are following Mae's profession. You can pick out those like Mae if you stand here long enough, but as a matter of fact her name isn't Mae. Those like Mae seldom call for their mail under the names with which they were christened. Nor do the men at the windows beyond, who get letters from girls like Mae, use their true names in calling for their mail. There seems to be a lot of folks who don't want their letters to come to the places where they are living."

"O," I says sentimentally, "love letters, eh?"

"Well, I'd hardly call them love letters," answered the clerk, his eyes narrowing. "Some of the missives may contain phrases filled with noble sentiment, but it's my hunch that a good many of the endearing terms which Mae writes and receives through Uncle Sam's medium here do not have a great deal of sincerity behind them. The main theme of these letters is 'Meet me at the —— corner tonight at 8 o'clock.' Of course, they are signed 'Honey' and all that, but——"

"Clandestine correspondence," I raved poetically. "Why, the window here takes the place of the hollow in the old oak tree in the country garden, where the forbidden letter was hidden from all except the one for whom it was intended!"

"Huh!" interrupted the clerk gruffly, "where'd you get that stuff—been going to the movies? Well, watch this dame as soon as she gets her billet doux! Watch her grab her letter and wrinkle it up and glance guiltily around until she has stuck it in her vanity bag. She's a married woman."

Deceiving Third Husband.

"But I thought the general delivery department was for the accommodation of the transient public," I says to the clerk.

"That's what it's intended for," the clerk answered. "It's intended for persons who come into the city and haven't located at a permanent address yet—for people who are on the road, theatrical folks, automobile tourists, and the like. We try to discourage Mae's class. They make the excuse sometimes that they are afraid to have the mail come to their rooming house because they can't trust it with the other roomers. They call here in spite of everything, but one thing we have cut out, and that is allowing any one coming here with a written order for some one else's mail. If Mae is going to get her mail she's got to come right here to the window for it. We've cut out the idea, too, of Mae having half a dozen different names to get mail under. Yes, Virginia," and the clerk began to shuffle the contents of one of the boxes, "I've got a couple for you today."

"Look here," warned Virginia, with a decayed tooth smile that gave hint that even a partial nature wouldn't permit any girl to stay young and beautiful always, "look here, don't you let any of this mail get out to the house."

I felt that Virginia might have the very best of reasons for getting general delivery mail, and I told the clerk so.

"Sorry to shatter your illusion," yawned the clerk, "but I happen to know that Virginia is now deceiving her third husband."

Evelyn Leaves Forwarding Order.

And on they came—Flossie and Janet and Irene and Marie—absolutely in style, peering through the wired window with boldness and indicating plainly that, though going separate ways, they were traveling the same path with Virginia and Mae. To be strictly truthful, most of these girls were young and good looking. One could not say how long nature would permit them to be good looking, but the charms of youth were theirs for the hour at least.

"A lot of them are from small towns," explained the clerk. "We can tell that when we get their forwarding orders when they go home on visits. Did you notice that older woman that was up here a minute ago? She and her husband have left each other on a trial proposition. She told me they were going to live apart for awhile and if they found they were satisfied with the new arrangement they wouldn't go back to each other again. She's writing to a fellow on the road now, I should judge, by the way the letters she gets are postmarked. A few days ago she got one from Minneapolis and yesterday she got one from Dubuque; he'll probably be in town in a day or two. Of course, I'm not saying that there are not a lot of nice women who come up here, but I've got to admit there's a pretty fair mixture in the line right along of girls like Mae and Virginia. When the parting time comes after an evening around town they simply say: 'Write me in care of the general delivery.' This is our rush time, along about 4 or 5 o'clock in the afternoon, because for Virginia and Mae and Flossie and Marie the day has just begun. You see——"

A face at the window interrupted.

"There's nothing here for Mrs. Evelyn B——," the clerk informed. "But there's one here for Miss Evelyn B——."

"It's all the same," responded Evelyn, buttoning one of her white gloves. "And, by the way, I guess I'll leave a forwarding order. The police are getting too strict. Why, last night I almost got pinched."

Violet Not Forgotten.

"Anyhow," I said to the clerk when Evelyn had gone, "you haven't a very cranky class of people to wait on."

"O, those like Evelyn are too cautious to be cranky," admitted the clerk. "But we have our share of patrons at the window who think that we don't look close enough for their letters, who insist that the letter was sent and ought to be here, and who exaggerate on the importance of a letter if they figure it's been lost. Lost letters are always important and valuable letters, you know. But while people write letters and put on addresses of streets and numbers that don't exist, and never think of putting a return up in the corner, Uncle Sam isn't making many mistakes himself, you can count on that. I'll admit a lot of mail doesn't reach its destination. Last month, for instance, this office handled 70,066 letters addressed to firms that couldn't be located in Chicago. Investigation showed that a good many senders of this 'firm mail' had been circularized some six or eight years ago and the circulars had lain around the house or just been discovered; gives an idea of how firms go out of business, don't it? Eh? No," and the clerk turned back from scanning the pigeon holes, "nothing for you today, Violet."

Violet's hair was a trifle more blonde than Virginia's or Marie's had been. Violet's mannish hat was tilted to a most fascinating angle.

"Nothing?" questioned Violet, with a chorus girl smile as she bit the end of her veil with her exceptionally pink lips before continuing on her way—her way out where the dizzy electric signs were piercing the darkness of early night gathering in the depths of the loop. Somehow the accent of cocktails and strong perfume and stale tobacco smoke lingered at the window for some time after Violet had gone.

"Violet's starting to fade a little," commented the clerk. "She used to be sure of at least a couple of letters a day. She was certainly a peach when she first hit Chicago. Hello!" he added, as he began to shuffle a new batch of mail just arrived, "there's a card for Violet. She wouldn't have been disappointed, after all, if she'd called a few minutes later. Here's a postal card and a letter. The letter's from some fellow stopping at the —— hotel."

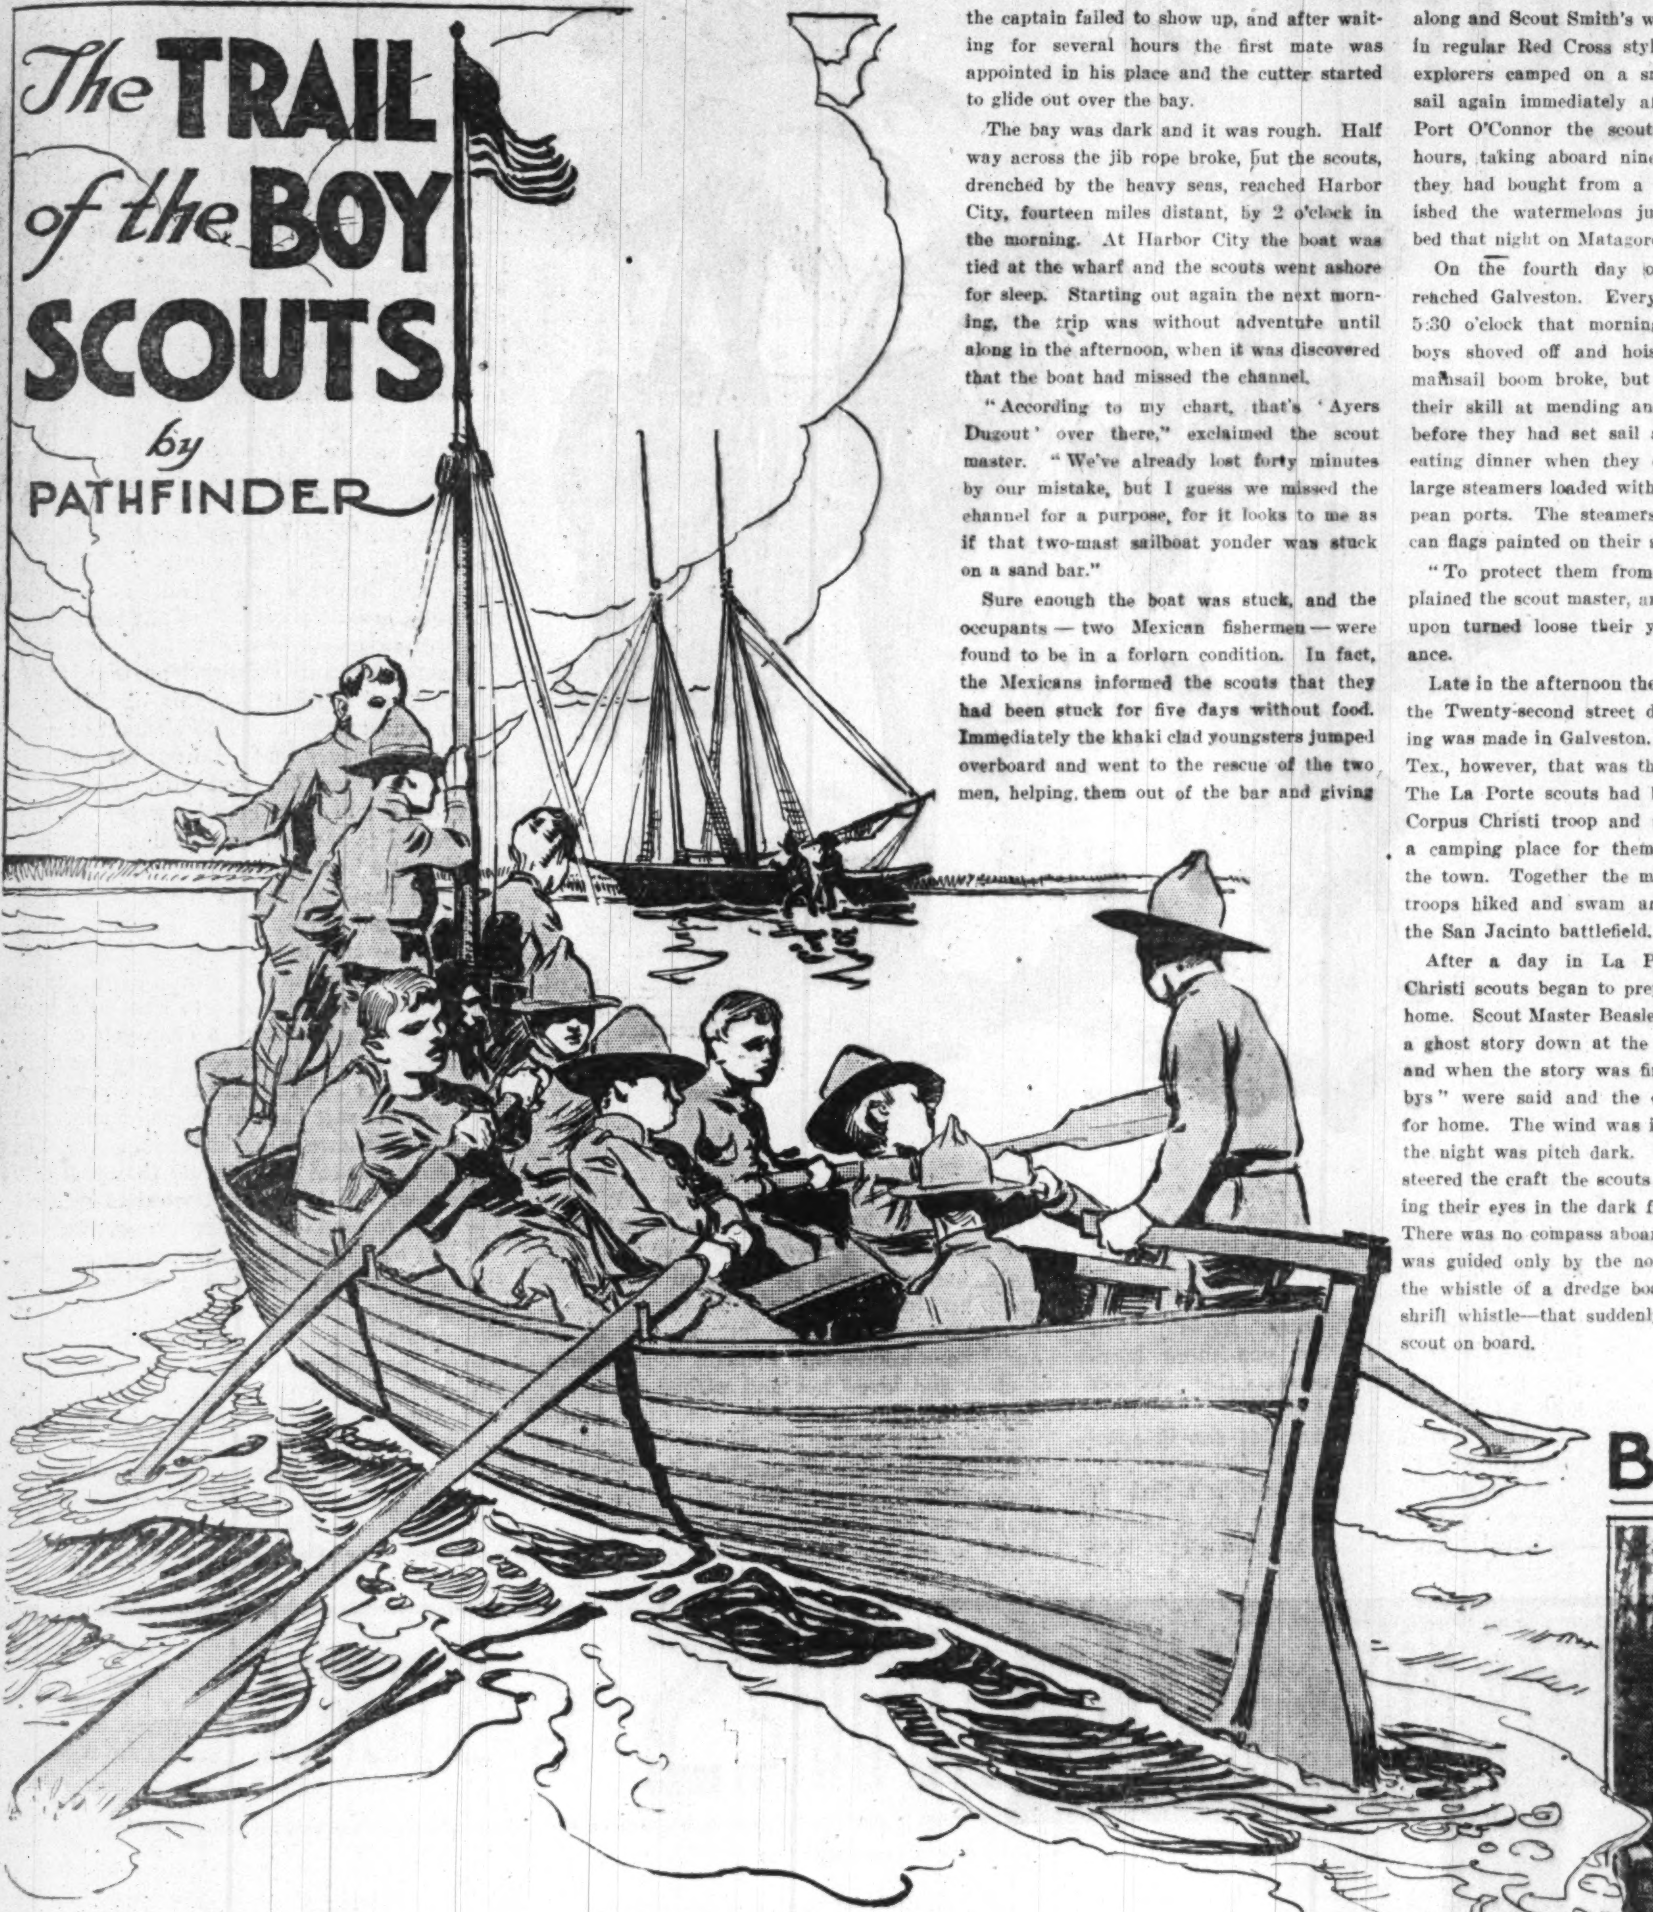
I don't know what the contents were of Violet's "date making" letter. Almost certainly it was not from the man who had first noticed her youth and good looks. But the postal card—maybe I hadn't ought to have read it, even if it did lay correspondence side up on the desk, but its cramped handwriting and its lines that ran up hill aroused my curiosity. I wonder if, while she read that postal card along with her other letters received next day, Violet still retained her chorus girl smile:

My dear girlie—I wish you would rite oftener but I know you are so busy with yure work. Have not been feling well lately and times are pretty hard with us. Even the garden didn't amount to much this yere, only put up six jars of tomatoes. Minnie and the baby were just over and she says for me to send her love. God bless you. Yure loving mother.

YOUNG AMERICANS

The TRAIL of the BOY SCOUTS

by PATHFINDER



A TEXAS TROOP'S EXPEDITION.

HAVE I told you about the hike that a troop of Texas scouts recently took from Corpus Christi to Galveston? No? Well, it was some hike—not a "hike," either; it was a sail. Their motto on the 500 mile boat trip was "Corpus Christi to Galveston or bust," and they didn't bust.

The scouts sailed in a twenty-eight foot cutter loaned to them by the United States navy department. It carried a mainsail, foresail, and jib, and drew about eighteen inches of water when loaded. There were places for ten oars, but the scouts only carried four on the trip—two for the stern and two for the bow. Every morning the United States flag was hoisted and at each sunset it was lowered, every scout standing at attention and saluting on both occasions. Can you imagine how exciting it must have been, with the scouts, every time a boat or a town was passed, letting loose with this yell:

A-M-E-R-I-C-A!
Boy Scouts!
U. S. A.!
Corpus Christi to Galveston or bust!

Scout Master I. C. Kerridge Jr. and thirteen of his scouts from troop I left the Corpus Christi municipal wharf about midnight. They didn't intend to start so late, but the captain failed to show up, and after waiting for several hours the first mate was appointed in his place and the cutter started to glide out over the bay.

The bay was dark and it was rough. Half way across the jib rope broke, but the scouts, drenched by the heavy seas, reached Harbor City, fourteen miles distant, by 2 o'clock in the morning. At Harbor City the boat was tied at the wharf and the scouts went ashore for sleep. Starting out again the next morning, the trip was without adventure until along in the afternoon, when it was discovered that the boat had missed the channel.

"According to my chart, that's 'Ayers Dugout' over there," exclaimed the scout master. "We've already lost forty minutes by our mistake, but I guess we missed the channel for a purpose, for it looks to me as if that two-mast sailboat yonder was stuck on a sand bar."

Sure enough the boat was stuck, and the occupants — two Mexican fishermen — were found to be in a forlorn condition. In fact, the Mexicans informed the scouts that they had been stuck for five days without food. Immediately the khaki clad youngsters jumped overboard and went to the rescue of the two men, helping them out of the bar and giving them enough bread until they could get to port. The Mexicans were so grateful that they wanted to present their skiff in payment, but of course the scouts refused.

"Just a chance for first aid," explained the scout master.

"First aid!" echoed a member of the crew. "There's a chance for more first aid over here. Scout Smith has cut his foot to the bone on an oyster shell."

Fortunately the boat carried a first aid kit along and Scout Smith's wound was bandaged in regular Red Cross style. That night the explorers camped on a small island, setting sail again immediately after breakfast. At Port O'Connor the scouts stopped for two hours, taking aboard nine watermelons that they had bought from a farmer. They finished the watermelons just before going to bed that night on Matagorda peninsula.

On the fourth day out the expedition reached Galveston. Every scout was up by 5:30 o'clock that morning. Just after the boys shoved off and hoisted the sails, the mainsail boom broke, but the scouts proved their skill at mending and it was not long before they had set sail again. They were eating dinner when they came upon several large steamers loaded with sulphur for European ports. The steamers had huge American flags painted on their sides.

"To protect them from submarines!" explained the scout master, and the scouts thereupon turned loose their yell with a vengeance.

Late in the afternoon the cutter drew up to the Twenty-second street dock and the landing was made in Galveston. It was La Porte, Tex., however, that was the real destination. The La Porte scouts had been expecting the Corpus Christi troop and they had arranged a camping place for them in a grove near the town. Together the members of the two troops hiked and swam and took a trip to the San Jacinto battlefield.

After a day in La Porte the Corpus Christi scouts began to prepare for their trip home. Scout Master Beasley of La Porte told a ghost story down at the wharf that night, and when the story was finished the "good-bys" were said and the expedition started for home. The wind was in their favor, but the night was pitch dark. While the captain steered the craft the scouts took turns straining their eyes in the dark for channel stakes. There was no compass aboard and the captain was guided only by the north star. It was the whistle of a dredge boat—a particularly shrill whistle—that suddenly awakened every scout on board.

"Hey, you're about to run into our pipe line!" yelled the captain of the dredge boat, whereupon the cutter was guided to the other side of the dredge.

At a consultation the next morning the scouts found that they had $18 left in their expedition fund with which to buy provisions.

"I've got a suggestion," offered Scout Smith. "Say we get a tugboat going to Freeport to tow us. We've got the wind directly against us."

It ended by their voting to put $10 aside for the towing service, leaving $8 for provisions—no chance to do any more high feasting. That afternoon a large cloud was noticed bearing down from the northeast and the boys saw fit to moor their boat securely. They had no sooner covered their provisions and sea chests with canvas and made for shelter when the squall came up. They were thankful enough for their place of refuge in a warehouse, but along toward midnight the mosquitoes became so fierce that the boys were obliged to go outside and sleep in the wind, the rain now having ceased.

Conditions were so favorable the next day that the scouts decided they would not need a tow, and all went well until along in the afternoon when they encountered a heavy storm. There was thunder and lightning and the wind blew and the scouts were obliged to take down their sails and lay anchor. As soon as the storm subsided the boys began bailing out the boat, which had caught 210 gallons of water by actual measurement. Every scout aboard was thoroughly drenched, but all managed to keep their extra clothing and extra bedding dry.

On entering the Intercoastal canal, the scouts tried to get ahead of a tug and barge, but were unable to do so on account of the current made by the barge.

"I don't know whether the captain of the tug will stand for it or not," said one of the scouts, "but here goes on making fast to that barge."

The captain of the tug, on observing the act, invited the scouts to come over and help him pump the water out of his craft and the scouts were only too glad to comply in return for the privilege of "hooking on." In fact the cutter remained hooked on until evening, when it was anchored by a bridge for the night. The next day, with a high northwest wind, the cutter started out for itself and every effort was made to reach Matagorda City by sunset, but this was impossible, as the wind went down, and the scouts were obliged to take up the oars. Because they had not been obliged to spend the extra $10 for towing purposes, they decided to spend the sum for provisions, and the amount came in very handy, indeed.

As the tide happened to be low at Matagorda City, the scouts rowed around about 300 feet from the wharf, on what they thought was a sand bar. One of the scouts went overboard to test the bottom of the sand bar and let loose with a yell. He had sunk in mud up to his waist.

"Well, I'm all mud now anyhow," the scout philosophized; "I'll wade ashore and get a rowboat."

The scout came back with the row boat and took his companions ashore. It had reached 10:30 o'clock, grub had given out on the cutter, and the scouts had had no supper. Speedily they made tracks for a restaurant.

"Dang," ejaculated Patrol Leader Benson, "the restaurant's closed."

"Well, we can arouse the owner," it was suggested. But the owner did not care to be aroused. In fact, from the second story window he gave the scouts a round cursing for disturbing him.

The scouts were fortunate, however, in finding the owner of one of the grocery stores, who opened up his place of business and sold them enough canned meat and fruit and crackers for their supper and breakfast. After their 11 o'clock p. m. supper, the scouts retired for the night, some of them sleeping on the wharf, some of them snoozing on the grocery store porch.

The next morning the boys were again afloat under a good northeast wind, and without further adventure they eventually reached home. Some of the heroes in imaginary stories may have had more thrilling adventures than did these Texas scouts on this boat trip, but no story book heroes ever went through with a thing any more successfully.

CURTISS DAY AND HIS AEROPLANE

YOUNGEST LICENSED AVIATOR.

CURTISS LA Q. DAY of Gibson City, Ill., is said to be the youngest licensed aviator in the United States. He is but 19 years of age. Young Day has been experimenting with aeronautics since he was old enough to fly a kite. He had a man carrying glider and was making short flights long before he wore long pants. His dream of becoming a great aviator was shattered, however, when his parents learned of his ambition and sent him away to school. But Curtiss could not forget the call of the air, and later he went to Dayton, O., studied under the Wright organization and finally flew for his license. After the license was granted the boy's parents became converted to his ambition and he has been doing exhibition flying ever since.

AROUND THE CAMP FIRE

DAVE: The record for making fire by friction is held by Scout L. Milton Knight of Newtonville, Mass. His time was 27 seconds.

JACK R.: Every boy needs outdoor experience and physical activity. Boys nowadays are apt to be inside too much. Walk with your head up and chest raised; one can scarcely think of a round shouldered scout. An erect body means a deeper chest, room for the important organs to work, and thus affords them the best chance to act. I don't see why you should shirk the hikes and the drills. Scouting means something besides wearing a uniform.

LOREN: The eagle scout badge is awarded to any first class scout qualifying for twenty-one merit badges. These badges shall include first aid, physical development, life saving, personal health, public health, cooking, camping, bird study, pathfinding, pioneering, athletics, and ten others.

HOWARD: A boy can only consider himself a member of the Boy Scouts of America while he is a registered member of a registered troop. When a troop breaks up, prompt notice should be sent to national headquarters, which will do all within its power to reorganize the troop and provide it with a scout master. If a troop cannot be reorganized and some of the scouts still wish to go on with their work, national headquarters will endeavor to find a place for them in some other troop, or they may become lone scouts.

DICK: In the back of "The Handbook for Boys" and also in "The Scoutmaster's Manual," you will find lists of books which will help you as a patrol leader. You should talk the list over with your scoutmaster, who can give you good counsel as to the books best adapted to your needs. You will find that many of the books can be obtained from the public library without expense.

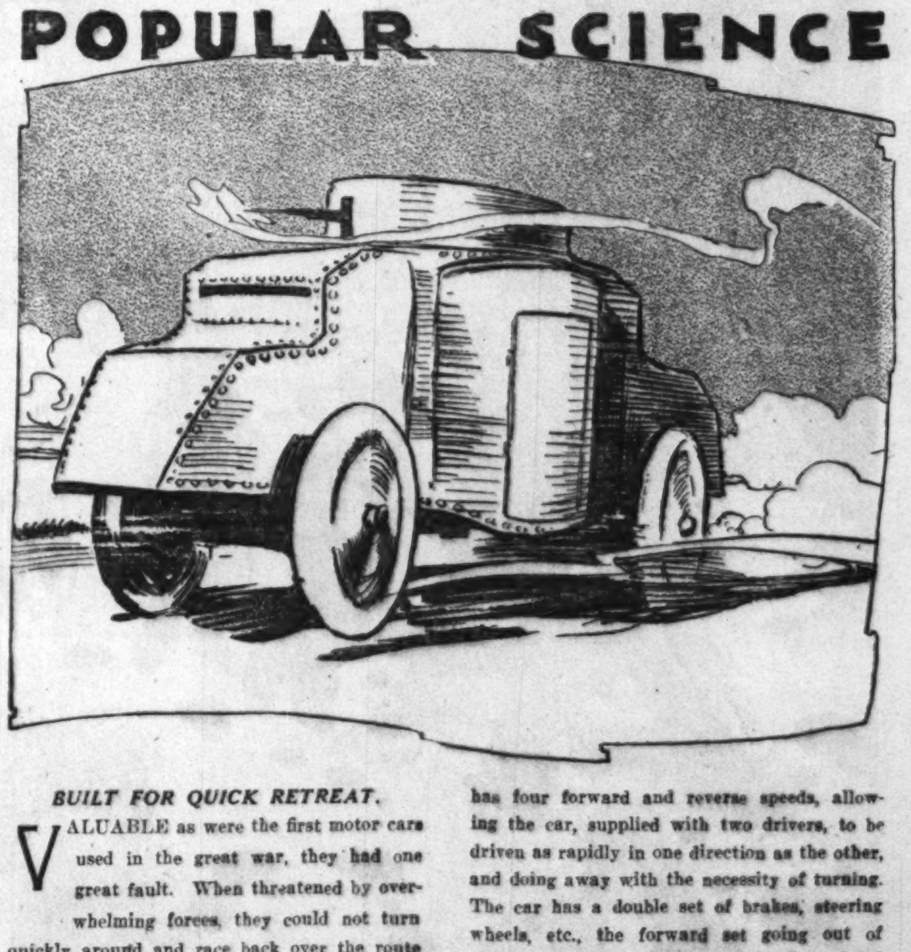
R. L. D.: The October Boys' Life printed a new scout play called "A Strenuous Afternoon." If your troop is planning an entertainment you will find this play just the thing.

* *

BILL: The customary forms of respect due to the flag are:

1. It should not be hoisted before sunrise nor allowed to remain after sunset.
2. At "retreat," sunset, civilian spectators should stand at attention and give the military salute.
3. When the national colors are passing on parade or review the spectators should, if walking, halt, and if sitting, rise and stand at attention and uncover.
4. When the flag is flown at half staff as a sign of mourning it should be hoisted to full staff at the conclusion of the funeral. In placing the flag at half mast it should be first hoisted to the top of the staff and then lowered to position. Preliminary to lowering from half staff it should be first raised to the top.
5. On Memorial day, May 30, the flag should fly at half mast from sunrise until noon, and full staff from noon to sunset.

POPULAR SCIENCE



BUILT FOR QUICK RETREAT.

VALUABLE as were the first motor cars used in the great war, they had one great fault. When threatened by overwhelming forces, they could not turn quickly around and race back over the route by which they had come. For this reason, many of them were captured. The illustration shows the double ended car now being used by the armies in Europe. The engine has four forward and reverse speeds, allowing the car, supplied with two drivers, to be driven as rapidly in one direction as the other, and doing away with the necessity of turning. The car has a double set of brakes, steering wheels, etc., the forward set going out of action when the car is reversed. It is fitted with a central revolving turret, by means of which a machine gun can be fired in any direction. The two drivers communicate with one another through a speaking tube.

Ibrahim and Gemila.

From the Arabian Nights.

By Wm. Donahey

THE king of Egypt had a son named Ibrahim, who was the most beautiful young man ever known, and as strong and as clever as he was beautiful. He was an only son, and his father loved him so dearly that he hardly ever let him out of his sight, but kept him always in or near the castle. On Fridays, however, he let him go with his attendants to the prayers held in the mosque. The way there led past the shop of an odd old man who sold books and pictures, and Ibrahim, being fond of such things, liked to loiter there as long as possible. One day he found in the back of the old man's shop a package done up in the finest of linen, and upon unwinding the linen he saw before him the portrait of a girl so beautiful that he cried out in astonishment and could not take his eyes from the picture.

"I must have it," he cried. "What is the price?" The old book seller, who had received many favors from the handsome young prince, was glad to do him a good turn now, so he answered: "My lord, I pray you accept this picture as a present."

The prince thanked him and took the picture home with him. But it disturbed his peaceful, happy life very much. The more he looked upon the pictured face the more he felt that he must see the original. The truth was that he had fallen in love for the first time in his life, and fallen in love with a girl whom he had never seen except in a painting.

He went to the old book seller and questioned him, but the old man could only answer: "The picture was painted by a man who lives in the city of Bagdad and whose name is Aboulcasim Sandalani, but beyond that I can tell you nothing. I have no notion of the lady's name. It may well be there is no such girl at all—that the painter only imagined this lovely face."

Ibrahim, however, felt that this could not be true. He was certain that that lovely girl lived, and made up his mind that he would find her, win her, and marry her. Knowing it was quite useless to ask his father's permission to leave home, the young prince provided himself with plenty of money and jewels, and, going from the palace at night, walked many miles, till at daybreak he found himself well out upon the desert. Presently a caravan came by, and, telling them he had lost his own party, the young man bought a place with them and was soon far upon the way to Bagdad.

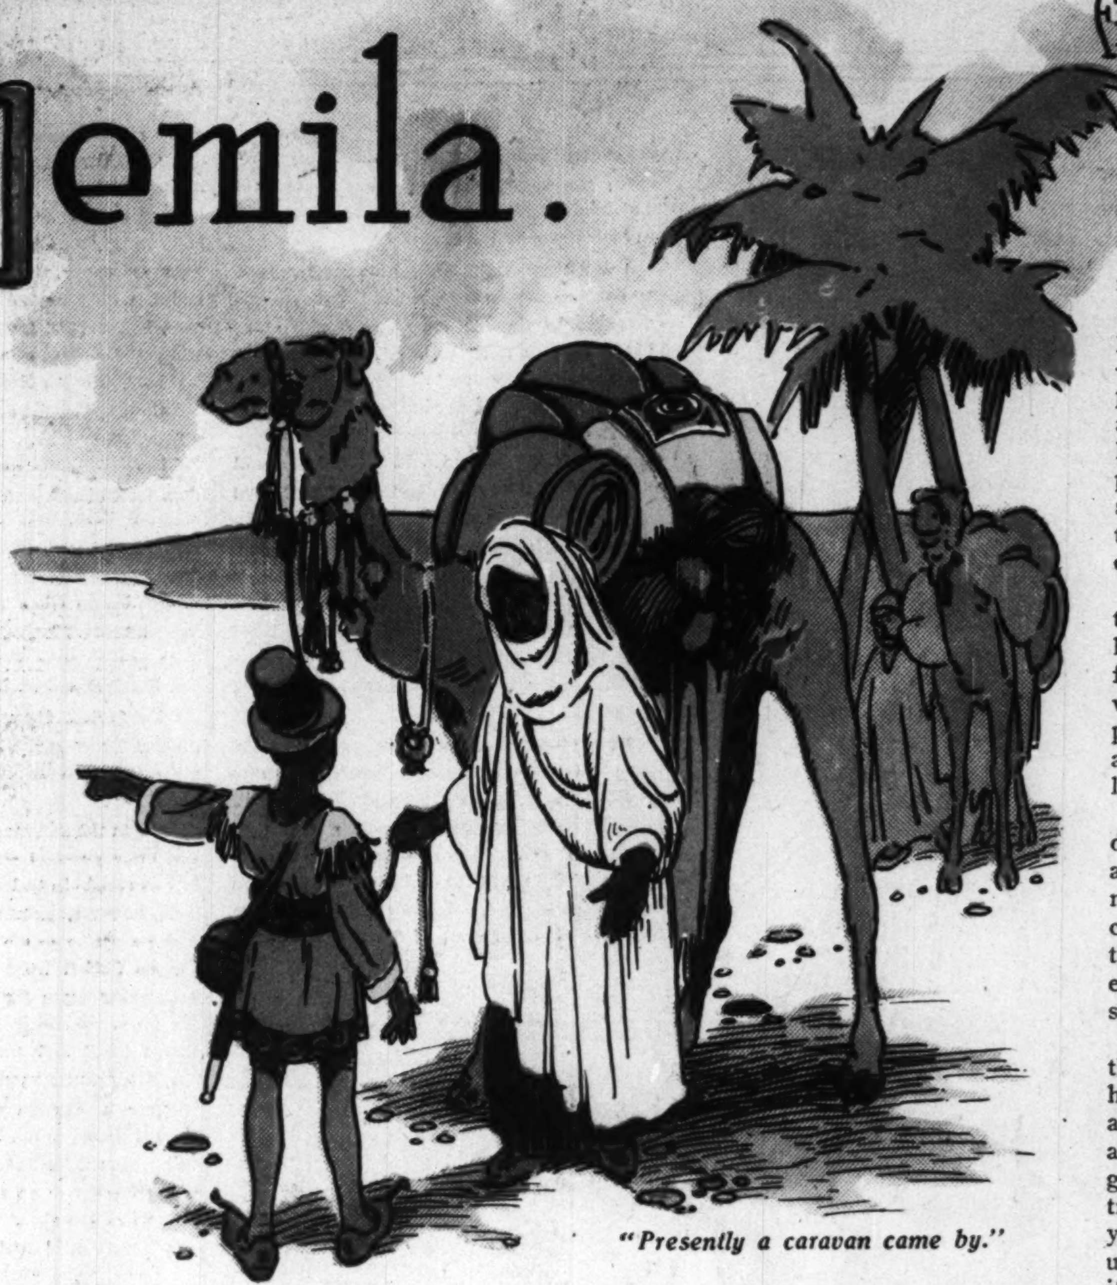
His journey was long, but safe, and no sooner had he arrived at Bagdad than he set about finding the painter of his lovely picture, which he always carried with him. He walked wonderingly along the streets of the strange city, till at last he saw before him a fine big house, at the door of which stood two carved benches, with beautiful rugs spread upon them, and on one of the benches sat a tall man, very handsome, in the most costly garments and with great jewels in his turban and upon his fingers.

The prince bowed before him and asked to be directed to a lodging, whereupon the man, looking at him keenly, said: "Enter here, I beg of you. You shall have all you wish for in my house, and while you stay there it shall cost you nothing. I am honored by having a man so handsome and so clever as you are in my household."

The young prince thanked him, and slave girls went ahead and showed him a wonderful room, wherein stood the handsomest of furniture. And when he had bathed and put on fresh garments, which his kind host sent out to him, he went downstairs, and there was music and dancing and a wonderful banquet.

It was not till evening that the man asked the prince his business in Bagdad, and when he did ask him the prince immediately opened the package in which he kept his precious picture, showed it to his host, and told him the whole story, ending with the words: "So I have come here to find this Aboulcasim Sandalani, in the hope that he may tell me who this lovely maiden is. For I must see her or I shall die."

"Fate," said his host slowly, "does very strange things. This is one of the strangest. For I myself am Aboulcasim Sandalani."



"Presently a caravan came by."

When he heard this the prince threw himself at the feet of his host and cried: "Then tell me quickly who this lovely lady is, that I may go in search of her this moment."

But his host shook his head. "I can tell you what you wish to know," he said, "but the knowledge may bring you more harm than good. It is most unlikely that you ever will be able to see her at all."

"Why?" cried Ibrahim, "is she ill—perhaps dying?"

"O, no," said the man, smiling a little at Ibrahim's eagerness, "but she might as well be, I fear. The fact is that that young lady has no use at all for men. The very word "man" cannot be pronounced in her presence. Her father is the only man she ever sees willingly, and men who have forced themselves upon her have all been instantly killed by her women slaves. Her father is my uncle, and I have known this Princess Gemila from a child and loved her and wished to marry her. I told my uncle this, and, after warning me of her temper, he said he was willing. But at the mention of marriage she flew into a tempest of anger, ordered me from her sight, even from her city where she lives, and refused to see her father for days because he had suggested marriage to her. More and more each year she retires within her castle, so that now she is rarely seen at all. I painted that picture you hold from memory—that and many more like it, and sold the pictures far and wide, hoping that some day a young man beautiful enough to win the lady's cold heart would fall in love with her pictured face and come and win her. Only if such a man came and won her, I wished him to promise me that I might look upon her once again."

Ibrahim smiled rather sadly. "I have seen the picture," he said, "and I have fallen in love with it. What you tell me does not frighten me, for if I do not win her I do not wish to live. And if I do win her, I will be so proud and happy I will gladly let you see again my beautiful wife. Tell me immediately—where does she live?"

"In the city of Balsora," answered Sandalani, "and I am happy this day, for you are so handsome yourself, so pleasant of manner, and so clever that I do not see how she can do anything but love you. Balsora is three days' trip from here by water. But so eager am I to see you succeed that I will myself fit out a boat for you in the morning."

Prince Ibrahim was so excited that night that he could hardly sleep. In the morning his host was true to his word. A fine ship lay at the dock, and as the young man stepped aboard her Sandalani said to him: "I have given these men orders to obey you on this trip and never to desert you. They are to be your servants and the boat is to be your boat until you are safe back in Bagdad again. And if in this venture you should lose your life, as I have warned you already that you may, these men will bring back word to me, and I promise to send the sad news to your father."

"Tell him," said the prince, "that if I had lived life would have meant nothing to me without this Princess Gemila. Good-by. I am certain that I will be successful. Thank you a thousand times for all you have done for me."

And the young prince started upon his great adventure smiling, while the man who had seemed to be so great a friend waved him farewell with a gleam of wicked triumph in his eyes.

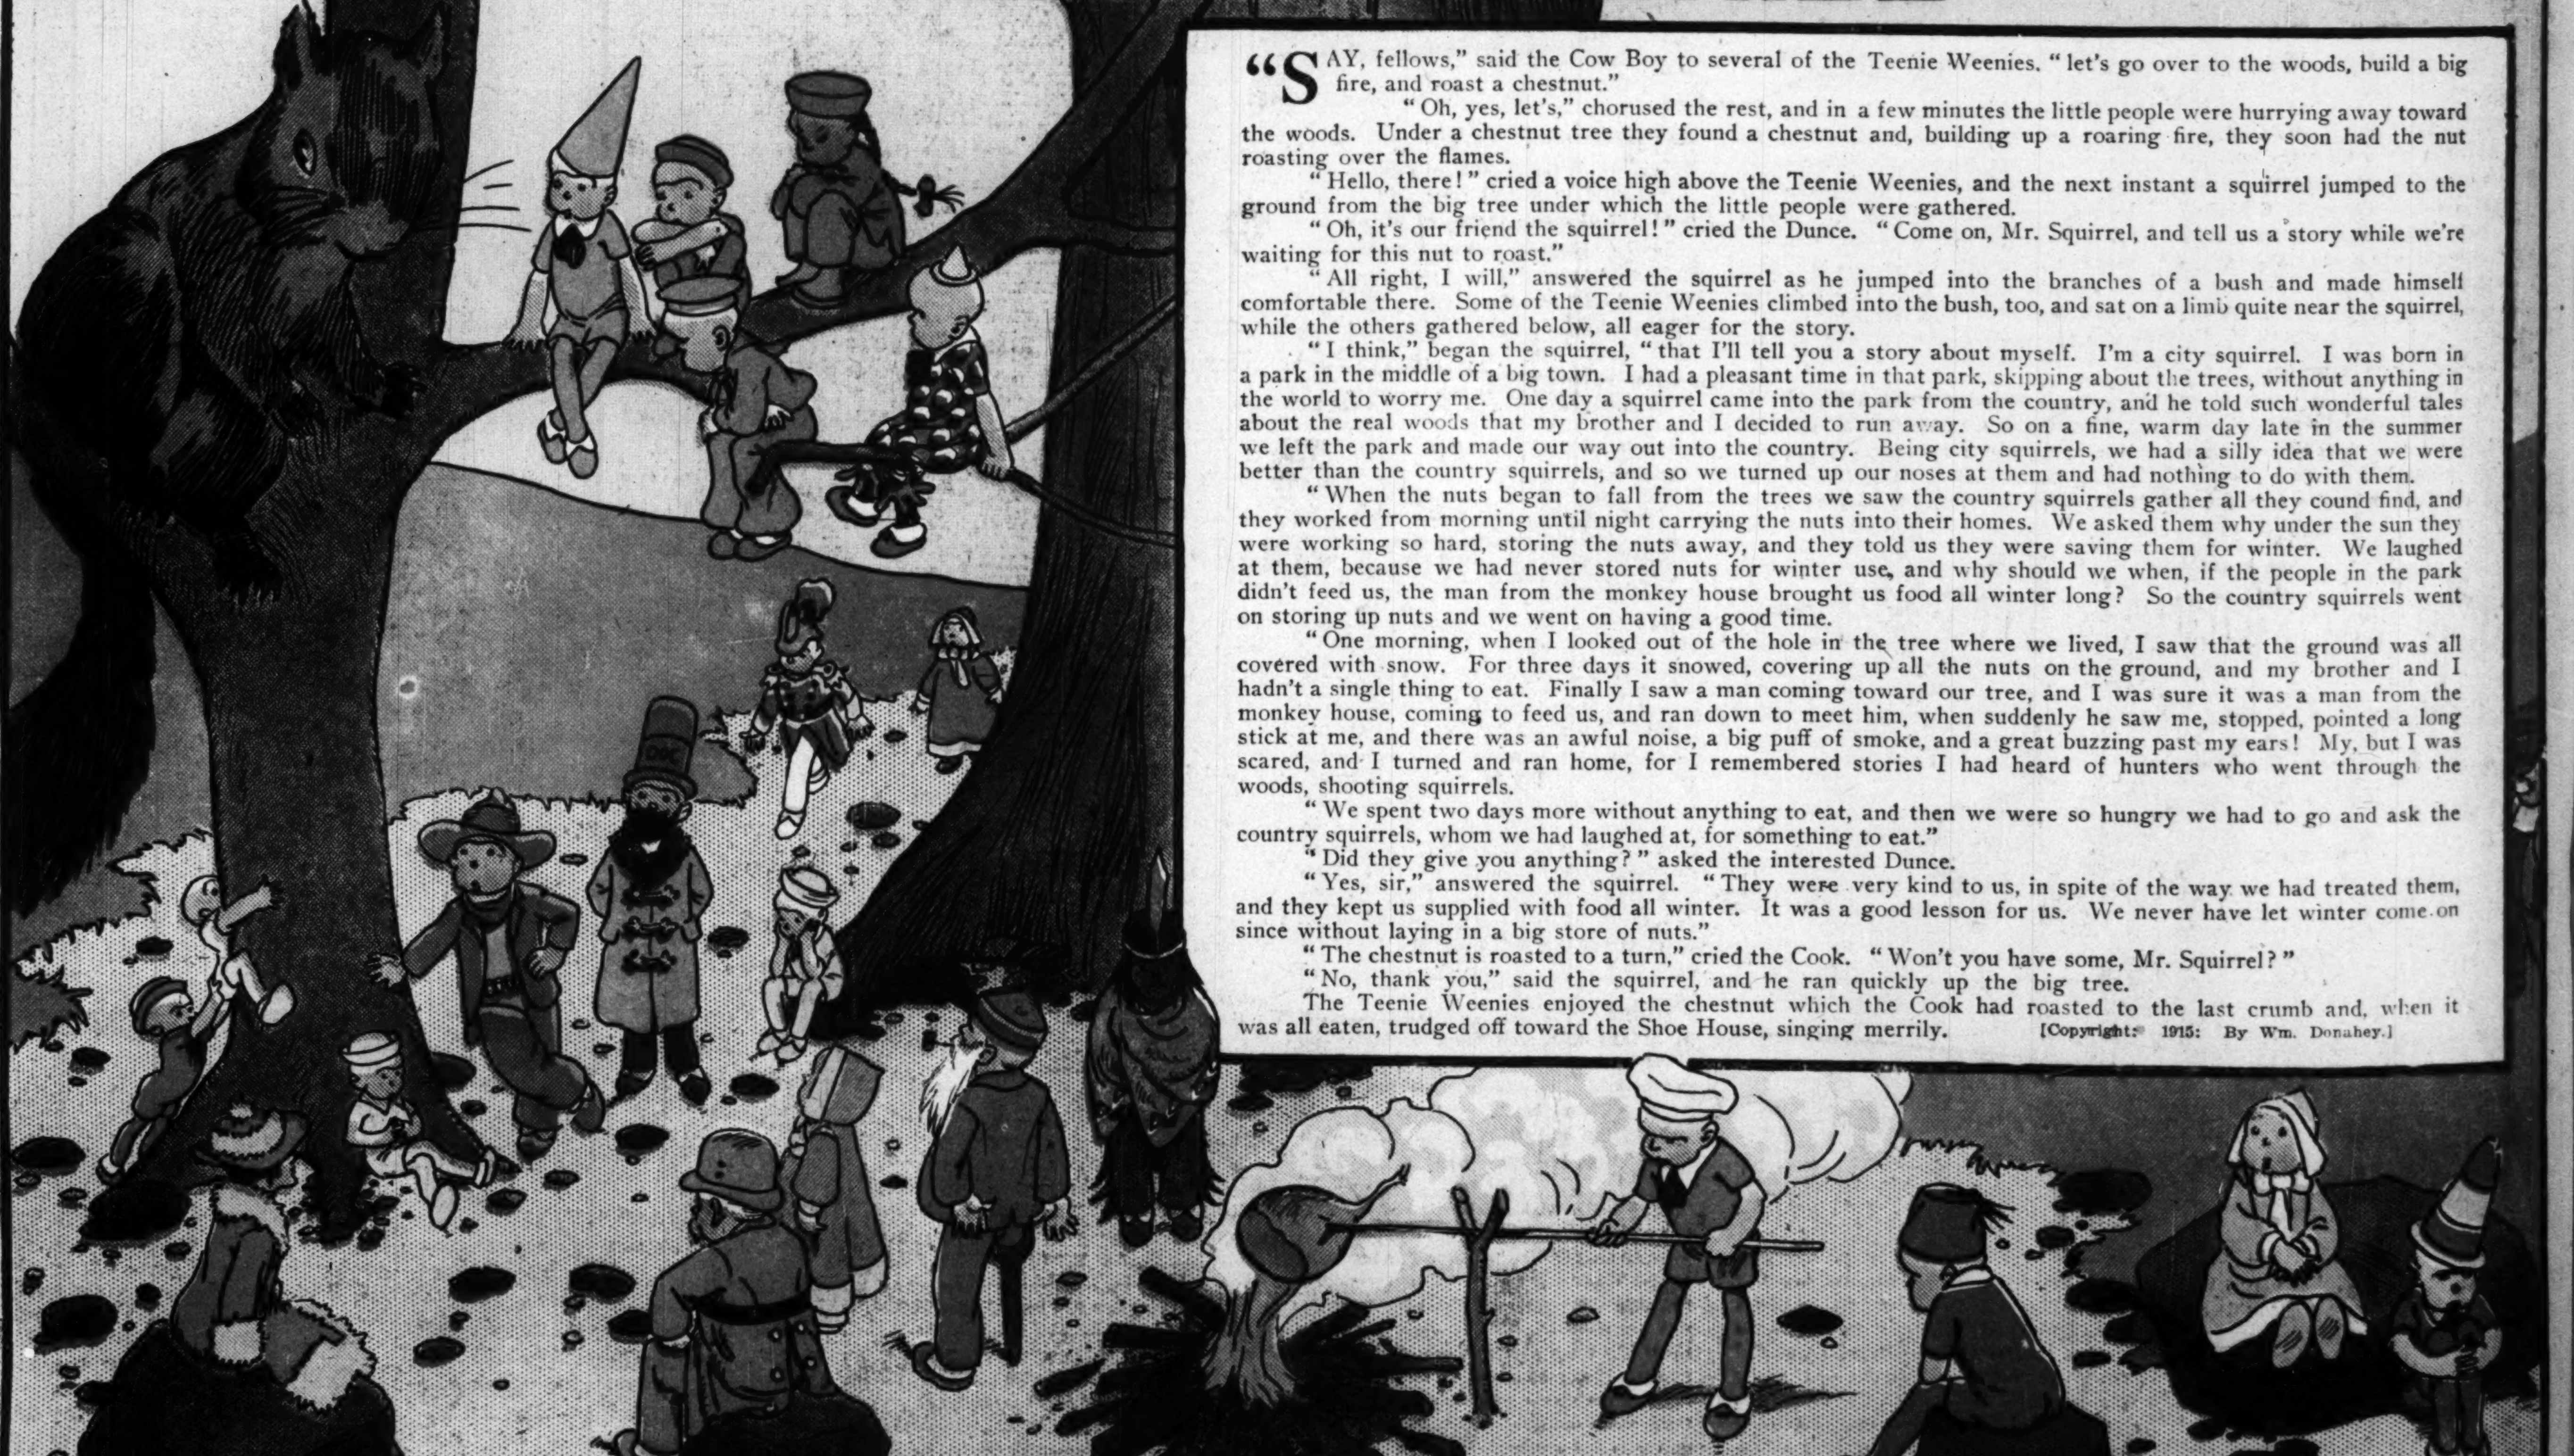
A SQUIRREL TELLS THE TEENIE WEENIES A STORY

By Wm. Donahey



"SAY, fellows," said the Cow Boy to several of the Teenie Weenies. "let's go over to the woods, build a big fire, and roast a chestnut."

"Oh, yes, let's," chorused the rest, and in a few minutes the little people were hurrying away toward the woods. Under a chestnut tree they found a chestnut and, building up a roaring fire, they soon had the nut roasting over the flames.

"Hello, there!" cried a voice high above the Teenie Weenies, and the next instant a squirrel jumped to the ground from the big tree under which the little people were gathered.

"Oh, it's our friend the squirrel!" cried the Dunce. "Come on, Mr. Squirrel, and tell us a story while we're waiting for this nut to roast."

"All right, I will," answered the squirrel as he jumped into the branches of a bush and made himself comfortable there. Some of the Teenie Weenies climbed into the bush, too, and sat on a limb quite near the squirrel, while the others gathered below, all eager for the story.

"I think," began the squirrel, "that I'll tell you a story about myself. I'm a city squirrel. I was born in a park in the middle of a big town. I had a pleasant time in that park, skipping about the trees, without anything in the world to worry me. One day a squirrel came into the park from the country, and he told such wonderful tales about the real woods that my brother and I decided to run away. So on a fine, warm day late in the summer we left the park and made our way out into the country. Being city squirrels, we had a silly idea that we were better than the country squirrels, and so we turned up our noses at them and had nothing to do with them.

"When the nuts began to fall from the trees we saw the country squirrels gather all they cound find, and they worked from morning until night carrying the nuts into their homes. We asked them why under the sun they were working so hard, storing the nuts away, and they told us they were saving them for winter. We laughed at them, because we had never stored nuts for winter use, and why should we when, if the people in the park didn't feed us, the man from the monkey house brought us food all winter long? So the country squirrels went on storing up nuts and we went on having a good time.

"One morning, when I looked out of the hole in the tree where we lived, I saw that the ground was all covered with snow. For three days it snowed, covering up all the nuts on the ground, and my brother and I hadn't a single thing to eat. Finally I saw a man coming toward our tree, and I was sure it was a man from the monkey house, coming to feed us, and ran down to meet him, when suddenly he saw me, stopped, pointed a long stick at me, and there was an awful noise, a big puff of smoke, and a great buzzing past my ears! My, but I was scared, and I turned and ran home, for I remembered stories I had heard of hunters who went through the woods, shooting squirrels.

"We spent two days more without anything to eat, and then we were so hungry we had to go and ask the country squirrels, whom we had laughed at, for something to eat."

"Did they give you anything?" asked the interested Dunce.

"Yes, sir," answered the squirrel. "They were very kind to us, in spite of the way we had treated them, and they kept us supplied with food all winter. It was a good lesson for us. We never have let winter come on since without laying in a big store of nuts."

"The chestnut is roasted to a turn," cried the Cook. "Won't you have some, Mr. Squirrel?"

"No, thank you," said the squirrel, and he ran quickly up the big tree.

The Teenie Weenies enjoyed the chestnut which the Cook had roasted to the last crumb and, when it was all eaten, trudged off toward the Shoe House, singing merrily.

THE COSTLIEST WARDROBE IN CHICAGO—MRS. EDWARD A. LEICHT'S

Says Louise James

WHEN costliness of material combines with judgment in design and taste in color the results are admirable. Such a happy combination has been achieved in Mrs. Leicht's wardrobe. The materials have been culled from various parts of the world, and many of them are of the costliest manufacturers can offer, while the designs are furnished by the most expensive and experienced fashion creators. Wondrous gold and silver metal cloths, tinted in various pastel shades, have been imported from India, and all of the lingerie is hand made of finest material and lace and brought from Paris.

The silk negligee at the right, for instance, is of silver metal cloth, pink tinted and banded with gold. The loops at the waist line are also gold, with tassels of gold. Below it is a "lisere" or diminutive version of a negligee made of pastel pink lace and silk net. In design and material it is essentially Parisian.

The opera coat is of gorgeous American beauty red velvet, lined with silver velvet the exact shade of the gray fox which borders its edges.

The separate waist is of blue satin, handsomely gold embroidered. The sleeves are of crepe de chine and the sleeves and neck are edged with the beaver bands which trim the heavy blue satin suit.

The coat of the suit buttoned narrowly across the front.

The hats were no less up to the minute than the rest of the wardrobe. Their paradise feathers breathed fragility as well as beauty, while the slippers were gold and silver brocaded, and one pair of black velvet had heels of blue satin.

The afternoon gown at the right of the photograph was of blue taffeta and chiffon. The skirt was held out by narrow hoops and the underskirt was of chiffon and lace. The evening gown was of expensive gold brocade, while the black satin evening coat, belted low, was lined with yellow chiffon over satin and bordered with gold.

These are a few of the garments which made up Mrs. Leicht's wardrobe. Those that supplement it, her other frocks and coats and lingerie and hats, are no less costly, no less supremely up to date in cut and in material.

THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE, aside from its many columns of news matter, is a composite of several magazines and sells at from a third to a fifth of the average magazine. You would not throw away your magazine, for which you paid 15 or 25 cents, after you had read only one or two articles. Why not get the full value of your SUNDAY TRIBUNE also—by saving it until you have read it thoroughly?

MEN AND WOMEN

THERE'S a reason, Mr. Grownup and Mrs. Grownup, why you should be a Santa Claus Good Fellow that perhaps may not have occurred to you.

It is the children who keep the spirit of Christmas alive. They are the living excuses for youth in people who imagine they have grown too old to indulge in frivolities. If there were no children in the world Christmas would come and go, a disregarded date in the almanac, like the anniversary of the Boston tea party or the Chicago fire. For grownups would feel that they no longer had an excuse for being as young as they want to be.

Why You Should Be a Good Fellow.

Christmas is a children's festival because it is the anniversary of the birth of a Child and every child in the world should be allowed to celebrate it.

No healthy person who has children can resist the atmosphere of Christmas or fail to appreciate its significance. No healthy person without children of his or her own can afford, for the sake of his or her own youth, sentiment, and religion, to fail to appreciate the real significance of Christmas.

Set out to make some poor little kiddie, who, perhaps, without your help will feel the bitterest tragedy of youth—a Santa Clausless Christmas morning—happy and you will be astonished at your own happiness and rejuvenated youth.

Men Not Discourtesy Monopolists.

Men are not entire monopolists of public discourtesy. During the present shopping rush proof of this statement is largely in evidence. Watch an army of women going through the swinging doors of a department store. She certainly is the exceptional woman who will hold the door for the woman behind her or take the trouble to glance over her shoulder to see if the door in its rebound is likely to strike any one coming in. Watch women as they crowd about a counter—not necessarily a bargain counter. If they can force themselves upon the salesperson's attention there is no thought of their unfairness to the woman whose "turn" they stole.

Crowding in out of their turn at ticket offices and box offices is proverbial as a source of woman's unfairness. In the public wash and rest rooms woman again may be seen crowding in to get the turn before her own. Watch women getting on or off a train or street car. The courtesy they crave from men is as sadly lacking in their own attitude toward womankind.

The sons of the family are not the only members who should be taught consideration of others. The daughters might profit splendidly from an equal share of it and the best manner of instruction is by the mother's own example of courtesy and kindness to others.

Woman's Temperance Service.

The most important service which women can render to the cause of temperance lies in better housekeeping. The biggest competitor a saloonkeeper has is the woman who serves a well cooked, substantial meal. The saloonkeeper knows this fact better than the wife does. That is the reason for his serving a variety of hot, well cooked foods for "free lunches."

The Hand of the Friend.

There are times when people may not think so much of it. When all is going fair and smooth we are not alert to recognize the value of friendship. We do not want extraordinary things done for us and there is no pressing call on us to perform them for other people. The dog that is not lame does not want assistance over the stile; would growl at us, perhaps, if we offered a hand. It is when the days grow dark with sickness and trouble that folk look around and learn what friendship means.

Discontent a Good Thing.

Putting up with things is not the way to make any headway. Maybe you put up with things because you are afraid of giving way to discontent. But sometimes discontent is a good thing. It gets you out of a groove.

Of course, there are two kinds of discontent. There's the ineffective kind that doesn't lead to anything, and there's the divine discontent that urges on to better things.

What made me think of this little chat with you was a recent discovery of my own of putting up with a certain piece of furniture in my living room. It is not decorative, it is not useful, and it is so awkward in size that all the rest of the furniture in that room has to be put in more or less awkward places just to accommodate that one inconvenient piece. Somehow it never occurred to me to stop putting up with it until the other day, when I decided to get rid of it entirely and buy something useful and decorative to fill its place.

Some of us are just like this in the bigger things of life. We go on putting up with all sorts of uncongenial conditions without making the slightest effort to alter them. The reason? There are two—laziness and cowardice. Think it over now and see if I am not right.

Pride a Character Preservative.

Pride is protean and, although it has its lower forms, many of its aspects are of the highest beneficence. It is a great preservative of character. Which fact should never be forgotten when dealing with the young.

Humbling a child's pride is a bad thing for a grown person to do. A grownup has no cause to congratulate himself if he has succeeded in forcing a child's sense of pride into the dust heap and smothered it there. Degradation never effects a useful purpose. Dragging in the mire never cleanses.

The sneak, the informer, the backbiter, the telltale are without the qualities of pride. They are nearly always the 'umble, Uriah Heap variety.

The quality that leads us to scorn cheating, dishonesty, cowardice is true pride. And a human being destitute of this quality is not a noble creature, is he?

The cultivation of the best attributes that belong to pride will ennoble any character.

One of the crying evils of today is, I think, lack of pride in one's work.

In the elder days of art,
  Builders wrought with greatest care
Each minute and unseen part,
  For the Gods see everywhere

More pride would prevent slipshod work. True pride makes one ashamed of laziness and shiftlessness.

No. 1220—Three piece skirt, 24 to 34 waist. For the medium size will be needed 4¼ yards of material 36 or 3¾ yards 44 inches wide.

THERE is no doubt that the short jacket is going to be immensely popular these coming months. Right now the majority of coats are three-quarters long, but even as I write there is a tendency towards short coats which is becoming more pronounced all the time. There is something indisputably attractive about the jaunty short jacket, something youth-giving and generally becoming.

Velvet continues to be enormously popular, especially black velvet. Furthermore, there is no fabric with which color combines more gloriously. A vivid silk lining, for instance, with a coat of this sort would be extremely effective and pretty.

As for the blouse, well, so long as coats and skirts are sold together under the name of suits there will be blouses. A suit, moreover, may have a dozen different blouses of a dozen differing materials, and all of these materials be tubable either in water or in gasoline.

For the blouse I am offering today in pattern some of the new plaid taffetas would be extremely good looking. And of course satin, lace, and chiffon are all up to date and stylish.

Fancy braids and plain braids are both decidedly modish as a blouse trimming. Military cachet may be given an otherwise simple and feminine blouse by the addition of gilt braid on the collar and the front lapels. Gilt braid would trim the blouse shown today most effectively. Narrow braids lead in popularity, but the wide braid, when sparingly applied, can be attractive.

There are two kinds of blouses distinctly in favor now. One of them is the blouse of complicated cut suggesting the models of several years ago. The other is the model which tends to severity of design and depends upon its material and fit for its prettiness. This latter sort leads in favor and will continue to do so with the approach of spring, except, of course, in the case of the dressier blouses for wear on more festive occasions.

THERE certainly is no dearth of novelty gifts this season on account of the war. The decorative shops are filled with the greatest variety of things, some unique, some amusing, and some lovely beyond words. The mere circumstance of their being new makes them interesting to see or even to read about.

One fact stands forth clearly, and that is that the majority of these articles, which hitherto might have passed as imported, are now frankly admitted to be made right in this country. They are delightful offerings that would undoubtedly a year ago have borne the name of some foreign country beside the price mark on the label at their base.

Doorstops are vastly popular. They are made of iron with enameled decorations in bright, gay colors. Some are in the form of figures and others are baskets of fruit and baskets of flowers. Still others are made of flat pieces of wood with large bunches of flowers painted on them and have the iron weights attached to the back. These any girl with a knack at painting can certainly make at home.

Another type of doorstop, made of black and white striped velvet, is shaped much like a tea cozy. It has a bright red buttonlike knob at the top, and instead of being weighted with iron is merely filled with sand. These also are easily made and recommended as good Christmas gifts.

Striped haircloth is among the latest novelties in upholstery fabrics. It comes in combination colors and also plain and fancy figures.

Parchment lamp shades are considered lovely. Some beautiful ones have the parchment laid over wide cylindrical wire frames and are painted in Adam designs. They are supposed to have as a base a vase, also in Adam design.

A fine floor or piano lamp, made entirely of carved wood and finished in antique gold, has the parchment cut and shaped over a wire frame, the edges being put together with antique gilt braid.

So many articles among the novelties in the shops this season look like fragile porcelain, but they are not. On the contrary, they are made of iron, enameled in highly glazed white enamel and then painted in dainty tones. The prettiest of these is the Marie Antoinette door knocker. It comes in many shapes and sizes and is designed either for cottage outside doors or for bedroom doors. The design usually shows a delicate basket filled with flowers or fruit. It looks to be suspended by the basket handle, and the whole ornament lifts to knock with.

Another novelty that is overrunning the market is the ball of twine holder. A painted box seems to contain half a dozen wooden tulips or stems, and each tulip holds a ball of colored twine—yellow, red, blue, etc.

Many bizarre things elicit an exclamation of admiration; in some cases it may be imagined that the admiration will not be long sustained. Surprisingly charming in effect is a modern style aquarium. It is in the shape of a huge fish bowl. On the outside of the bowl are painted black leaves and stems and flowers, and in the bottom of the bowl, instead of the usual gravel, are a lot of jade marbles. The color effect with the coppery fish flashing in the bowl is lovely.

The Japanese stores have their special output of small things to delight the eye. One in particular that has cropped up all over the city suddenly is the little sandalwood tree. The tree, pot and all, is not more than seven inches high, but it is clipped and trimmed and shaped in exact replica in miniature of a real bay tree. A pair of these trees at either end of a white mantel is exquisitely decorative. They look so "conventional" that it is hard to realize they are alive.

The output of bird cages is quite unlimited. Black ones of split bamboo, hand woven, have coral bracelets for the swings, little Canton china receptacles for the food, and coral colored silken strings and tassels to hang them by.

A cunning and desirable bauble is the veranda candle. It is made of red enamel with a chalice shaped bowl attached. A short wax candle in a tiny saucer is set into the glass bowl, sitting so low that it cannot be blown out.

The parrot as a decorative motif is being played to death this year. A novel candle shade is made of colored art glass in the shape of a parrot in an oval brass hoop. The glass makes a flat upright shade that has a candle and candlestick at the back of it. Electric candles are used with it. Another motif is a lamp shade of silk shirred over a cage shaped frame. Inside of the frame, flat against the silk, is a pasteboard parrot, the shadow of which is disclosed when the light is switched on.

It is a fad to have a black bowl on the living room table. It is a sort of punctuation in the color scheme of the room. You wonder what they are made of, they look so conspicuous, set often upon little teekwood stands. Would you be shocked to find that many of them are nothing but china painted black? Of course you could make them yourself.

Painted tin is another of this season's products. It sounds horrible, but in reality is quite sightly.

Touches of brilliant color are eagerly sought after. A bit of vivid red Austrian ware "picks up" the whole color tone of a room wonderfully.

At a noted decorator's studio I inquired the price of a pair of large black jugs that seemed to be highly glazed. The clerk told me imperturbably they were $300, "but," she drawled, "you'll pardon me, they're not black, they're purple," and as she held it towards the window I saw that it was of thick glass and the light that came through it was fairly stained with the rich royal color.

This year, for some unaccountable reason, decorative novelties are unusually low in price. All of the articles described and illustrated here range in price from $1 to $3, with the exception of the black looking purple glass jugs.

Answers to Queries.

MRS. N. H.: If you will write any of the best book houses, telling them the subject in which you are interested, they will upon request, send you a list of books on that subject.

* *

MRS. J. H.: Do you know that tint can be mixed with the plaster when it is being made and put on the wall, and it has just as charming effect as paper or calcimine? Why don't you try it on your new house? White enamel is quite appropriate, used with mahogany furniture. Use simple window draperies. Marquisette curtains would be nice, or sun fast material matching the color of the side walls. Yes, picture molding is used in place of plate rails, but paneling is newer than either.

* *

FRED E. T.: If you are furnishing a small apartment, it is decidely advisable to have all the furniture in one style so that the pieces may be changed about in the different rooms to advantage. The willow taffeta or goldenrod satin in pastel style known as cottage furniture is attractive and can be had for all of the different rooms. It is painted either in light or dark colors, with or without ornamental motifs. Colonial furniture always is attractive and forms a delightful nucleus to be added to later when you may move into larger quarters. It is a sort of furniture of which one does not tire, and, although it may be more expensive to begin with than the faddier types, it will wear well and you are not apt to become tired of it.

* *

MRS. V. L.: Tinted plaster is used more than either paint or paper in bungalow wall finish; either a pale biscuit color, a clear gray, or a soft tan. The color should be put in when the plaster is being mixed, but if the plastering has already been done and the paint has not been mixed with it it may be painted with a flat paint in any of the cold water paints sold for the purpose. The effect of the grain, a little rough, is pleasing to the eye. Dark colors should never be used. The ceilings may be plainly whitewashed.

Taking Telephone Messages.

MISS LITTLE was greatly surprised and hurt when the man for whom she works sharply reprimanded her for forgetting to deliver a message that he had been expecting. Miss Little took the message over the telephone while her employer was out of the office and expected to remember to give it to him as soon as he came in. But when he returned she was absorbed in the work she was doing and the telephone call slipped her mind until the following day. This delay in delivering the message caused her employer a great deal of inconvenience and annoyance and he was justly angry.

Although she knew the message was an important one, Miss Little says she thinks her employer was too severe with her for forgetting a telephone call. It seems to me that there was no excuse for her neglecting to deliver a message that came for her employer. It was extremely careless of her to trust to her memory important calls that should have been given to her employer as soon as possible.

When one has a good deal of work to do it is almost impossible to remember every call that comes in unless it is written down immediately. If this girl had been in the habit of making a note of every message that she received there would not have been any danger of her forgetting any of them. The only way to take care of calls is to have a pencil and scratch pad close to the telephone, so that every message can be written out and immediately placed on the desk of the person for whom it is intended.

The girl who thinks that taking care of messages for her employer is one of the least important of her duties is greatly mistaken and she would not keep her position long if her employer knew of her attitude toward telephone calls. There is no part of one's work that is so unimportant that one can afford to handle it carelessly.

Here is a letter on a subject that is interesting to every one just now:

"Dear Miss King: We are a club of business girls who read your articles every week. We are not making a great deal of money and cannot afford to spend much for Christmas presents, especially for outsiders—that is, for people with whom we work. We would like to give everybody some little thing to show the spirit we feel, but, as we said, we cannot afford it. We feel that if we give one person in the office something, we ought to give every one a present. Do you think it necessary to give a girl with whom you work a gift if she gives you one? We do not intend to give presents to the girls with whom we work, but we do not know what to do if they give them to us. We would be thankful if you would answer this question through the paper for us.

"BUSINESS GIRLS' CLUB."

You are sensible, I think, not to attempt to give every girl who works with you a Christmas gift, when you cannot easily afford it. When there are a number of girls working together, if each girl gave every other girl a present, even if it is a most inexpensive one, she would have to have a large size Christmas fund. If a girl to whom you have no intention of giving a Christmas gift has one for you, the only thing you can do is to accept it and make no apology for not giving her one.

It would be a nice idea, I think, to write each girl who works with you a note wishing her a happy Christmas, or to send all the girls Christmas cards. I am sure they will appreciate your thought of them.

Real Love Stories

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

A Mismanaging Mama.

MRS. J. DE MORGAN JONES was a real dowager—efficient in the wielding of the fatal lorgnette and a maneuverer that would make Machaevelli look coarse. No one would have suspected that J. De Morgan Jones was subject to fits of fever over the outstanding bills to see Mrs. J. and her beautiful daughter Luella flitting about the watering places. In spite of dear mamma, Luella was a sweet girl—that is probably the reason she did not take the chinless son of the New York Fishers—nor the somewhat matrimonially shopworn scion of the Blake family.

One day mamma read in the society column that A. P. Bronson and his son Peter would "spend some time at French Lick after the first of the month." Thereupon mamma and Luella ran down there—in spite of the protests of poor papa, whose bank balance was becoming somewhat emaciated.

They arrived on Thursday and on Friday morning came a wonderful touring car with A. P. B. and a coat of arms emblazoned on the door and manned by an athletic young person in whom mamma immediately discovered "such an air of distinction only the sons of the first families possess." The young person strode up to the desk and was greeted by the clerk as Peter and shown to one of the best rooms in the hostelry.

That was enough for mamma. She discovered other virtues about him immediately and contrived a meeting between Luelle and the "air of distinction."

Then followed a wonderful week of touring about in the machine, with luncheon in the woods and many other delightful things.

Now, as a matter of cold actuality the air of distinction discovered by Mrs. J. De Morgan Jones belonged to no more important a person than the chauffeur of the A. P. B.'s, who coincidentally had the same name as the son of the family, who, by the way, was much less athletic.

Luella, who was a really sweet girl, in spite of mamma, was let in on the secret early in the game, and, being a modern young woman, did not share mamma's predilection for first families. At the end of the week Peter and Luella came to mamma and told her that A. P. B. Sr. was likely to appear on the scene any day with the gout and a bad disposition, and that, therefore, it might be wise to steal a march on him by being married at once.

Mrs. J. De Morgan Jones thought it behooved her to object and shed a few tears in public, but behind her Armenian embroidered handkerchief she smiled triumphantly and told Peter in a tearful voice that Luella was a willful girl. Then she dropped the hint of it discreetly to—well, almost everybody, and a large assemblage came into the drawing room to see the knot tied. Mrs. J. De Morgan Jones had settled herself impressively in front of the crowd beside the bride and bridegroom and was having some difficulty in hiding a fatuous grin when the landlord handed her—now that the ceremony was safely over—a telegram from A. P. B. congratulating his chauffeur and bidding him draw on his master for his honeymoon expenses.

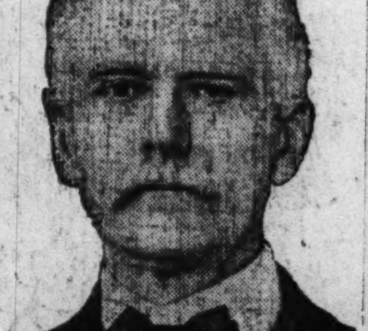
Well Known Remedy Relieves Chronic Case

Important to Dispose of Waste from the Stomach with Regularity.

People frequently attribute to failure of the digestive organs conditions that are primarily due to inactive bowels, and apply remedies that from their very nature are more apt to aggravate than to relieve the disorder.

When the bowels act regularly the stomach is in better shape to perform its allotted tasks and can usually be depended upon. To keep the bowels in condition there is no more effective remedy than the combination of simple laxative herbs known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is sold in drug stores for fifty cents a bottle.

Dr. Caldwell has prescribed this remedy in his practice for over a quarter of a century and it is today the standard household remedy in thousands of homes. Mr. Thos. DeLoach, with the Department of the Interior, Office of Indian Affairs, at Washington, wrote Dr. Caldwell recently that "Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the best laxative I have any knowledge of and the cleaning up guaranteed by its use relieves every organ."



MR. THOS. DeLOACH

A bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin should be on hand in every home for use when needed. A trial bottle, free of charge, can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 454 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.

Woman Should Lead In Love-Making

Girls, don't wait for "some man" to come along, "some time," and marry you. Choose your man yourself, right now, and go after him on scientific principles. Then you'll get the right man, he will be none the wiser and you'll both be happier. This is the message, in brief, of an astounding new book appropriately enough called "The Orange Blossom." Moreover, the author gives simple, detailed instructions on how to choose the right man, how to first interest, then attract, enthrall and bring him to his knees. "These newly revealed love-laws of Nature will work for you," says the author in effect. The book may be seen at almost any book or department store.—Advertisement.

Doris Blake Says

If you were born this week you are

Imaginative.

Have you a perplexing love affair in which you need the counsel of a friend? Write to Doris Blake, care "The Sunday Tribune." If you wish a personal reply send stamped and addressed envelope.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

LIKE the archer, your shafts are unanswerable, and your defense perfect. You aim well and hit the mark in almost all matters. Because of this characteristic you are prophetic, and can tell the outcome of enterprises right from the start. Your words go straight to the point and sometimes wound because they are all too true. People, as a rule, do not like to be told the truth in such plain speech, but they do have to admit the power of your assertions. Only let your words be free from anger and resentment! Then you will have greater influence and will not be so easily misunderstood.

You are sympathetic and kind and like to be helpful. A more faithful, sincere, and honorable friend could not be found. You cannot bear to see suffering, your first impulse is to relieve it, and in so doing you do not use any reason whatever; it is all a matter of the heart. And so it isn't strange that you are sometimes paid with ingratitude, and your generosity basely used. This is the cause of great sorrow and bitterness, so much so that it sometimes utterly incapacitates you.

As an entertaining lecturer you are hard to beat, especially along the lines of history and philosophy. Your ever ready wit and the pleasant sort of sarcasm in which you indulge are effective ways of impressing as well as amusing your audiences. Humbug stands little chance with you and you can puncture pretense in an entertaining way; in other words, pupils can't "bluff" you.

If you should pursue the study and practice of psychology you would be a wonderful prophet of evil, but in this you can be of great help to your friends by warning them of impending dangers. Your way is to point out the dangerous reef and then let the man run onto it or avoid it, as he chooses. This faculty of looking ahead is often seen in the prophesying of storms, weather changes, the announcement of who it was that rang the bell, or what a letter contains. This is why you are often called "the emergency people," for you seem to know by instinct what to do in cases of sudden danger and unexpected occurrences.

Usually you are too busy tending to your own affairs to interfere with other people's business. It is said of this sign that because of its wealth amassing proclivities it causes more success and prosperity or more distress and misery to others than any of the remaining signs.

Neatness with you is a virtue; you dislike disorder of any kind. You hate anything underhanded or secret, even going so far at times as to disapprove of secret societies. If you ever suspect that anything isn't "on the square" you give your opinion on the spot, no matter who may be hit.

Your physical strength is greater than that of people born under any other sign: your movements quick, your manner refined and elegant, your eyes expressive and true.

As a clergyman, business manager, musician, merchant, jeweler, artist, lecturer, historian, or salesman you will be a success. In general, your talents lie along the line of commercial enterprise, or anything in which executive ability and foresight are needed.

Your colors are red, green, and gold; birthstones, turquoise and diamonds. You will be most fortunate during your own sign, but may have some misfortune during the week beginning June 27.

A harmonious domestic life will be obtained by a union with Aries, March 22-April 20; a peaceful union would be with Libra, Sept. 24-Oct. 23, or with Aquarius, Jan. 21-Feb. 19.

Not at all wrong, my dear girl, provided your parents have no objections. They are the court of last decision. But don't let this sort of good friendship develop into a "steady," for that's out of the question at your age.

He Took the Only Seat.

My lover had always seemed to be more thoughtful and considerate than any man I had ever known.

One day only a few months after our marriage we had been downtown together shopping and were both tired and anxious to get home. I was surprised when we boarded the street car and there being only one vacant seat my husband sat down and left me standing with my arms full of packages. I got off at the next corner and took the next car home.

When I got home there was my husband and two men who had carried him from the car. When he and I had boarded the car together he had been seized with a pain which proved later to be appendicitis.

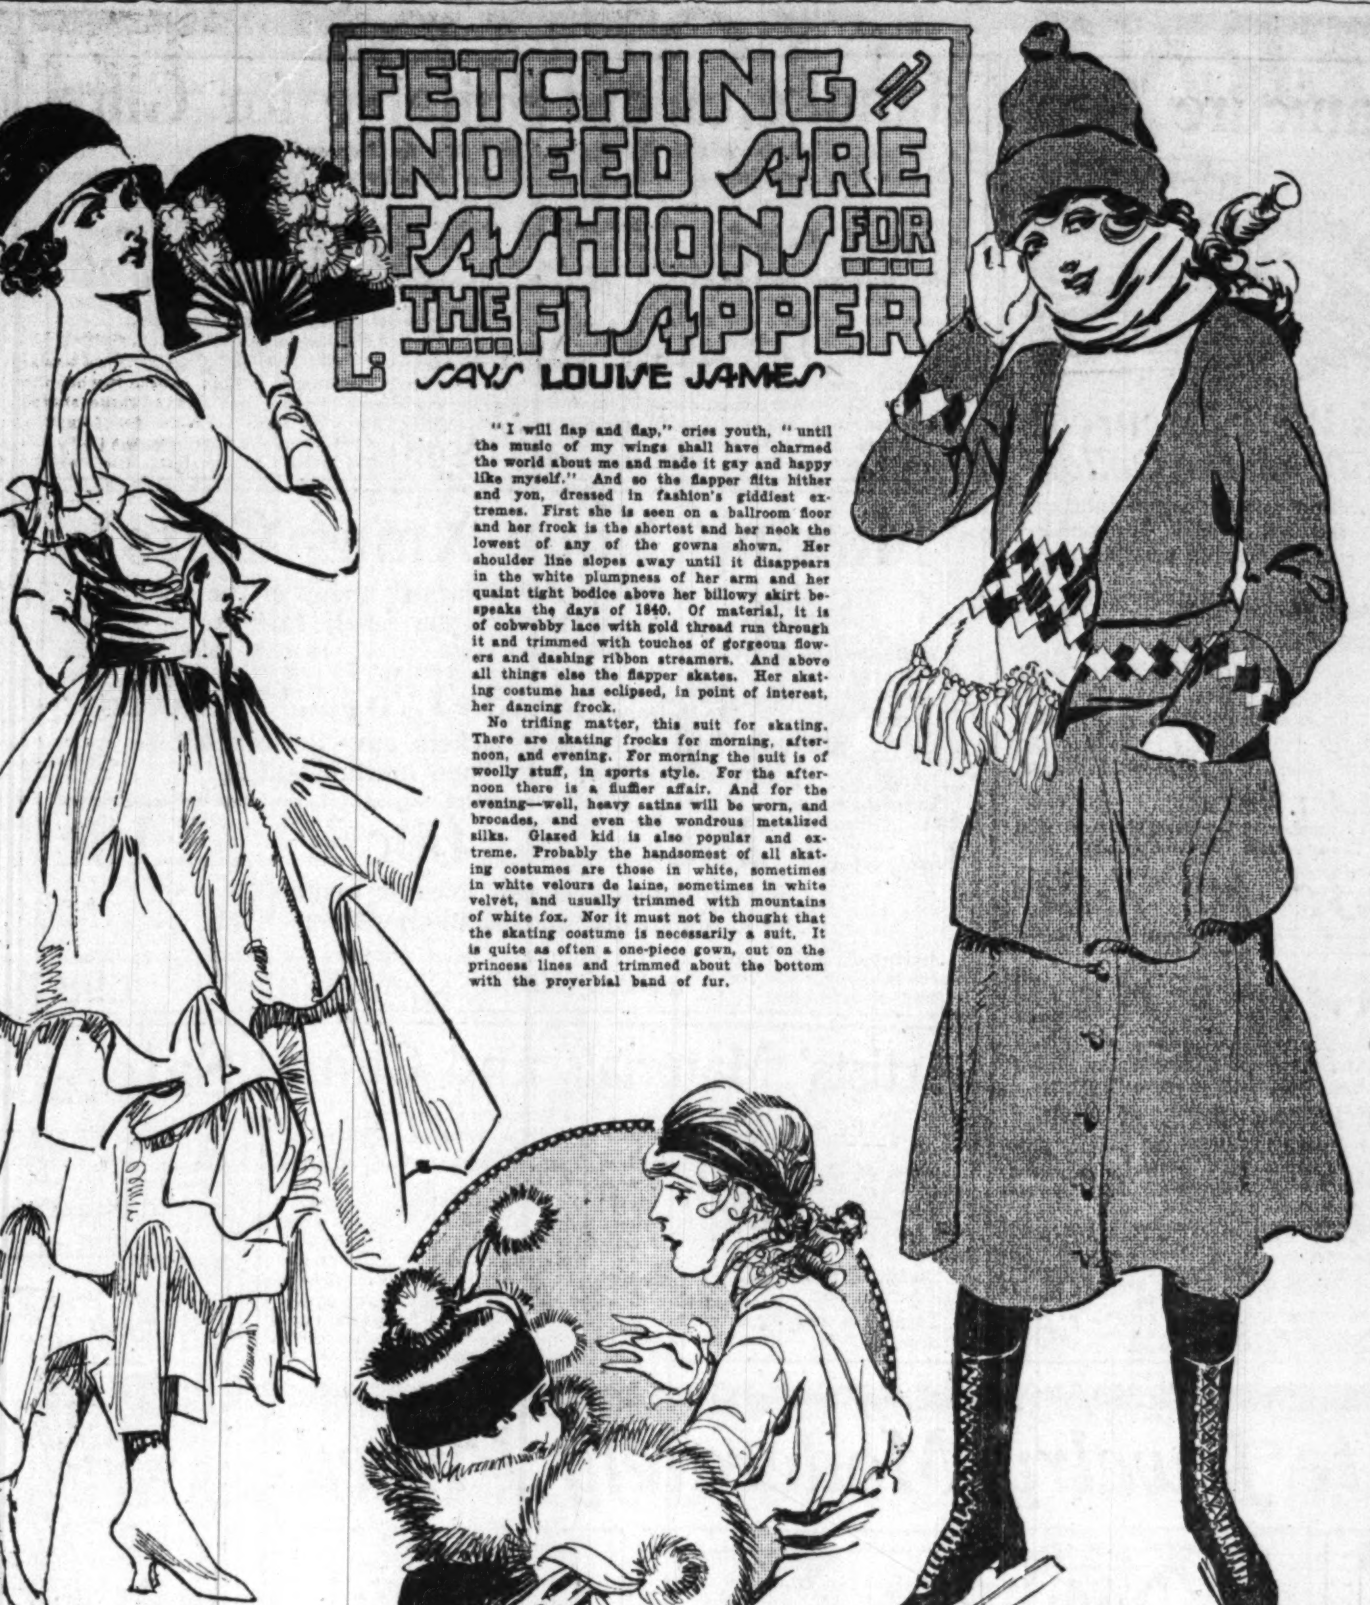
He is still the most thoughtful and considerate of men and I'll never forgive myself for not knowing something was wrong when he took that seat. M. G.

FETCHING INDEED ARE FASHIONS FOR THE FLAPPER

SAYS LOUISE JAMES

"I will flap and flap," cries youth, "until the music of my wings shall have charmed the world about me and made it gay and happy like myself." And so the flapper flits hither and yon, dressed in fashion's giddiest extremes. First she is seen on a ballroom floor and her frock is the shortest and her neck the lowest of any of the gowns shown. Her shoulder line slopes away until it disappears in the white plumpness of her arm and her quaint tight bodice above her billowy skirt bespeaks the days of 1840. Of material, it is of cobwebby lace with gold thread run through it and trimmed with touches of gorgeous flowers and dashing ribbon streamers. And above all things else the flapper skates. Her skating costume has eclipsed, in point of interest, her dancing frock.

No trifling matter, this suit for skating. There are skating frocks for morning, afternoon, and evening. For morning the suit is of woolly stuff, in sports style. For the afternoon there is a fluffier affair. And for the evening—well, heavy satins will be worn, and brocades, and even the wondrous metalized silks. Glazed kid is also popular and extreme. Probably the handsomest of all skating costumes are those in white, sometimes in white velours de laine, sometimes in white velvet, and usually trimmed with mountains of white fox. Nor it must not be thought that the skating costume is necessarily a suit. It is quite as often a one-piece gown, cut on the princess lines and trimmed about the bottom with the proverbial band of fur.



Reading from left to right: An evening frock of chiffon and brocaded silk with gold metal flower at the waist and ribbon streamers at the back. A skating costume of white velours de laine for informal wear. High black shoes are white laced up the front.

THE middy blouse is popular in the offering of skating costumes, for the middy is admirably adapted to all exercises and to all sports. A new and interesting variation development of that garment gives a suggestion of the Russian idea. It is high at the throat with a wide, straight collar, and it is closed at the left shoulder. The lower edge is gathered and then finished with a wide band.

A smart one is made of what is known as uncut beaver plush in black and white stripes, to be worn over a skirt of black corduroy, made in sports style, with hemmed edges buttoned together at the front and with capacious patch pockets. There is a cap of the striped material, too, that is exceedingly chic.

A most fascinating gown that is not heavy, yet not so thin as the crêpe, is made of white chiffon broadcloth. It is simple in cut, bodice and skirt being in one and smocked to form the girdle, but it is finished with a little shoulder cape and high flaring collar, and both the cape and the collar are edged with skunk fur. The skirt is finished with a band of the fur and the long sleeves are smocked to form cuffs. It is an ideal gown, fascinating on the ice and charming wherever it may be worn. A handsome accompaniment for the skating costume is one of the pretty scarf caps made of the material of the gown and trimmed with fur, and also a little round muff of beaver that is delightfully suggestive of the old time quaint costume and which belongs to this one by natural right.

A second costume, which also is of white broadcloth, is distinctly different from this last, but of equal interest. There is a plain, short skirt with a band of the beaver fur that comes to the top of the high skating shoes, and over it is a plaited tunic, pointed at front and back and at the sides and with the side edges buttoned together. The blouse shows an overportion at front and back buttoned onto an under one.

The one piece gown of velvet is quite warm enough for wear in the rink, and it is a little less heavy than the Russian blouse with skirt or the coat suit, although the others also are seen. A beautiful gown, for example, is of white broadcloth with trimming of beaver fur and is made with a semi-circular skirt and a long Russian blouse, the edge of the blouse being banded with the fur and the collar and cuffs being made of the same.

One of the prettiest of the coat suits is of maroon colored velveteen, with a belted blouse cut with high collar, made with Russian closing, and with it a gored skirt, the belt being held at the waist line by a sash of soft glove silk. Bright colors and white are favorites for costumes of this sort and they will add immensely to the picturesqueness of the scenes. Green and rich, dark red, medium blues, and tan color with bits of bright colors are favorites.

Fascinating coats are made in the tan color of a rough, blanketlike cloth with a border of Roman stripes, and with these coats are worn scarfs to match, for the scarf is ubiquitous this season. Primarily it is a skating scarf, and, of course, it is perfect for such use, but we will see the scarf worn for all occasions. They are offered in wool materials, with woven borders; they are shown of heavy cloths, with worsted embroidery and worsted fringe as finish; they are to be found in the glove silk and in smooth silk, in quiet colors and in gay colors, in plain colors and in stripes, but perhaps there are none of them more attractive than the ones that show the Roman coloring, for it seems especially well adapted to skating use and it makes a brilliant spot if the costume otherwise is of quiet tone.

Women who like to make such accessories or who are thinking of Christmas gifts will do well to bear the scarfs in mind, for they can be varied in a great many different ways and they can be made marvelously attractive.

A smart one is made of white, blanketlike cloth in an ivory tone and is finished at the ends with a fringe of yellow worsted that is knotted onto it. Above the fringe on each end is embroidered a big yellow rose with green leaves, all the work being done in heavy worsted threads. None of the making would represent any considerable amount of labor, yet the scarf is an extremely attractive one and, as a matter of course, the color scheme can be varied indefinitely. Caps with scarf ends such as the one just mentioned are much liked and much used and are made from a great many different materials and, incidentally, they are the simplest things in the world to make, cut, and sew.

How I Have Kept Young.

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on how to keep young. Write on one side of the paper. No manuscripts returned. Address Antoinette Donnelly, "The Sunday Tribune."

Wears Pretty Clothes.

I am past 45, but no one will believe it, and I lay the whole secret to the wearing of pretty clothes. Now, I don't mean that I spend a lot of money for clothes, for I do not, nor do I wear foolish clothes, suitable only for girls.

I have pretty clothes, few, but always in style, and I take care in getting into them just right—in fact, I try to be just as careful and just as interested in my clothes and appearance as when I was a girl.

Sometimes it is hard, and I feel like wearing something old and loose and comfortable, but I make myself dress, and do my hair prettily, and the effort is well worth while when I hear my husband's and children's praise. H. J.

Association with Children.

I have been teaching school twenty-eight years and look as young as some of the women of 30. I did it by always teaching first grade. Association with young children and active participation in their games is the secret. This morning I hopped like a rabbit all around the room and really enjoyed it. K. C. R.

Keeps the Mind Young.

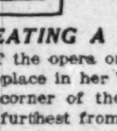
A short time ago an old school friend, whom I had not seen for several years, came to see me. She greeted me with this remark, "You don't look a day older than when I last saw you. Do tell me how you do it."

Although I have a grown son and daughter, I think I can attribute my keeping young to being careful about my appearance, not talking about my age, and not referring to myself as an old woman, because if one does soon her friends begin to think she is one.

It always seemed to me that when one begins to live in the past one is getting old, whether she is 20 or twice 20. Keeping in touch with the things of today keeps one's mind young, which in reality is what grows old, more than our bodily appearance. E. M.

WERE YOU EVER JEALOUS?

Jealousy makes more fools out of men and women than puppy love. Did jealousy ever make a fool of you—a fool at whom people actually laughed outright? It probably did. And here for the first time jealousy may do some good. Write your experiences on one side of the paper within 250 words and address it to the Jealous Editor of the Chicago Sunday Tribune. For every letter published The Tribune will pay $1. No manuscripts returned.



ETIQUETTE

by ELIZABETH VAN RENSSELAER

Any question on etiquette will be answered if you write to Elizabeth Van Rensselaer, "Chicago Sunday Tribune." If you wish a personal reply inclose a stamped, addressed envelope. Please write on one side of the paper only.

SEATING A BOX PARTY.

AT the opera or theater the hostess' place in her box is always in the corner of the front row of seats furthest from the stage. This is not because it is the best seat, but in order to enable her to face her guests, which she can do by turning her chair so that she sits with her side to the audience.

This gives her a sort of command of her box. From this vantage point she can see that her guests are provided with programs and opera glasses; that they are comfortable and not in a draft and so forth.

There is sometimes confusion in this matter of arranging a party in a box. One rule even more important than this, however, is that each guest should, without protest, sit in the seat indicated by the hostess. Much commotion is often caused by a false politeness which seeks the poorest seat in a box.

C. R. G.: At your dinner for two married couples seat the older of the two women at your husband's right; the other woman at his left. This would naturally bring the husband of the woman guest of honor at your right and the other man at your left. The only exceptions to this rule are in case a newly married couple are your guests. In this event the two seats of honor—those on the right of the host and hostess—go to the bridal pair. Another exception ot the rule is that if you have guests from out of town, they are accorded the special consideration of being placed at the right hand of the host and hostess.

CONSTANT READER: I will try to answer your questions in the order in which your party would assemble and proceed. Have your guests remove their wraps before looking at the Christmas tree. Then gather around the tree and view its decorations. Try to have mottoes or verses for every one present. These could be read aloud by some one, or each could read out his or her verse. If you plan to have supper before the games, have a good salad—chicken or potato—some sandwiches, cake, and lemonade—ice cream, too, if that is not too expensive. For games try charades. Divide into two groups. Let one side retire, select a word of two or more syllables, and act it so that the other side can try to guess it. When the latter group has guessed the word its turn comes for choosing and acting a word. A spelling down contest is good fun. Have a simple prize for the one who spells best. I think that the wise way with the young man of whom you write is to let him well alone. If he pays no attention to you in company, but insists on kissing you in private, he is not animated by loyal or honorable motives. Beware! I should think that at your age and with your height you should weigh about 130 pounds, but this is guesswork on my part.

E. S.: I should certainly advise the the use of a knife and fork in eating that delectable but formidable combination, a club sandwich.

* *

G. M. L.: You should leave your card when you make or return a first call.

Were You Ever Broke?

Served at the Service.

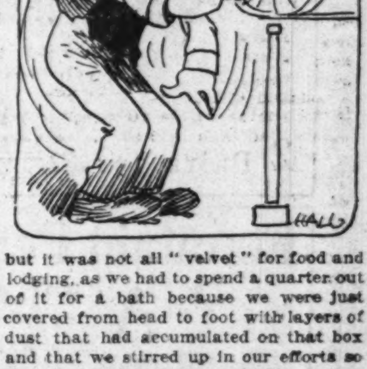
One Sunday morning some twenty odd years ago when I left my rooming house was informed by the landlady that unless I could "produce" on my return that evening, why, I need not come back. After haunting the railroad stations all day looking for a grip to carry I was confronted at nightfall with the possibility of "carrying the banner." I started out for a police station to accept of their hospitality.

A half block from the station a gentleman accosted me and asked me if I wanted to make a dollar. I said yes, asking him if it was a legitimate undertaking. He said it was, and explained that he was the organist of the cathedral, that the organ, which was run by water power, had broken down, and as there was a service in church that evening it was imperative that he get somebody to work the auxiliary bellows.

We picked up another young fellow on the way to the church and were conducted to the organ loft back of the instrument. There we found a boxlike arrangement with a wheel in front, like you see on coffee mills in grocery stores. We were told to turn the handles.

"You need not turn all the time," he said. "Only when I give you the signal, but when you do turn you got to turn like the devil!" I often smile when I think how the choir members, who were all "dolled up" in their best, laughed at us two fellows turning that wheel.

We earned our dollar apiece all right, but it was not all "velvet" for food and lodging, as we had to spend a quarter out of it for a bath because we were just covered from head to foot with layers of dust that had accumulated on that box and that we stirred up in our efforts so that there might be music at the service. L. R. A.



Valeska Suratt Gives Smooth-Out Secret

Valeska Suratt, Self-Made Beauty-Queen of the American Stage, Tells Secrets Which She Used in Obtaining Beauty.

THERE is little excuse now for the presence of old-looking skin even in women of late middle age. The results of my formula have indeed proven this to be the case. I want every woman to try this formula, use it constantly, and then your face should reflect again the bloom and freshness as nothing else in the world can do.

Many women have thousands of little lines, and although such lines may hardly be seen, nevertheless the general appearance of the face is "agey." My formula helps to rejuvenate the skin and smooth out the deep lines and sagging cheeks, making a difference of several years in your appearance. Mix two tablespoonfuls of glycerine and two ounces of eptol in a half pint of water. The eptol may be obtained at any drug store for fifty cents. This makes an extremely economical cream, giving several times the quantity which you would obtain of any prepared cream at the stores. Use this cream liberally and you will not be disappointed.

Dissolves Superfluous Hair.

All hairs, light or heavy, on any part of the body, even on the tenderest skin, may be removed almost as by magic by my following formula: Get one ounce of simple sulfo solution. This you can get at the drug store for one dollar. Apply it with the finger tips to the superfluous hair, keeping the hair moist with it for two or three minutes until it has been dissolved. Then wipe it off with a damp cloth and wash the skin.

The ordinary preparations sold for this purpose injure the skin and leave a spot where applied simply because the hair is literally burned off. The way to do is to use my own formula which I have just given you—the only thing I know that will simply dissolve away the hair and leave the skin soft, white and smooth.

Complexion Like a Lily.

I dare say most of the beautiful complexions you see have been developed after years of painstaking effort. But such labor and patience are no longer necessary by the use of my formula, which I really believe, from personal experience, is the most wonderful beautifier known. With a full pint of hot water, mix two tablespoonfuls of glycerine and one ounce of zintone, obtainable at any drug store for fifty cents. This is exceedingly economical, and you can make and use it generously.

My Powerful Hair-Formula.

You will be able to comb and brush your hair vigorously without having a single strand come out, and your hair will begin to grow out again most beautifully if you will apply every other day or so, in liberal quantities, my mixture made of half a pint of alcohol, half a pint of water, and one ounce of beta-quinol. Shake thoroughly and then it will be ready to use. If you prefer, you can use imported bay rum instead of the water and alcohol. The beta-quinol you can get at almost any drug store for fifty cents. As a result of the use of my formula I am known today as the only woman on the American stage who does not wear puffs, switches, wool rolls, turbans, or other hair makeshifts.

My Own Face Powder.

Nearly all face powders are too chalky and make the face "powdery." I use none but my own face powder, which has absolutely no chalkiness. It is superb in its fineness, smoothness and scent, is indetectable and is called "Valeska Suratt Face Powder." It is sold in many drug and department stores. If there is any difficulty in getting it, write to me as suggested below, enclose fifty cents and state whether white or flesh tint.

My Formula for Blackheads.

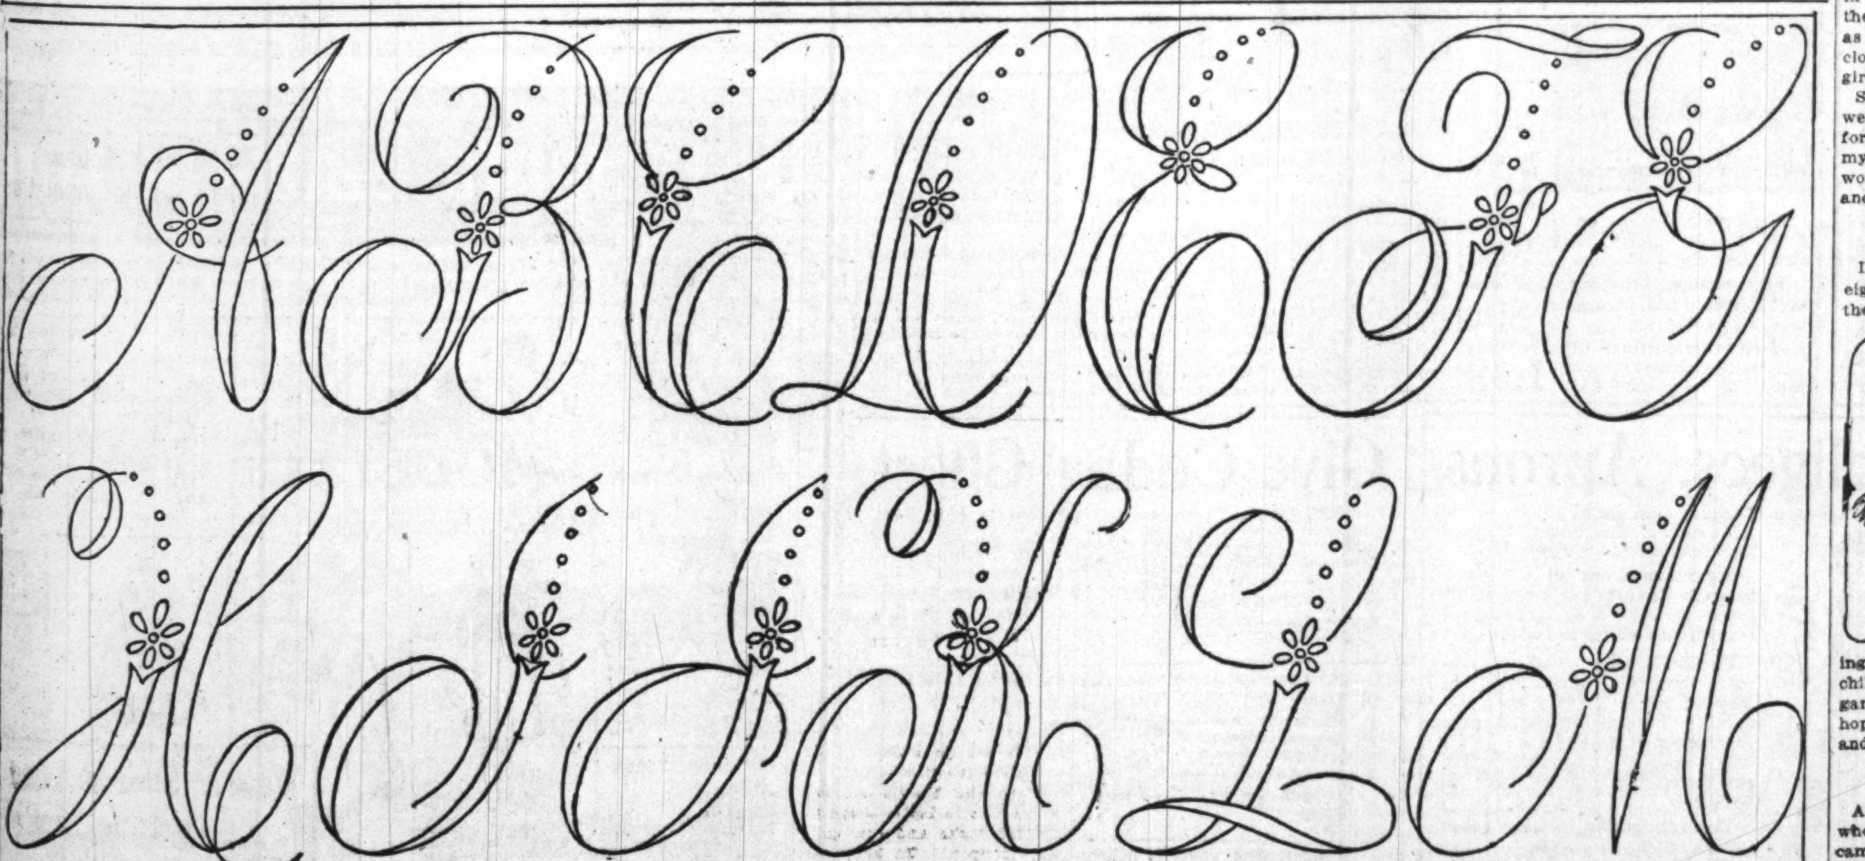
Do what I tell you and you will get rid of all your blackheads in a few minutes' time. Sprinkle some powdered neroxin on a sponge, made wet with hot water, and rub this on the face on the parts affected with blackheads. Get the neroxin at your drug store for fifty cents.

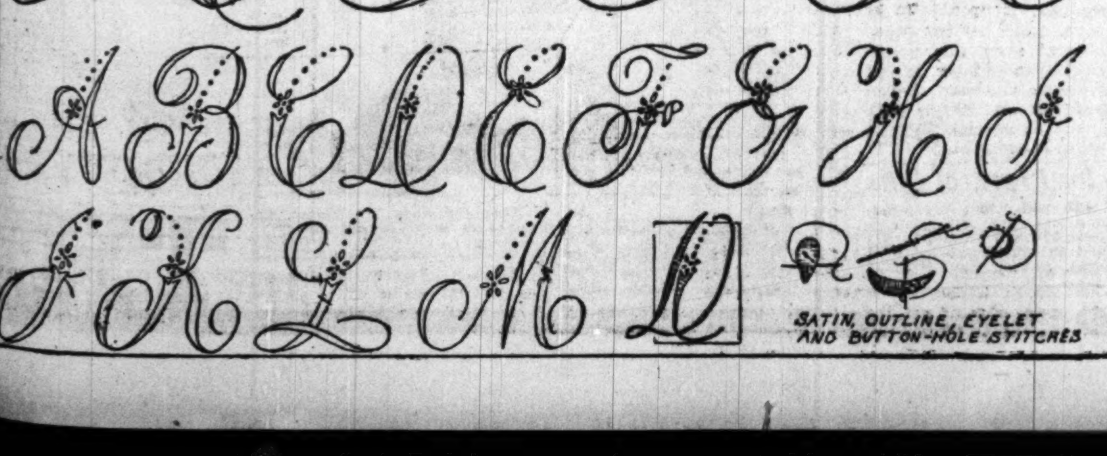
My Splendid Shampoo.

A teaspoonful of eggol in half a cup of hot water makes an amazingly rich and effective head wash and dandruff remover. The action of this shampoo is to dissolve every particle of dandruff and fatty accumulation, which soap does not do because of the alkali it contains. This is very economical, as enough eggol can be secured at any drug store for twenty-five cents to furnish a dozen or more of these unusual shampoos.

I will send to any reader direct any of the articles named above if there is any difficulty in obtaining them from the drug store. In such case send me name and address, enclosing the price, addressing Valeska Suratt, Suite 330 Thompson Bldg., Chicago, mentioning the articles you want, and I will see that you are at once supplied.

FIRST HALF OF ALPHABET IN FLORAL SCRIPT.





SATIN, OUTLINE, EYELET AND BUTTON-HOLE STITCHES

The accompanying illustration is a design for initials in floral script style. It is essentially suitable for delicate marking of all household linens and lingerie. A satin stitch or a combination of satin, outline and buttonhole give execellent results. Detail drawings show method of working. In using the printed design from the paper the directions are as follows: If the material is sheer, the easiest way is to lay it over the design, which will show through plainly, and draw over each line with a hard, sharp lead pencil. If your linen is heavy, buy a piece of impression paper—the kind that does not rub off—lay it on your material, place the design over it, and trace with a hard pencil. You will find the design neatly transferred.

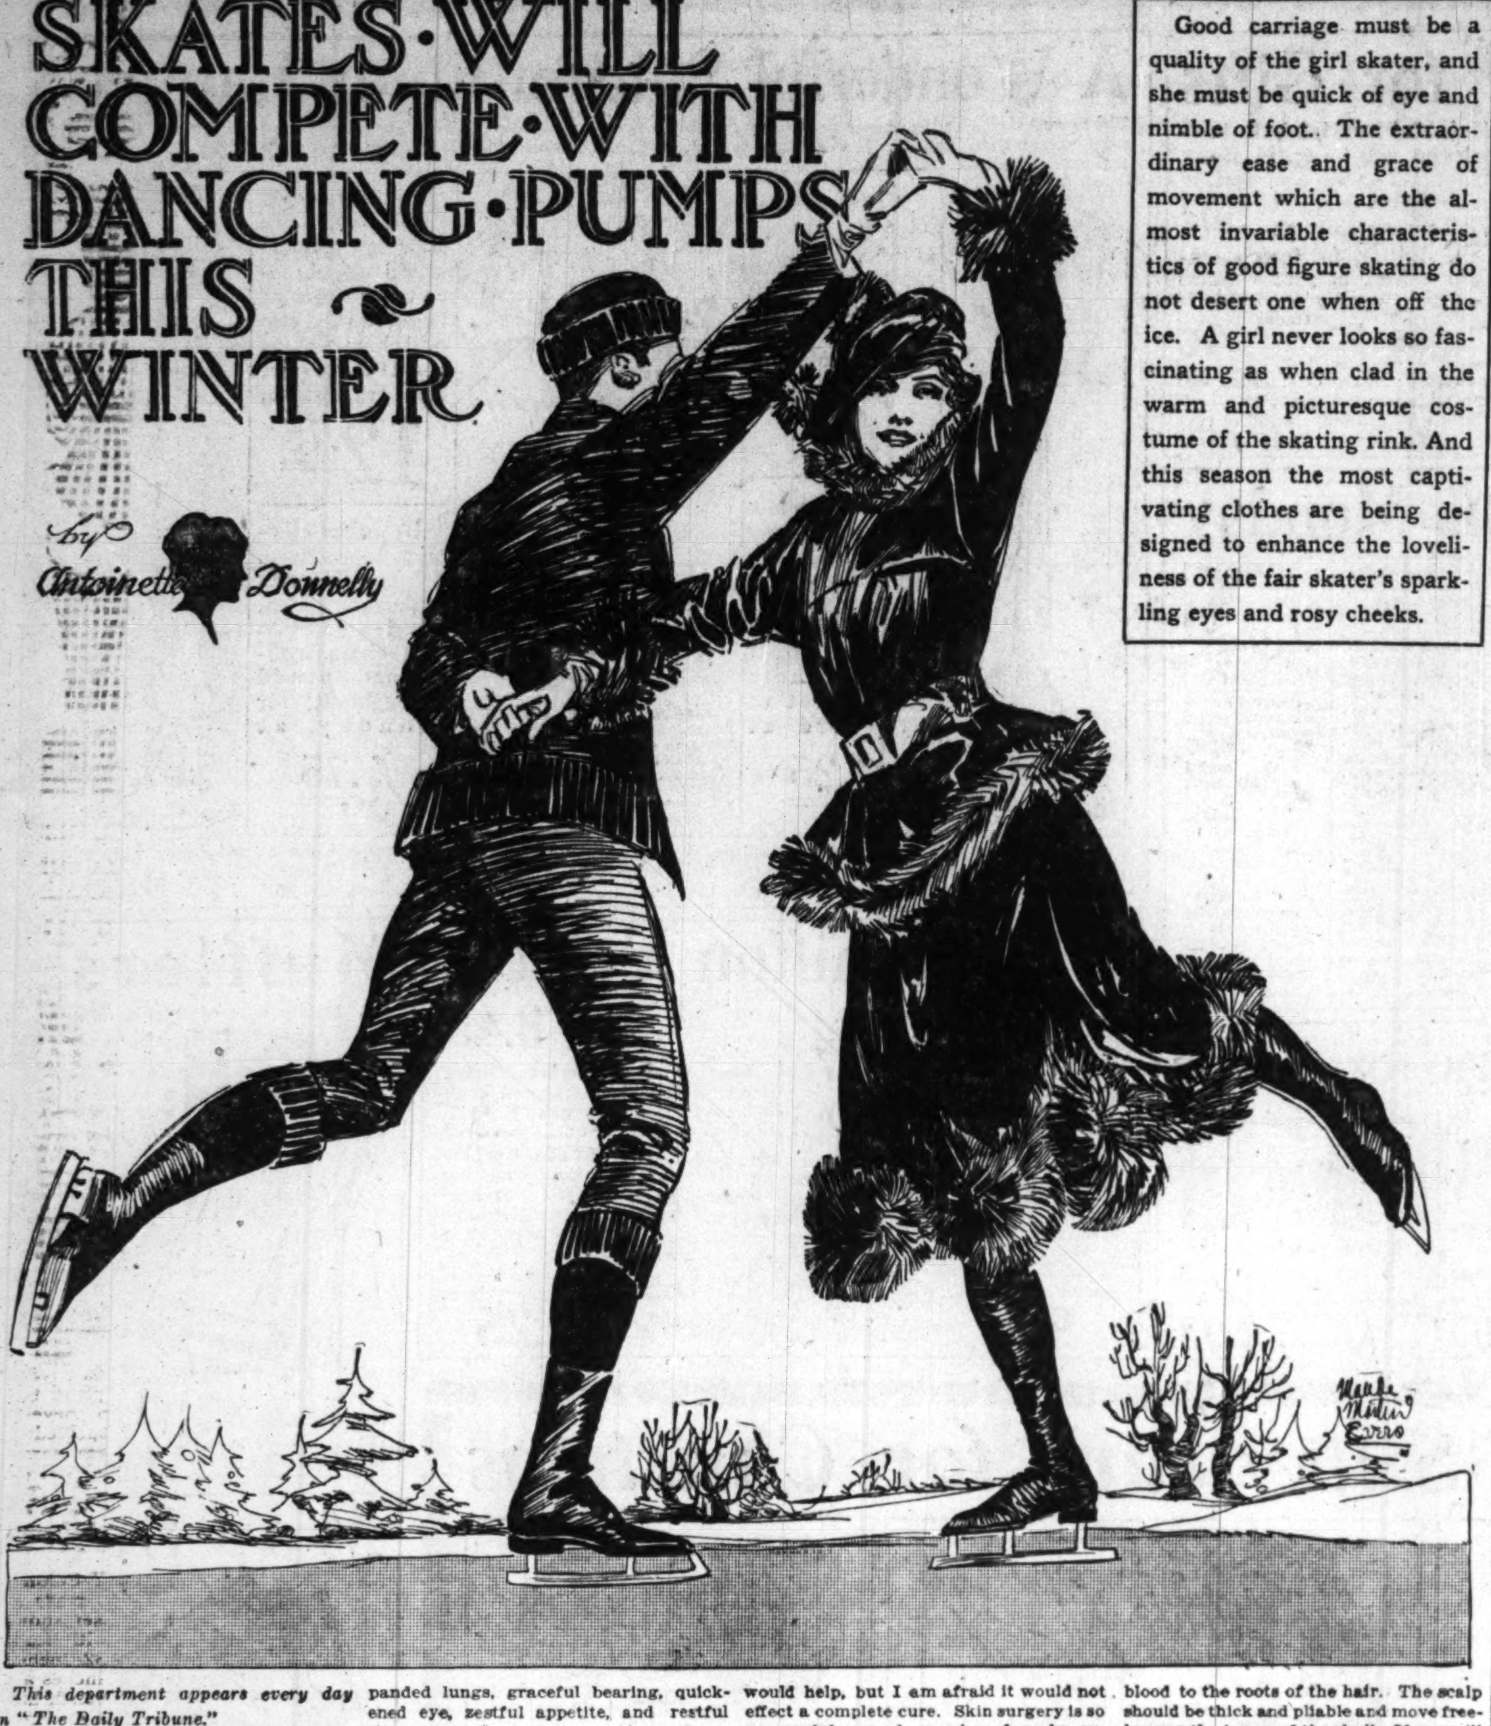
SKATES·WILL COMPETE·WITH DANCING·PUMPS THIS WINTER

by Antoinette Donnelly



Good carriage must be a quality of the girl skater, and she must be quick of eye and nimble of foot. The extraordinary ease and grace of movement which are the almost invariable characteristics of good figure skating do not desert one when off the ice. A girl never looks so fascinating as when clad in the warm and picturesque costume of the skating rink. And this season the most captivating clothes are being designed to enhance the loveliness of the fair skater's sparkling eyes and rosy cheeks.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

Sing ho! Sing ho! As we glide and go
Over the ice and the stream's still flow,
As in times gone by!

THIS is the song we'll probably all be singing before the winter is over. Even though the weather doesn't provide, we are assured that dancing pavilions will be converted into skating rinks by means of artificial ice. So lack of ice won't be an excuse.

Dancing as a popular pastime is going to meet a lively rival, if not a Waterloo, in skating this season. The dancing frocks have a lively rival in the fascinatingly becoming skating outfits as being shown in shop windows and stores.

And, best of all, the beauty and health value of skating outrivals the dancing pastime because it has the feature of good, wholesome outdoor fun in addition to the modern dancing steps being easily possible on skates.

Skating is as valuable an acquisition as dancing if grace is to be cultivated and awkwardness overcome.

Good carriage must be a quality of the girl skater. And she must be quick of eye and nimble of foot. The extraordinary ease and grace of movement which are the almost invariable characteristics of good figure skating do not desert one when off the ice. A girl never looks so fascinating as when clad in the warm and picturesque costume of the skating rink. And this season the most captivating clothes are being designed to enhance the loveliness of the fair skater's sparkling eyes and rosy cheeks.

So get your rust covered skates out of your attic trunk and shine them up and get into the skating game this winter. Don't wait until next year or the year after. Begin right away. You'll probably get a few falls, hard knocks, and a few black and blue spots. But that's the real fun of it. That's the game of life, too. There wouldn't be any fun in anything if it were all smooth and easy sailing.

Skating will limber you up. It will take some of the creaks out of your joints that your years do not warrant the presence of. And skating is a fine chance to learn to play again—an absolute essential to keeping young. It's a sport for the young and sport for the no longer young. It makes for strong, supple muscles, expanded lungs, graceful bearing, quickened eye, zestful appetite, and restful sleep.

The extension of the arms, needful to counterbalance the motions of the lower limbs and to maintain the upright position and the necessary bending of the body backward and sidewise, expands the chest and permits the lungs to be inflated with fresh air. Hence, rapid circulation of the blood is promoted. Not only all the organs of respiration but almost every muscle in the body is invigorated by this exercise. In fact, skating insures greater activity in all parts of the body than any other known pastime.

From the double standpoint of a highly beneficial, physical exercise and a most alluring sport, everybody should take to skates this winter. Being a social pastime, there is no drudgery about the exercising of the muscles nor any great resentment against the stiffness or discomfort you may feel after the first experience or two.

The modern style of skating is the poetry of motion in its most poetic form. Its appeal to a trained mind lies in the fact that it may be as intricate as a game of chess, the most elaborate sort of figures being the fruit of skill. And then there is the waltz, which on ice is superior to the ballroom waltz in grace and sheer fun of doing it. The onestep and the trot for the modern maid, too, are part of the alluring features of the 1915 skating rink.

The shoes for skating should be firmly snug around the heel and allow ample movement for the freedom of the toes while lying firmly over the instep. They should curve in just above the back of the heel so as to fit the foot when the leg is bent slightly at the knee. Ten inches is about the right height for the shoe, since the free use of the muscles of the calf and leg should not be interfered with and the full strength of the heavy ankle muscles should be available, if needed. The skirt should be short and full enough to allow freedom of movement.

Antoinette Donnelly's Answers.

KATHARINE: I am so sorry I cannot recommend anything for removing the scar with the hope of its being completely satisfactory outside of seeing a skin specialist. Massaging with a good skin food would help, but I am afraid it would not effect a complete cure. Skin surgery is so successful nowadays when done by experts that I would advise you to see a skin specialist.

* *

J. P.: A cold dip creates an appetite, accelerates the circulation, arouses the nervous system, and produces a decided exhilarating effect. The daily use of the cold dip for those who are able to react after it is one of the best means of fortifying the system against both acute and chronic diseases.

BERTHA: Some girls continue to grow until they are 20 and sometimes 22. You might try swimming exercises, play basketball, use the traveling rings in the gymnasium, and practice exercises which have a tendency to stretch the muscles. I don't know how old you are and whether it is necessary to worry a "whole lot" about it, but I judge from your letter you are still a very young girl.

* *

PETER: Two of the causes of baldness are deficient circulation of blood in the scalp and dandruff. The scalp becomes tightened and prevents a proper flow of blood to the roots of the hair. The scalp should be thick and pliable and move freely over the bones of the skull. If you will massage your scalp every night for about ten minutes you will stimulate the circulation and the roots of the hair will get proper nourishment. I shall be glad to send you my formula for dandruff if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

BESS: You would be more attractive, I am sure, and your clothes would look better on you if you would be careful about the attitudes you assume when standing. The correct attitude in standing is to place the heels nearly together, the toes pointed slightly outward, the legs rigid, the trunk and head held erect, and the shoulders somewhat back, so that the chest shall expand freely. The arms should hang easily at the sides, the fingers are slightly bent, with the thumbs in front.

EDNA: It may take two or three months to correct enlarged pores, so do not be discouraged. The hair can be removed from the armpits by the use of a good depilatory. The following is one of best depilatories: Sulphide of barium, 2 drams; oxide of zinc and starch, each 3 drams. Mix these well and keep tightly corked. Before applying the depilatory add sufficient water to make a paste. The paste is then placed on the skin and allowed to remain for a couple of minutes. Wash off and apply a cold cream or soothing ointment. There will be resulting irritation. You can generally tell when the paste has been on long enough by a slight burning sensation.

MATILDA: I should think your physician or some of your friends would be able to recommend some reliable electrolysist. I am sorry not to be able to give you the information, but it is against the rules of my department to give out names and addresses.

Does Woman Ever Propose?

Did you ever know a woman who proposed? "The Sunday Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published. Your name will not be published. Address Doris Blake, "The Tribune," Chicago.

She Just Knew He Would.

My friend was scrubbing one Saturday forenoon when the young pastor of her church called on an errand pertaining to church affairs. Being an intimate friend, he did not wait for her to get up from her kneeling position, but started in with: "I came to ask you——"

"O," she broke in, "I just knew you would."

Holding the washcloth in one hand, she leaned her head against his knee.

He had no intention of asking her that morning, but four months later they were married. H. H.

He Must Have Slid Over.

One day a young man and I went out walking. We did not notice the storm clouds gathering and sat down to rest on a mound. It began to rain, and as I had my umbrella with me I said: "Slide over a little way and you can have part of the protection of the umbrella." As he seemed disinclined to accept my suggestion I said thoughtlessly: "Which would you rather have, the rain or my protection?" We are now happily married, and my husband insists that I'm the one that proposed. E. H.

My Most Embarrassing Moment.

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on the subject "The Most Embarrassing Moment of My Life Was When ——." Address Embarrassing Moments Editor, "Sunday Tribune," Chicago. Write on only one side of the paper. No manuscripts will be returned.

Had to Get the Sexton.

A few years ago I was called to an eastern town on account of the death of a dear friend. At the burial I was standing on the extreme edge of the grave and during the final prayer we bowed our [illegible]ds. I wore a rather heavy hat which [illegible]d forgotten to pin on and to my great dismay it fell off and bounded into the open grave. Imagine my embarrassment when the services had to be delayed until the sexton could be summoned. With a hoe he rescued that fatal hat. E. P.

"Beat" Way Home.

I took a hunting trip along the Illinois river last fall, and while wading out after a mallard I accidently stepped into deep water and was unfortunate enough to lose my gun and metal cigaret case containing my money. After this accident I made my way back to the station and boarded the blind baggage of the first train.

The fireman found me almost frozen and put me to work pulling down coal and then put me off at the first stop. After waiting some time I boarded another train and climbed upon the roof of the mail car, thinking myself safe. But a gathering of youngsters noticed me at the next station, and their yelling drew the attention of the train crew, and once more I was pulled off.

I managed to get aboard the next train out and crawled into the tool box on the coal tender, closing the lid after me. I was so exhausted from exposure that I was unable to lift the iron lid and crawl out on arriving in Chicago and was pulled into the roundhouse, where one of the employés took me out. W. M.

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING·HAND

By MARION HARLAND

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

"MY husband is an invalid from tuberculosis and is in bed most of the time. He longs for music and if there is an old fashioned music box, one playing five or six tunes, or instrument of any other sort to be given away by a Cornerite, it would be appreciated by us. I would gladly make a raffia basket for the giver if this were desired.
"MRS. W. H. M."

Is there any one with one of the old fashioned music boxes to give away? They have been pretty well superseded by more modern instruments, but I hope there may be one to cheer the hours of this sick man. I will be happy to send his address on application.

Needs Material for Rag Carpets.

"How many of the Cornerites make the old fashioned rag carpets? I love to make them, but I cannot seem to get rags enough. I make two kinds of braided rugs and then I make the kind that have pieces cut in just such a pattern and sew them on burlap. Who can give me some ideas on how to furnish a little home? I have just started to keep house and have three children. My house has five rooms, but I have only the furniture I actually need. I still have the bare floors. I would like to hear from any one who has ideas about different home made things, as I have a small income and would like to arrange my home as cheaply as I possibly could. There is a bureau I made for the clothes of my little girl 7 years old. Of course, it isn't as nice as one that is bought, but still it answers the purpose. I had three cracker boxes and I put them on top of one another on the widest side, nailed four feet from an old chair at the bottom, covered it all over with cretonne, and hung a cretonne curtain on the open part of it, and really it is nice for all that it is home made. I am a great reader and would love to hear from any one interested in new thought, mental hearing and metaphysical literature, or would love to correspond with any one, as I get rather lonely and blue sometimes.
MRS. T. B."

An interesting and cheering letter. It is pleasant to hear from a correspondent who has successful efforts to report, as Mrs. T. B.'s with the home made bureau, and I trust she may receive helpful suggestions from other makers of home furniture as well as rags for her carpets and correspondents on the topics to which she refers in the last part of her letter.

Her Baby Has a Go-Cart.

"I am writing to let you know that I have just received a go-cart such as I requested through your columns. A Cornerite has been kindness itself in sending me this cart. Others offering carts showed a kindness which was appreciated, but they were too far away for me to avail myself of their generosity. I have also received castor beans, for which I have thanked the donors personally.
"MAISIE."

This is one of the many illustrations of the kindly help given by our constituency. It is good to get such a letter as this with its evidences of appreciation.

All Kinds of Magazines.

"I have a box of all kinds of magazines to send to any one who cares for them and can afford to pay railroad charges. I will pay for expressing them to the station. Your Corner is wonderfully interesting, and I regret so much not to be able to contribute something of more value.
MRS. C. H."

I think a box of magazines is of sufficient value to win warm thanks from those who will be benefited by its gift.

Last Play at the Lyric.

"Could you, or one of the Cornerites, tell me when the last play was given at the Lyric theater, which was located on the west side? I think the location was Madison and Halsted streets. As this is to settle a quarrel, I hope to see the answer in the Corner soon.
R. R."

Those who may be posted upon the point you bring forward will please let us hear from them. Watch the Corner for a reply.

Flaw in the Address.

"Some time ago a request for reading matter was made through the Corner, the letter being signed 'Lonesome.' I wrote to you for the name of the party and you gave me an address. I wrote to the young woman and the letter was returned unclaimed. Will you kindly advise me if the address was complete?
"A. E. J."

I am sorry to state that other letters to the same effect have reached me. The address of "Lonesome" was transcribed correctly from her letter and I am at a loss to understand the situation. I print this now in the hope that "Lonesome" may see the appeal and write her name and address so that correspondents may get in touch with her.

Pictures for Invalid.

"I have long been a reader of the Corner and have of late noticed many requests for postcards. I have none of these, but I have quite a number of camera prints that may interest one who would care for traveling. I would be glad to send them to any young woman shut-in and to write a little description of each. They may be just what are wanted.
I. R. P."

To my mind these sound more attractive because more unusual than the majority of postcards. I trust they may go to the shut-in who needs them most.

Has Use for Fancy Work Pieces.

'Now that the melancholy days have come it would be most gratifying to hear from some of the Cornerites who have silk pieces or fancy work they wish to dispose of. I am much interested in making a silk slumber robe if I can obtain the pieces. I am living in a small place and am all alone. I would like to receive some books to read, as I have few and have long since read and re-read those. It would perhaps be too much to expect any one to part with Dickens, but I am most anxious to again read his works.
"MRS. G. W."

The silk pieces may be sent to the correspondent, I trust. The request for the reading matter is pretty sure to receive a generous reply, and the idea of Dickens being unattainable does not strike me as likely. There are many cheap editions of his works, and I trust one of them may come to this correspondent.

The Tribune Cook Book

by JANE EDDINGTON

All recipes have been scientifically tested by Miss Eddington with current market materials and are indorsed by her.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

On Cooking Fowl.

ENTERTAINING inquiries have lately come in concerning the various foods of feathered tribe origin. The butchers are trying to satisfy inquiries for new things by showing domesticated mallard hens in the duck lines, since the taste for duck wild and tame seems to be reviving in a marked degree, and though they cannot get much game in the way of wild birds, the finest shops hang a deer in their window display.

The highly seasonable things, festooning a window here and there, are pigeons, and many regard this as "the" season for squab. The pigeon part of the original term has been dropped. These fat little nestlings, from 5 to 8 weeks old, are not presentable in their stubby coverings for festooning, and are dressed where killed. The price varies from 35 to 60 cents each, and it is generally figured that they weigh nine pounds to the dozen. Pigeons in feather cost but 15 cents or less.

Before giving recipes for cooking squab or young and old pigeon I want to say that I have never cooked anything of the kind except when I was doing college zoölogy—I had to cook, clean and mount the skeleton of a dove—and the odor of the cooking, combined with others of the laboratory, making something off from a clean cooking smell, prejudiced me against this bird as food.

I know that pigeon pie can be made good, but the portion I had in the world famous eating house, famed particularly for its pigeon pie, I did not like because it contained so much coarse beefsteak. However, I should not hesitate to cook either squab or pigeon by any reasonable recipe, for I was early trained to a similar business. Not a few times in the days when I was almost as nimble and fleet as a chicken, did I catch a young broiler in the field, turned my back when his head was on the block, then took him from hence and prepared him for broiler or pot.

To my mind it is a mistake to use bacon with chicken or any other bird or fowl, that is, cook the bacon flavor into it, yet a good many recipes prescribe this. It is a perversion of the English use of larding bacon with all small birds, this not being bacon in our sense at all, though called so with the adjective, but fat salt pork which they prepare in great sheets. All their small birds, when trussed for the oven, have a blanket of this completely covering their sternal territory, as they lie on their backs. Plain salt pork, even if streaked with lean, can be used, but smoked pork or bacon is too strong.

As to recipes, Filippini gives twenty-one in "The International Cook Book" for cooking squab, and this great chef was a true master of meat cookery. My collection of recipes on this and many other subjects has recently been increased to the extent of a bushel of clippings and cooking pamphlets, recently bestowed upon me through the generosity of Mrs. Alice Cary Waterman, long a food expert. These cover American cooking for a period of twenty years, and include many recipes on many subjects which have never got into cook books. I am therefore newly rich. Americana of all sorts interests me, but that of cooking in special.

The squab pigeon is pretty distinctly an American institution. A squab pie in England means something quite different from an American pie, and there is a famous but not palatable story about what a Devonshire squab pie once was. The ingredients in Mrs. Beeton's squab pie are: Two pounds of neck of mutton, two pounds of apples sliced, one pound of onions sliced, one tablespoon of mushroom ketchup, sugar, salt, and pepper.

Way back in Mrs. Glasse's book many recipes for cooking pigeons appear, and recipes that would be good today. Pigeons were then roasted by hanging them by a string from the "chimney piece"; before an open fire of course. Dr. Kitchener says that pigeons are in "their finest growth when full feathered. When they are in the pinfeathers they are flabby." (Note the pinfeathers.) His test for all fowl is this: "Game and poultry are best when they are just done growing."

In many recipes for cooking squab, the direction is to cut off feet, but in some cases just the nails. The former is the American mode of dressing small birds. The sight of the toes of little birds projecting from pies made of them, pies no bigger than a muffin, in the food shops of Paris, is not pleasant to Americans, although they swallow an oyster with none of his anatomical parts lacking. But a recipe for pigeon pie with the direction "garnish with the dainty feet blanched and trimmed" is reasonably un-American.

A great many recipes give the direction, "wash," while others say do not wash, but dip a towel in cold water and wipe inside and out. Perhaps there is a half way method, the quickest sort of washing, which most will prefer. I have seen a highly trained chef in Paris prepare a chicken for the most elegant finishing without using a bit of water, but I did not like the idea.

Mrs. Mary F. Henderson, that highly cultivated woman who deserves a high place in the history of American cookery, although she was so cosmopolitan in training and experience, says:

"If care is taken in dressing fowls or birds, there is no need of washing them. In France it is never done, unless there is absolutely something to wash off; then it is done as delicately as possible. In expostulating once with an old Negro auntie for soaking all the blood and flavor out of a fowl, she quickly replied, 'Bless my soul, child! haven't I cooked chicken for fifty years?'"

I have had similar replies from people when I have tried delicately to make them see that, though they had cooked a hundred years, they might not know anything about food values. Our market method makes washing necessary, but it should be of the quickest possible sort. Get the bird as soon after killed as possible, as all authorities agree that it loses flavor if kept.

Says one high authority on the subject of buying squab: "In selecting squabs at market remember that the short fat birds are best, having full round bodies, and soft legs and feet. And bear in mind, too, that the flesh of a genuine squab should be pinkish; when they pass the squab age the flesh turns dark."

Broiled Squabs.

Filippini's recipe is as follows: "Cut off the head and feet at the first joints of six tender, fat squabs. Split open through back without separating, draw, remove breast bone of each, wrap in a coarse towel and neatly flatten with a cleaver. Mix on a plate a teaspoon of salt, a half teaspoon of white pepper, and a tablespoon of oil, then repeatedly roll birds in seasoning. Arrange on a double broiler, broil six minutes on each side, remove, and dress on a hot dish over six freshly prepared pieces of toast. Broil six thin slices of bacon two minutes on each side, arrange over squabs, decorate with a little watercress and serve."

The Epicure says: "Probably the most popular way of cooking squabs is to broil them. When cooked this way they are singed and cleaned, with heads and feet cut off, and then wiped well. After this they are dipped in melted butter, sprinkled with pepper and salt, and broiled over a hot fire. Frequently they are wrapped in thin slices of salt pork or of bacon before broiling, which is an excellent idea if they chance to be not fat."

Roast Squab.

The New York and Philadelphia use of squab has probably been the influence that has made this bird cosmopolitan.

Escoffier under the head "Young Pigeon," after which he puts squabs in parentheses, says: "Select them fresh from the nest and plump. They must be roasted before a fierce fire and only just done. Their skin must be kept crisp." This is practically the same as good broiling, but there are many other ways of roasting squab, to be served with orange sauce or orange salad.

Louis, under "Squab en Casserole," says: "Clean, singe, and dress three squabs, put them in an earthen casserole with a small piece of butter, salt and pepper them, and roast in an oven for about twelve minutes, so as to obtain a nice golden color. Add one small onion, two fresh mushrooms, and two ounces of lean bacon [he is undoubtedly using bacon to mean pork], cut in small cubes, and cook together for another ten minutes in the casserole. Sprinkle a teaspoon of flour over them, and moisten with a cup of gravy or brown stock and three tablespoons of sherry wine; put the cover on and let it simmer for ten minutes more. When the squabs are cooked the sauce should have boiled down so that there is just enough for the diners. Serve in casserole.

Pigeon Pie.

Anybody who can make a chicken pie can make a pigeon pie, but there are dozens of different recipes for this. One way is to make a stock of all the parts except the breasts, and use these for the pie. Common pie is stewed pigeons well and daintily seasoned and then turned into a crust and baked. Another way is to sauté the meat before putting it in the crust, with a brown sauce, etc. This is the best when the pigeons are squab age.

Bright Sayings of the Children

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for each childish saying printed. The stories may be sent in either by children or their parents. The only condition is the story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, "Tribune," Chicago.

One day, while I was waiting for a street car, a little boy and girl with their school books passed by me. The little girl opened her reader and began to read aloud. Evidently this didn't please the boy, for he turned to her and said in a peevish tone, "Don't read out loud, read into your mind." S. B.

"Huh, I bet you didn't have a good time at your birthday party yesterday."

"I bet I did."

"Then why ain't you sick today?

A man was at work about a new school building in a town near by. One Saturday a boy of 7 years came to watch the work. This child lives some distance from the school he attends at present, while the new school is next door to his home. "Won't you be glad," asked the man, "when you can go to this new school? Then you can run home at recess for a piece of pie." After thinking a minute the boy replied, "Well, but you see I most always are kept in recesses."

I took my little 3 year old brother to school one day, and when asked by the teacher if he was the baby, he answered, "No, ma'am, Queenie is" (referring to our little dog). BERNICE CARLISLE, 5637 Loomis street.

My cousin John, who is 6 years old, was sitting on the porch with me one evening when a young man, a neighbor, who had lately married, drove past. I bowed and spoke. John, failing to see him, asked who it was.

"That was Frank Morris," I said.

"O, no," said he. "Not any more; he's married now, you know." H. E. W.

My little boy was going to celebrate his fourth birthday. His aunt asked him what he wanted. He spoke up quickly: "O, you don't need to give me anything; the kids will bring the stuff."

Jimmy had been sick a great deal in his short life and so the doctor and his ways were everyday things to him. One morning after breakfast he was summoned upstairs to his mother's room to see the new baby that had arrived during the night.

"Who brought it here?" inquired Jim of his father, who was holding up the newcomer for the small boy's inspection.

"Why, the doctor, of course," answered father.

"Well, let's see the directions he left with it," demanded the little fellow with quiet gravity. H. L.

Charles had been to an afternoon party. When his mother called for him he was telling her how well he liked a certain young miss.

"Which one is she?" his mother inquired.

"The one with the ruffles on her hair," he replied, pointing to a child with a profusion of golden curls. F. Y. A.

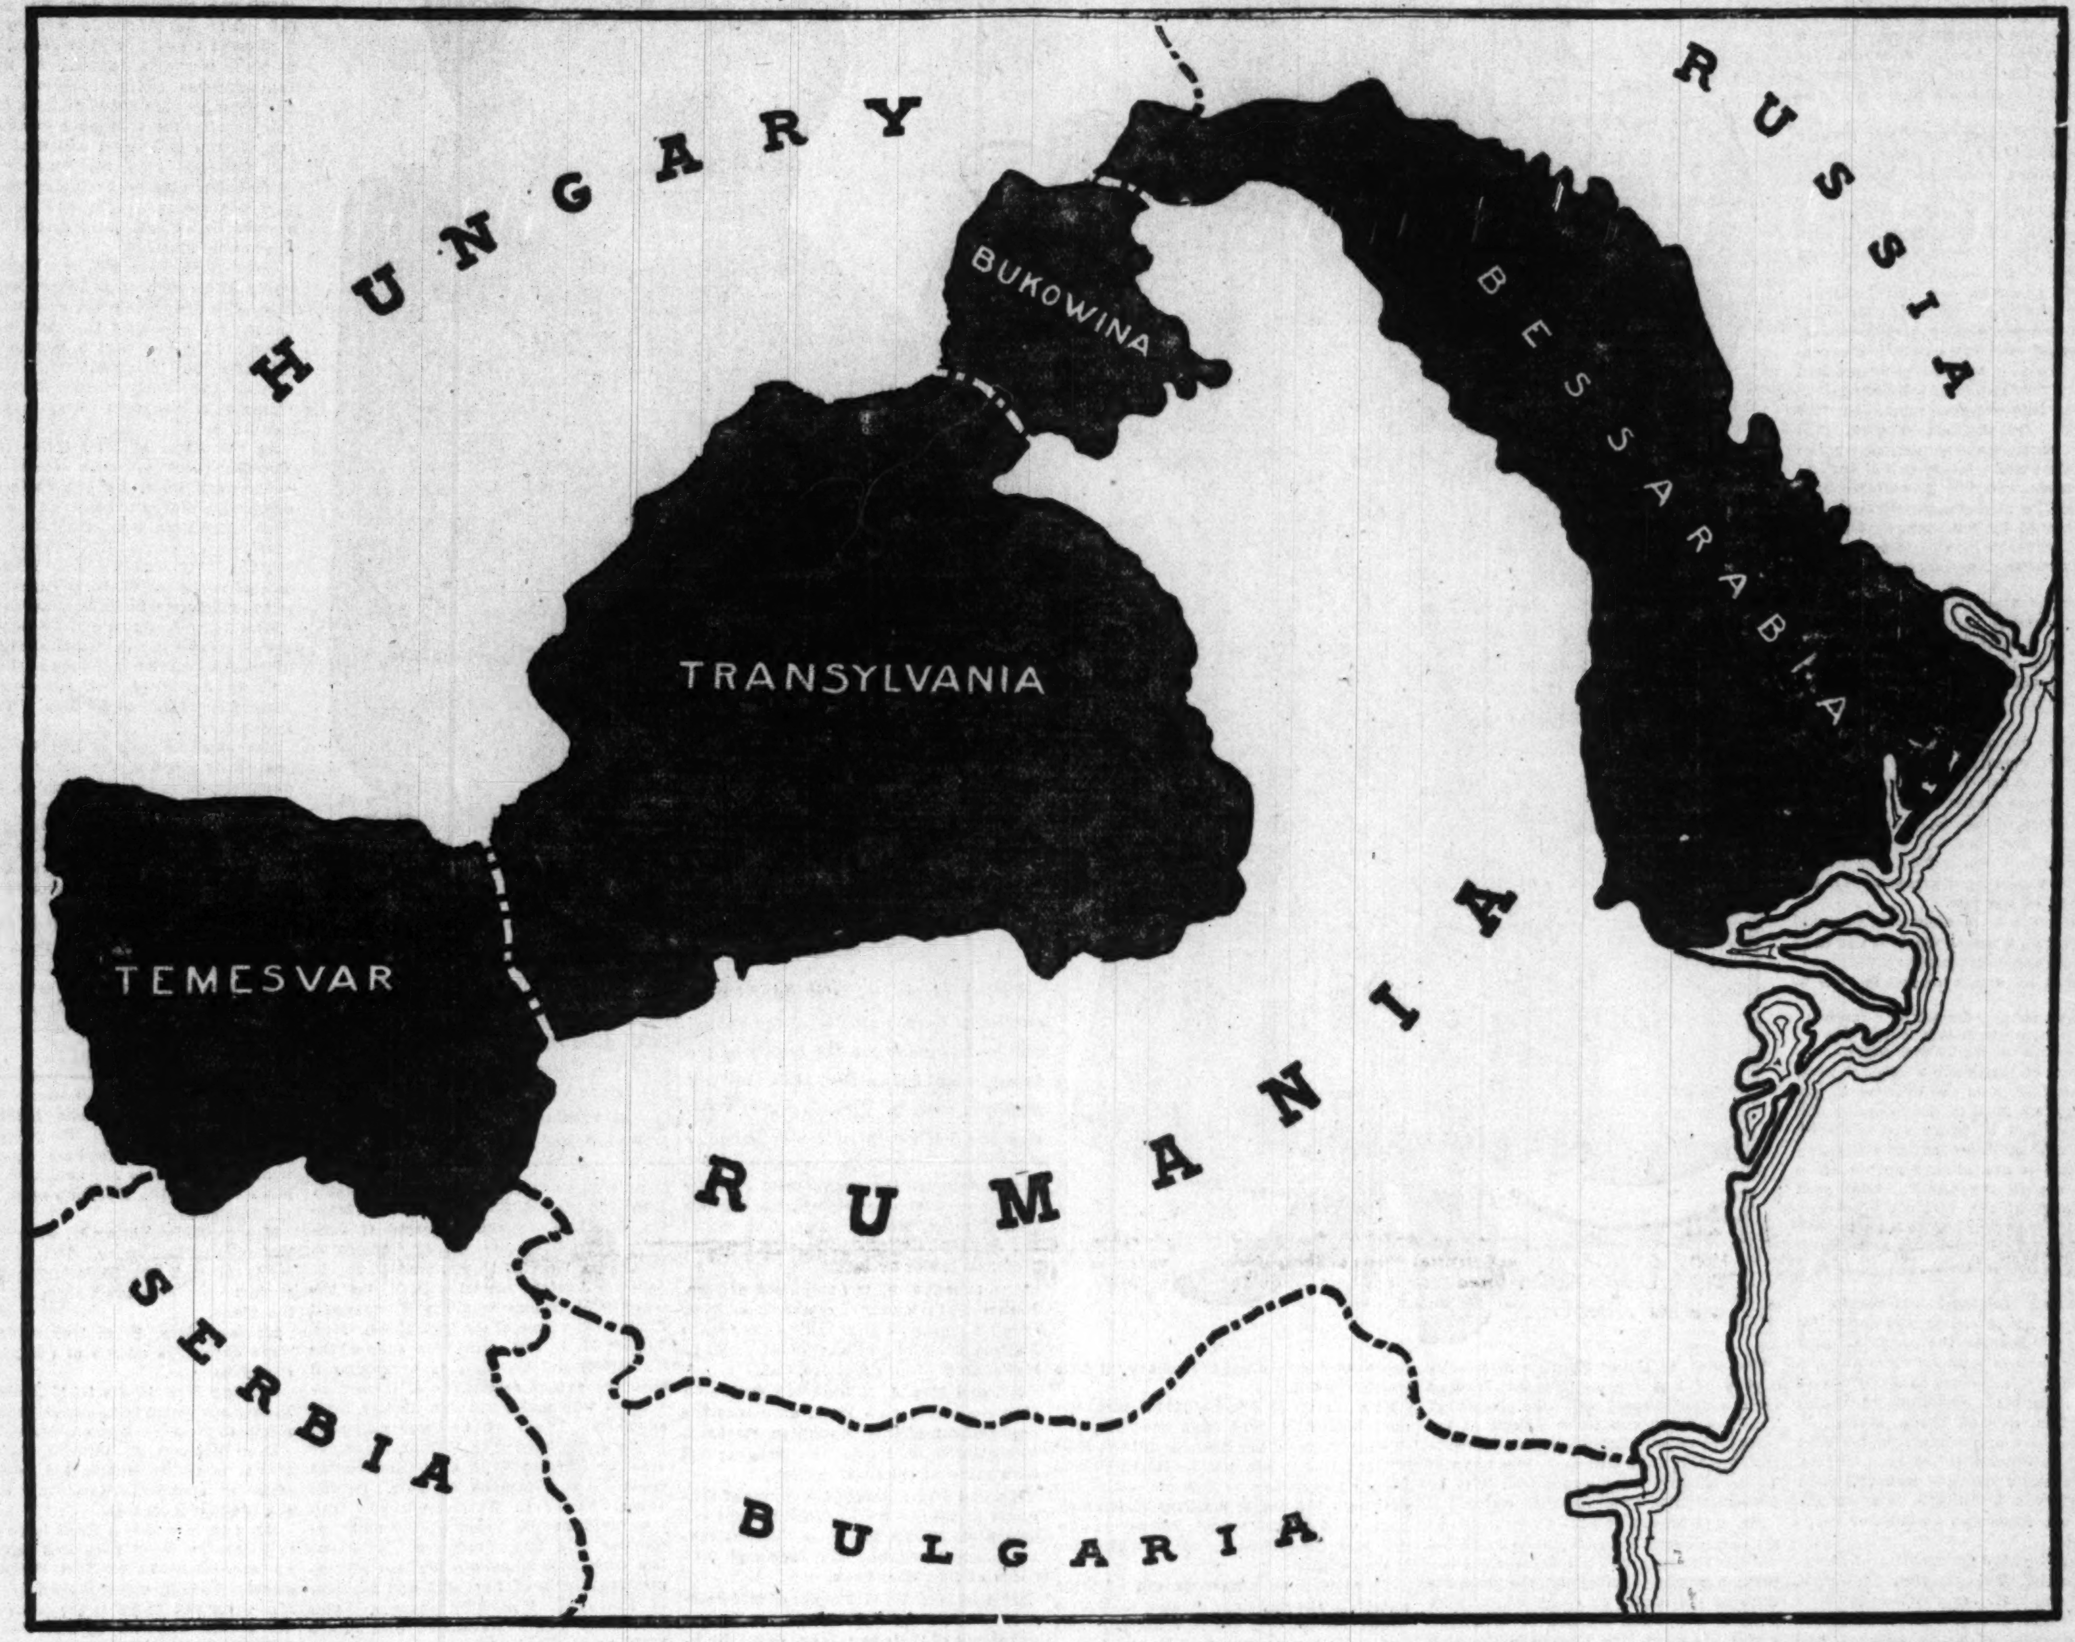
What Roumania Wants—The Dream of Bucharest

Roumania Sees in Austrian Territory Her Promise of a Future, and Her True Direction of Activity Must Be Against the Central Powers, Says Frank H. Simonds; Reviews Events in Roumanian History Antedating the War and Outlines the Hopes of King Ferdinand's People.

Mr. Simonds, profound student of military and diplomatic affairs, will contribute an article every week in "The Sunday Tribune" on the progress of the war in Europe. This new addition to "The Tribune's" staff will give its readers, with Capt. Henry J. Reilly writing from the technical military man's point of view, the best obtainable expert observers and interpreters of the events which are making history in Europe.

Map Showing Territory Upon Which Roumania Casts a Covetous Eye.



"At Bucharest There Is Being Fought a Battle Royal, with the King, the Court, the Financial Forces, and the Upper Classes Largely Aligned with the Central Powers. On the Other Side Are the Mass of the People Who Dream of a Greater Roumania as Venizelos and His Followers Dream of a Restored Hellenic World."

By FRANK H. SIMONDS.
Author of "The Great War."

[Copyright: 1915: By The Tribune Assn.]

FROM the very outset of the war the importance of obtaining the support of Roumania has been recognized alike in Petrograd, Vienna, and Berlin. In Bucharest there has been played a diplomatic game resembling those fought out in Athens and Sofia, but of far greater real importance to the contestants, for Roumania could bring to Russia and its allies not merely a well trained army of above 300,000 men, with large reserves, but an open road to the Bulgarian frontier and thus a land approach to Constantinople. To the Russian armies in Galicia Roumanian intervention would mean a flank attack upon the Austrians and the retreat of the Hapsburg forces from the trans-Carpathian front.

Had Roumania intervened on the side of the anti-German allies last spring the Russian disaster would probably have been prevented, Serbia would not have been crushed, Bulgaria would not have ventured into the war at all unless on the anti-Teutonic side; there would have been no crisis at Athens and Greek armies would unquestionably have shared in the Gallipoli adventure. Roumanian intervention could, too, have been had by the allies for a price, a price which seemed to them too high at the critical moment and has since seemed ridiculously low.

As to the German influences, they have been exerted from the very start, with great success so far as the question of Roumanian neutrality is concerned, but have failed to enlist Roumania for reasons that will be described presently. At the very outset of the world war King Charles of Roumania called his ministers together to prepare for action with Roumania's Austro-German allies, for Roumania was and is bound to Vienna and Berlin by treaty. His ministers warned him that to attempt this meant to produce revolution. Thus threatened, he was obliged to abandon his plan, and his disappointment is said to have hastened his death.

In the long series of ill turns which the allies have suffered in the Balkans, most have come through the fact that German kings or queens ruled in Balkan capitals. To Napoleon III. is to be charged the fact that a Hohenzollern dynasty is seated at Bucharest; and in Roumania, as in Greece, the crown has worked against the larger dreams of the people, for the greater good not of Roumanian or Hellenic aspirations but for the triumph of Teutonism in the world. Thus the Balkan situation may be summarized as a state of popular sympathy with the allies, wholly restrained by dynastic alliance with Germany and Austria.

Roumanian Aspiration.

As the situation has developed in the near east, however, it has become more and more unmistakable that the true direction of Roumanian action must be against Austria. This arises from the fact that it is in Austrian territory that Roumania sees the promise of the future for itself. Like Greece, like Serbia, like Bulgaria, Roumania has a dream—a race ambition. Indeed, its is the most considerable of all the Balkan dreams. Greater Roumania, if realized, will be one of the largest of the small states of Europe, ranking after Spain in population and next to Italy in area.

To understand the present, the past, and the possible future action of Roumania it is necessary to fix in mind this great dream. Always as the pendulum swings backward and forward in the near east it is essential to recall that the Roumanian people, like the Greek, are looking forward to the downfall of a great empire as the prelude to the realization of their own racial unity. What Turkey is for the Greeks, Austria is for the Roumanians. But always, too, it is necessary to remember that the king, the court, and the financial interests in Bucharest, as in Athens, are operatng against national wishes and for the alliance whose success means to the people the ruin of all their hopes.

In addition it is necessary to recall briefly the development of Roumanian policy, the forces and facts which have influenced the course of events in this kingdom and still materially affect its diplomatic and national action. In this article I purpose first to review very briefly the recent events in Roumanian history antedating the great war and then to outline the present hopes and purposes of the patriots, as contrasted with the Teutons, in Bucharest.

In the last Russo-Turkish war Roumania fought with the Russians against the Turks. When the czar's armies crossed Roumania to invade Bulgaria, then Turkish territory, the Russian emperor paid little heed to Roumanian wishes and showed scant courtesy to King Charles. But a few weeks later, when Russian armies were in extreme peril in the Balkan mountains, the czar made a personal appeal to the Roumanian king, who responded promptly, and the Roumanian army played a large rôle in the defeat of the Turk.

Instead of rewarding Roumania for its aid the czar promptly turned his back upon a king who had proved a friend in need. At the congress of Berlin Russia was permitted to take from Roumania the Bessarabian territory at the mouths of the Danube, which was Roumanian and peopled by Roumanians. By way of compensation Roumania received the Dobrudja province, between the Black sea and the Danube. This was a barren stretch, populated by Bulgars and Turks. Roumania thus acquired a province of small value and a quarrel with Bulgaria which has lasted to the present hour. Today, as always, Bulgaria dreams of regaining the Dobrudja.

A natural consequence of Russian selfishness was the alliance of Roumania with Austria and Germany. Henceforth Roumania was a silent partner of the triple alliance. In the last thirty years Roumania has marched steadily toward wealth and power. Its grain fields and oil wells have made it prosperous. Its population has increased rapidly. Bucharest has become a great modern city, modeled on Paris and possessing boulevards which at least rival those of Brussels. Its army has grown in importance. Long before he died King Charles had his revenge, and Roumanian hostility was a real obstacle to Russian purpose in the Balkans.

The Second Balkan War.

It was not until the Balkan wars of three years ago that there was any interruption of the friendly relations between Vienna and Bucharest. But in the first Balkan war Bulgaria achieved a swift and great victory, and Bulgarian ambition was uncovered as peril not merely to Roumanian desire to remain the leading power of the Balkans but also to the integrity of the Roumanian kingdom, for at this time there was disclosed the Bulgarian determination to repossess the Dobrudja, which had now been transformed into a prosperous province, and held Costanza, the sole window of Roumania on the sea.

At the close of this war Roumania asked Bulgaria for the cession of Silistria and a narrow strip between the Danube and the Black sea, which would insure the protection of the railroad line from Bucharest to the sea. This request for "compensation" was based upon the fact that Roumania had held her hand and refrained from intervention on behalf of Turkey when intervention would have spelled Bulgar defeat. Bulgaria declined, and Bulgarian refusal was encouraged at Vienna and Berlin, where statesmen were busily at work endeavoring to influence Bulgaria in such fashion as to break up the Balkan alliance.

This Balkan alliance had been made in Russia. If it endured it was bound to be controlled by Russia and to become a grave menace to the safety of the triple alliance and the integrity of Austria. In this situation Vienna egged Bulgaria into the second Balkan war. But the result was unexpected. Roumania, perceiving that its own interests were being sacrificed by Austrian and German diplomacy, boldly changed sides, received Russian indorsement for its mobilization, and struck Bulgaria down at the precise moment when Bulgaria was opening its campaign against Greece and Serbia.

Thanks to Roumanian intervention, Bulgaria was defeated, and at Bucharest there was signed a treaty which destroyed for the moment the Bulgarian dream of dominating the Balkans and becoming the Prussia of the near east. For its own reward Roumania took, not Silistria but a wide strip from the Danube to the Black sea, containing a population of 300,000, chiefly Bulgar, and some of the best agricultural land of Bulgaria. Thus Roumania utterly defeated Austro-German plans and to a considerable degree escaped from Teutonic influence and returned to a Russian alignment. But by acquiring Bulgarian territory it exposed itself to attack by Bulgaria whenever this state should regain its power to strike. Just as Germany, by taking Alsace-Lorraine, insured lasting French hatred and future French attack, Roumania had invited Bulgarian revanche and made Bulgaria's friends its enemies.

The Great War.

After the treaty of Bucharest, which restored Roumania to the leading position in the Balkans, Roumania, Greece, and Serbia signed a treaty of alliance which bound all three to act against Bulgaria should this state attempt to reopen the settlement made at the Roumanian capital and regain lost provinces. This treaty Serbia invoked a few weeks ago unsuccessfully, Greece and Roumania pleading that it was a treaty binding them to support Serbia against Bulgaria, not against the central European powers.

But the subsequent success of Bulgaria, in alliance with the central powers, has again raised the question of national safety at Bucharest. As it now stands, Bulgaria seems likely to regain all she lost at Bucharest, save only the Roumanian acquisitions, and there is the patent peril that she may presently attack Roumania. It is this danger which today influences Roumanian patriots, together with the fact that the realization of their great dream will be utterly impossible if the central powers win, and that from the great war they will emerge, not increased, but possibly diminished by the loss of the Dobrudja.

Unless the central powers are defeated Bulgaria will keep Macedonia and eastern Serbia; she will acquire Thrace from the Turks in return for Turkish acquisitions in Egypt promised by Germany. She may stretch her frontiers west to the Adriatic through Albania and obtain a window on the sea at Durazzo. Thus increased, Bulgaria will presently develop into the leading Balkan state and in her own time can hope to acquire Saloniki, as well as Kavala and Drama; she may even dream of possessing herself of Constantinople, as Czar Ferdinand planned three years ago.

Two questions, then, one of safety and influence in the Balkans, the other of realizing racial ambitions, are pressing the Roumanians toward the allied camp. It remains now to discuss these Roumanian ambitions.

Greater Roumania.

As at present constituted Roumania is a kingdom with an area of some 53,000 square miles, about the size of New York and Connecticut, and a population of a little more than 7,500,000, largely homogeneous. It is made up of the three provinces of Wallachia, Moldavia, and Dobrudja, once portions of the Turkish empire.

But north, west, and east are provinces of Austria and Russia which contain several millions of Roumanians. This Roumanian race traces its origin to the Latin soldiers and colonists sent to Dacia by the Roman emperor Trajan, and today the descendants of these Romans are to be found in the Banat of Temesvar and the province of Transylvania, in Hungary, in the southern half of the Austrian province of Bukovina, and they supply two-thirds of the population of the Russian province of Bessarabia, the southwestern portion of which was once Roumanian and was taken by Russia at the congress of Berlin.

The population of these several outlying Roumanian lost provinces is as follows: Transylvania, 2,500,000, of which 1,500,000 are Roumanian; Temesvar, 1,500,000, of which 500,000 are Roumanian; Bukovina, 650,000, of which 250,000 are Roumanian; Bessarabia, 2,500,000, of which 1,750,000 are Roumanian. The area of these provinces is: Temesvar, 11,000 square miles; Transylvania, 21,000; Bukovina, 6,000; Bessarabia, 17,000. In all these provinces, too, the balance of the population non-Roumanian belongs to several races—thus there are many Hungarians, many Germans, and some Serbs in Temesvar; Germans and Hungarians in Transylvania; Slavs in Bukovina, and Turks and Slavs in Bessarabia.

Could the Roumanians realize their dream and retake the lost provinces Roumania would become a state of 105,000 square miles, with a population of some 14,000,000. Compare this with an area of 121,000 for Great Britain and 111,000 for Italy. It would have for natural frontiers the Danube, the Dniester, the Transylvanian mountains, separating it from northern Hungary, and the Maros, dividing it from central Hungary. Of this 14,000,000 of people, upward of 11,000,000 would be Roumanian, and there would be in the minorities no group which would threaten national integrity, for the alien population shows on the ethnological maps as scattered archipelagoes, not solid blocks adjoining race brothers across the proposed frontiers.

The Obstacles.

The first difficulty for the Roumanians lies in the fact that they desire to acquire territory from both sides. National aspirations cannot be completely realized by the defeat and partition of Austria-Hungary, for this would leave Russia in possession of Bessarabia and probably pave the way for a Russian annexation of Bukovina. In addition Serbia claims the corner of Temesvar facing Belgrade, which holds 250,00 Serbs. This is the Pancsova district, much discussed last spring.

While Russian armies were still advancing victoriously in the Carpathians in March of this year Roumania offered to join the anti-German alliance provided Russia would cede to her the Bessarabian province, part of which was once Roumanian, and agree that when Austria was defeated Roumania should have all of Transylvania and Temesvar and the southern half of Bukovina, including Czernowitz, the capital. This demand was rather rudely rejected by Russia, then seemingly on the point of entering the Hungarian plain. The breaking points were the Bessarabian province and the Pancsova region.

With the Russian disaster and retreat all immediate chance of Roumanian intervention on the allied side came to an abrupt close and a new phase opened. Austro-German armies, having cleared most of Galicia and Bukovina, began to push forward toward the northern end of Bessarabia, and Roumania was invited to join the central powers and acquire the whole of Bessarabia in return, it was whispered, for cessions to Bulgaria along the Dobrudja frontier, for Vienna and Berlin were already busy at Sofia.

But Roumania again declined the bargain. Bessarabia was a small part of her hopes. Again, her people were thoroughly anti-German in their sympathies; both French and Italian influences are considerable in the Roumanian capital and outside of the court circles; Roumanians are proud of their Latin strain, and have modeled their national life on that of their western race brethren. Above all, Austro-German success promised the rise of a greater Bulgaria, which was an ever present peril for the Roumanians, who regarded the preservation of the treaty of Bucharest as essential to Roumanian safety and supremacy in the Balkans.

The New Situation.

Austro-German armies failed to conquer Bessarabia; indeed, they are back on their own territory in this region. Russia was not eliminated, and Russian armies are beginning to press on Roumanian frontiers again, while Petrograd demands that Roumania, even if it will not enter the war, permit Russian armies to cross Roumanian territory, as they did on the march to San Stefano a generation ago. Such armies would unquestionably put an end to Bulgarian aspirations, for even if Bulgarian forces were not crushed the losses, together with those daily suffered against Serb and Anglo-French forces in the south along the Vardar, would leave the Bulgars, whose sacrifices in life in the Balkan wars were tremendous, crippled for at least a generation.

Unquestionably Russia is now prepared to meet Roumanian demands in Bukowina and in Temesvar, where poor Serbia has ceased to be a factor now, and in Transylvania, where there never was any conflict between Latin and Slav. There remains Bessarabia. Will Russia agree to turn this great province, with its considerable Black sea front, over to the Roumanians, and let them thus extend their territory to the very environs of Odessa? This still seems unlikely. But the Roumanians, having been promised Bessarabia by the Germans if the central powers succeed, may well insist.

It is an exceedingly cold blooded game that the Roumanians are playing, but it is their right to play such a game. They have been betrayed both by the Russians and the central powers in the past. Their contribution to Russian success in the former Turkish war was rewarded by the stealing of their fertile province. Their fidelity to the triple alliance for almost a generation was recompensed by the sacrifice of their aspirations and even their safety when the central powers needed to meet Bulgarian aspirations and thus break up the Balkan alliance.

Nor should it be overlooked that Roumania might easily bring the decisive contribution to the present war. Not alone would its army of 300,000 men, admirably equipped and well disciplined, turn the tide in the Balkans, but Roumanian intervention would compel the retreat of the central powers to the Carpathians and the San river; it would imperil the whole German line in western Russia, and it might be the signal for revolt among the several millions of Roumanians in Austria-Hungary, who have long looked forward to a reunion with their free brothers.

The Battle Royal.

At Bucharest there is being fought a battle royal, with the king, the court, the financial forces, and the upper classes largely aligned with the central powers. On the other side are the mass of the people and the few patriots like M. Take Jonescu who dream of a greater Roumania as Venizelos and his followers dream of a restored Hellenic world.

In Roumania, as in Greece, the real advantage lies with the allies, so far as national interest is concerned, for the great prizes are to be obtained only if the central powers are defeated. But the court influences have so far prevailed because there exists in Bucharest, as in Athens, a profound conviction that the central powers, that Germany, will win. Ferdinand, like Constantine, is impressed with German military strength, and Ferdinand belongs to the house of Hohenzollern, while Constantine has merely married a daughter of this family.

Like Greece, Roumania is prepared "to rush to the succor of the victor" in the present war. Like Greece, Roumania is still divided in its views as to which force will prove the victor. Like the Greeks, the Roumanians, as a people, are profoundly sympathetic with the allies, and as a rule hostile to Germany and to Austria. Like the Greeks, they hate and fear the Bulgars, having joined the Greeks in plundering Bulgaria. It is exceedingly doubtful whether the crown possesses influence enough to throw the Roumanian army to the central powers. King Charles desired to do this and was forced by his ministers to abandon the project to keep his throne. So the deadlock in Roumania, as in Greece, has been maintained, on the whole, to the advantage of the central powers.

But in estimating the future course of Roumania it is well to keep in mind the great dream of Bucharest—the hope of a restored Roman empire in the Transylvania Alps and along the Danube and the Dniester, the aspiration for a Roumanian "risorgimento," and a new Latin state but little smaller than modern Italy in area and possessing regions far more fertile than any in the Italian peninsula. To the realization of this dream the downfall of the Hapsburg empire is the prime necessity. If the central powers win it can never be realized. But always Roumania has to consider the possibility of waiting too long and receiving nothing when Europe at last decides on peace.

First Assembly Ball the Chief Event This Week

By Mme. X.

THE First Assembly ball next Friday evening at the Blackstone, in that hostelry's famous crystal ballroom, will be the chief event of the week for that portion of the gay world that constitutes its membership. The two assemblies—one in December and one in January—are the most formal social functions of the season. They are the contribution of Chicago's society men to the winter's program. They are brilliant, chic, well organized, charming affairs.

The assemblies are the direct descendants of the South Side Dancing class. A more remote ancestor was the Cinders. The latter was organized soon after the Chicago fire of 1871—as its name indicates—by a group of well known north siders. George Rumsey and his three sisters, the Misses Mimi, Martha, and Ada Rumsey, Clarence Burley, Cyrus Adams, Samuel H. Kerfoot Jr., the Misses Kate, Annie, and Alice Kerfoot, the Misses Annie and Mary Kelly, and James Kelly were among the original Cinderites.

The company at first met for dancing in private houses, the big Rumsey house, on the corner of Huron and Cass streets, being a favorite rendezvous. As the club grew larger it moved to Martine's dance hall, on Chicago avenue between State street and Dearborn avenue.

Refreshments were of the simplest; sandwiches, coffee, cake, and lemonade sufficed in those days to satisfy hunger and quench thirst. Later salad and ice cream were added to the menu. But anything like the suppers of the present assemblies, with their French dishes and the inevitable cocktails and champagne, would have seemed to the gay set of the '70s like an unholy Roman orgy.

"Nous avons changé tout cela" without materially adding to the intrinsic pleasure of an evening of dancing.

The changes of times and customs are the concern of philosophers and historians, but if we of today think of that bygone era as a simple hearted epoch, what kind of civilization will forty years hence look back on us here and now as ingenuous and simple?

South Siders Organize Class.

The South Side Dancing class was evolved five or six years later than the Cinders by a group of south siders, headed by Mrs. Wirt Dexter—now of Boston—and Mrs. George M. Pullman. These two women desired to induce their respective husbands to relax from the strenuous claims of their daily business life, and so persuaded them to take dancing lessons of the celebrated French dance masters of that day, Mr. and Mrs. Bournique. Others joined with the Pullmans and Dexters in the pursuit of Terpsichore and a merry class was the result.

Among its members were the Arthur Catons, the Augustus N. Eddys, the N K. Fairbanks, the Franklin MacVeaghs, the John M. Clarks, the Leslie Carters, the Joseph Medills, the Edward Ishams, the Robert Lincolns, Mrs. Philip Sheridan, Miss Martha Hill, John Crerar, Col. Huntington Jackson, and Charles Fullerton.

Refreshments here too were simple, sandwiches, lemonade, and doughnuts—very delicious doughnuts.

Later, the South Side Dancing class grew to be the fashionable organization of Chicago. It met at Kinsley's in Adams street and had regular suppers—though, I think, never anything so effete as champagne.

But, the past is past. The assembly ball of next Friday is our concern. Various dinners will be given preceding this event. At the Casino Mr. and Mrs. George Payson give a dinner of thirty, while Miss Edith Blair will be hostess to another dinner in the same effective entourage. Others entertaining that evening are Mr. and Mrs. Watson Blair and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Meeker.

Let us hope that the inspired compositor will not report the Roman matrons to whom the assembly guests will make their bow as "deceiving" the guests. In spite of efforts to the contrary, he so described in this column, the four women on the reception committee of the Bachelors and Benedicts last week.

Mr. Bryan Lathrop, Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. Watson Blair, Mrs. Cyrus H. McCormick, Mrs. Arthur Meeker, and Mrs. George M. Pullman will be in this receiving line next Friday.

Chicago's Greatest Charity Ball.

The Spanish ball at the First Regiment armory on Dec. 17 is, if present indications can be trusted, to be the greatest in the history of Chicago public charity balls. The response of the public has been unprecedented.

In one day Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, the prime mover of the affair, had to return checks amounting to $600 because there was no more space to be converted into boxes. An agonizing piece of clerical work that return of good money must have been! From Milwaukee, St. Paul, and St. Louis came requests for boxes by those who wanted to come to Chicago just for the ball.

The expenses of the affair will probably be almost entirely defrayed by the advertising which the program committee, under the leadership of Potter Palmer Jr., has secured for the programs. Seventy-four boxes and 1,600 seats will accommodate the spectators, while the pageant will include 500 men, women, and strange animals.

For the first time in local history the two great national political parties will be represented in the spectacle. Mayor Thompson is to present the keys of the city to the French tenor, Dalmores, who will be the chief bull fighter. Mrs. Thompson is to impersonate Queen Isabella of Castile in the group of the court of Ferdinand and Isabella. Through Mrs Carter Harrison the Democrats will be represented, as she is getting up a bevy of debutantes who will form one of the most effective elements in the procession.

Down at the University of Chicago they are all delving and diving into histories and ancient missals with the view of making perfect Prof. William Gardner Hale's and Mrs. Robert Lovett's troupe of the grand inquisitors of Spain, that grim and fierce band of defenders of the faith who filled the world of their time with terror in the name of Christ.

Prof. Hale himself will impersonate Charles V. after Titian's portrait of the great emperor. Charles Hutchinson, in crimson robes, will be the grand "inquisitadore." Mrs Charles Hutchinson, Mrs Frederic C. Bartlett, Mrs. William Nitze, Miss Katherine Linn, and Miss Elizabeth Wallace will be among the court ladies of this group, while Robert Lovett, as Philip II., and William Nitze as Don Carlos, will complete the picture.

Probably the most picturesque couple of the entire cortège will be Richard Henry Little and Francesco Daddi as Don Quixote and Sancho Panza.

Famous Character Missing.

There is one famous Spanish character not accounted for in the program—Don Juan. As yet no one has been assigned to that rôle. There are various candidates—nominated by others—for the place. In fact, a voting contest has been suggested to confer this distinction by popular acclaim.

It is a curious psychological fact that few or no men resent the accusation of being the prototype for Byron's celebrated roué. It is almost as pleasing and gratifying to the average male as it would be to the average woman to be told that she was physically and morally capable of causing as much havoc in the world as Helen of Troy.

The artists of Chicago will add greatly to the pageant. Lawton Parker is organizing a Zuloaga contingent and Ralph Clarkson a Velasquez one.

The supper, which is to have some Spanish dishes and all Spanish names, is in the hands of Mrs. Redmond Stephens and Mrs Joseph Winterbotham.

It should be remembered that the Lying-In hospital is a great and wonderful charity which has practically no endowment. These annual entertainments are necessary to defray its running expenses and to help pay for the fine new buildings.

Last year this enterprise handled 4 000 free cases. Do you realize what that means? Four thousand women were given the best, most modern care at that critical moment when one life gives birth to a new life. The percentage of successful births achieved by the Lying-In hospital and its dispensary service is one of the marvels of medical and surgical science.

Mystery of the Twelve Knights.

Another annual event, one that has come to be a real institution, is the Butchers and Bakers and Candlestick Makers' Twelfth Night dance—and Twelfth Night comes, you know, on Jan. 6.

This affair is, as usual, shrouded in the greatest mystery. Your answer is to be addressed to "Twelve Knights," at 76 East Monroe street. The organizers and promoters of the dance are veiled in anonymity. But, betwixt thee and me they cannot call this frolic a "gambol," because it would be a giveaway on the real author of the fun.

The invitation is in a curious, inverted form of verse, wherein the first words of the lines rhyme, not the last:

Greeting and an urgent request to come to their
Meeting most suitably dressed for a carnival
Dance with those who delight to trick and Entrance on the coming Twelfth Night.

The place of the dance will, as of yore, be revealed only on the evening of the occasion, when most of the company will have assembled in fancy and fantastic dress at one or the other of the many dinners which are always gotten up in connection with the dance. Last year the ballroom of the Virginia hotel was the setting. The year before Lincoln hall, in Dearborn avenue, was most artistically adorned for the occasion.

Working for War Sufferers.

But all is not dancing and prancing these days. Besides the many sewing circles for foreign war sufferers and the Red Cross first aid class at St. Joseph's hospital, there is the meeting Mrs. Bryan Lathrop, Mrs. Russell Tyson, Mrs. C. M Ely, and others are organizing for next Thursday afternoon to be held in Mrs. Potter Palmer's picture gallery, when Miss Marie van Vorst will talk on the work of the American ambulance corps in France.

Owing to the kind coöperation of Maestro Campanini, Mme. Edvina, Dalmores, Conchita Supervia, and other operatic celebrities will on this occasion sing, and the combination of house, speaker, and artists is sure to bring out a throng. Invitations had to be limited in number, as Mrs. Palmer's beautiful picture gallery seats only five hundred.

The committee working with Mrs Henry Robbins for the French wounded emergency fund is broadening the scope of its undertaking and hopes to form branch committees in all the towns and villages of Illinois. Illinois has so far done little to show his kinship with the unfortunate in Europe. The not over large, not over rich state of Virginia far outstrips us in its contributions to the war sufferers.

It is not that we Illinoisans are more churlish or niggardly than our fellow citizens in other states. It is because the tragedy and our duty toward it have not been properly presented to each one of us. We need not take sides. We can safely feel sympathy with and sorrow for all the nations engaged in the war. It is a grievous affair for all Europe and we have no business to be oblivious to it and wrapped in our own comfort and peace.

Hear Lecture on Immigration.

About 130 or 140 women, with a small sprinkling of men, listened last Tuesday afternoon to a powerful argument for restricted immigration from Prof. Edward A. Ross of the University of Wisconsin. The occasion was the second lecture in the course on different aspects of our immigration question, a course organized by the Chicago Equal Suffrage association with a view to its bearing on some of our present internal and international problems.

The meeting took place in Mrs. Samuel E. Barrett's charming drawing rooms, which, with their collections of rare curios and fine paintings, made a sumptuous setting for the occasion.

There is no question that an attractive house adds greatly to the popularity of even the most stimulating and enlightening discourse. These lecture courses, which, under the auspices of this fashionable suffrage society, are becoming annual events, are always staged in some one or other of the noted north side mansions, and never fail to draw throngs of smartly dressed, socially prominent women.

Among the regular attendants at these lectures are Mesdames Frederic C. Bartlett, William G. Hibbard Jr., William Hale, Tiffany Blake, Leroy Fuller, William Conger, Dunlap Smith, Augustus Peabody, William Prescott Hunt, John W. Ela, J. F. Dummer, and George Packard.

Society in general is working enthusiastically for the success of the annual charity ball given for the benefit of the Lying-In hospital on Dec. 17 in the First Regiment armory. Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman has had charge of the selection of the various groups that are to be such a feature of the pageant that opens the ball. Miss Grace Louise Dryburgh will head the Carmencita group, and all the guests are to wear the various costumes of Spain from the early centuries to the present day.

The first of Count Stephen Spagiari's course of lectures on "Modern Italian Drama and Music" will take place next Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the residence of Miss Ethel Wrenn. The subject for this talk will be "The Love of Three Kings," the opera which is to be presented that evening at the opera.

Mr. and Mrs. Cleofonte Campanini—he is usually called Maestro, instead of Mr.—will be the guests of honor after the lecture; a slight revival of the friendly days of the lovers of Italy, which were such a delightful feature of Chicago's social life when Mrs. Harold McCormick was here.

WEDDINGS.

Saturday, Jan. 1, is the time chosen for the wedding of Miss Jean Dean Gilbert Barnes of Decatur, Ill., and Dr. Selim Walker McArthur, son of Dr. and Mrs. Lewis L. McArthur of 4724 Drexel boulevard. The ceremony will take place at 6 o'clock in the evening at the home of the bride's parents in Decatur. It will be comparatively a small affair, with about 100 guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Julian H. Pitkin of 4204 Greenview avenue announce the marriage of their daughter, Julia Ethelwyn, to Frank Earle Davenport, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Davenport.

The marriage of Miss Ruth Davis, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Nathan S. Davis, to Henry Dangler took place yesterday at noon at the home of the bride's parents, 8 East Huron street. The service was a quiet affair owing to the fact that the bridegroom is convalescing from a serious illness. The young couple will pass the winter in California.

The marriage of Miss Beatrice Edna Hartman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Hartman of 4720 Grand boulevard, to Walter I. Schiff will take place at the Blackstone hotel on Tuesday, Dec. 7, at 6:30 p. m. Mr. Schiff is the son of Mrs. S. Schiff and is at present residing at the Chicago Beach hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Samuels announce the marriage of their daughter, Toby, to Mr. Isadore Provus on Sunday, Nov. 14. At home evenings during January, at 1476 Carmen avenue.

Mrs. Walter M. Pond of 1117 Forest avenue, Evanston will open her home for the marriage of her granddaughter, Miss Mildred Lucile Holmes, to Harry Orland King on Saturday at 8:30 o'clock in the evening. Mr. and Mrs. Oliver W. Holmes, parents of the bride elect, will give a dinner and theater party on Thursday for their daughter.

There will be numerous out of town guests at the marriage on Jan. 15 of Miss Violet Patten and Leslie Wheeler. Miss Patten is the daughter of Harry J. Patten and Mrs. Patten of Evanston, and the niece of James A Patten. Her fiancé is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Wheeler.

ENGAGEMENTS.

The engagement is announced of Miss Violet Besly, daughter of Mrs. Charles Howard Besly of Hinsdale, to Leonard Phillips of Virginia.

Mr. and Mrs. William Wurzburg of Grand Rapids, Mich., announce the engagement of their daughter, Irene, to Sidney Gardiner, son of Dr. Edwin J. Gardiner of 1222 North State street. The announcement was made Tuesday evening in Grand Rapids, where Mr Gardiner has gone for a visit with his fiancée. Mr. Gardiner is a brother of Mrs. Nelson Thomasson Jr and of Edwin I. Gardiner.

Mr. and Mrs. Simon Greeny of 4853 Champlain avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Irma Alice, to Leonard W. Spier, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Spier of 5439 Indiana avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Harry Theobald of 4426 Michigan avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Harrietta, to Jack F. Mendelssohn of London, England.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis King of Alma, Mich., announce the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth, to Robert Howard Cook of Glens Falls, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglass Smith of Hubbard Woods announce the engagement of their daughter, Florence, to Edward Whittemore Ellis of Cambridge, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Rubel of Dallas, Tex., announce the engagement of their daughter, Florence Nancy, to Charles Hull Caton of Baton Rouge, La., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Caton of Ottawa, Ill.

The engagement is announced of Mrs. Esther Ruth Berkson, daughter of Mrs. Jacob Berkson of 4833 Prairie avenue, to Nathan Haffenberg, son of Mrs. M. L. Haffenberg of Los Angeles, Cal.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H Standish, 403 North Grove avenue, Oak Park, announce the engagement of their daughter, Barbara, to Frederick P. Ford. The wedding will take place in the early spring.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hall Jennings of Wilmette announce the engagement of their daughter, Elwyn Hazel, to Watkins Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Judson M. Williams of 3630 Ellis Park.

Mr and Mrs. W. K. Palmer of 6424 Fairfield avenue, Berwyn, announce the engagement of their daughter, Verna Belle, to Ned Scott Cone, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. N Cone of 3206 Home avenue, Berwyn.

FUTURE EVENTS.

Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman, chairman of the groups in the pageant which will open the Spanish ball at the armory Friday evening, Dec. 17, for the benefit of the Lying-In hospital, has practically completed all of the groups and various divisions. One of the features of the pageant will be the "Obreros de Hacienda," which has been obtained through the coöperation of Guy L. Jones and the Sociedad Hispano Americana de Chicago. The group will be formed of the following persons in whose veins flows blood of the Spanish Conquistadors: Mrs. J. J. Kearney, Mrs. Russell J. Matthias, Mrs. J. S. Campbell, Mrs. H. E. Turner, Mrs. Mellen C. Martin, Mrs. H. G. S. Pillsbury, Mrs. Leonard Shepard, Mrs. M. Dario De Carpio, Miss Pauline Kearney, Miss Adrien Eckles, and Messrs. Louis O. Ossa, Markus N. Unger, Edwardo Diaz J. S. Campbell, M. C. Martin, H. G. S. Pillsbury, Joseph C. Scolare, Juan a de Meana, A. Camorano, Fernando Garcia Floris, and Guy L. Jones. Another division will be the Charles V. group which will represent Spain at the time of the inquisition. Mrs. Robert M. Lovett, wife of a dean of the University of Chicago, is arranging it with the expert assistance of those professors who make Spanish history their specialty. There will be seventy persons in the group headed by William Gardiner Hale as Charles V. in a costume copied from Titian's famous portrait. Behind them Charles L. Hutchinson will trail the royal purple robes of the chief inquisitor and Mrs. Frederick Clay Bartlett with Miss Elizabeth Wallace will reproduce Maria of Portugal and Isabella of Portugal. Following these notables will come Percy Hammond and James Field as cardinals, followed by a band of Dominican monks and nuns, and the inquisitors in black robes with masked black hoods accompanying the victims, who will wear authentic and decorative costumes of white with scarlet flames adorning them and worn with high conical hats. The younger set will make a brilliant spot in the pageant, with Miss Edith Ogden Harrison and the season's debutantes in "The Dancers of the Alhambra," Miss Lloyda Smith with "The Dancers of the Court of Lions," and Miss Grace Louise Dryburgh with the "Carmencitas" in their deep orange dancing skirts and black lace mantillas, while Mrs. Louis E. Yager's "La Cigale" group will have young girls in filmy draperies wreathed in garlands of roses as flower and cigaret venders.

Mrs. Marguerite Mitchell Sheriff, Mrs. John J Mitchell, Mrs William Shippen Jenks, Mrs Bertrand Walker, Mrs. Robert Harvey, Mrs Wallace Wakem, Mrs George S. Isham, and Mrs. Joseph Terbell are in charge of the annual benefit ball for the Ogontz Day nursery. The affair is set for Dec. 13 in the Blackstone.

News of Chicago Society

The following are the patronesses for the Yale university dramatic performance of Oscar Wilde's "An Ideal Husband," to be given on Friday evening, Dec. 31, in Orchestra hall:

Mrs. C. H. McCormick,
Mrs. Henry Tuttle,
Mrs. Arthur Farwell,
Mrs. W. E. Clow,
Mrs. R. G. McGann,
Mrs. H. C. Taylor,
Mrs. J. L. Houghteling,
Mrs. Cyrus Bentley,

Mrs. G. S. Isham,
Mrs Chauncey Keep,
Mrs J. G. K McClure,
Mrs. E. L. Swift,
Mrs. J. G. Coleman,
Mrs Wallace Winter,
Mrs. Samuel Walker,
Mrs. J. O. Armour,
Mrs. Arthur Meeker,

Mrs. Cyrus Hall McCormick, 50 East Huron street, whose son, Gordon McCormick, is a Princeton man, will give over the entire day of Thursday, Dec. 30, to Princeton festivities. Besides the breakfast she is to give that day for the debutantes to meet the members of the Princeton Triangle club she is giving a dinner in the evening for a number of the young people, and afterward will take them to the Triangle club performance at the Studebaker theater. Following the breakfast the young people will have an informal dance and later attend the Triangle club matinée.

On Dec. 31 there will be a large dinner party given by Mrs. D Mark Cummings, Mrs. Edward F. Carry, and Mrs F C. Letts. Subsequently they will take their guests to the Yale play in Orchestra hall. The affair will be in honor of three daughters of the hostesses—the Misses Edith Cummings, Margaret Carry, and Courtney Letts.

At the home of Miss Helen Birch on Tuesday there will be a sale of toys and needlework made by the children in a crippled children's home at Maywood. This institution was established several years ago through the interest of Mrs. William J. Chalmers. Proceeds from the sale go to the individual savings accounts of the children who have made the toys.

Mrs. John A. Spoor of 1526 North State parkway will give a tea dance Saturday afternoon from 5 to 7 o'clock at the Casino club in honor of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Thornhill Broome.

Mrs. James Keeley of 1300 Ritchie place has cards out for the debut tea of her daughter, Miss Dorothy Keeley, on Monday, Dec. 27, from 4 to 6 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. George E Shuman and Mr. and Mrs. John R Shuman have issued invitations to a dance to be given on Wednesday evening at 9 o'clock at the Blackstone.

Mrs Lucian P. Cheney, 1224 Dearborn avenue, has invitations out for a musical on Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs John A. Stevenson will give a dinner party the evening of Dec. 21.

PERSONALS.

About the middle of January, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Ackerman Meeker will come west for a visit. They are now in Hamilton, Ont. While here they will be with Mr. Meeker's mother, Mrs. George Meeker, and Mrs. Meeker's aunt, Mrs. C. W. Dempster.

Mrs. E. H. Spaulding Jr. will receive on Mondays in December. This is the first series of teas that Mrs. Spaulding has given in her new town home at 221 Walton place.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Hunter expect to leave about the middle of the month for Pasadena, Cal.

Dr. and Mrs. Lewis L. McArthur, 4724 Drexel boulevard have arrived home from a trip to New York and Washington.

Mrs. William A. Vincent, 1301 Astor street, is in Annapolis, Md., where she went to spend Thanksgiving with her son, John Vincent II.

Mr. and Mrs. Niels Gron have decided to locate in New York and have taken an apartment at 40 East Sixty-second street. They had just settled there when Mr. Gron had to go to Scandinavia. He will return, however, by New Year's day. In the meantime Mrs. Gron has gone to England to spend Christmas with her daughter, Mrs. Alan Silverwood Cope, and her son, H. O Stone, who is at Eton. She expects to be back at the time of Mr. Gron's return.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Crane have returned from Ipswich, Mass., and New York. They have opened their town house for the season.

Thursday morning in the home of Mrs. F. T. A. McJunkin there was a French talk by Mme. Mercedes Devries Schmidt. She spoke upon the organization of the French Red Cross and work in the hospitals at the front.

Mrs. Charles W. Brega, 1230 Astor street, will have as her guests during the holidays Mr. and Mrs. Alanson [illegible] of Boston, who will arrive Christmas eve.

The first of Miss Kinsolving's morning musicals on Tuesday in the gold room of the Congress hotel brought a large audience to hear Lucien Muratore of the Chicago Grand Opera company in his program of songs. In the audience were Mrs. George M. Pullman, Mrs. John J. Mitchell, Mrs. E. A. Cudahy and her daughter, Mrs. Austin Niblack. Mme. Lina Cavalieri was one of a group in a box with Mrs. Adolph Lichstern.

Miss Elizabeth Grey, who is attending school, near Boston, will spend the holidays with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Julian Mason, 1335 North State street.

Miss Camille Henry, 3636 Grand boulevard, has returned from a visit in Louisville, where she was the guest of Mrs. Emery Swearingen.

Miss Harriet Walton, 5737 Woodlawn avenue, gave a luncheon Tuesday for her guest, Miss Rosamond Gilder of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Logan, [illegible] Lake Shore drive, have returned from New York, where they spent Thanksgiving with their sons, Spencer and Waldo Logan. Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Munroe, who were with the family party, stopped in Washington for a visit before coming home.

Mrs. Joseph Winterbotham has as her guest her sister, Miss Eleanor Hall, of Morristown, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Shaw and Miss Evelyn Shaw of 1130 Lake Shore drive have as their guest Miss Helen Shaw of Boston.

Wednesday's debutante was Miss Helen Whitman Leavitt. At the tea given in her honor by her mother, Mrs. Wellington Leavitt, the young girls assisting included Miss Margaret Moore, Miss Mary Kelly, Miss Marjorie Teall, Miss Jane Conkey, Miss Isabel Macfarlane, Miss Marcia Jones, and Miss Winifred Sewall.

Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius James [illegible] of 339 West Sixty-fourth street announce the birth of a son on Nov. 15. The child has been named Edward William for his two grandfathers.

A rare and unusually lovely affair of Tuesday was the golden wedding celebration of Mr and Mrs. David Francis Bremner, beginning with a solemn high mass and benediction at St. Ambrose church. Breakfast was served at the family residence, 5001 Greenwood avenue. The bridal cake was cut with a sword used by Capt. Bremner during the civil war, and the fact was recalled with interest that the Nineteenth Illinois regiment, Company E, Lieut. Bremner, commander, was the first company to tender services to the government at the outbreak of the war. Mr. and Mrs. Bremner were assisted in receiving by their sons and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Maher, Mr. and Mrs. M. V. Kannally, Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Bremner Jr., Mr. and Mrs. James R. Bremner, Mr. and Mrs. John B. Bremner, V. A. Bremner, and the nineteen grandchildren. A feature was the taking of motion pictures of the family during the day. Mr. Bremner has been closely identified with the history of Chicago since 1848, when he came here from Ottawa, Canada, at 9 years of age, living at that time on the site of the present Morrison hotel.

News of the Chicago Women's Clubs

By Inez Travers.

THE Lake View Musical society's concert and the D. A. R. breakfast are among the important events in the club work this week. The Lake View Musical society's concert, which will be for the benefit of the extension and scholarship fund, will be held in Orchestra hall tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock.

The object of the society is to develop the musical talent of its members and to stimulate interest in musical affairs in Chicago. Concerts are arranged for charitable, municipal, and educational organizations, both men and women being given engagements on these programs and being paid for their services by the club.

Last year four scholarships were given in voice, piano, and violin. Any student of any teacher in Cook county was eligible provided they had studied for a full year. The judges were chosen from among the musicians of Chicago.

This year the society plans to invite a world famous artist to serve as judge in each department.

Money was loaned last year also to pay both the musical and living expenses of needy students. Letters have been sent to all the women's clubs in the city urging them to engage musicians from the society's lists of young people, the society standing sponsor for their excellence. The concert tomorrow evening is for the furtherance of this same work and will be given by Miss Christine Miller, contralto; Mlle. Thamara Swirakaia, M. Andreas Pavley, and M. Serge Oukrainsky, Russian dancers; Mrs. Bruno Steindel; the woman's chorus of the society, and thirty-five members of the Chicago Symphony orchestra under the direction of Charles Elander.

Officers of the Lake View Musical society are: Mrs. William McIlwain Thompson, president; Mrs. Charles F. Hagenow, first vice president; Miss Pauline Stein, second vice president; Mrs. Gilbert Wynekoop, recording secretary; Mrs. O. W. Brecher, corresponding secretary; Mrs. W. G. Cook, treasurer; Mrs. C. B. Bartlett, auditor; Miss Henriette Weber, chairman program committee; Mrs. D. O. Hill, chairman social committee; directors, Mrs. John P. Annen, Miss Emil W. Ritter, Mrs. E. B. Whitfield, Mrs. James W. Buell, Mrs. Albert J. Ochsner, and Mrs. Cora Willis Ware.

It is the Gen. Henry Dearborn chapter of the D. A. R., of which Mrs. Lewis K. Torbet is regent, which will give the breakfast in the gold room of the Congress hotel on Wednesday at noon. It will be a "white breakfast," all of the decorations and most of the menu being in white. The gallery will be filled with tables for men guests and a group of girls dressed in white will stand at each end of the balcony and sing a Christmas carol while they strew white carnations upon the guests below. All those who attend the breakfast are requested to wear white dresses. The guests of honor will be Mr. and Mrs. William Hale Thompson.

There will be an address by the mayor and an address and invocation by the Rev. William T. McElveen. There will be music by the chapter chorus and orchestra and a solo by Mrs. Arthur Biefeld. Mrs. Frank J. Graham will play a violin solo.

Mrs. John B. Hall will be in charge of tables, Mrs. Richard F. Clark of decorations, Mrs. Augustus D. Curtis of program, and Mrs. Granville M. Gross of music, and Mrs. Fred Arthur Poor will be chairman of the social committee.

DOWNTOWN CLUBS.

THEY are cherished years after they are made. They should, therefore, be permanent prints, artistically interpreted, and of recent date. It isn't a sign of vanity for a man to visit the photographic studio often—it's a sure sign that he has awakened to a realizing sense of his obligations to family, society and friends. It's a "capital" way of "making good" at home occasionally.

Many and Varied Gifts Pour In for Mrs. Galt.

By Mme. Z.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—[Special correspondence.]—Is the president going to take his bride as a Christmas gift or as a birthday present? People had pretty well made up their minds to the latter when it occurred to them that the one fitted as well as the other the White House announcement that the wedding would be at a date "near the close of December." Being an incorrigibly sentimental public there will be considerable disappointment if it should turn out to be neither. And yet——?

Well, having watched the president for several years, and noticed the joy he takes in doing one thing when—and apparently simply because—the public had made up its mind he would do the other, doesn't it sometimes seem as if, years ago when he was "Tommy" Wilson, he was the sort of small boy who took reprehensible delight in wiggling saucy fingers at his intellectual little nose, and scoffing "Did you EVER get left?"

With the exact date still a secret, it might seem as if the question of wedding gifts might remain in abeyance for a while, but the "shop early for Christmas" slogan is so insistent these days that people are getting the habit of taking time by the forelock in all matters of gift giving.

Congress, of course, not being in session, has not been able to take any formal action in the matter. But just about as soon as it gets its hat and coat hung up and its seats allotted, it will be appointing committees to buy the president's bride some slight token of its esteem on this auspicious occasion. There will probably be an effort, as usual, to combine, which will, as usual, fail and the house will send its gift, and the senate will send its gift, and such individuals as desire to will send their individual gifts.

As a matter of interest, it is the first time that congress has had to consider whether it would or would not give as a body to a president's bride. There is no precedent in the matter, as the wife of one senator pointed out, "for the only two presidents who were married in office were President Tyler, who ran away and married, and President Cleveland, who was married in June when congress was not in session."

On Gift Giving Bent.

The fact that congress did subscribe for gifts to Miss Alice Roosevelt and to each of President Wilson's daughters and to Genevieve Clark is not regarded as necessarily having any bearing on the present situation. Miss Clark had always been identified with the interests of the house and the other brides were married during their fathers' administration and were entitled to national consideration. Mrs. Galt, on the other hand, is regarded, in some respects, as an outsider, and since the wedding is to be a family affair, with everything that could possibly give it an official character carefully eliminated, there are some who feel that it should be treated privately, not officially, and that neither branch of congress should send a gift as a body. Which is all very well as a theory, but it is generally admitted that when congress gets together and finds that "it is a condition, not a theory, that confronts it," it will meekly appoint its committee and go through the usual motions.

Certainly the country at large is doing that. It seems to be troubled by no misgivings as to the propriety of raining gifts on the president's bride. All the ordinary rules seem to be set aside when there is a White House wedding in prospect. Most people know that it is not good form to send wedding presents when you are not asked to the wedding. But a trifle like a bit of pasteboard is not to stand in the way of people who are bent on bestowing upon the president's bride all sorts of little odds and ends which may come in handy—anything from a ton of coal to a lovely crocheted antimacassar, or from a barrel of soused fish, or a lovely bunch of wax or hair flowers under a glass dome to some home made hair dye or cold cream concocted after the recipe of some sainted grandam who had the loveliest complexion.

Ever since the engagement was announced Mrs. Galt has been getting all sorts of things from all sorts of people. A few perhaps came from notoriety seekers, but by far the greater number sent in absolute good faith—indeed, many anonymously. And whether she wants them or not, so far as possible Mrs. Galt has to acknowledge them all and to dispose of them. Her house up there on Twentieth street is not large.

The vice president and Mrs. Marshall have taken time by the forelock and have already sent a particularly fine Navajo blanket, such a one as the Navajo chief wore on especially impressive occasions.

Which reminds one of the splendid collection of furs which it announced that the Blackfeet Indians of the Glacier National park reservation of northeastern Montana are sending—not merely to the president's fiancée but to the descendant of Pocahontas, the Indian chief's daughter. The furs are to include selected skins of the forty-eight animals native to the western part of the United States. The best Indian hunters have been engaged in securing the skins ever since the engagement was announced, and they are to be presented by Chief Three Bears, 96 years old, about a week before the wedding.

Gift from "Queen Lil."

One of the interesting wedding gifts that is known to be on the way comes from Queen Lilioukalani, the surviving ruler of Hawaii's days of royalty. It is a chiffon scarf of peculiar texture and design, said to be a rare example of ancient Hawaiian weaving. Though it comes from "Queen Lil," it is sent in the name of "the Daughters of Hawaii."

And, gentle reader, a word or two in your ear. If you are contemplating sending Mrs. Galt a wedding present don't send her a dog. That is one of the many things she really doesn't need. Her mother, Mrs. Bolling, is authority for the statement that one was sent her and she politely returned it. Perhaps there is no place in the White House for a rival for Nicky Bon, Mrs. McAdoo's collie. Or perhaps Mrs. Galt just plain doesn't like dogs. Anyhow, that's what happened.

And if you are contemplating anything of the sort, better send it to Mrs. Galt at her home address rather than at the White House. If gifts are sent to "the president, the White House," they become the property of the nation. Legally the president may accept no gifts personally. So that gifts intended personally as wedding gifts had better be addressed to her.

St. Paul's Church to Celebrate Its 72d Anniversary

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

ONE of the architecturally splendid churches of Chicago is St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church located at Fullerton parkway, Orchard and Kemper streets, which will celebrate today its seventy-second anniversary. The Rev. R. A. John is pastor and the Rev. Jacob Pister is associate pastor.

The present church edifice, which is the fourth one erected by the St. Paul's congregation for its own worship, cost $200,000. The woodwork in the auditorium is of solid mahogany. The building contains 115 memorials of various kinds, including windows, tablets, paintings, statuary, and the Carrara marble baptismal font.

The Rev. R. A. John will complete next February the thirtieth year of his pastorate of St. Paul's church. It was under his direction the present red Bedford stone house of worship was built and in ten years freed from debt.

The Rev. Jacob Pister was selected as associate pastor by Pastor John five years ago. Last Sunday Pastor Pister celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of his ordination to the ministry. He was presented at the celebration with a costly surplice.

Under the combined ministry of the two pastors the progress of the church has been rapid until now it numbers 2,000 communicants.

The Rev. R. A. John is pastor and the Rev. Jacob Pister associate pastor of St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church, which celebrates today the seventy-second anniversary of its founding. It is the mother church of the Evangelical synod of North America. The church is located at Fullerton parkway and Orchard and Kemper streets.

St. Peter's church, at Oakley avenue and Cortez street, was the first church which was formed by members of St. Paul's. Recently St. Peter's celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of its organization.

The original church was built of blocks and was located at Ohio and North La Salle streets. After nearly ten years of use a brick church was erected in the early '50s to take the place of the one built of blocks.

Became German Social Center.

This church as well as its pastor, Dr. Hartmann, became famous among the German Lutherans. Thousands of immigrants, going through the city on their way west, were sheltered in its walls and were given sympathy and advice. It became, in fact, a German social center. It is said to have been the first brick church built in Chicago, the churches preceding it in age being of frame. The church was destroyed in the great fire of 1871. A new building was erected on the same location by Dr. Hartmann as pastor.

Dr. Hartmann served the church as pastor for thirty-five years, and retired only one year before his death. He was regarded as a scholar and great preacher, and held a high rank as a public spirited citizen.

In 1885 the Rev. R. A. John was called as pastor. He was of American birth and was educated in Washington university, St. Louis, and in the Lutheran Theological seminary of the same city. In 1896 the old building was sold to the Ram's Horn Publication company, and the present church was built where it now stands. The Rev. Jacob Pister was called because the work of the church became too difficult for one pastor. He was the son of Dr. Jacob Pister, for fifteen years the president of the synod.

Plans Home for Aged.

St. Paul's church built the Uhlich orphan asylum at Burling and Center streets fifty years ago and has supported the work ever since.

The church is now gathering funds with which to erect a home for the aged and to serve as a social center. It will be known as St. Paul's house and will adjoin the church. It is expected to be built in about a year hence and will cost about $70,000.

The organizations of the church include the Sunday school of 1,200 members, the Christian Women's society of 610 members, the St. Paul's church league of 300 members, the Junior league of 250 members, and the Men's club of 250 members.

Mrs. R. A. John was president for twenty-five years of the Christian Women's society. She recently resigned, and Mrs. Jacob Pister was elected president. Joseph A. Schwickerath leads the choir of sixty voices. C. A. Weiss is organist, a position he has held for thirty years.

Pastor John was formerly a pastor at Richmond, Va., and Sedalia, Mo., and Pastor Pister at Ripley, Kenton, and Columbus, O.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes—Most Women Can Have

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician.

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets; you will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter that one's system collects.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women as well as men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets now and then just to keep in the pink of condition.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel—10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

So Many Buds Out This Year Makes a Longer Season.

by Mme. Y.

NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—The debutantes are in possession of the city, and however immature and inconsequential you may regard them you can scarce avoid their influence. The blasé will be sorry to hear that the season for the buds is going to be longer than ever this year. This is for two reasons, the formal season is longer than usual and there are twice as many buds.

There is really nothing planned outside of a few charity things, except parties for the young folks. These go well into January. Indeed, some mothers are even now planning dances for their pretty progeny in Easter week.

Of course, it is almost impossible to keep dates from clashing. But fortunately young women are brought out while very young and in possession of their fullest strength. They cheerfully roll up their sleeves and every day perform a task more wearying than clerking in a department store. They voluntarily go to as many as three teas and two dances in the same afternoon, and spend the early part of the evening at the opera.

I said a week or so ago that the opera did not appear to be in favor with the debutantes, or perhaps not with mammas for their debutante daughters. This attitude, however, seems to be altering. As the season advances they are dropping in at the opera more and more. A hostess considers herself strategic who gets one as a nucleus for her box party, and she is offering such inducements in the way of fair, coy, willing young men that they counterbalance the disadvantage in debutante tastes of air heavy with classic music.

Debutantes at Brilliant Fete.

When there are so many debutantes as this year, they are almost sure to divide themselves into groups, and it is only occasionally that these mingle. On Tuesday night all debutantes came together—all of those, that is, who can actually read their title clear to a place in the most exclusive set. The occasion was the Junior assembly.

At this brilliant fête the young aspirants for social honors it maintained an entertainment which has been repeated for many years. This is the first time, however, that it ever went under that name. It used to be called the Junior cotillon. The name and organization were changed, owing to the change that has come over New York and New York society. Both of them have grown so large in the twenty years since Mrs Arthur Dodge organized the plan that the word assembly seemed more appropriate and inclusive. But the purpose remains the same, and is, as described by a society paper which takes the smart set seriously, as "an assembly of generous proportions which acts as a centralizing influence among the different sets."

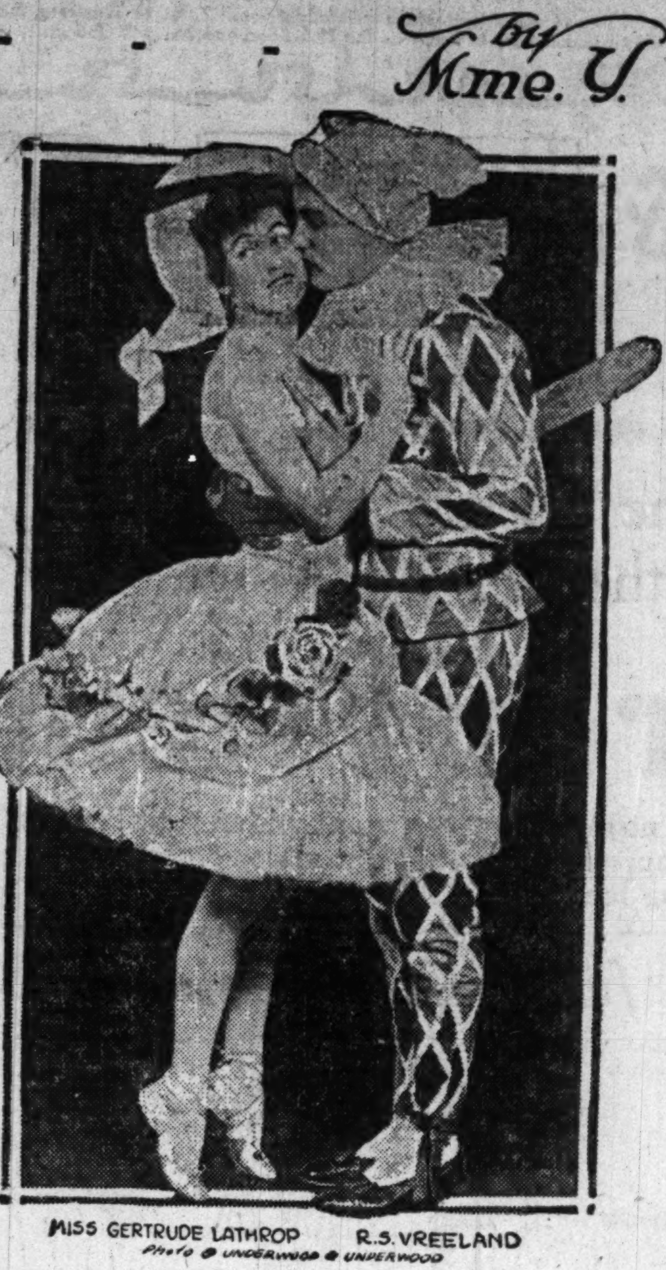
Coming Out Less Expensive.

Young men said that the prettiest debutante of the various sets assembled at this year's affair was Miss Irene Langhorne Gibson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson, and a scion of the house of Langhorne of Virginia, famed over two continents for the beauty of its daughters. The young woman was the guest of honor at a dinner given by her father and mother, 127 East Seventy-third street. She is tall and graceful, and her head sets like a slender flower on its stem. Youthful hearts are already a-flutter in masculine breasts over the advent of this unsophisticated young charmer in the most sophisticated of American society.

It is incorrect to imagine that parents all put themselves through bankruptcy to bring out their daughters. To launch a debutante may be as destructive, but nowhere nearly as expensive, as to launch a battleship. Frocks, popular articles to the contrary, are not expensive for the young women, and the girls wear the same dress in the evenings dozens of times without attracting the slightest comment.

The entertainments are not elaborate or costly. They are nearly all given at home and with simple refreshments. Foreigners and Americans from other cities are surprised at the simplicity of the refreshment for afternoon affairs. Almost everybody nowadays goes in more heavily for food at the tea hour than New Yorkers. They celebrate the function, but with light refreshment. Sometimes they have music at these afternoon affairs, and often they do not.



Miss Gertrude Lathrop as Columbine and R. S. Vreeland as Harlequin were among the most fetchingly costumed society folk last Wednesday night at the Fête de Vanite, held at the Ritz Carlton in New York for the relief of individual cases of the New York poor.

Extravagance Bad Taste.

The expensive function, of course, is the large ball in a public ballroom. So many of these places have sprung up lately, however, that the rental, with accessories, has been greatly reduced. Occasionally a woman spends $10,000 in bringing out her daughter, but more often she spends $2,000, and pays off all her social obligations at the same time.

Extravagance in presenting debutantes is now regarded as being in exceedingly bad taste. For the coming out party one usually gives an afternoon tea, followed by a dinner or a supper for the receiving party and some young men. A few more guests come in later for dancing. The whole thing does not cost $300.

Dingy Residence Polished Up.

Mrs Oliver H P Belmont is doing a good deal of house cleaning, municipal and other, these days. A group of old residents were startled the other day to see a beautiful white palace in Madison avenue, where for years a dingy, gloomy residence of the '80s had been. It was as if a new and glistening domicile had arisen over night to be the nucleus of a new and clean city. One almost suspected magic to have played a part. A nearer approach disclosed the nature of the magic. An empty barrel of marble cleaner lay in the gutter. Mrs. Belmont had caused her residence to be cleaned. I wish she would do as much for all New York and then begin on Chicago. These cities would be a pleasanter place in which to live if she only would.

Arthur Curtiss James will return to New York from the West Indies next week. He went there on his yacht for an autumn cruise. He is reported to have had rough weather.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Pierpont Morgan have returned from East Island, L. I., for the winter. Mrs Morgan is on the board of the Junior assembles. She has been evincing great interest in the social affairs of young people, and works hard to give them a good time.

One of the most brilliant events of the season was the Fête de Vanité held on Wednesday evening at the Ritz Carlton hotel, the proceeds of which will be devoted to relieving individual cases of suffering among the New York poor. The fête consisted of a fake fashion show, a tableaux, dancing, and special entertainment numbers. The fake fashion show was a rich caricature of the prevailing fashions.

MRS. WILLIAM HALE THOMPSON

MRS. LOIS DUNNING

Mrs. Lois Dunning will be hostess to Mrs. William Hale Thompson on Thursday at the Congress hotel at a reception and luncheon given under the auspices of the Lois Dunning Arts club. The reception will begin at 12:30 p. m. and the luncheon at 1 o'clock.

MISS VIVIAN NYLEEN

Miss Vivian Nyleen will take the leading rôle in a performance of "Lost: A Chaperone," which will be given by the Eckhart Park Dramatic club this evening at Eckhart park.

BREAK A CHILD'S COLD BY GIVING SYRUP OF FIGS

Look, Mother! Is tongue coated, breath feverish and stomach sour?

Cleanse the little liver and bowels and they get well quickly.

When your child suffers from a cold don't wait; give the little stomach, liver and bowels a gentle, thorough cleansing at once. When cross, peevish, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally; if breath is bad, stomach sour, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the clogged-up, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

If your child coughs, snuffles and has caught cold or is feverish or has a sore throat give a good dose of "California Syrup of Figs," to evacuate the bowels, no difference what other treatment is given.

Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "fruit laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure. They also know a little given today saves a sick child tomorrow.

Ask your druggist for a 50 cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company."—Adv.

Are You Getting Richer?

BUYING POWER

WE are coming now to the "peak" of the Christmas load. Tomorrow, everybody who has any money will begin spending it.

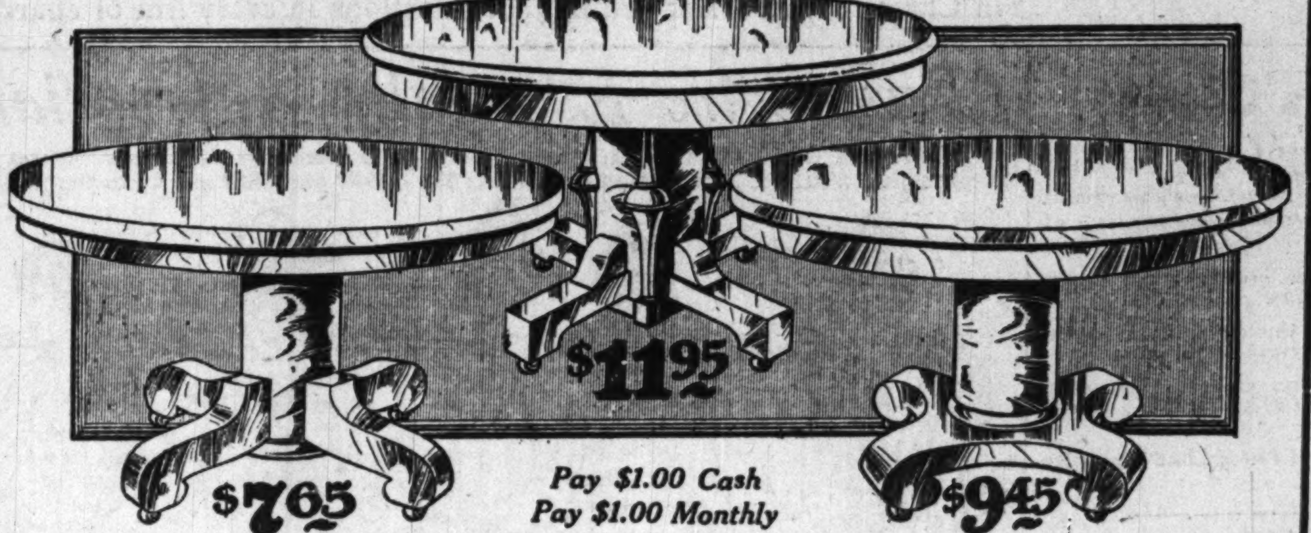
THE question is: What are you going to spend your money for? What are you going to buy? Are you going to be richer the day after Christmas or are you going to be so poor that every bill you get will give you a headache?

THIS Christmas business is a serious business. It's no joke for anybody. A lot of people have found this out and they are buying useful gifts, especially for their families.

SUCH people are getting richer every year. They are acquiring more of what the world calls wealth. Their homes are looking finer all the time and they keep adding to the comfort and the luxury of their lives.

THIS Spiegel Buying Power and the Spiegel Personal Credit can do for you what it already has done for tens of thousands of others. It can give you useful gifts, adding to the comfort and the luxury of your lives and making you richer—not poorer—on December 26. It can allow you to spend a few dollars cash, paying the balance a little at a time, and thereby leaving you richer in ready cash as well as richer in property on January first.

THIS is our Golden Anniversary and we are making bargain prices such as have never been known before in the history of furniture. Be wise. Spend your money here, where you will have something to show for it.



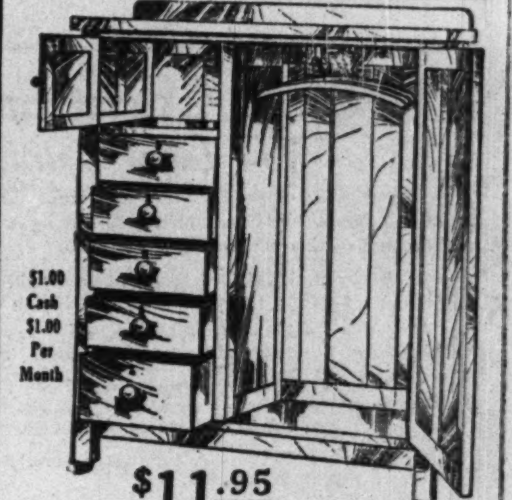
Pay $1.00 Cash
Pay $1.00 Monthly

CHRISTMAS dinner quite often means a new dining room table. And a new table certainly means a lot to the appearance of your dining room. One of these three would be just the thing.

$7.65 At this price there is no reason why you should endure mortification on account of your old table any longer. Solid oak, 6 foot extension. As useful a present as any one could want.

$11.95 Also of solid oak and in beautiful fumed finish. 6 foot extension, with a 42 inch top, William and Mary Period design. No scratches for your guests to see.

$9.45 Solid oak, fumed finish, 42 inch top and built with Colonial base that will last for 20 more Christmas days. A bargain that won't go begging, so hurry. $1.00 cash secures it, delivered now or before Christmas. And you will have it for many Christmas days to come.

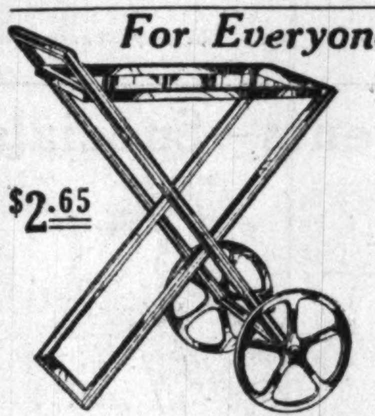


$11.95

CHRISTMAS will bring guests and need of extra wardrobe space. And here is an extra wardrobe and a chiffonier combined. Talk about handy! Why it will absolutely solve the problem of where to hang things, where to put this or that. Incidentally, the price represents practically factory cost.

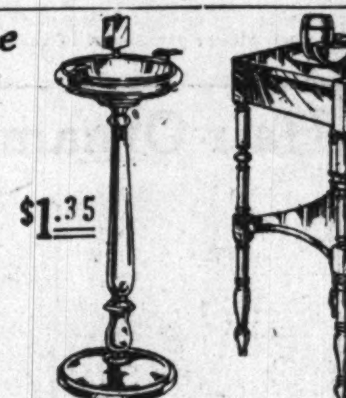
Golden oak finish. Has five large drawers and a hat box, also large wardrobe space equipped with coat, skirt, trousers hangers. Pay $1.00 tomorrow, have it sent home now or later.

For Everyone



$2.65

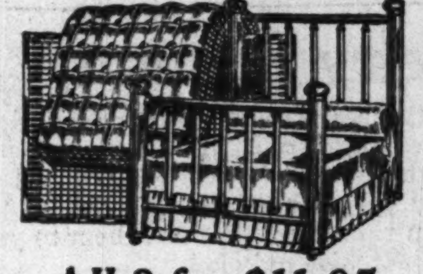
IT will take you just about one-fifth as much time to set and clear the table if you get this handy collapsible tea-cart. In fumed or mahogany finish. Removable glass tray. Better than a maid, because it's always on the job.



$1.35 $3.85

INSTEAD of spending an hour or so every day sweeping up cigar ashes, get one of these smoking stands. One comes in birch mahogany, the other in birch mahogany, fumed or golden oak. Each is fitted with all of the conveniences that make life worth while to a smoker. Get one of these and surprise them, also save your own energy. Both splendid values.

JUST THINK!



All 3 for $11.95

A BRASS bed with 2 inch posts, a layer cotton top mattress and a set of best angled steel springs. The bed alone is worth it and will be worth more in another month. If you are suffering nightly from an old, worn-out bed, get this and you will learn what it is to enjoy sleep. It will cost you $1.00 cash, $1.00 monthly, and your comfort is certainly worth that much.

Another Bargain

MODEST VIOLETS BENEATH THAT MOSSY STONE. THE ZIEGFELD "FOLLIES"

Miss Lucille Cavanaugh -Dancer-

Let Us All Stand While the Coryphees Sing "Oh, Say."

By Percy Hammond.

LET any one who doubts the patriotism of this neck of the woods attend the Ziegfeld Follies and there be convinced of its existence. At the end of the first act of this brassy spectacle, the band plays "The Star-Spangled Banner," and the national emblem is unfurled by cold eyed and Amazonian young women, whose shapely bodies are hidden behind tights of pink or white. The stage fills with rosy girls, through whose visible veins courses the lightning fire of love of country, their white throats throbbing as they voice the anthem's exultant "O, say!" Not since Perry's men stripped and fought naked aboard the "Lawrence" has there been so much undressing on behalf of this sweet land of liberty.

I hope that Col. Nicholson, who laments a sitting posture at the theater during "The Star-Spangled Banner," will get around to the Illinois and see how, upon occasion, we can show our reverence for the official hymn of the republic. At its first dubious strains eager citizens leap to their feet and gaze with rapture in the general direction of the stars and strips. More girls appear and more patriots arise. It is a profound and holy moment. Mr. Bryan is correct; there are a million men ready to flash their shining blades if properly inspired, and the skeptic Col. Nicholson's impious cynicism is thus refuted by the Ziegfeld Follies. Mr. Julian Street, the novelist, has referred to this incident as the most comic episode of musical comedy. He may be right; he may be right.

It must not be presumed from the foregoing that patriotism is the only emotion evoked by Mr. Ziegfeld in the current Follies. On the contrary, he, as usual, continues a combination of all the elemental appeals, making a base of the realization that male and Female, principally Female, created He them. He is an artist in his way, and he is happiest when he is at his best. He finds, for instance, Mr. Urban, broke and disconsolate, one night in front of the Century theater in New York, and he gives him a check for $10,000 to paint the Follies' scenery, though the Urban spectacle he has just seen was a ruinous one. The result is that a show, somewhat primitive in its ideals, is a great crusader for better, saner stage setting. That is to say, the scenery of the Follies is to the scenery of our grand opera as the wireless is to the Rural Free Delivery. Mr. Ziegfeld is, in a manner of speaking, a Broadway Cellini, working in women's shapes instead of in Florentine brass. He sees a perfect knee or a hip and he puts it into his Follies as Benvenuto would have put it into a statuette, to please the great Lo-

'Die Walkure' Today; Begins at 4:30 o'Clock

By Eric De Lamarter.

SOMEWHERE about half way between "Thank God!" and "Watch us!" the German forces at the Chicago Opera company go on their stately way through the Wagnerian cycle with the performance of "Die Walküre" this evening. It is not reprehensible to joke 'em a bit over their state of mind during the presentation of "Des Rheingold" of a week ago, for they made no secret of it either before or afterwards. One of the conducting staff held his head in his hands before the rise of the curtain, staring with blind eyes and vanishing embonpoint at a fever-chart of blue penciled directions, and others—ah, the others!

But the worst is over, and a very good performance that "worst" was, too. So tonight there will be more of the sang froid typical of the "back stage" forces—such as that of the scene shifter who, approached by Mme. Melba before a "Boheme" performance with a protest to the effect "the heat must be turned off else she could not go on and sing," merely rolled over on the papier-maché rock where slumbers were easy and frequent and replied: "O, well, I should worry!" and dozed off again.

"Die Walküre" needs little introduction to the local public. Its story of the love of one man for another's wife, their elopement, the powwows of the gods over the ethics of the matter, the betrayal of trust by one of the chief god's messengers and of her punishment by being set in a circle of fire to be the wife of the mortal man who should awaken her, has been a plot regularly visitant in our lyric theaters for years. It is the one portion of the "Ring" thoroughly familiar, thanks considerably to the greedy delight of audiences in the "Walkrie cries" and the "fire music" of the immolation scene. It will be set on the stage this afternoon, beginning at 4:30 o'clock, and, after a generous intermission for dinner, will continue until the exactions of the epic score are satisfied.

One of the best jokes on the "opera in English" season of two years ago was the plaint intoned immediately after the first of that series of performances anent the enunciation of the singers. If memory fails not, Constantin Nicolay took the honors of one of those occasions for the amount of comprehension he imparted to his hearers, while certain of the indigenous vocalists wrestled vainly with the vernacular. In contrast, the audiences of this season who sit under the ministrations of Lucien Muratore and Charles Maguenat feel themselves repaid for their agonized attempts to acquire the pure Parisian accent when their ears catch and their brains translate the text these two artists sing.

Mr. Maguenat refuses either to consider this fact extraordinary, or its explanation an abstruse problem. "It's the simplest thing in the word," said he the other night; "you sing as you speak, and as if you were speaking to some one at a distance—not loudly, but painstakingly. There isn't any special trick. The vowels you sustain, and the consonants give them their character. That's all. I haven't any recollection of a particular system of enunciation. I studied under excellent teachers, and they saw to it that the text and the tone were equally pure and clear. I doubt whether it would be possible to produce a bad tone, anyway, on a correctly enunciated word."

The whole matter of enunciation worried him much less than the fact that he was sitting out an act of "Monna Vanna" in a suit of armor not designed to be worn in a stuffy dressing room.

Those who do not understand the impulses that go to

NEWS of the THEATERS

The illustrations this week picture Miss Ina Claire, who in three years jumped from the Saratoga hotel cabaret to the Gaiety theater, London, as prima donna, and deserved to do so; Miss Lucille Cavanaugh of St. Louis, who danced with the "Whirl of the World" last summer; and Miss Anna Pennington, who from a baby actress in "The Polish Wedding," has emerged from the cradle to the grave proceedings of the current Follies. All are to be seen, if you like, at the Illinois.

* * *

James K. Hackett is soon to stage, with the author in the chief man's part, a play by Brandon Tynan called "The Melody of Youth." Mr. Hackett gave it experimentally in San Francisco some years ago. It is of Irish locale.

* * *

Mr. Hackett's revival of "Macbeth" is to have settings by Josef Urban, whose work has been shown here in the operas of "Monna Vanna," "L'Amore dei Tre Rei," and "The Dumb Girl of Portici," and is now on view in "The Follies." Mr. Urban's vocation is doing work of the kind already known in Chicago, but his avocation is "decorating" Shakspeare.

* * *

"The Great Lover," by the Hattons, Fred and Fanny, is one of the few notable successes of the season in New York.

Al Jolson, roiled because of the noninterest of Baltimore theater-goers in a week's engagement of "Dancing Around," dropped out of the cast, leaving his rôle to an understudy.

* * *

Miss Irene Franklin will, it is announced, be "Within the Loop" when that musical comedy at length reaches the American Music hall.

John Drew Adds to Versatility; Tears His Famous Creased Pants.

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Undoubtedly John Drew is as versatile, in his way, as any actor man of whom the American stage may boast. But the trouble is he is usually content to prove it by his mustache. One year he lets it grow, and the next year he shaves it off. Otherwise there is little if any appreciable difference in his performances.

This season, however, Mr. Drew has gone a step farther and torn his pants. Of course, tearing one's pants does not necessarily prove, or even suggest, one's versatility. Many people have done it, many people are doing it every day, and no one thinks of commenting upon the fact.

But when it is accomplished by a Drew, and as neatly accomplished as it is by John Drew, then it becomes an incident of the season, to overlook which would be to write one's self down both an unobservant and unappreciative reporter.

It happens in the first act of a new play called "The Chief." Mr. Drew is "the chief." Why, we spent an evening trying to discover—why, we mean, the author calls him "the chief."

There seemed no excuse for it save the fact that he had at one time been a colonial governor or something, and his office attachés gave him that title. It must have clung to him tenaciously, for he still had it years afterward, when the play opens, and it had been adopted by everybody, from the butler to the ingénue.

However, to return to the tear: When it comes time for Mr. Drew to make his entrance in "The Chief" a bit of novelty is introduced by Author Vaechell. In place of having the butler enter solemnly and announce loudly that the chief is approaching, or the ingénue clap her hands at the window and shout, "O, here comes the chief now!" there is a hubbub off stage, caused by the stage hands barking like dogs.

Then the ingénue, or it may be the secretary, goes to the window and calls excitedly, "Why, they are fighting—the dogs are fighting. And the chief is separating them!"

Which leads up to Mr. Drew's appearance with his pants torn and starts the drama, as you may see, quite unconventionally.

The tear itself does not amount to so much. It cuts straight across what Heywood Broun calls "the most famous crease in America," just above the patella, or knee cap, and is soon held together with a safety pin. Still, it is something new in the Drew drama, and provides a subject for conversation.

Otherwise there are not many talking points in "The Chief." It is one of those placid comedy dramas which are polite but plotless. Mr. Drew, being a widower, is beset by his wife's relatives, who seek to force him to marry the dead lady's sister. In the midst of their conspiracy there enters an old love affair, represented by Laura Hope Crews.

She, by Mr. Drew's order, is engaged as his secretary, and although conspirators try to prove that she lies and steals handily, Mr. Drew's love for her is so strong he not only is willing to overlook the charge but has no difficulty in proving it false.

The actor is in particularly good form this year, appearing younger and chirper than usual, and giving that exhibition of high comedy which excels the exhibit of any other native player of this type.

In the center of Tom Sharkey's "gymnasium," low ceilinged and heavy with atmosphere, stands an eighteen foot ring. In the center of the ring, on the occasion under observation, stands Douglas Fairbanks, late of the stage, but just now very much of the fil-lums.

So much of the fil-lums, in fact, that the keenest prophets of the time declare him well on his way to the top of the list. He will, they insist, outdistance all his handsome rivals of the screen within the next three years and become at once the most popular and most desired of all the lads who are "in pictures."

In the center of the ring, in Mr. Sharkey's gymnasium, then, stands Mr. Fairbanks. He is in his fighting togs and over his right arm is crooked an umbrella. For it is on the director's cards that Mr. Fairbanks shall be comic as well as heroic.

He takes the umbrella, loops it over the ropes at his corner of the ring, and turns to meet Battling Somebodyorother, "champion of the eastern states," who has been spending the evening defending his title against all comers.

The battling one strikes Mr. Fairbanks and Mr. Fairbanks strikes back. Shortly there is a mixup, during which honors, on the advice of the experts present, are easy. Then there is a lull. A few seconds rest and they are at it again, but this time the battler is showing signs of distress.

Giving the best exhibition of boxing that has been given during the evening, Mr. Fairbanks literally wades into the champion of the eastern states, taps him viciously upon the exposed jaw, and, just as John Emerson, who is directing the picture, calls out through his megaphone: "Fall, you fool!" referring to the before mentioned battler, he lands his opponent in a squirming heap upon his back.

After which Mr. Fairbanks is presented with one of those huge championship belts which are a by product of the Police Gazette, and look like a shield of armor plate, and prepares to be photographed again.

It was at this point that the unexpected began to happen in Mr. Sharkey's overrenzo. He sees a skin as white as the moons that madmen see through prison bars at morning, and he employs it to charm the tourist in Broadway. He knows the sensuous way of fabric and pigment. Bowed lips and a concave abdomen, a white foot on a red rope ladder descending, are his art as well as his cunning. These "Follies" are enveloped in an everyday integument of sidewalk joke and song, making their supplication well nigh universal.

Some day, after this generation has been distributed through Rosehill, Oakwoods, and other lugubrious garden spots, another Ziegfeld, fitted to his time, will arise to make our children glad. He will retain the Urban scenery of the Follies, I think, and many of the jokes of Mr. Errol, Mr. West and Mr. Wynn will yet be sprightly and understandable in the theater of that day. But, if one does not underestimate the development of musical taste the tunes will be different. I except, under protest, the "Frisco" song, which had its genesis, so Mr. Ziegfeld tells me, in Mr. Ziegfeld's loneliness when Miss Billie Burke, his wife, was in "pictures" on the Pacific coast. They wired each other daily at great expense, each longing for the other at many dollars per moment. "Hello, Frisco," said Mr. Ziegfeld. "Hello, New York," answered Miss Burke. And there you have it in the "Follies"—romance, melody, color, wit, sensuousness; everything, perhaps, but a sense of humor.

Mr. Arliss, returning to a community whose occasional and selective playgoers hold him in especial esteem and a measure of awe, brings a drama whose title, thanks to the "Theme and Variations for the Violin," is less a cause of general consternation than was "Disraeli." Whatever "Paganini" may prove to be, it is not within possibility that it can be so provocative as was Mr. Parker's play about the great Tory leader of mid-Victorian England. Its author, Mr. Parker, said that we of Chicago thought Disraeli was a breakfast food.

When the run of "Disraeli" ended Mr. Arliss' manager was honest enough to write a letter to the Drama league, then oratorically celebrating the fact that it had survived a year, to give that organization credit for having been an important factor in turning what was, by all the signs of a first night performance and the Tuesday "notices," a failure into a mercantile success. In so doing the manager repaid any debt owing the Drama league, for that letter remains to this day the chief rubric along its Via Dolorosa of uplift. By all the traditions of the theater the letter should not have been written: it is not the wont of managers or authors or players to give credit for success to anybody save their respective selves.

"Paganini" is, I believe, fifth in a series of plays submitted to and passed upon by Mr. Arliss in his search for a new implement. Mr. Parker, Mr. Zangwill, and Brandon Tynan were among the submitting playwrights whose wares were rejected for Mr. Knoblauch's. Actors are notoriously errant in judgment of such matters—an explanation, perhaps, of why the most successful stars are found dividing their profits with managers and of why the most eminent of living actor-managers, Sir Herbert Tree, comes hither to recoup by acting for the celluloid. I would express, detachedly, a hope that Mr. Arliss' caution in choosing a medium will be justified in tomorrow's exhibition of "Paganini."

make up a musician's creed are somewhat puzzled by Bruno Steindel's festival in commemoration of his twenty-five years of service with the Chicago Symphony orchestra. "He plays a cello a quarter of a century, and then, to show how happy he is, he goes and plays some more cello! How do you explain this?" queried an amateur psychologist the other day. Very simply. The best tribute Mr. Steindel can pay the art which has claimed his time and thought and energy is the offering of masterpieces interpreted as only able techniques, experience, and insight can re-create them. All his professional life he has thought toward ideal performances; it is his life; he would find much less joy in staring at a brass tablet signalizing the fact than in three chamber music concerts to which he could dedicate his best work, in which he could incorporate his ideals.

Therefore Mr. and Mrs. Steindel began their series of recitals in Orchestra hall foyer yesterday morning with a program comprising the Beethoven sonata for cello and piano, opus 69; the Brahms trio for violin, cello, and piano, opus 8, and the Schumann quartet for piano, violin, viola, and cello, opus 47.

When one pauses to think over what the first cellist of a quarter century's experience has seen and heard about him, of the myriad concerts he has attended, of the conductors he has faced, of the comrades come and gone, of the tremendous change in the very art during that span, something of Mr. Steindel's perspective may be glimpsed.

Before Theodore Thomas chose him to lead the cello contingent, he had watched the conducting of Brahms, Tschaikowsky, Dvorak, Grieg, Joachim, von Bulow, and others from the lath-and-plaster side, so to speak. He sat at the right of the first cello stand when Wagner's scores were in their early propaganda days in this country. He was present one morning when Theodore Thomas threw upon the desk the score of Strauss' "Till Eulenspiegel," saying: "Let's see what you gentlemen can make of it! I'm puzzled," as the story goes. He has seen Debussy and the small host of Frenchmen burst into effulgence—and some of them begin to fade. The Russians of the latter epoch, the English, a motley cohort of Americans, and an army of soloists, have crowded into his cosmos. And, for this commemoration of his long service in the temple of the muse, he calls upon the works of Brahms, Beethoven, Schumann, Cesar Franck, and Dohanyi—classic scores, in the broader sense, excepting only that by the Hungarian pianist.

Playbills of the Week

PLAYBILLS.

Blackstone—"Paganini," with Mr. George Arliss. The play, by Edward Knoblauch, deals with fictive incidents in the English career of the great Italian violinist, who is shown in love with and loved by a well born English ingenue, whom he forswears, at the end, that he may devote the remainder of his career to art. The play has had four weeks' performance in other cities. Mr. Arliss' company includes Miss Margery Maude, making her first Chicago appearance; Miss Essex Dane, Mrs. Arliss, Miss Leila Repton, Miss Florence Auer, Charles Harbury, Edgar Kent, Paul Gordon, and Dudley Digges. First time tomorrow evening.

Powers'—"The Man Who Married a Dumb Wife" and "Androcles and the Lion," as a double bill. Well worth while. Second week.

Illinois—"The Follies of 1915." Mr. Ziegfeld's best as both fun and spectacle. Second week.

Garrick—"The Lilac Domino." Imported operetta of the Franco-German school. Second week.

Princess—"Nobody Home!" with Lawrence Grossmith. Farce, with songs —what the French call "vaudeville." Second week.

Cort—"His Majesty Bunker Bean." Fourth week.

Grand Opera house—"It Pays to Advertise." Fifteenth week.

Little Theater—Puppet performances—Hans Christian Anderson's "The Little Mermaid."

VAUDEVILLE.

Majestic—Valeska Suratt in "Black Crepe and Diamonds"; Belle Blanche in songs and impersonations; Claude and Fanny Usher in "Fagan's Decision"; Andy Rice in "My First Anniversary," and many others.

Palace Music hall—"Sumurun," with Miss Gertrude Hoffmann, headlines the new bill, starting tomorrow.

POPULAR PRICED VAUDEVILLE.

McVicker's—"Continuous" variety.

Great Northern—"Continuous" variety.

Columbia—The Golden Crooks, with Billy Arlington, starting this afternoon.

PALACE.

Kramer and Morton:

"You're awfully ignorant. I don't believe you ever went to school. You're so ignorant I'll bet you think Sandy Hook is a Scotchman."

"I did go to school."

"What did you learn at your school?"

"I learned history, reading, and gozzinto."

"Gozzinto; what's gozzinto?"

"Why, two gozzinto four two times."

"Say that face of yours would cook coffee."

"Well, yours would settle it."

"Do you know what an icicle is?"

"Sure I do. An icicle is a stiff piece of water."

McWatters and Tyson:

"Good-by. I hope you'll try to see more of me hereafter."

"I will. I'll take you in bathing in the summer time and to the opera in winter."

News of the Theaters.

Miss May Irwin is to abandon "No. 33 Washington Square" and go back to the two-a-day.

"Rolling Stones," an unqualified failure last winter at the La Salle, has been pushed through a New York run of seventeen weeks to date, and has, incidentally, undergone a great deal of revision.

Henry Miller, whose production of Jules Eckert Goodman's "Just Outside the Door" ran a week earlier in the season in New York, is to produce an act in another play by that writer. Mr. Miller is now co-starring with Miss Ruth Chatterton in "Daddy Longlegs."

Miss Laurette Taylor has at length managed to get out of the part of Peg in the London run of her husband's comedy, and is now on her way to the United States. She plans to remain idle until next month and then get ready three of the four plays written for her by Mr. Manners. As has already been stated, the Blackstone theater is her objective point.

T. Roy Barnes went into the cast of "Sadie Love," acted the chief man's part two or three times, and then stepped out.

Harry Askin writes to explain that "Stop! Look! Listen!" the revue prepared for Gaby Deslys by Mr. Dillingham, is bound to be a success. "It is an excellent show," he asserts, "and its weekly salary list is so nicely adjusted that it can be met by the simple process of playing two weeks to the capacity of a large theater."

A. E. Thomas, author of "The Rainbow," is making a play from Booth Tarkington's "Penrod." Mr. Tarkington's own new play, "The Ohio Lady," awaits the services of Miss Marjorie Rambeau, who has made a distinct personal hit in the chief part of Sadie Love.

The English lord chamberlain, who is the official censor of plays, has given permission to the managers of London theaters to allow smoking—a privilege which has heretofore gone only with a music hall license. Two or three managers had expressed the belief that such a liberty would add to the attractiveness of the playhouses in wartime, but only a few of the theaters are taking advantage of the permission, their managers regarding it as of doubtful value.

Ned Wayburn, having lost the backers from Salt Lake City who provided the money with which he staged "Town Topics," is going to work for Mr. Ziegfeld as a stage manager.

M. Maurice, who dances with Miss Florence Walton, possesses a surname; it is Mauvet. He's a Belgian—not a Gaul. He, Miss Walton, Melville Ellis, and Maurice Farkoa are to be at the head of the cast of a new musical comedy.

With the Diaghileff Russian ballet—Nijinsky, Karsavina, and all her other former associates—in this country for twelve weeks, Mlle. Pavlowa discerns a field for herself and troupe in London this winter, and is planning to return there for a season. It was to avoid the rivalry set up by the coming of the big Petrograd company that she made a staggering investment in the Boston Opera company venture. That enterprise, according to rumor, is to be abandoned forthwith. She will take with her to London Andreas Pavley and Serge Ourajnsky, two of the best of the men dancers so far seen here. They, by the way, are to dance tomorrow evening in Orchestra hall for the Lake View Musical society with another ex-member of the Pavlowa company, Mlle. Thamara Swirskaia. The Diaghileff company is to come to the Auditorium in February.

Miss Eva McDonald, a good looking player who was in "The Seven Sisters" and "The Talker," is now the wife of Arthur Hopkins, who put a fortune into a futile dramatization of "Evangeline" and got it back by "discovering" "On Trial."

George M. Cohan is finishing the play in which Chauncey Olcott will make a bid for the two dollar patronage.

Three Best Sellers in Music.

The three best sellers in Columbia records during the last week were:

"Praise Ye."

"Blue Danube."

"What an Irishman Means by 'Machree.'"

The following were the three best sellers in Victor records:

"For Better or for Worse" and "There's a Long, Long Trail."

"Flying Dutchman Spinning Chorus" and "Lohengrin Bridal Chorus."

"Mighty Lak' a Rose."

The three best sellers in Edison records were:

Your Christmas Piano Should be Chosen This Week
Surprise Delivery Made at ANY HOUR You Request

A GIFT that is to last a lifetime should be chosen deliberately. And these are the very last of the shop-at-leisure days. Never before have we gone into the Christmas season with such a complete stock. For this year, in addition to all our regular designs, our factories are making an advance showing of all the new 1916 models. This means superior shopping advantages to those making their selection here.

GRAND PIANOS—$585 and Upwards

This is the home of the celebrated Mason & Hamlin, the official piano of the Chicago Grand Opera Company, and musically the most beautiful piano the world has ever known. Buying one of these instruments means settling the piano question for at least one generation. Here you will find the beautiful Conover Grand—the Official Piano of the Illinois and other State Buildings of the Panama-Pacific Exposition, and a Cable-made Midget Grand for small apartments—a $750 value for $585. Easy Terms, with three years in which to pay.

INNER-PLAYER PIANOS—$395 and Upwards

This is Chicago's Player-Piano headquarters. Here you will find over thirty different styles and finishes. Heading the list is the "Miracle Player," the Solo Carola—the greatest of Inner-Player inventions. It is so simple of operation that you can play any selection on it the first time, as you have never been able to play on any other player. No complicated levers or buttons and yet perfect control. Here you also will find the New 1916 Euphona Player—$200 lower in price than any former Inner-Player. Easy Terms. Did you know that Players of the highest grade could be bought here on our convenient three-year payment plan?

Moderate Priced UPRIGHTS—$250 and Upwards

If we made but a few thousand pianos a year the New Scale Wellington and Kingsbury Pianos would easily cost from $75 to $100 more. But you know the economies of large volume and nowhere are they better illustrated than on our floor where this group is exhibited. True toned pianos they assuredly are—handsomely finished, staunchly built and in the latest designs. Easy Terms. You may have three years in which to pay.

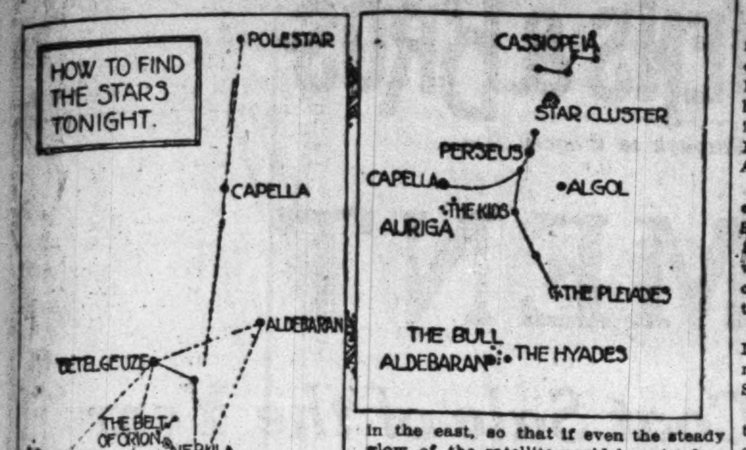
ASTRONOMY

by CLIFFORD RAYMOND



SIRIUS.

When inclemency makes outdoor observation a bit uncomfortable or a bit hazardous the heavens produce the full of their attractive wonders. A cold night and a clear sky deter the physical man and allure the imaginative man. His eyes are filled and his body chilled, and ordinary contemplation of the sky is an enjoyment purchased at the sacrifice of indoor warmth for outdoor rigors.

That nothing should be so alive with spectacles as the night sky of winter is a reward for the person willing to stand with feet in the snow and wind exposed.

When Sirius and Orion are both in the sky the earth has its dark face turned toward the finest celestial spectacle which is fixed for its observation.

The diagrams above are intended to indicate how certain of the more important stars can be found by use of lines projected from the pole star, which in turn, as nearly every one knows, can be identified by the pointers in the outer line of the bowl of the Big Dipper. The Dipper now is swinging around the pole far toward the north, with the bottom of the bowl pointing east about 10 o'clock.

In addition to the stars which are shown in the diagram there are visible at 10 o'clock, among the conspicuous suns, Vega, far down in the west, Procion, a little east and north of Sirius, and, still farther north and east, the Twins, Castor and Pollux.

The planet Jupiter is settling towards the west at this hour when Sirius is rising in the east, so that if even the steady glow of the satellite could be mistaken for the brilliance of the great sun, the fact that one is in the east and the other in the west would distinguish them for the most indifferent observer.

Every clear night that offers a view of Sirius demands a moment's time outdoors for any one who is interested to have his eyes reinforce his knowledge and reason and thus relegate the solar system to its proper place in the proportions of the universe.

Sirius is visible and convincingly a greater sun. It does not need astronomy's word. Even the brilliant Rigel in Orion might be to the indifferent a "star," but Sirius is a sun to any casual observation. It is traveling at the rate of about 1,000 miles a minute. Sometimes its velocity is greater, sometimes less. If it were not retarded by some influence its motion would be uniform, and when it was discovered that the velocity was subjected to variations a search was made for the cause of it.

The only adequate cause for a disturbance in the motion of a celestial body is the force of gravitation. It was necessary then to find a star related to Sirius which might cause this great gaseous sun to be accelerated or retarded in its movement.

Such a cause was found in an insignificant attendant of the great sun, a companion which is thought to require fifty-two years for its revolution about Sirius. The companion, even if it were withdrawn from the dazzling influence of Sirius, would be an inconsiderable point of light in the heavens.

Sirius is about 5,000 times as bright as the star which has an influence upon its velocity.

John Drew Adds to Versatality.

crowded gymnasium one night last week. The audience had been invited to watch Mr. Fairbanks filmed in this particular scene. First, because it gave the Triangle company a chance to entertain its own and the actor's friends, and, second, because a real audience was necessary to the picture, and this was the best way to get it.

The crowd was made up largely of professional people of one class or another—actors, a few actresses in a special balcony, newspaper persons, and Broadway notables. The guests knew Mr. Fairbanks was to fight for the fil-lums, but it did not know that there was to be a raid.

Around the room were scattered probably twenty policemen. At least they looked like policemen. And all during the evening they were shown as much respect as though they had been policemen.

Then came the signal for the raid, and the whole twenty rushed through a door at back, swarmed down the aisle, over the audience, and into the ring, smashed the cameras leveled at Mr. Fairbanks and raised so good a rumpus generally that the part of the crowd taken by surprise started a small but very real riot of its own trying to reach the exits.

When, as they say in such cases, quiet was restored, it was discovered the raid was not only planned, but that it would have to be all done over. The police sergeant leading the charge had been tripped by a spectator who did not understand and several hundred feet of film was spoiled. So much for realism.

A second incident not programed occurred a moment later. To repay the audience for its attendance a battle royal had been arranged. A battle royal, as you probably well know, is a mixup, in which five cullud pussons take part, each one trying to be the survivor of the melee.

They pommel each other until three are disposed of, and then the two remaining fight it out. When there is but one left he collects his $3 and goes home to soak his poor old battered head in arnica.

The battle royal arranged for Mr. Fairbanks' friends was well under way and the five darkies engaged had been reduced to three, when one of the invited guests hurled a pop bottle into the ring. Whether he hoped to strike one of the fighters or to provide a favorite among them with a more effective weapon of offense is not known.

Whatever his intent, the thrown bottle barely missed hitting one of the notables in the front row, and so enraged the master of ceremonies that he jumped into the ring, dismissed the battle royalists, and told the audience to go home.

"This is a gentleman's club," said he, "and no low-brow can come in here and start anything. The show's over!"

And so the evening ended.

To play Juliet on or near Broadway is an expensive undertaking for the best of stars. Even the delightful Julia Marlowe never of late years ventured closer than the Manhattan opera house, which is as far west as Eighth avenue and as far south as Thirty-fourth street.

But Khyva St. Albans was not dismayed by these facts. Why? Because, we suspect, Khyva's father had the money ready to pay the rent for the Forty-fourth street theater, in which she appeared.

The Lincoln highway commission has spent considerable time and money making a film which takes three hours to run. This film contains interesting views along the entire length of the highway from coast to coast. It is finished in time for a first exhibition at the San Francisco fair and will have its first presentation in Chicago at the Kenwood theater in Forty-seventh street Jan. 22. The Federation of Woman's Clubs has undertaken to plant trees the entire length of the highway and the Chicago South Side club will do its part toward the work in Illinois. A prize will be awarded the states in which fifty clubs show the film. It is through the courtesy of S. A. McHie, manager of the Kenwood theater, the club will present this film.

FEATURE FILMS OF THE WEEK

"A Poor Relation"—Three reel Biograph adaptation of the play of the same name. Thomas Jefferson is featured.

"A Yellow Streak"—Five reel Metro drama with Lionel Barrymore and Irene Howley playing the leads. This is an appealing picture for those who can be easily appealed to.

"Broadcloth and Buckskin"—Two reel Mustang drama featuring Anna Little, Jack Richardson, and E. Forrest Taylor. One can almost guess the story of the play by the title.

"Cal Marvin's Wife"—Three part Vitagraph drama featuring Mary Anderson, Anne Schaefer, and William Duncan. Nicely blended are a chorus girl's marriage to a westerner, her infidelity, and the way in which she finally returns to the path of virtue.

"Her Mother's Daughter"—Multiple reel Triangle drama in which Dorothy Gish is featured. Love almost won.

"Jane"—Five reel Morosco production with star cast.

"Not Guilty"—Five reel Equitable drama featuring Cyril Scott. This is the story of a man who goes through the world suffering all kinds of things, eternally offering his other cheek to be slapped, and heaping coals of fire wherever he goes.

"The Alster Case"—Five act Essanay drama featuring Bryant Washburn, John Cossar, Ruth Stonehouse, and Anna Lee. This dips into the vurr, vurr mysterious. It is a picturization of the novel by Rufus Gillmore.

"The Black Hole of Glenranald"—Third episode of the Kalem series adaptation of E. W. Hornung's "Stingaree."

"The Buzzard's Shadow"—Five reel Mutual picture which ought to be popular, as it features Harold Lockwood and May Allison.

"The Crimson Saber"—Two reel Thanhouser production in which Isolde Illian, Hector Dion, and George Marlo are featured. Says the press notice: "Two reels of clever mystery, suspense, swift action of the penetrating variety." The original descriptions given by the Thanhouser publicity man are a constant source of wonder and admiration.

"The Money Gulf"—Three act Kalem drama featuring Alice Hollister and Harry Millarde. If you have ever desired to see the miracle of a gambler being regenerated this is your chance

"The Unknown"—Five reel Lasky drama featuring the popular Lou-Tellegan.

"The Taint"—Three reel Lubin drama with Valentine Grant in the lead.

TABLOID BOOK REVIEW

by FANNY BUTCHER

Last week's best sellers in a leading Chicago book store:

WAR.

"The Hilltop on the Marne" (Houghton-Mifflin), by Mildred Aldich.

FICTION.

"Felix O'Day" (Scribner), by F. Hopkinson Smith.

"Michael O'Halloran" (Doubleday-Page), by Gene Stratton Porter.

"Dear Enemy" (Century), by Jean Webster.

"The Research Magnificent" (Macmillan), by H. G. Wells.

"K" (Houghton-Mifflin), by Mary Roberts Rinehart.

"The Gray Dawn" (Doubleday-Page), by Stewart Edward White.

NONFICTION.

"The Collected Poems of Rupert Brooke" (John Lane).

"Never Before Published."

"THE Story of Julia Page" [(Doubleday-Page) is the sort of book that finds its way so into the hearts of folks that it becomes a personality, gets itself talked about, is met at parties, and is one of the welcome sojourners in our land of causerie. Julia is an ordinary woman, who develops in an ordinary way, as you will. She is, though, a real person and the tale of her growth from squalid little girlhood to a sort of saintly womanhood is a tale that is pleasant to read. Frankly, that tale isn't immortal. Its charms of recounting are too obvious. But it is a fascinating story. All of which you probably know, for the book has been published these many weeks and the story was printed serially in one of the women's magazines before that. It was recalled, however, by a homey picture of Kathleen Norris at her desk, which just came to me with the alluring caption, "Never Before Published."

KATHLEEN NORRIS at her DESK.

Dog lovers hearken! You may now buy a canine anthology compiled by Lincoln N. Kinnicut, called "To Your Dog and My Dog" (Houghton Mifflin). Keep in line and don't shove.

John Reed is back with us again—safe despite his almost unsuccessful eluding of the well aimed guns of the Russian court martial squad. He wrote "Insurgent Mexico" (Appleton) you remember, a year or two ago, and last year went off to Russia as a correspondent. He and two other correspondents were arrested for trying to get to the front without passes, clumped into jail at Chelm, Bukowinia (I don't know where it is either), and after two weeks they were sent off to Petrograd. The secret police bothered them so that they did some bribing and escaped only to be sent back and threatened with court martial. John Reed—as usual—wanted to stay around and "let 'em try it," but his companions thought getting out of the country was the most interesting thing they could do. They couldn't make the American ambassador see the situation their way, but the British minister could and got them permission to leave Russia. And "that night" as they say in the movies, they left. John Reed is sure to write of his experiences—and that will be one of the few war books that most of us won't want to miss.

Mark Twain is one of the most popular authors with German soldiers who are addicted to reading in their luxurious trench quarters. You, too, no doubt, never think of Mark Twain and Germany with the same wrinkle of your brain that you don't recall that outlandish sentence of his covering a page and a half which he says is a perfectly constructed German sentence and which has been briefly imitated in the w. k. "The on the other side of the street richly dressed, walking lady."

The Nobel prizemen in literature this year are Romain Rolland, [French], Hendrik Pontroppidan and Frederik Troels-Lund [Danish], and Verner von Heidenstam, [Swedish]. Romain Rolland is already well known to us for his "Jean Christophe" trilogy, "Musicians of Today," and his "Life of Michael Angelo." Hendrik Pontroppidan, whose fame is well established in Scandinavia, in England, and on the continent, is the author of many novels including "Lucky Per" "The Promised Land," "Storeholt," "The Old Adam," and "Young Love." Frederik Troels-Lund, the historian, is the author of "Daily Life in the North During the Close of the Sixteenth Century," "Socrates' Teaching and Personality," "Wanderings," and many other historical books. He became Danish royal historigrapher in 1888. Verner von Heidenstam, like his fellow Nobelman, has made a specialty of history with especial interest in Carl XII. He has also written poetry, of which "Bing-Bang Baeng" is characteristic, and novels of which "Pepita's Wedding," the "Hans Aleinus" trilogy, "Holy Bergitte's Pilgrimage," and "Karolinarna" are representative.

A new book of tales to be told to the toddlers when they settle down for a "tell us a story mother," time, one on either arm of your fireside chair and the tiniest snuggled into your lap, is Mary Dickerson Donahey's "Tales to be Told to Children." Mrs. Donahey is Mrs. Teenie Weenie Donahey of ours.

For poetry lovers William Stanley Braithwaite's list of "ten new books of poetry worth reading" is worth heeding: "Bronte Poems," edited by A. C. Benson; "Dreams and Dust," by Don C. Marquis; "The House That Was," by Benjamin R. C. Low; "The Lord of Misrule," by Alfred Noyes; "The Pilgrim Kings," by Thomas Walsh; "Poems," by Dana Burnet; "Rivers to the Sea," by Sara Teasdale; "The Song of Hugh Glass," by John G. Neihardt; "Stillwater Pastorals," by Paul Shivell, and "Vision of War," by Lincoln Colcord.

"The Trade Union Woman" (Appleton) is the title of the handbook on union organization for women which Alice Henry has written. Miss Henry has many friends here. She was editor of Life and Labor, the organ of the Woman's Trade Union league, you remember.

Perhaps you read "Stultitia" (Stokes) when it appeared last season and wondered who the high person might be who wrote so convincingly and with such insight into the unpreparedness of this country of ours. Now comes a new edition of the book under the title "Save America: An Appeal to Patriotism," and the name of the author is on the cover. Huntington Wilson he is, formerly assistant secretary of state.

Arthur Rackham's gift book this year will be an edition of Dickens' "Christmas Carol," uniform with his lovely "Æsop's Fables."

——"SILVERTOWN Tires"

WE can't produce "Silvertown" Tires as fast as the Market now calls for them.

This because the intricate Machinery required in the spinning of the two Cable-Cords—their percolation under enormous pressure with Hyper-Rubber,—the cross laying of the two layers of Cable-Cord over each other so as to secure precisely the same tension on each strand—all the special Machinery for this had not only to be made, but invented.

Owing to demands upon the facilities of every big Machine Shop in America, at present, for War-Materials, we are unable yet to have these newly invented Silvertown Machines built in large enough quantities to make more than one "Silvertown" Tire for every four the Country now clamors for.

THIS Advt. is therefore chiefly intended as an Explanation to Consumers and Dealers, who want "Silvertowns" and can't yet obtain them.

It is also intended to help the situation by putting out a new Goodrich Fabric Tire with the same BLACK Rubber Tread as has distinguished Silvertown Tires.

The appearance is almost identical with that of the "ARISTOCRATIC" Silvertowns, and the material used in the Treads, is practically the same.

No increase in the price of Goodrich Tires will be made because of that smart Black Tread distinctiveness, and "Silvertown" expression.

This, in accord with the fixed policy of the B. F. Goodrich Co. (which pioneered practically every big improvement in Rubber, or Tire Manufacture, during the past decade)—viz: to give Maximum Value to Consumers first of all, and then trust to resulting Volume for satisfactory dividends.

• •

IT is now more than 20 years since the B. F. Goodrich Co. brought out the first "Cord Tire" (for Bicycles) viz:—the Palmer Cord Tire.

And it is many years since it first brought out the original Silvertown Cord Tire,—(the only genuine "Cord" Tire for Automobiles).

That it practically withdrew the first genuine "Cord" Auto Tire from the Market, until the "Silvertown" PRINCIPLE had been brought up to the Goodrich STANDARD of Mileage, Safety, and Value to Consumers, is a matter which concerns your CONFIDENCE in all Goodrich Products and Promises.

Please note that Goodrich Tires henceforth—the Fabric construction as well as the Cord "Silvertowns"—will have handsome BLACK Treads.

You will know them by their stylish

What Will Congress Do?

The United States Congress convenes tomorrow in the most critically important congressional session since the Reconstruction Period following the Civil War. Not for nearly fifty years have questions of such grave moment awaited proper settlement at the hands of Congress—questions of the gravest importance to this entire nation. WHAT WILL CONGRESS DO?

Will It Provide for This Country's Defense?

Will it prepare to defend this country's honor, this country's wealth, this country's homes, in accordance with the best ideas of Army and Navy experts, or will it leave such vitally important things to professional politicians? Will scientific Preparedness plans be fought by the pacifist theorists? Will they be fought by the skulking spies and secret lobbies of foreign powers? Will they be fought by certain Members of Congress themselves who openly sympathize with one or another of the European nations now at war? Will they be fought by those Members of Congress who first, last and all the time prefer "pork" to patriotism?

Will German Sympathizers

attempt to induce Congress to place an embargo on the export of arms and ammunition? If so, what methods will they use? Through what Congressmen will they make their demands? How far will they go? Will they have the united support of the pacifist theorists?

How About Mexico?

Will the Republicans attack the administration's Mexican policy? Will they demand an investigation of the administration's acts in connection with Mexico, and if they do, how will the Democratic leaders meet this demand? Will the veil of censorship that has covered the atrocities committed upon Americans be rent asunder?

And the Tariff?

Will the Republicans seek to make capital for a high tariff out of existing conditions? Will they follow the dictates of the "Old Guard" or will they follow the leadership of the most progressive thinkers in the party?

And the Merchant Marine?

Will Congress subsidize a handful of multi-millionaires and bankers in order to establish an American Merchant Marine? Will it establish a government-owned, taxpayer supported, politician-manned fleet to provide patronage for the party in power? What will be the attitude of the Seaman's Union towards legislation of this kind? Which of our able Congressmen will be for this legislation and which ones will be against it?

Will Wise Inheritance and Income Tax Laws

—laws which are so sorely needed by this country in order that the burdens of taxation shall be placed where they justly belong—will such laws be worked for by the progressives of all parties, and will farsighted legislation on this subject be fought by those whose personal interests are linked with swollen fortunes?

Will New Presidential Candidates

heretofore unmentioned seek to promote their personal ambitions under the guise of principle and popular legislation? Will powerful interests of various kinds work secretly to accomplish their own ends at the expense of the public and to the great detriment of this nation as a whole?

How About President Wilson?

What will he do in the coming months? Will he confound his opponents and establish a reputation that will guarantee his renomination and election? Or will he lose his hold on his party and the public? Will some new constellation appear which will outshine him and the other stars in the political firmament?

The Chicago Tribune

will throw the white light of publicity on all these questions and on all the doings of Congress and Congressmen as it has never been thrown before. It will throw the light of publicity on both the public and secret influences brought to bear on national legislation through individual Members of Congress. In addition to all its other sources of news—in addition to the Associated Press, the Laflin News Bureau, and the special news service of the New York World which The Tribune shares—The Tribune will have continuously on the ground at Washington, throughout this session of Congress, FOUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENTS who will tell Tribune readers exactly what is going on.

These Special Tribune Correspondents will not merely tell you what Members of Congress say, but the motives behind the things they say. They will not merely tell you what Members of Congress do, but they will show you the motives, and the secret influences, if such there be, that MAKE THEM DO IT. They will not merely tell you the obvious, the apparent, from the front of the stage, but will take you behind the scenes and show you the wires, the stage tricks and devices, and the stage managers who control them.

This Special Washington Correspondence STARTS TOMORROW. If you want to know the truth, and the WHOLE TRUTH, about this session of Congress, READ THE TRIBUNE EVERY DAY.

Marie Cahill: "I was out shopping yesterday and got myself a new pair of shoes—the kind that lace on the instep and you put them on over your head. I am afraid my husband will balk on lacing them, though. He refuses to hook up my gown any more—even a book worm will turn.

"I was at a musical yesterday; had a regular actress there playing a harp. They said she was one of the most successful harpies on the stage.

"After the musical they had a dance. I learned a new dance called the Panama Canal—one slide after another.

"I was out shopping with Ethel. I wanted to buy my husband a red shaving mug for Christmas. She said: 'Don't do that, for he has a red mug already.'

"So I went over into the cigar department. A man there had just bought two 10 cent cigars and was kicking about them. The clerk said: 'What do you care? You are only stuck with two of them—I have 10,000.'

"He was such a nice clerk that I bought six boxes. I liked them because they did not smell of tobacco like most cigars do.

"My husband believes in preparedness—he keeps loaded all the time. The war generally starts one minute after he gets in the house."

MAJESTIC.

Donovan and Lee:

"Did you ever hear of Jesse James?"

"Why, no. Who was she?"

"He, not she."

"Well, who was Jesse James?"

"He was night watchman for Billy Sunday. By the way, what is your occupation?"

"I am a rider."

"A rider?"

"Yes, I ride bareback."

"What time?"

Donovan—Clancy was a great Irishman. One day he was arrested for picking pockets, and the next day the president came to visit the penitentiary. Stopping before the first prisoner he saw, the president asked him what he was in for.

"Nothing at all," answered the prisoner. The president moved on to the next prisoner and asked him the same question.

"I didn't do a thing," was the answer. Getting the same answer from three others, he finally came to Clancy.

"And what, my good man, were you sent here for?" he asked.

"I was sent here because I picked pockets," said Clancy.

"You get out of here!" said the president to Clancy. "I won't have a crook in with these honest men."

Clancy's friend Higgins went fishing one day, fell out of the boat, and was drowned. When Clancy found the body the pockets of Higgins' clothes were full of fish. There was some quandary as to the best way to notify Mrs. Higgins gently. Clancy undertook it and went to the Higgins home. Mrs. Clancy opened the door.

"Is the Widow Higgins in?" said Clancy.

"She is not," said Mrs. Higgins. "There is no widow Higgins. I am Mrs. Higgins."

"You are not; you're the Widow Higgins," said Clancy. "We just found your husband, Pat, drowned, with his pockets full of fish."

"Faith," cried Mrs. Higgins, "is that so? Well, give me the fish and set Pat out again."

McVICKER'S.

Cataland and Felber:

"At home my brother never yawns, no matter how sleepy he is."

"Why not?"

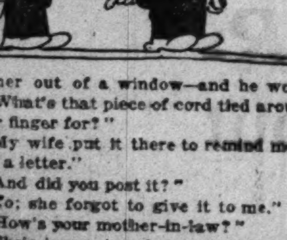
"He's afraid to open his mouth in his wife's presence."

"I have found the key to success."

"But have you located the key hole?"

"They tell me your brother is in the hospital?"

"Yes; he bet Maloney he could lean farther out of a window—and he won."



"What's that piece of cord tied around your finger for?"

"My wife put it there to remind me to post a letter."

"And did you post it?"

"No; she forgot to give it to me."

"How's your mother-in-law?"

"She's improving, but very slowly."

"Well, I'm glad to hear that."

"Why is it that firemen seem to lack enthusiasm?"

"Because they're always throwing cold water on everything."

"How Did You Get It?"

In his book "Newspaper Advertising" G. H. E. Hawkins urges advertisers to demand that newspaper publishers answer the above question in connection with their circulation statements.

"The character of circulation is largely determined by the methods employed to secure it," he says. "Any circulation, to give full value, must be made up of subscribers who buy the paper to read it. Premium, scheme and circulations inflated by artificial means are not nearly as valuable to the advertiser as a home circulation secured without any catch-penny or bonus attachments.

"The value of a newspaper to an advertiser is the number of people who take it every day just because they want it and believe in it, and not because of any forced circulation method or premium scheme.

"Look into the method by which the publisher secures his circulation as well as the number of actual copies he sells. Of what earthly use to an advertiser is a voting contest circulation where one reader buys from one to a thousand copies of a paper just to win a grand piano or a free trip to Europe?"

The circulation of The Sunday Tribune has leaped upward almost 200,000 in the past three years without any voting contests, premiums, or circulation schemes. Men and women buy The Tribune for only one reason—to read it. The class of people who buy it are those who appreciate McCutcheon, King, B. L. T., Lardner, Dr. Evans, Jane Eddington, Bennett, Hammond, De Lamarter, Carolyn Wilson, and other star Tribune writers.

Surely this is the most desirable class of readers for any advertiser to appeal to.

DECEMBER

The West Window

DECEMBER is the month of the west window, the window of post meridian life and hut happiness, which is not for youth. Youth would increase its exertions and hope that pleasure would be relative to effort. Age would decrease its efforts, limit its experiences, and trust happiness to come from a sentimental enlargement of small and ordinary occurrences.

The west window opens upon the declining day and in December it opens upon the decline of the shortest days. It gets aslant the light of the southward sun near the winter solstice and it sees the glow of such brief and early evening coloring as the gray December skies allow as decorative prelude to the sharp descending night.

A rested and satisfied contemplation of the closing hours of the closing year belongs to post meridian life. The gray and brown woods gradually are closed by shadows and the west window is dark. A lighted fire of logs prolongs the rested thought of frost-bound earth, slumbrous energy and shortened days. Life is for youth; the consideration of it for age. Youth goes out by the east window; age sits in the fading light of the west window, but it has its gusto. The savors of the flesh pots dispel even the contented thoughts of the shortened day and the southern sun. A lighted reading lamp makes all the experiences of the world new in the pages on which they are recorded.

The west window is the real casement opening upon life. It has no promise but of an end, and in December that end is brown and frost locked before the vision.

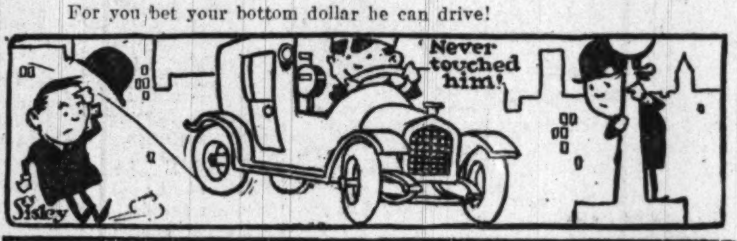
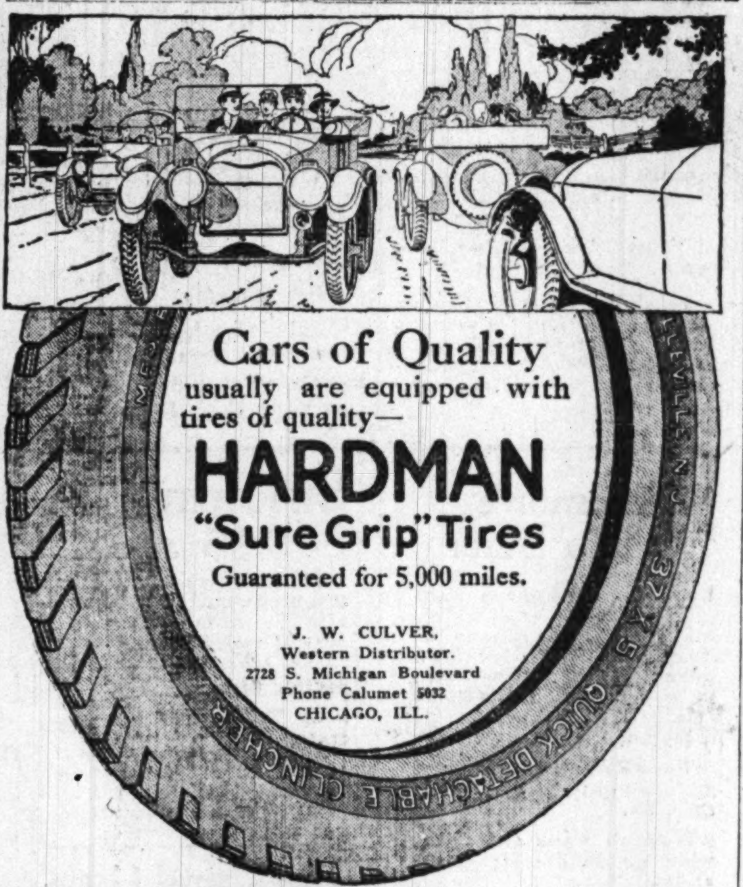
THE TAXI CHAUFFEUR.

Once he was a robber and a thief,
  Once he was a bandit and a yegg,
Once the taxi chauffeur was a gunman and a loafer
  And as bad as quite the baddest kind of egg.
Once he used to wallow deep in crime,
  He was hand in hand with every sort of dive,
He was tough and ugly, too, but there's one thing he could do—
  You could bet your little bundle he could drive!

Nowadays he's proper as can be,
  Forty and respectable—and wed,
And the old time type has vanished—to some restaurants it's banished,
  Where it's acting as a checkroom boy instead.
Yet the decent taxi chauffeur of today,
  Though respectable as anything alive,
Shares one quality that's needed with the fellow he succeeded—
  You can bet your little bundle he can drive!

He can turkey trot and tango with his car,
  He can dart and dodge and scurry in and out,
And it's marvelously graphic how he eases through the traffic,
  How he doubles and he scampers round about.
He's a weasel, he's a rabbit, he's a mouse,
  And his taxi seems a creature that's alive.
Want to "get there" in a hurry?—he will make it, don't you worry,
  For you bet your bottom dollar he can drive!





Cars of Quality usually are equipped with tires of quality—

FORTY Horse Power 7 passenger FOUR $885

This new Studebaker 4-cylinder car is the most powerful car on the market at its price. Its motor INCREASED from 3½ x 5 to 3⅞-inch bore x 5-inch stroke, develops and delivers FULL 40 Horse Power. And in flexibility as well as POWER, this FOUR equals most Sixes on the market.

But we can't begin to tell you what POWER actually is. We simply invite you to come in and look over this FOUR and then let us take you for a demonstration on the hills. With the wheel in your hands and the throb of this mighty motor and that smooth unbroken flood of POWER, you'll appreciate why we say that Studebaker, in this new FOUR at $885, has set a new standard of value for 4-cylinder cars!

It gives more for every dollar of the price—not only in power but in size and quality and low upkeep. Let us give you that demonstration NOW.

Yes, Corsets Are Giveable

Third Floor—Center

between women folks and are, indeed, a most acceptable Yuletide gift, especially so if they're the new, handsome brocaded Nemo Corset we illustrate, a corset that's unequaled in style, comfort and attractiveness. An advance model, showing the new waist line, with a natural curve at its sides. The front is straight and the flat back effect below the waist line is retained. The skirt is long, as it should be to properly retain the hips, and is sufficiently boned to hold the figure and reshape it if necessary. This is an ideal corset for the woman who has lost her figure during the corsetless era, sizes to 36, at.............................. $5

Remember Nemo Corsets if properly fitted will redistribute flesh and reduce fat. No fat grows on a muscle, and if it forms on the abdomen or hips it is an indication that you are not properly corseted. Women who have been fitted to Nemo Corsets here will tell you that fat simply disappears, because Nemo Corsets are so designed that slight pressure is applied where fat has accumulated, but no pressure on sensitive nerves or vital organs, thus guarding your health as well as improving and reducing your figure.

Nemo Self-Reducing Corsets simply gather up a large abdomen, support, reshape and reduce it, with greater comfort to the wearer than ever before, and bring wonderful figure improvement. Think how acceptable such a Corset would be to Mother, Sister or Wife!

Nemo Self-Reducing Corsets, Sizes to 36, $3.00 to $10.00.
Nemo Self-Reducing Corsets, Sizes 38 to 44, $4.00 to $7.50.

If you are not sure about the size, the recipient can have them exchanged and fitted here without extra charge.

Main Floor—State Street

A rare bargain event, we said, and one that could hardly have come at a more opportune time, for just now the majority of folks are seeking jewelry and diamonds for holiday presents, and so Chicago agreed, for they crowded the Jewelry Section all day yesterday in their eagerness—here is a stock chosen with discriminating care at about half actual value, because Wm. Stolz, after twenty-five years, decided to retire from business, provided he could get spot cash for his stock—included are watches, diamonds, fine solid gold jewelry and novelties of every sort, so many it is impossible to itemize the marvelous values—it's best to come early, as in some cases we'll only have small lots or only one of a kind.

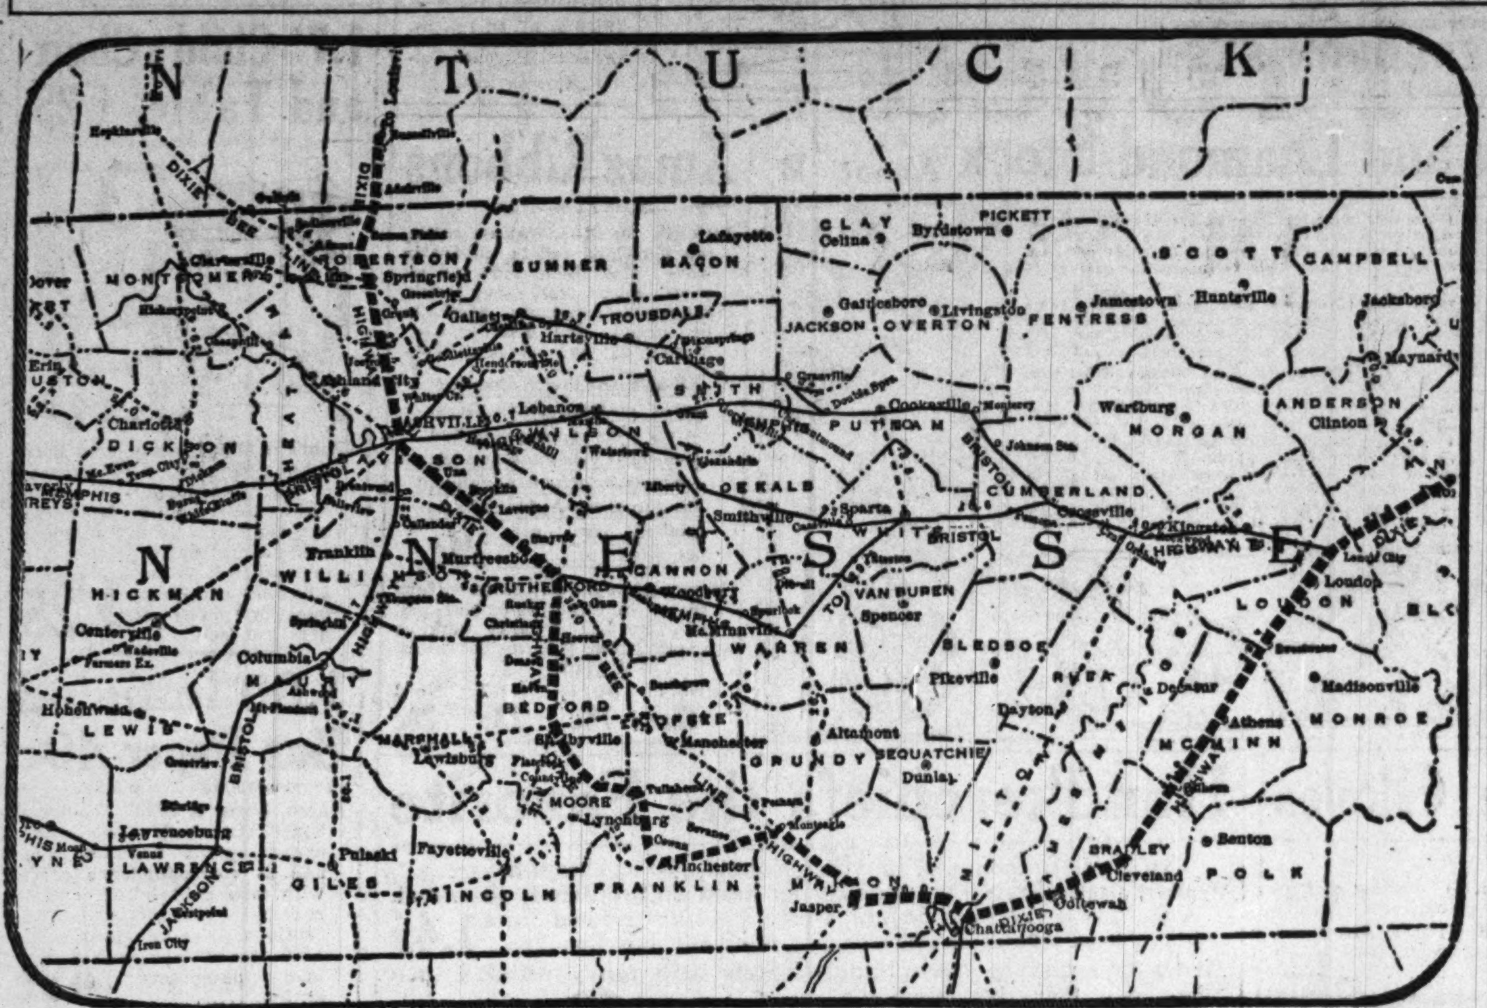
Auto Tour Through Tennessee Has Thrills of Historic Interest in Every Mile.



This is the fourth of a series of articles on touring the Dixie highway appearing in "The Sunday Tribune."

By Reed L. Parker.

TENNESSEE is second only to Virginia as a touring ground for those interested in history. It has been estimated that 454 battles and skirmishes of the civil war were fought within the confines of the state. From the number of monuments I saw between Nashville and Chattanooga I have no doubt this is a conservative estimate.

Every foot of the road between Nashville and Chattanooga once resounded with the measured tread of the armies of the Cumberland and the divisions of the confederacy. Great battles and countless skirmishes were fought all along the route. Great national cemeteries at Nashville, Murfreesboro, and Chattanooga bear mute testimony to the heroism of those of both north and south who fought and died, some "that a nation might live," others that their rights, as they saw them, might not be infringed upon.

As Nashville and Chattanooga were great strategical points from the standpoint of the warrior, so, too, are they strategical points for the armies of motordom. I would that I might have spent days instead of hours at Nashville, weeks instead of a day at Chattanooga. There is much to be seen in and between these two cities—many testimonials to the generation which saw and passed through the country's greatest travail. Blood was shed and ruin was wreaked on this hapless section of Tennessee, yet, phœnixlike, it has risen from its ashes to become a country of rare beauty and great prosperity.

Accommodations at Nashville.

Nashville is one of the finest and largest cities of the south. There are at least a dozen splendid hotels, which, like those at Louisville, in Kentucky, have rates to fit almost any pocketbook. A hundred or more garages are operated in the immediate vicinity of the hotels, and rates are almost identical with those in Chicago. The Sunrise Automobile club and the Nashville chamber of commerce are willing at all times to aid motorists whenever possible. The Sunrise club has a splendid map of the touring sections of the state, and is prepared to supply route information.

The city and its environs are possessed of an infinite number of attractions interesting to sightseers. One should not miss an opportunity to make a trip to the Hermitage, the former home of President Andrew Jackson, twelve miles from the state capitol building. Other interesting places within the city are the tomb of President James K. Polk, the Confederate and National cemeteries, and the scene of the battle between the soldiers of Gen. Hood and the unionists of Gen. Thomas for possession of the city.

Roads in Fine Condition.

The ride from Nashville to Murfreesboro is through a rich farming section. The roads generally are in splendid condition, and are being improved. At Murfreesboro one may spend his time profitably and enjoyably by going over the old battle ground of Stone river, where was fought one of the bloodiest battles of the war. The confederates under Gen. Braxton Bragg were opposed to the union forces under Gen. Rosencranz. The confederates were forced to retreat to Tullahoma, the next town of importance on the highway to the south. There have been erected at Stone river two beautiful monuments—one to Gen. Hazen, the other to the "men who fell."

From Murfreesboro to Tullahoma is a gradual ascent to the heights of the Cumberlands. The land is rolling and hilly; the roads only fair.

Tullahoma is a small but progressive town, which may well boast, among other things, of a fine hotel. The citizens are so enthusiastice over the future of the Dixie highway they personally subscribed enough money to buy road machinery for its improvement on both sides of them. From Tullahoma to Winchester, where the turn into the mountains proper is made, the road has been improved and is being bettered almost daily. From Winchester the road winds through Cowan and up over the ridges through Hawkins Cove, where the commissioners were held up twelve hours, to Monteagle.

Students Work Roads.

At Sewanee is located the University of the South. Students at this institution are being impregnated with the idea of the value of good roads to any community. Numbers of them worked night and day on the highway through Hawkins' cove to make it passable for the commissioners. That they failed was due to no fault of theirs. The heavy rains following a week of stupendous effort wrecked the foundations of the road patriotically built, and instead of a hard dirt surface a sea of mud greeted the inspectors. Sewanee is only a few miles from Monteagle, one of the most attractive health resorts south of the Mason and Dixon line.

From Cowan to Monteagle there are a few farms, but one unconsciously thinks of Thoreau's statement, that "the mass of men live lives of quiet desperation," when he sees the mountaineers striving to make dollars grow on the steep hillsides. He also thinks that it is from these men that taxes for the improvement of the worst stretch on the highway have come. There have been sacrifices here, and great ones.

Better Next Spring

From Monteagle to the Sequatchee river the drop is gradual and the road poor. Few attempts have been made to improve it and the surface resembles the steps leading down from the Logan monument in Grant park. Spring must come before the contemplated improvement is started. At Jasper there is a ferry across the Sequatchee river. From the south shore to Chattanooga the road is narrow but well maintained.

Chattanooga is to Tennessee what Gettysburg is to Pennsylvania. Besides being a bustling manufacturing city there are objects to lure the tourist for miles in and around the city. Here there is located, on the site of the battle of Chickamauga, a government post and national park that is as well maintained as that at Gettysburg. Across the valley one may find Lookout mountain and Missionary ridge, both of which are accessible by splendid macadam roads. It is the wonder city of Tennessee for the motorist. The hotels are excellent and the garages well conducted.

For Motorist and Motorcyclist

By High

Besides maintaining an information bureau of information as to the best automobile routes throughout the country "The Tribune" is prepared to answer all technical questions about automobiles. Address all inquiries to High Speed, care of "The Tribune," Chicago.

"I have a Haynes four cylinder T-head motor. I have been told that tapping the plug over the exhaust valve and installing spark plugs in series would greatly increase efficiency of the motor.

"W. M. HARKS, Chicago."

By installing a series of spark plugs and tapping the plug over the exhaust valve you would decrease the compression of the motor and create a greater pulling power. It would also be an economizer for the consumption of oil and gasoline and increase the efficiency of the motor approximately from 15 to 20 per cent.

"I have a 1913 Falcar which has a Brown Lipe transmission, and the clutch is also part of the transmission. I would like to know what the name of the clutch is and if it should run in oil, for it is in an oil-tight case. It is not a disc clutch, but has four fingers and two screws at the top of each finger, which I suppose are used for developing a greaten tension on the clutch.

"G. L. EPPLER, Chicago."

This is a cone clutch and needs an application of neatsfoot oil whenever the clutch facing gets a hard surface.

"I would esteem it a favor if you can give any information on the following conditions of my car: The engine sometime stops after descending a hill, especially after stopping the car, and will not start again for several minutes. It also does not have the same life when the weather is warm that it has when cold, and will not pick up quickly when running less than twenty miles per hour.

"M. WINSTONE, Chicago."

All of this trouble is, no doubt, due to the carbureter, for it is not giving the motor an ample amount of gasoline when running at a slow speed. When you are descending a grade you retard your gasoline lever, and when you increase your supply of gasoline the motor is choked, for it does not have enough fuel. This can be remedied by adjusting your carbureter accordingly, and I would also install a new set of spark plugs.

"I am contemplating an automobile trip from Chicago to New York and expect to leave about Dec. 15. Please advise the best automobile route and the approximate distance. R. L. K., Chicago."

I would suggest that you take the north route from Chicago through Hammond, Hobart, Valparaiso, Westville, Laporte, South Bend, Mishawaka, Goshen, Ligonier, Brimfield, Kendallville, Waterloo, Butler, Edgerton (O.), Bryan, Stryker, Napoleon, Bowling Green, Fremont, Clyde, Bellevue, Norwalk, Oberlin, Elyria, Cleveland, Euclid, Willoughby, Painesville, Ashtabula, Conneaut, Springfield (Pa.), Girard, Erie, Harbour Creek, Westfield (N. Y.), Fredonia, Silver Creek, Irving, Farnham, Buffalo, Batavia, Rochester, Clyde, Syracuse, Utica, Fonda, Amsterdam, Schenectady, and Albany, and then follow the Hudson river on the east side all the way to New York. This route is over state aid roads practically all the way through New York and from Chicago to Buffalo the best of roads that can be traversed in the middle west will be encountered. The approximate distance is 1,229 miles.

"Would you kindly recommend the best automobile route from Chicago to Jacksonville, Fla.?

"W. A. BARTLETT, Chicago."

From Chicago go south through Hammond, Dyer, Crown Point, Shelby, Thayer, Fair Oaks, Rensselaer, Remington, Lafayette, Mulberry, Frankfort, Lebanon, Indianapolis, Franklin, Amity, Taylorsville, Columbus, Seymour, Scottsburg, New Albany, Louisville, West Point, Elizabethtown, Mumfordsville, Bowling Green, Gallatin, Hendersonville, Nashville, Murfreesboro, Manchester, Tracy City, Jasper, Chattanooga, Rossville [Ga.], Ringgold, Dalton, Calhoun, Cartersville, Acworth, Atlanta, Jonesboro, Hampton, Griffin, Forsyth, Macon, Walden, Dunbar, Unadilla, Vienna, Cordele, Albany, Putney, Camilla, Thomasville, Monticello [Fla.], Aucilla, Greenville, Madison, Live Oak, Lake City, Watertown, Sanderson, Maccelenny, and Jacksonville. This route is over the Dixie air line trail from Chicago to Indianapolis. There is about two miles of dirt road in the entire distance, the balance being good gravel and macadam pavement. From Louisville this route practically follows the Dixie highway all the way, for it is the most favorable route to Florida at the present time. There will be numerous detours to make, for work has been started in improving the roads on the highway south of Louisville.

Gossip of the Auto Trade

By L. M. Steffens.

HARRY NEWMAN, who has recently been appointed Chalmers distributer for the state of Wisconsin, held an elaborate dealers' convention at Milwaukee last Friday. The meeting of all the automobile dealers in the state was to celebrate the opening of Mr. Newman's new sales and service building, which is reputed to be one of the best equipped automobile establishments in the Badger state. The affair was unique in that it departed from the usual custom followed in dealers' conventions. Not only the Chalmers dealers were invited but every distributer, no matter what product he sold, was in attendance. This created a representative gathering which closely approached the 700 mark.

During the Chalmers sales convention held recently in Detroit, Hugh Chalmers celebrated the eighth anniversary of his entry into the automobile business. The Chalmers Motor company is one of the world's largest automobile factories, employing 5,000 men, and with a real estate and machinery value of $8,000,000. Detroit was given a striking idea of the extent to which this business has grown in the last eight years by the gathering of Chalmers dealers in convention and the placing of orders for over $22,000,000 worth of cars in less than forty minutes' time.

Announcement has just been made by J. Walter Drake, president of the Hupp Motor Car company, of the completion of negotiations for the purchase by his company of the American Gear and Manufacturing company of Jackson, Mich. The latter company has for years been one of the most prominent automobile parts builders in the industry. This company manufactured the first axles which were used on the Hupmobile "20," and have since been the main axle source of the Hupp Motor Car company. The acquisition of this plant at Jackson gives the Hupmobile company an exclusive axle plant and a thoroughly modern and efficient machine shop in addition to the parent factory in Detroit.

The demand of automobile buyers for the "Springfield" type of car is emphasized by the announcement that a new concern called the Springfield Body company has been incorporated with a capitalization of $1,000,000 to take over the business of the Springfield Metal Body company of Springfield, Mass. The new corporation will be headed by W. L. Fry, New York City, as president; vice president and director of sales, E. W. McGookin, Detroit Mich.; vice president and chief engineer, Hinsdale Smith, Springfield, Mass.; treasurer, A. P. Smith, Springfield, Mass.

To the amazement of the veteran road drivers who took part in the recent Maxwell efficiency run from Buffalo to their homes in New England and the other North Atlantic states, the first place winner turned out to be the only woman pilot in the tour. Miss Eva Cunningham, daughter of F. J. Cunningham, Maxwell dealer at Haverhill, Mass., drove from Buffalo to Haverhill, 567 miles, on exactly seventeen gallons of gasoline—an average of 33.37 miles to the gallon. Her car was a new Maxwell roadster. It also went the route without the addition of a drop of cylinder oil to the original supply. This is the fact which won her the big slice of the Flanders prize, for her mileage on fuel was excelled by two of the other cars in the big tour—those driven by her father and by George D. Robinson of Springfield, Mass. Mr. Cunningham's new Maxwell touring car averaged 36.85 miles per gallon and Mr. Robinson's roadster 34.9 miles.

In addition to manufacturing a five passenger popular priced eight cylinder motor car it is commonly reported in motoring circles here that the King Motor Car company has another surprise for the automobile world shortly. Officials at the King plant are reticent, but everything indicates that the King has something sensational that they will announce before the New York automobile show.

Jan. 3 to 8, inclusive, are the dates selected for the automobile salon, held annually in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Astor, New York. The participation of a number of American makes will emphasize the changing of this long established show from one of foreign cars exclusively to an exhibition of representative high grade cars of both Europe and America. Among the Americans and foreign manufacturers who will exhibit their new models at the automobile salon the first week in January are: White, Simplex, Crane, F. P. R., Singer, Owen Magnetic, Brewster, Daniels Eight, and Baker Magnetic. The foreign makes will include the Rolls Royce, Lancia, Delauney-Bellville, and Isotta Franchini. The body makers already entered are Holbrook, Healey and Brewster, who will show many new styles and designs, mounted on high grade chassis of both American and foreign manufacture.

Ground has been broken at the Maxwell Motor company's Oakland avenue plant for one of the largest building operations undertaken for some time by the Detroit automobile industry. The new Maxwell addition is to be 860 feet long by 130 feet wide, and will cover practically four acres. On Jan. 22, when the contractor turns the building over complete, according to schedule, the Maxwell company's facilities will rise from a capacity of 250 to 500 cars daily.

The permanent officers recently elected by the midwest section of the S. A. E. are as follows: Chairman, F. E. Place, vice president of the Buda company; vice chairman, J. W. De Coy, factory manager of the Jeffery company; treasurer, Charles W. Steiger, president of the Stromberg Motor Service company; secretary, Darwin S. Hatch, editor of Motor Age; assistant to the secretary, H. L. Connell of the Central Continuation school, Milwaukee. The governing board consists of the above officers, with the addition of Daniel Rosch, assistant professor of experimental engineering at Armour Institute of Technology. The midwest section is the newest of the localized bodies of automobile engineers to be organized under the parent S. A. E., which has its headquarters at New York. Headquarters have been established at the Chicago Automobile club.

The Notebook of an Ex-Society Editor

BY EDITH BROWN KIRKWOOD

Time Was When It Did Not Pay to Lead Cotillon.

THE other evening, bent upon the great American game of headline reading, my eye fell upon bold faced type which proclaimed: "He danced himself out of the senate!"

This seemed tragic enough for perusal and I read the brief article which followed. Yes, it was brief and it was tragic. It had to do with the terpsichorean ambitions of a young political god of one of our states, who, being a gay and youthful, found dancing a delight. He knew politics as a popular man, but he forgot all about that other American institution known as "the constituents."

You all recall there are American "constituents" who consider it unAmerican to shave or to crease the trousers or to use a fork, and many a man has lost his hopes of future greatness because he parted his hair in the middle or wore it pompadour, according to his supply and the style of the hour! These are minor details. This young politician's constituents—some of them—believed it was unsenatorial to dance, and they were of sufficient numbers and strength to favor his rival on a nondancing platform, although the personal popularity of the dancing man far outdistanced that of his opponent. So much for some of the big and important issues of politics.

Getting Dance News from Men.

The dancing season is on and reading—as companion news to this above mentioned tragedy—of the giving of the important Chicago parties that come as regularly as the birds with every year, brings to mind past experiences in getting dancing news of some of the Chicago men. Do you know, gentle reader, that notwithstanding all this talk about society and high life, the average American millionaire is about as desirous of annexing a reputation as a society man as he is of acquiring a case of measles. The only difference between the two in annoyance, to his way of thinking, is that you may recover from the measles but never from the society man reputation.

It is a part of our American sentiment of democracy and our inborn abhorrence of a leisure class and our inability to maintain a leisure class until the recent years of peace and war have grown a nice little garden full of them. Being a society man means being able to take enough "time off" to indulge in frivolities and until the present generation of college bred men the American dictionary has known no such word as frivol.

Afraid of the "Joshing."

I doubt whether this present generation of dance leaders would mind bearing the sting of the gibe of "cotillon leader," but many is the cotillon leader of the more recent generations of men prominent in society and business life who has pleaded with me over the telephone not to tell the public that this frailty was an inhabitant of his skeleton closet!

"Please don't print that about me again," begged one who had won fame as a leader when cotillons were the big events of a dancing season, "I've borne the stigma long enough!"

"Please don't say I am leading the cotillon tonight," pleaded a charming youth some three or four years ago. "Tomorrow, if you do, I'll find my desk all done up in colored tissue paper and the boys will guy the life out of me."

I'll put it frankly. If you were a mere society editor, standing between the public and a man's reputation, what would you do in response to such heartfelt entreaties?

Nearly Lost His Job.

What came to me most forcibly in reading "He danced himself out of the senate" was the memory of the young man who confessed to me one day that my announcement of the morning that he was to be the cotillon leader of the evening at a big private function nearly had cost him his job. I had gone to interview him about the dance and I found him not knowing whether to act "important" or be angry. Usually he was genial—I had interviewed him before—but on this occasion his first words were:

"Why did you say this morning that I meant to lead this cotillon?"

"Why should I not have said so?" I questioned. "Your hostess gave out the news. You are to lead it, are you not?"

"Yes, but I didn't want the newspapers to print it."

"Why not?"

"Because my boss doesn't like cotillon leaders in his office. That little line in your column this morning nearly cost me my job."

Society editing is a responsible position!

"Then why do you do it?" I questioned "Is it worth that?"

He looked at me for a moment and then he said impulsively:

"For the same reason you are doing reporting—I need the money."

Did this good looking, genial youth mean to confess to me that he was being paid for holding the place of honor among the guests? I hadn't the heart to ask him. All of us outside the millionaire class have a fellow feeling of understanding. I never did ask him, although many interviews followed, but since then I have wondered whether that large group of "constituents" would feel better if they knew that now and then holding a high place in society might be classed among the employments rather than just as a leisure class accomplishment? It might make a difference, you know, to senate aspiring American youth.

When a Story Is Not a Story.

Occasionally reporters must have eyes and see not and ears and hear not. Ordinarily this is one of the heinous crimes of newspaperdom, but there are times when, as buffer between the public and the individual, the reporter who means to be honest with his paper and himself must decide the difference between a story and a story.

Speaking of men and dancing, my notebook records one of the few times in my active newspaper career when I let a story slip by with eyes that were pretending to be closed. According to the rules laid down for a reporter, a news story is a news story, and as such must be referred to the high court of editors for the decision as to its public appearance. To disobey such rules not only is disloyalty to his paper, but a dangerous pastime for any reporter! But there are stories which have a feature value that serve merely to entertain the public rather than instruct it, and neither the paper nor the public suffers through their sudden and unexplained demise. These may be catalogued under the heading of "josh yarns."

This was a "josh yarn," and it had to do with an important business man, who was tall and handsome and dignified, but whose dignity never was permitted to interfere with his kindliness. It is much easier to make public fun of some one who is an acknowledged grouch than some one who is a most amiable companion. Now and then a friendly spirit is more than its own reward.

Not an Easy Assignment.

This dignified man found himself associated with a dance which gave promise of being an interesting "stunt" event, as the feature cotillions of a few seasons ago were called. A great deal had been said about it and because the city's crême de la crême was to indulge in these stunts the city editors were inspired to send their photographers or cartoonists that the public might enjoy the results. The society editors were assigned to the task of persuading the committee in charge of the dance that they felt that way, too.

It was not an easy assignment. In fact, there are memories which bring pain, and I'd as lief not recall such assignments. But a soldier knows no more of duty than a reporter. Talk about courage and preparedness. Mobilize the country's newspaper workers.

The society editors made the attempt. Two of us were endeavoring to persuade Mr. Important Business Man that having newspaper photographers and cartoonists watch him do "stunts" was the thing above all else that he wanted done. But not a ray of humor pierced the suggestion to him.

"Why," he argued, "if those cartoonists were here do you know what would happen tomorrow morning? I'd see myself prancing this way across the pages of the papers," and he pranced down the art hall of the hotel, a living picture of his own idea of the cartoonists' idea of him.

Fine Subject for Cartoonist.

"Mr. Important Business Man Seeing Himself as 'Ithers' See Him" would have made a good enough "josh" story, but it was as he walked back to us, with dignity, up the length of the art hall, that my eye fell upon the funny story. Mr. Important Business Man was wearing a baby blue evening vest.

I had not noticed this before because I was too intent upon my assignment, but there it was sure enough. A baby blue waistcoat! He had just begun to incline toward rotundity of figure. Do you know what the cartoonists would have done to him? They'd have tied a sash around his waist and put ribbons in his hair.

If his feelings would have been hurt over the picture of himself "prancing" across the page, what would have been their state of laceration had the funny men learned of that baby blue vest? He had been much in the public eye and his feelings were a bit tender, anyway. Through it all he had been the amiable friend whenever his assistance was needed. Why make him the butt of even good natured fun? I turned my attention to the dance and the women's gowns.

COMPENSATING VAPOR PLUG

Makes starting easy
Fits any car
Instantaneous results
Never wears out

This announcement is the biggest money-saver ever written to automobile owners

Has your car these weaknesses?

Does your car in actual usage develop any of these symptoms?

1. Did you ever try to start your motor and have it spit and die?
2. Are you afraid of one or more hills that you have tried to make on high?
3. Do you make a quick get-away?
4. Are you continually apologizing to your friends because your engine is a noise-maker?
5. In a friendly brush on the road have you been just "nosed out"?

All these defects will be a thing of the past once you equip your car with the Compensating Vapor Plug under our money-back-if-not-satisfied guarantee.

Advantages we prove

The Compensating Plug is simple in construction and positive in performance—nothing to be oiled, adjusted or regulated at any time.

In addition to 30% more speed, 30% more power, 40% more mileage, and practically no carbon deposit—drive as long and fast as you please and you can't make the water in your radiator boil, if your motor is in good condition.

Your motor will run smoother and quieter than ever before—you can idle her down to two miles per hour—and you know, for instance, that no Ford car with regular equipment can be idled down to less than six miles per hour—all Fords race when idle.

Pretty strong claims these—but we prove them or we refund every penny of your deposit.

Startling exhibition at Detroit

We selected the city of Detroit for a test—for two reasons. It's the home of most of the biggest car manufacturers, and if you know Detroit and the vicinity, you will agree that it has some pretty stiff hills that will cause "grief" to most any car.

Here's the proven record

On September 13th we bought a new Ford Touring Car from the Ford Detroit Sales Co. On the 14th, 15th, and 16th we ran it on the streets of Detroit and up the steepest hills in Wayne County.

On September 14th, we tested the car with regular Ford equipment, showing 24.2 miles to the gallon and 40 miles speed to the hour.

On September 15th, we climbed two-thirds to three-quarters up Bald Mountain road, the one impossible hill around Detroit on high—without our plug.

Then we issued a challenge

On September 16th, equipping the same car with the Compensating Vapor Plug, we repeated the test of September 14th, showing 44.2 miles per gallon and 46 miles per hour speed.

On September 17th, we repeated tests of September 15th and easily climbed Bald Mountain all the way to the top on high.

Then on September 18th, in the leading Detroit newspaper we challenged any maker of any car or carburetor to equal or surpass our performance, but no one accepted our challenge, although during the tests mentioned above our car was followed and observed unofficially by makers of carburetors and cars.

Through crowded traffic with low gear locked.

Then we performed another sensational feat on September 19th. With the same car equipped with the Compensating Vapor Plug we drove all day through the streets of Detroit, selecting the thoroughfares that were the most crowded with traffic at the busiest hours—with the low gear locked by a plate so it could not be used. Never once was it necessary to stop or start—and remember, this remarkable feat was accomplished with a Ford.

Results published daily

Each day the results were published in the "Detroit Free Press."

Almost every car manufacturer in Detroit wrote, telephoned us or sent their engineer, including the Ford Company. Hundreds of owners of all makes of cars tried to purchase the device. Managers of concerns operating batteries of cars for their salesmen flocked in. Large number of dealers applied for the sales agency.

Special note to dealers: We are ready and willing to duplicate this Detroit test in your city.

Owners that obtained the Compensating Vapor Plug were satisfied before they drove out of our service station because of the quiet running of the motor and the demonstration that it would idle down to two miles per hour.

You want this money-saver for your car

We don't have to devote any space to prove to you that you want this wonderful money-saver for your car—especially when we offer it to you at our risk.

Accept this money-back-if-not-satisfied offer here and now—you simply can't afford to pass it by.

The price is $5 to you and to everybody—and all we ask is that you send us the coupon with a $5 bill, check, P. O. or express order attached—as a deposit—until you are more than satisfied.

If after a 60-day trial you decide you can do without the Compensating Vapor Plug—simply send it back collect and we will refund your $5 deposit.

ART

By Anne Ellis.

HAVING striven to do ample justice to the picture which Sageant Kendall calls "A Sphynx," having satisfied myself that the story was not so bad, I decided to have a look at it in print and discover what scintillating adjective the copy reader had found superfluous. To my consternation the story was only to be found in the early mail edition, where none of those who really see Mr. Kendall's picture would see it.

Now, besides thinking that the story was not so bad, I have a sort of crusader feeling about the picture, and am constrained to go after it again. By crusader feeling I do not mean that any puritanism enters into one's criticism of "The Sphynx." But one feels like crusading against anything that is not art. Mr. Kendall was obviously actuated by spectacular motives. He no doubt counted upon the very comment that is here laid down, in painting the picture. It is something that was evidently done for exhibition purposes, to make the critics and the visitors, and especially the clubwomen, arise as one man and talk about him.

This would be bad enough if he had managed to contrive anything striking, either in idea or composition or execution. But unfortunately he has not. He has taken a figure that might well be a member of the chorus of the Folies Bergere, and seated her Billikin fashion against a gray background with her feet on a skeleton.

This combination of circumstances and objects he calls "A Sphynx." That just such a rosy little bit of brainless femininity had proven a sphynx to Mr. Kendall—aye, to many a man—is perhaps a natural and obvious conclusion, but why exploit so unintellectual an episode? Why comment on the obvious? Why be banal—in oils? The best thing one can say about the picture is that it would make a splendid cover for one of our florid weeklies, which of necessity serve old dishes with new pepper. The worst thing one can say about it is that it is vulgarly banal.

The Atlan club's annual ceramic exhibition at the Art institute has been an unusual success this year. There are decided innovations in the display. Much originality has been inserted into the treatment of vases, bowls, jars, cups, plates, and saucers that might have been made with less skill to look ordinary.

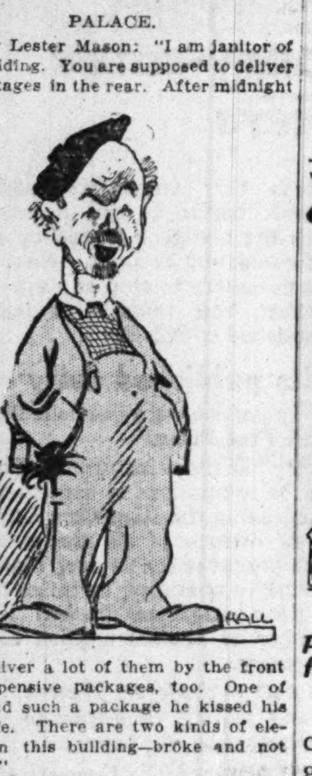
When one has spent some time looking at the various beautiful articles it is not difficult to understand why the Art institute gives the Atlan club a cabinet for exhibition purposes the year round nor why it is that Chicago is considered the foremost city in America in producing ceramic art.

Among those who have splendid work on display are Mrs. Le Roy T. Steward, Mrs. Frances A. Barothy, Mrs. A. A. Frazee, Mrs. Emma Hutchinson, and Mrs. Anna Senge. Although there is not one unattractive article in the display, the work of those above mentioned seems to stand out for particular excellence.

VAUDEVILLE WIT

PALACE.

Harry Lester Mason: "I am janitor of this building. You are supposed to deliver all packages in the rear. After midnight they deliver a lot of them by the front way—expensive packages, too. One of them had such a package he kissed his own wife. There are two kinds of elevators in this building—broke and not running."



McVICKER'S.

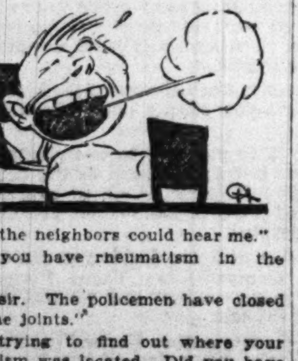
Rucker and Winifred:

"I understand you have been quite sick lately."

"Yes, I had exclamatory rheumatism."

"You mean inflammatory rheumatism. Exclamatory means to holler out."

"Well, that's it. I hollered out so loud that all the neighbors could hear me."



"Did you have rheumatism in the joints?"

"No, sir. The policemen have closed up all the joints."

"I'm trying to find out where your rheumatism was located. Did you have it in the muscles?"

"I don't know whether it was in the mussels or in the clams."

"I mean did your rheumatism travel?"

"O, my, yes. That rheumatism of mine had a regular mileage ticket with stopover privileges."

"And how did you get cured?"

"The doctor gave me a powder, but it nearly killed me."

"Perhaps you didn't take it according to directions."

"O, yes I did. The doctor told me to take every hour as much of the powder as would cover a silver dime."

"And did you carefully follow directions?"

"I did and I didn't."

"What do you mean, you did and you didn't?"

"Well, you see, I didn't have a dime, so I used two nickels instead."

"Next time you have rheumatism I'll give you something for it."

"Next time I have rheumatism you can have it for nothing."

We have Realized Our Ambition to Make This the Dress Event of the Season for Misses, $9.75

Second Floor—Misses Section

The Facts in the Case

The history of this sale dates backs to the time a maker was a bit alarmed over the lack of customers—orders weren't brisk enough to suit him—so he made overtures to us. We listened. Gave him our special order for 1,000 misses' dresses made up in his best styles—embracing all those niceties of youthful distinction so vital to the needs of present day attire. He knew that the deal meant a big loss to him, but that was one way to dispose of surplus materials, bought and paid for.

The sale starts Monday morning at 8:30 sharp. Values in the lot to $25 if bought in the regular way.

The Descriptions

Beautiful chiffon dresses, draped over net, rich charmeuse dresses, combinations of velvet and satin, chiffon over charmeuse crepe meteors, crepe de chines and lustrous satins in more than fifty distinctive models to choose from.

The dancing and evening frocks come in the delicate pastel shades of pink, light blue, maize, peach, flesh, rose and white.

The street and afternoon dresses come in black, navy, brown and Russian green.

A complete range of sizes for misses. It is desirable that you come early to insure satisfactory choice.

Women's Rich Quality Coats in a Great Pre-Holiday Sale Embracing Values to $25.00 at $13.75

Second Floor.

Notice we say "rich quality coats"—there's the biggest thing about this sale—the price is the least. Every coat is richly endowed with dainty style touches that teach the lesson of specialization in any given line—each coat the product of makers who know coats from A to Z. And this being the case, we are justified in calling them quality coats.

Did you ask the reason for this amazing saving? It's like this: On visiting the New York markets the other day we found these coats on the racks of three of our principal suppliers—not a great many of any one kind, don't you know—but a fine group here and there—totaled up, they make a showing of wonderful interest to the woman who has yet to buy a winter coat.

Women's coats of fine broadcloth, wool velour, cut plush, caracul, Ural lamb, velvet cords, stripe velour, wool diagonal, pebble cheviot, tweeds and novelty cloakings; more than twenty handsome styles, mostly all with fur trimmings and satin lined throughout. Coats in every size for women from 34 to 46 bust. Coats that would be rightly priced at $20.00 to $25.00, on sale Monday at $13.75.

Children's Winter Coats, $3.98

Third Floor

Astrakhan and zibeline coats in black and brown, with collars, cuffs and belt of plush; others have deep band of plush around the bottom; corduroy velvet and mixture coats, with fancy buttons, belt and pipings of contrasting materials.

All wool chinchilla coats, gray and navy, belted, flannel lined; black plush coats, with belt of self material or satin; baby coats of white lamb's wool, belted and finished with pearl buttons, quilted lining—altogether an excellent line of coats for the kiddies, in sizes 2 to 6 years, and worth $5.98, your choice at—

$3.98

CLUB AND ASSN. MEMBERSHIPS.

BUSINESS MEN WISHING TO KEEP themselves in good physical condition for the winter see Porf. M. J. Dwyer, room 1956, 208 So. La Salle-st., Continental & Commercial National Bank Building. Wabash 7136, the gentleman who instructed ex-President Roosevelt and family and formerly physical director of the Illinois Athletic Association, Denver Athletic Club, Denver, Atlantic Athletic Club, Atlantic, Birmingham, Athletic Club, Birmingham, and who has instructed more business men than any other man in the profession. My range of exercise consists of resisting exercise, medicine ball, handball court, rowing, chest machine, boxing and wrestling and also have arranged for a ladies department, also a complete Turkish bath equipment and all is individual, so why pay $50 for twenty-five treatments when you can get the same for $5 per month. I invite your inspection to investigate my club before seeing others.

LADIES WISHING HIGH CLASS INSTRUCtion in physical culture, gymnastics, military training, and modern dancing, join our club; only $2 per mo.; visitors invited Tuesday and Friday evening at 7:30 to 10 free. POLITICAL.

MEN WANTED — 21 TO 45 YEARS OLD, TO consider our national defense. Soon we will be asked to swallow the patent medicine program concocted by politicians and pacifists. The facts are, we need a regular army of half a million men, together with necessary reserves, artillery, transport, and other equipment. Our navy must be second to none, fully manned, and supplemented by a subsidized merchant marine. Coast defenses, railways, military roads, and arsenals must all be coordinated. Choose Goethals the Soldier, as our next President, and the problem is in expert hands. He is capable of forcing a "pork barrel" congress to disgorge. Address B 344, Tribune.

TO RENT—200 E. DELAWARE-PL.,
Corner Seneca-st.

Strictly modern apartment for people who know and appreciate unlimited comforts and lavishness of appointments. To such people these apartments will appeal in the strongest sense. The building is fully equipped with sun parlors, built-in bookcases, large fireplaces [not gas grates], automatic electric elevators, jewel vaults, vacuum cleaning system, etc. Each apartment contains 3 master bedrooms, 2 servants' bedrooms, and 3 baths; also telephone services connecting with the liveried doorman's station at the main entrance of the building. A great deal of thought and money has been expended to make these living quarters ideal. The best way to prove our statements is to inspect the building under the guidance of our special representative, who will be on the premises all day today.

Don't Read This

unless you read it all.

A SPECIAL SALE of $11 to $18 lands. A 10% discount will be made for only the two days of our excursion of December 7th. Lands consist of 4,000 acres in Mason county. One dollar out of every ten is worth saving, isn't it?

THIS LAST SPECIAL CAR EXCURSION of 1915 will be an excellent time to see the lay of the country without the obstruction of summer foliage. The weather usually holds good for inspecting land here until Christmas, but if there is any snow we will give each purchaser privilege of exchange at the same price on another trip of inspection next season. That's fair, isn't it?

THE DISCOUNT applies only on this excursion, so that buyers to take advantage of it must bring along their deposits of $50 per 40 acres. Terms after that are $8 per month on each 40 acres and privilege of paying any number of months ahead. The liberal features of the Swigart Proposition, insurance against death, railroad fare rebated on purchase, etc., will apply at this sale. Do you know anything to put your money into better than good farm lands?

IN ADDITION to the discount a saving will also be made of $2 to $4 per acre on account of the yearly advance in prices next spring. Send at once for literature which describes this district. It will be mailed free, together with a large map and an announcement of this sale. Call, if you can, and see many stereopticon views which give one a much better idea of the crops, live stock, character of the lands, good water supply, etc., than can be put in print. Isn't it worth your while to get posted without any expense?

SECURE TRANSPORTATION at once, either by sending us or depositing with our local agent $12.50 for round trip railroad fare from Chicago and lodging and meals while in Michigan, leaving our offices at 11:30 a. m. next Tuesday and returning at 7:20 a. m. Friday. Automobiles furnished free. It looks as if this excursion will be one of the biggest of the year and we expect to sell out this entire tract. Will you take advantage of this splendid chance to secure a piece of good land at a low price?

BUSINESS CHANCES.

CAPITAL IS SECURED

when a proposition is properly presented. The investing public must know exactly what you have to offer. Present your proposition in a well written prospectus. Give all the facts in a plain, readable story. It must be easily understood by an outsider. Tell the truth emphatically. Leave some things unsaid. It is difficult to write a GOOD prospectus. Not many people can do it. It is a waste of money to give out a poor one. Many undertakings fail for that reason. For several years I devoted all my time to writing prospectuses. I know how. It will pay you to have me write yours. Address D O 256, Tribune.

"MONEY MAKING—A WAY OPEN TO YOU" is the title of a booklet we believe will be of interest to you and it will be sent on request. That you may not be deceived into sending for a booklet in which you will not be interested we would tell you something of it. It contains the story of the formation of a corporation for the purpose of raising oranges and grapefruit and other citrus fruits, and gives the names of some of Florida's best known fruit men who have recognized in this company a real money making opportunity, and have taken stock in it. It tells the story not of a dream project, or something that is to be, but something started, under way and being rapidly carried to completion, and a real opportunity is presented to join with successful men in a successful enterprise. We would be pleased to send you a copy. Just a post card will bring it by return mail, without obligation on your part. Grapefruit Growers' Association, Valrico, Fla.

BUSINESS CHANCES.

A MATCHLESS OPPORTUNITY to secure a permanent enviable position in executive capacity with an A1 incorporated, fully organized, highly profitable enterprise, national in scope and character (real estate operating, contracting), is accessible to a proven, strictly first class, brainy, energetic American business man with law, engineering or professional education preferred. Must be able to invest about $10,000 cash to qualify. Income from investment of services and capital at least $5,000 a year. Securities purchased will automatically increase gradually 500 per cent within next 20 years. Holding corporation. Best connections. Particulars strictly at interview only to parties capable of standing the test of character and successful record. No other considered. Address A S 274, Tribune.

HERE IS THE BEST AND SAFEST INVESTMENT since the Bell Telephone was invented. We have so much business we are obliged to secure some additional capital to turn out the goods to meet the enormous demand. If you have some capital and desire to invest in a business that will make you 500% profit, also a high class position, if you desire it, answer this ad at once so that we may prove to you the above statement. This is no gambling or mining scheme but a sound, legitimate manufacturing business, incorporated, without risk and a successful future; no money wasted on experimenting, no long waiting for the profits. Address D W 57, Tribune.

BIG OPPORTUNITY—THERE IS YET AN important calling, or profession, rather, that is not overcrowded. You can earn big money as a Doctor of Chiropractic, the most successful drugless healing system known. You can start right in studying at home, in spare moments, and later on attend school for a while, either day or evenings, to learn the practical work in our large clinic. Drop a postal to Dr. A. L. Forster, Sec'y, Nat'l School of Chiropractic, 421-427 S. Ashland-blvd., for four free preliminary lessons. Study these lessons and thus find out all about the profession without any cost to you.

UNUSUAL OPPORTUNITY FOR A FEW people to invest $25, $50, or $100, money back in three months and 100 per cent profit in six months, continuing fair semi-annual earnings thereafter. Something new. Will make thousands of dollars in few months with the cleverest little unique, useful advertising article you ever saw. Bankers waiting to buy it. Must have the money for filling orders, at large profit; this makes your opportunity now. Office man with $1,000 cash to invest can have a fair salary and interest that will almost surely pay $5,000 profit. If you have $25 to $1,000 cash for immediate investment for big and positively sure profits, investigate.

JEWELRY, WATCHES, ETC.

EVERY DAY MORE PEOPLE REALIZE the advantage of buying UNREDEEMED diamonds. When you pay REGULARLY, say, $90 for a diamond, you must first deduct the profit on same to get at the actual value of it. Your diamond is not worth $90; it is probably worth just half that sum; the other half represents the profit of the retailer, cutter, importer, etc.
RIGHT HERE IS THE DIFFERENCE.
WE have pawned diamonds left over at such low figures that we can and do save you half on the original price. Call at our store today and make us show you; you will not be pressed to buy. The sale is made when the customer is satisfied.

BUILDING MATERIAL.

WHEN YOU ROOF BE SURE YOU USE Flex-A-Tile Asphalt Shingles, because Flex-A-Tiles will bear the brunt of snow and sleet, wind and rain, and burning sun. It's like paving your roof with stone and asphalt. Flex-A-Tiles are the shingles that make a roof stay young, because the natural mineral colors simply can't fade. Absolutely water-proof and weather-proof—fire resisting; cheaper than wood, everything considered. No repairs, no painting, no patching. In 5 handsome, natural colors; red, garnet, greenish gray, emerald and brown. See Flex-A-Tile Asphalt Shingles on display at the Permanent Building Material Exhibit in the Insurance Exchange Building, or write us direct for samples and literature and the address of a home near you where Flex-A-Tile Asphalt Shingles have been used. Look out for imitations; be sure you get genuine Flex-A-Tiles. THE HEPPES COMPANY, 1041 Kilbourne-av., Chicago, Ill.

A REBUILT CADILLAC

It's a Safe Used Car to Buy

SPECIAL VALUES NOW.

A rebuilt Cadillac is superior to any new car at the same price. They are the truest values on the street. By rebuilt we mean that the cars have been taken entirely apart, each part examined, and if necessary replaced by a new part made at the Cadillac factory, the entire car repainted and refinished like new, all equipment put in first class condition—the whole car, in fact, carefully reconstricted until it is good as new in every detail.

We offer Cadillacs exclusively, as we do not accept other makes in trade. Consequently we are as interested in the performance of these rebuilt cars as we are in new Cadillacs. In actual service value these cars are worth a great deal more than we ask for them, and we usually have a variety of body styles to select from. See them before you buy.

PLAN "ENDLESS CHAIN" TEAS

Evanston Matrons Devise Scheme to Raise Funds for Erection of Woman's Building at N. W. U.

A series of "endless chain" teas are planned by the matrons of Evanston to raise funds for the erection of a woman's building at Northwestern university. The plan is said to have been devised by Mrs. R. E. Wilson, wife of a professor of mathematics. Each woman will invite seven guests, who will be charged 10 cents apiece. Then each of the seven guests will give a tea to seven others, who will be charged the same amount. The "fifth generation" of teas will net $1,680.70. By that time, it is figured, the plan will have spread beyond Evanston.

217 FALL VICTIMS OF MAIL SERVICE EFFICIENCY RULE

Old Carriers Who Have Devoted Lives to Work Bear the Brunt.

John Jacobson, who carried mail for forty-three years for Uncle Sam and then was reduced from $1,200 to $1,000 per annum is only one of 217 victims of the new "efficiency" policy on the Chicago force. The government economy program, begun last July, has taken the line of the least resistance, the men who know say, and the carrier and collector who have served their lives in the ranks are catching the brunt.

Men who rated from 85 to 100 per cent in past years have been reduced to the incompetent scale for a single tardiness or for inability instantly to master new work that is suddenly assigned them as an iron test.

Some "Heart Breakers" Found.

Some "heart breakers" in the workings of a system that provides no pension or retirement age for old employés were uncovered by a TRIBUNE reporter yesterday. Five carriers whose ratings have always been between 70 and 100 per cent received this letter under date of April 15, 1915, from Postmaster Campbell, after being dropped into the 58 per cent class without warning or explanation:

"This office is today in receipt of a communication from the postoffice department authorizing and directing reduction in your salary as letter carrier from $1,200 to $1,000 per annum. In accordance with the department's instructions, you are hereby notified of such reduction, same to be effective May 1, 1915."

Steele, Wiley, and Howe were restored to their original status after severe tests. Sumner and Jacobson were assigned to outlying stations at the reduction.

Here are some more, all of whom were reduced to the 58 per cent class, with the cause of reduction:

WILLIAM O. ROBERTS. Born 1869; carrier twenty-three years; "consumed six hours in making the first trip and was unable to make the last trip on account of the bad condition of his feet."

FRANCIS J. McDONNELL. Born 1860; carrier twenty-nine years; "consumed eight hours in making one trip with a very light mail."

WILLIAM F. GRAY. Born 1864; carrier twenty-five years; "consumed six hours in making one trip and stated that he was unable to work any longer, as he was completely exhausted."

OSCAR LEEMAN. Born 1858; carrier seventeen years; "incapacitated on account of being troubled with rheumatism frequently."

EDWARD MUGAVIN. Born 1860; carrier twenty-six years; "eyesight is poor and a serious handicap; on the first day on this route he was able to distribute an average of but 2½ pieces of mail per minute."

Here Are Examples.

These facts were culled from letters from the general superintendent's office to the postmaster recommending the reductions:

JOSEPH R. HOWE—Born 1850; carrier Oct. 1, 1867 [forty-eight years]; two demerits for "failure to register" [ring a clock].

VALENTINE STEELE—Born 1839; carrier thirty-four years; ten demerits for "failure to deliver a letter correctly."

WILLIAM H. WILEY—Born 1842; carrier twenty-six years; seven demerits for "tardiness."

JOHN JACOBSON—Born 1846; carrier forty-two years; twenty demerits for "tardiness."

HENRY SUMNER—Born 1841; carrier thirty-two years; fifteen demerits for "tardiness."

PETER A. DOCKERY—Born 1862; carrier twenty-five years; "services are unsatisfactory, and it is clear that he cannot make good."

PAUL B. SCHENK—Born 1873; carrier seven years; "he is suffering from a disease of the spinal cord."

JOHN H. PIERSON—Born 1860; carrier fourteen years; "consumed eight hours making one trip."

CHARLES L. WEIR—Born 1856; carrier thirty-two years; "consumed eight hours and seventeen minutes making one trip."

FREDERICK D. RANDALL—Born 1862; carrier twelve years; "eyesight is so poor that he was able to throw only two pieces of mail per minute, and his physical condition is such that he is incapacitated for the duties of a carrier."

SOREN M. SCOTT—Born 1850; carrier twenty-six years; "weak heart, which is a serious handicap."

JOHN H. WYCKOFF—Born 1852; carrier twenty-four years; "admits his inability to render efficient service."

FRANK F. SCHWUCHOW—Born 1863; carrier twenty-six years; "admits his inability to render efficient service in the delivery of mail."

Approximately 215 carriers were reduced in salary on similar charges. These reductions commenced at various periods; some dated from May 1, May 16, June 1, and June 16.

MGR. KELLEY PREDICTS DOWNFALL OF PORTUGAL.

Says Also That Word of God Is in Danger of Being Banished from Republic.

That Portugal is destined soon to become the prey of some of its neighbors, that it cannot last long as an independent republic, was predicted by the Rev. Mgr. Francis Kelley, president of the Catholic Church Extension society of Chicago, in an address to the Irish Fellowship club in the Hotel La Salle yesterday.

He also characterized the little republic as an enemy of all religion, and upheld the deposed King Manuel as a subject of unjust and slanderous criticism.

"Portugal is a republic of little merchants and little professional men," he said. "The dominant figure is Alfonso Costa. The republic's aim is to destroy the church. Costa says his plans look to its elimination within one generation. Of course in Portugal that means the destruction of all religion, the banishing of the name of God from the nation, for the same laws that aim at the destruction of the Catholic church naturally hit every religious organization."

IS FATHER AND NURSE GIRL, TOO

Man Works All Day and Spends Most of Night Caring for Tots.

CHARITIES "IN WRONG."

Father works in this house. His work is never done. For Walter Boheneck, at his little home, 2634 Farrell street, combines the industry of two persons. He is both father and mother to his three small children.

This is the program of his work from sun to sun:

Arises at 4 o'clock in the morning, starting fire in kitchen stove and putting on the teakettle.

Gets breakfast for four by 4:30.

Arouses the children for the morning meal, fifteen minutes.

Dressing and bathing the children, buttoning Kasamir's shoes and Helena's pinafores. Combing three tousled heads of hair.

Feeds the Hungry.

After filling three hungry and impatient mouths, prepares the children for the Providence Day nursery at 3052 Gratten avenue.

Wrapping Kasamir, 2 years old, in a great shawl; Helena, 7 years old, in warm hood and sweater, and Antoinette, 5 years old, likewise in warmth and comfort by 5:15 o'clock.

At 5:40 every morning without fail, arriving at the nursery with the children.

Leaving for job at lumber yard at 5:50. Hauling and lifting lumber until 5:15 o'clock in the evening.

Arriving at the nursery from 5:30 to 6 o'clock for the children. Returning with them to his small home, he prepares supper for the youngsters.

Takes a Little Smoke.

At 7 o'clock after dishes are washed and the house straightened up a bit Mr. Boheneck smokes a pipe for a few minutes' respite from his labors. Then he rocks the baby to sleep and undresses the children for bedtime.

His daily routine is somewhat varied by scrubbing the floors of his apartment. On Sundays he launders the children's clothes. During his spare moments he mends their wearing apparel, puts new half soles on their shoes, and gives them haircuts as often as is necessary.

And Mr. Boheneck is just 30 years old. He has been engaged for almost a year now at household tasks and outdoor labor as breadwinner for the family.

Fears for Job.

His chief worry is over the loss of his job. The lumber company where he works is contemplating "laying off help" next week, and with three motherless children on his hands, the young father considers this a calamity. But he intends to keep his children, somehow. They have brought about the father's regeneration by their affection, according to Mrs. Edward H. Hoehne, superintendent of the Providence Day nursery on this side of the "yards."

"The charities were wrong and the father was right when he wanted his children," said Mrs. Hoehne, who told the story of Mr. Boheneck's reforming.

"At first we could not get him to support his family, although he made money. Then we sent him to the bridewell. We did not know then that his wife was insane.

Fought for Children.

"I had an order from the Juvenile court to give the children out for adoption. But the father begged so hard to keep them. He has cared for them ever since—for almost a year now. He earns $1.60 a day. When he is compelled to work late, he asks a man friend of his to come for the children at the nursery and remain with them until he comes from work."

So, this is the life of a young Polish father of 30, and he is very happy, he says.

TWO $50,000,000 MERGERS PLANNED BY NEW YORKERS.

Dry Goods Firms Working on Combination Scheme—Sugar Men Consolidate Cuban Properties.

New York, Dec. 4.—Plans for two mergers, each involving $50,000,000, are under discussion in New York today.

They provide for the consolidation of the United Dry Goods companies and the Associated Merchants' company, to be known as the Associated Dry Goods company, and for the combination of a group of Cuban sugar properties to take advantage of the embargoes on European sugar.

Plans for the dry goods combine are to be presented to the executive committee of the two companies. Cornelius N. Bliss is said to be slated for the presidency.

J. and W. Seligman, bankers of New York, are heavily interested in the Cuban merger and Manuel Rionda, Cuban sugar producer, also is interested. Options already have been obtained on Cuban lands valued at $35,000,00.

ARADO HELD TO GRAND JURY

Charged with Violating Law Forbidding Marriage of Cousins.

David Arado, saloonkeeper at 3205 West Harrison street, after having his marriage to Mrs. Elizabeth Arado, 3909 West Congress street, annulled by a decree of Judge Walker in the Circuit court, was held to the grand jury yesterday under $5,000 bonds for violating the statute prohibiting marriages between first cousins. The action against Arado was taken upon the motion of Attorney Samuel B. King, representing Mrs. Arado. Last Saturday Judge Walker, in a decision, held that the marriage in 1894 between the Arados was void because they are cousins.

NO MYSTERY OR ROMANCE.

Girl Found Unconscious on Sidewalk Merely Fainted and Clears "Plot" When Revived.

The mystery of a young woman found unconscious under the elevation of the Illinois Central railroad at Sixtieth street and Blackstone avenue yesterday was cleared when she was revived and said that she was Mary Carroll, 24 years old, a jewelry saleswoman in Marshall Field & Co., and residing at 6116 Stony Island avenue. She said she had not been set upon by robbers, as the police at first suspected, but had become ill as she was walking home and fainted.

"HOLY" COUPLE IN LOVE MESS TELL OF "CALL"

Disregard Man's Laws to Answer Spirit That Draws Them Together.

According to Clinton L. Fairchild the Lord moveth in a mysterious way his wonders to perform, and this is the only reason he could give Judge Hopkins yesterday for deserting his wife and two children and eloping with Mrs. Cora Smith, wife of a Westfield, Mass., photographer. She deserted her husband and son for Fairchild, who comes from Burlington, Vt., bringing three minor children with him.

They were arrested on Friday accused of contributing to the delinquency of the children. These were placed in the juvenile home and the case continued until Fairchild's wife and Mrs. Smith's husband can come to Chicago to testify.

Blame It on God.

W. P. Murray, a real estate dealer, 672 Michigan avenue, a cousin of Smith, testified that Smith had always provided well and that his wife had "driven him crazy" over religion.

Both Fairchild and the woman declared that "God had called" them together and that they came to Chicago without knowing of each other's intentions.

When Mrs. Smith said, "We were married of God in April," Judge Hopkins turned to Fairchild and asked:

"Is that true?"

"Yes," he replied.

"What do you mean?" the judge asked.

Too Deep for Judge.

"I can't explain it; you wouldn't understand," said the man.

"Don't you know you are violating the law?" the judge asked.

"Not God's law," Fairchild answered.

"God has led us together," said Mrs. Smith. "God told me to leave my husband and boy and to go out and do mission work. He showed me to come to Chicago."

"How did God show you?" the judge asked.

"In spirit," she said.

Gets Loud Call.

"What kind of a call did you get from God to leave your wife and children and go with this woman?" the judge asked Fairchild.

"The Lord called to me in an audible voice as he did to Paul," the man replied.

"How did this man get a call from God, too, to come to Chicago?" Judge Hopkins asked the woman.

"I prayed that if it was of God he would be shown," she answered.

DR. GENTRY TO ESTABLISH ASYLUM FOR DEPENDENTS.

Former Physician of Chicago, New Leader of New Cult, Will Build "Home" in New Hampshire.

William D. Gentry, once a physician, now presiding over a church styled the Assembly of God, having as one of its cardinal doctrines healing by prayer, is about to establish a home for the aged, orphans, and invalids on Lake Winnisquam, according to a telegram received yesterday from Laconia, N. H.

Dr. Gentry, it is said, has purchased the Vue de l'Eau hotel property, located on the lake, for the purpose of the establishing of the new home.

Dr. Gentry lives at 2242 Dayton street, Chicago. A telephone message to the home was answered by a woman.

"You must not publish anything about Dr. Gentry's plans," the woman said. "I could tell you about them if I wanted to, but I won't. Dr. Gentry will be home on Monday."

Dr. Gentry has figured in the courts twice in matrimonial tangles. His age has been given variously at from 70 to 79 years.

SUN'S HEAT MOST VIOLENT WHEN SPOTS ARE LARGEST.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—[Special.]—Dr. C. G. Abbot, director of the Smithsonian Astrophysical observatory, has just returned from Mount Wilson, Cal., where he has been engaged since May in studies of solar heat.

Preliminary examinations of the results give the impression that solar radiation has been above the normal during most of this year. This confirms the conclusion gained from former work, that high values prevail when sun spots and other forms of solar activity are well marked.

The apparatus devised by Dr. Abbot for measuring the solar heat at enormous altitudes, called "the balloon pyrheliometer," which made successful measurements at fifteen miles altitude in July, 1914, was exhibited at the San Francisco exposition and received a grand prize.

GUM MACHINE SUIT LOST.

Judge Dismisses Action Brought Against Novelty Company on Argentine Contract.

Judge Gibbons sustained the demurrer of the Mills Novelty company to a $25,000 damage suit alleging libel brought against it by Walter J. Scott, a slot machine promoter. The action dismissed the suit. An appeal was taken by Attorney Fred A. Bangs, representing Scott. The suit grew out of contracts for gum vending machines to be used in Buenos Aires, Argentina. The company failed to deliver the machines on the ground that the contract was invalid in that "it was a scheme and device to defraud the government of the Argentine Republic of custom duty upon said goods."

BABY IS GIVEN A NAME.

Child of Unmarried Mother to Be Adopted by Couple After Girl Consents.

Seventeen month old Ralph Edward Draper, son of an unmarried mother, will be Ralph Edward Rice if Waldo G. Rice of 6836 Olcott avenue and his wife, Mrs. Mabel Rice, have their way.

For seven weeks the baby has been a member of the Rice household.

Yesterday Mr. and Mrs. Rice filed a petition to adopt the child, whose girl mother consents.

The volume and character of the week's business in a real estate way showed a pronounced improvement over that of the previous week.

This was particularly the case as regards outside business property, in which there were several transactions of much more than ordinary interest.

Conspicuous among these was the purchase by Adolf Kraus from Sherman T. Cooper of the block on the south side of Forty-seventh street between Ellis and Ingleside avenues. A special interest attaches to it for the reason that Mr. Kraus heretofore has confined his large investments to down town property.

Property Improved.

The property fronts 234 feet, with a depth of 84 feet to a twenty foot paved alley on the two avenues, and the improvements comprise an attractive three story structure of pressed brick and terra cotta trimmings with tile roof.

It is of semi-fireproof construction and contains fourteen stores, six suites of offices, and forty-four one and two room apartments. The building is a new one, having been completed only recently. All the stores have mosaic floors as well as the hallways. A consideration of $190,000 is indicated by the $90 worth of revenue stamps on the deed, and the incumbrance of $100,000 to which the sale was made subject.

In part payment Mr. Kraus conveyed the business property at 304-306 West Lake street, being forty feet west of Franklin street, and a tract of seventy-eight acres in Palos and Lyons townships, south of Argo, fronting on both sides of Archer road. According to the stamps on the deeds, the Lake street property went in at a valuation of $40,000 and the acres at $20,000. George F Bunday of W. K. Young & Bro. represented Mr. Cooper in the transaction and Benjamin Rosenberg represented Mr. Kraus.

Halsted and Adams Corner Sold.

An important transaction in valuable west side business property was the purchase by the Perkins Bass estate, Mrs. Gertrude B. Warner, and the Merchants' Loan and Trust company, trustees, from the Holden estate of the fee of the property at the southwest corner of South Halsted and Adams streets for $143,000. Those comprising the Holden estate are Fannie H. Holden, H. Holden Skinner, Nellie L. Holden, Charles M. Holden, Joseph S. Holden, Walter S., and Annie M. Holden. White & Tabor represented the sellers and Perkins B. Bass & Co. represented the purchasers.

Under Ninety-nine Years' Lease.

The property, which is known as 200-208 South Halsted street, is 100x118.2 feet in dimensions and is under a lease for ninety-nine years from May 1, 1911, at an annual rent of $7,000, making the sale of the fee on a little less than a 5 per cent basis.

The lot is improved with a five story and basement fireproof store and loft building which was erected about two years ago at a cost of about $175,000.

White & Tabor negotiated the lease of the ground for the Holden estate in 1911 to Max Goldstine, who recently assigned the same to the American Woolen Mills company, who occupy a part of the upper space of the building. Walter S. Holden and John P Wilson Jr. attended to the legal details of the present transaction.

Wilson Avenue Deal.

The Wilson avenue district also turned up an important transaction in the purchase by Francis H. Hardy from Alexander H. Hannah of the leasehold interest in the property at 1016-1024 Wilson avenue, between Sheridan road and Kenmore avenue, for a reported consideration of $65,000.

The property, which fronts 100 feet on Wilson avenue, with a depth of 125 feet, was leased for ninety-nine years in August, 1913, at which time Chester A. and Raymond C. Cook, trustees for the estate of Ira B. Cook, purchased the fee from Mr. Hannah for a reported consideration of $100,000, Mr Hannah at the same time taking back a lease for ninety-nine years on the basis of an annual rent of $5,500 for ten years and $6,500 for the remaining eighty-nine years.

Improvements Worth $55,000.

The improvements are stated to be worth $55,000, so that the present ground rent, capitalized on a 5 per cent basis, plus the cost of the building, gives an indicated leasing value of $175,000, or at the rate of $1,200 a front foot, stated to be a low price for property in this block. It is stated the gross annual rent of the property is $13,000, while leases are stated to have been signed in connection with proposed improvements to cost about $25,000, which will increase the rent, it is stated, to $21,000 a year.

Mr. Hardy gave in exchange the apartment building at the southwest corner of Wilson and Racine avenues, on 42x150 feet of ground, for a stated consideration of $85,000, subject to an incumbrance of $80,000, $20,000 in cash and fifty feet of vacant on Delaware place, east of Lake Shore drive, valued at $20,000. It is stated Mr. Hannah will remodel the building at Racine and Wilson avenues into stores. Lamont & Clasen will have charge of the Hardy property. The transaction was negotiated by Frederick A. Cooper & Co.

New Flat for North Side; Model Gymnasium Planned.

The North Shore apartments at 1106-18 Pratt boulevard, between Sheridan road and Lake Michigan, is one of the latest of the big high grade apartment buildings in that section. It contains thirty apartments of four and five rooms and sun parlor and cost upwards of $150,000. It covers a lot 140x176 feet, and its annual rent is estimated at $20,500. The owners are David Angus and John Cameron, and Greenebaum Sons Bank and Trust company has negotiated a first mortgage 6 per cent bond issue for $90,000.

The cornerstone of a large gymnasium and natatorium for North Park college, the chief college in the west of the Swedish covenant, will be laid today at 3 o'clock. It is located at the southwest corner of Kedzie and Foster avenues. It was designed by Architect John A. Nyden. It will cost about $30,000 and will make the North Park college, of which Prof. David Nyvall is president, one of the best equipped denominational schools in the city.

Leases and Loans.

There was nothing reported of an important character in connection with downtown business leases during the week. The situation is none too good, although brokers are a unit in declaring there has been a decided improvement in the last sixty days, and that the outlook is decidedly encouraging.

In the mortgage loan market the tendency is undoubtedly toward easier interest rates. It probably is the fact that 6 per cent continues to be the prevailing rate in outside building and general loans, but more and more 5½ per cent loans are being placed, and 5 per cent loans on outside property are becoming more frequent.

Of much interest is the report that the Marshall Field estate has about concluded a loan of $500,000 at 5 per cent to the Y. M. C. A. in connection with the construction of the new hotel at Wabash avenue and Ninth street.

Another 5 per cent north side apartment house loan has been made by Edgar M. Snow & Co. in connection with H. O. Stone & Co. The amount is $30,000, which runs for five years, and is secured by the property at the northwest corner of Sheridan road and Briar place, owned by May C. Martin.

The Chicago Title and Trust company is trustee in a loan of $65,000, five years at 6 per cent, to Abraham Edmunds on the property at the northwest corner of Washburn avenue and Robey street.

The same trust company is also trustee in a loan of $70,000, six years at 6 per cent, to Harry C. Levinson on the property at the northeast corner of Fifty-third street and Harper avenue.

An interesting loan in the Kingsbury street district was filed for record. It was made by the New England Mutual Life Insurance company to Joseph E. Tilt and is for $200,000, five years at 5 per cent. It is secured by the property at the northwest corner of Kingsbury and Erie streets, 250x100 feet, with brick warehouse improvements and other property.

The Chicago Title and Trust company is trustee in a loan of $85,000, six years at 6 per cent, to Stanley J. Uglow, secured by the property at the northwest corner of West Sixty-third street and Western avenue, 99x125 feet, with business improvements.

The trust company is also trustee in a loan of $53,000, six years at 6 per cent, to Emanuel Levy, secured by the property on Lakewood avenue, fifty-seven feet north of Farwell avenue, 100x140 feet, with flat improvements.

The Hibernian Banking association is trustee in a loan of $72,000, five years at 5½ per cent, to Charlotte D. Reynolds, secured by the property at the southwest corner of Pine Grove avenue and Addison street, with flat improvements.

O. H. Haugan is trustee in a loan of $75,000, five years at 6 per cent, to John S. Holmes on the property at the southwest corner of Irving Park boulevard and Rokeby street.

Frederick J. Phillips, formerly with Oliver & Co., and Allan D. Jones, who has been located for some time in the First National Bank building, have opened offices in the Borland building, 105 South La Salle street, where they will specialize in selling and leasing business property and the renting of manufacturing space adjacent to the loop.

BUILDING PERMITS SHOW GAIN OF 314 FOR 11 MONTHS.

For the eleven months of the year there has been an increase of 314 in the number of permits issued by the city building department, 22,520 in the frontage feet to be improved, and $9,603,130 in the total cost, as compared with the corresponding period in 1914. November shows an increase of about 70 per cent over the same month a year ago. For the eleven months of this year there were 9,677 permits issued, to cost $86,650,480, as compared with 9,313, to cost $77,047,350, for the previous year.

ACREAGE SALES IN LAKE FOREST SECTION CLOSED

Four Deals Feature the Week's Trading; C. H. Morse Jr. Buys Three Farms.

Transactions in Lake Forest acres cut a particularly conspicuous figure in the week's business, there being no less than four important transactions closed during the week.

The most important of them was the purchase by Charles H. Morse Jr. of Fairbanks, Mass., of three farms on Deerpath road about a half mile west of the country estate of J. Ogden Armour and adjoining the Samuel Insull place, comprising altogether about 286 acres, for an aggregate consideration of about $55,000. The properties acquired were the John Heery farm, the farm of John Lindberry, and that of Mrs. Durkin. It is stated that Mr. Morse plans to establish a handsome country home there. John Griffith was the broker, representing both parties.

F. C. Letts Buys Tract.

Another deal was the sale by Charles F. Paxton to Frank C. Letts of a tract of about four acres on Greenbay road north of Deerpath avenue, for a reported consideration of $57,750. The property is improved with a large, attractive eighteen room dwelling erected about four years ago. John Griffith was the broker.

Bruce D. Smith, cashier of the Northern Trust company and son of the late Byron Smith, purchased from J. W. Lowe a tract of four acres on the west side of Greenbay road between the Onwentsia club and the John A. Chapman place for a reported consideration of $22,000. The property is vacant and will be improved with a handsome residence. John Griffith was the broker.

Mr. Griffith, in conjunction with Paul Steinbrecher & Co., sold for Thomas Byrne to Maurice Pincoffs the vacant property on Westminster road, between the railroad station and the lake, comprising between four and five acres, for a reported consideration of $19,500. The purchaser will improve with a high grade residence.

Deal in Highland Park.

An interesting transaction in Highland Park was the purchase by Ben Lowenmeyer from Arthur C. Thompson of Brookline, Mass., of a tract of about ten acres, fronting on Linden avenue, between Forest avenue and Beach street, with a frontage of about 1,300 feet on Linden. It will be subdivided into 150 foot lots with an average depth of about 350 feet. The streets about the property are paved and also have sewer and water connection.

It is the third tract Mr. Lowenmeyer has purchased in Highland Park since July last, one having a frontage of 1,350 feet on Sheridan road north of the county line, and was resold in two parcels in a few weeks. The other was 1,500 feet on Linden opposite that just purchased, which he acquired Sept. 20, since which time he has disposed of the sixteen lots into which it was subdivided, to ten different purchasers.

Other Deals of the Week.

The vacant at the northwest corner of Seventy-fifth street and Jeffery avenue, 147.5x110 feet, has been purchased by Patrick J. Minogue et al. from Anna M. West for a reported consideration of $10,000. S. J. Wylie of Frank H. Lang's office was the broker.

Murray Wolbach has purchased from Ella and Mary Apgar the 100x134 feet of vacant at the southwest corner of Seventy-first street and Bennett avenue for a stated consideration of $10,000. H. F. Norcott & Co. were the brokers.

Emil J. Dirks reports the sale of sixteen lots, with a total frontage of 480 feet, on Long avenue, between Hirsch and Le Moyne streets, to John E. Decker, for a reported $9,200, and twenty lots on the east side of Lotus avenue, comprising a block of about 600 feet between Hirsch and Le Moyne streets, to Edward Nelson for a reported $10,000. Both purchasers will improve, it is stated, with two and three brick flat buildings.

The Thomasson-White company has recently acquired a new subdivision, to be known as Balmoral Gardens. It is a ten acre strip bounded by Balmoral, Kedzie, and Spaulding avenues. They plan to build high class two flat buildings on the entire tract and have started work on ten buildings.

PLANS TO BOOST ABSTRACT SYSTEM OF THE RECORDER.

If a resolution presented by Col. Daniel Moriarity at Friday's meeting of the county board receives the approval of the finance committee of that body, an advertising campaign will be started setting forth the merits and cheapness of the recorder's abstracts as compared with those made by a private concern. The resolution provides for an appropriation to be taken out of the receipts of the abstract and Torrens departments of the recorder's office.

CODE OF ETHICS ADOPTED.

Of much interest was the action of the Chicago real estate board at its meeting last Wednesday in adopting the code of ethics adopted by the National Association of Real Estate Exchanges. The code, which is the result of the labors of the Chicago board's ethics committee, consisting of Edward S. Judd, L. M. Smith, H. H. Banford, Eugene Bournique, and E. Orris Hart, has attracted a great deal of attention in the real estate world and is recognized as a big step forward in dignifying and elevating the standard of the real estate business.

VACANT BRINGS $458 A FOOT.

A noteworthy sale of vacant in Surf street at the rate of about $458 a front foot was reported late in the week. It comprises 53⅓x293 feet, half a block west of the Lake Shore drive, which was sold by Henry Strassheim to Mary Kasper. A nominal consideration was given in the deed, but the revenue stamps on the document indicate a consideration of $24,500. It is stated the purchaser will improve with a high grade apartment building. Rohm & Simons were the brokers in the transaction.

MATERIAL COST CUTS BUILDING

Few New Projects Are Announced; Lateness of Season Partly to Blame.

Coincident with the gradual letup in building operations there were fewer announcements of new projects made last week. The lateness of the season probably had something to do with it, but there is little doubt also that the rather sharp advance in the prices of building materials lately has had something to do with it.

An important project for Evanston is involved in the sale of the property at the southwest corner of Davis street and Oak avenue, fronting 200 feet on Davis street and 150 feet on Oak avenue, improved with a large dwelling, by Arminda Pitner to Henry G. Saal for an indicated consideration of $35,000, subject to an incumbrance of $10,000.

Plans to Improve.

It is stated that Mr. Saal will improve in the spring with a high grade apartment building to cost in the neighborhood of $165,000, which is expected to show a gross annual rental of about $33,000. W. W. Wilson of Murdock, James & Co. represented the seller and Rosenberg & Reninger represented Mr. Saal. The latter brokers will have charge of the construction and management of the new building.

Another Evanston transaction was the sale by Christian Kurz to Frank Milhening of the 180 feet of frontage on Sheridan road 200 feet south of Kedzie street, east front, for a reported consideration of $11,000. It is stated the purchaser will improve this, together with the 100 feet adjoining on the south, belonging to him, which he recently purchased, with high grade residence improvements. Willis & Frankenstein were the brokers.

Vacant Corner in Deal.

Mabel B. Gleason has sold to Max Seffren the vacant property at the southwest corner of Halsted and Ohio streets, 40x100 feet, being 300 feet north of Milwaukee avenue, a nominal consideration being given. It is stated the purchaser will improve with a seven story mercantile building to cost in the neighborhood of $75,000. The sale was negotiated by T. D. O'Hern of C. W. Hoff & Co.

Floyd E. Miller has purchased from Walter J. Cummings the vacant property at the southeast corner of Grace street and Maple Square avenue, 50x100 feet, for a reported consideration of $5,000. It is stated the purchaser will improve with a twelve apartment building to cost about $45,000.

L. J. White has started the erection of a twenty-four apartment building at 4812-16 North Bernard street, to be known as the Ferguson court apartments, to cost $60,000. The building is being erected for David Thomas and Jackson Thomas.

FEDERAL FURNACE PLANT SOLD TO COKE COMPANY.

There was filed for record during the week the purchase by the By-Products Coke corporation from the Federal Furnace company of the plant of the latter in the Calumet district. There was $1,387 worth of revenue stamps on the deed, indicating a consideration of $1,387,000 for the equity, as the transfer is stated to have been subject to existing incumbrance. The property is bounded by the Calumet river on the east, the South Chicago and Southern railway right of way on the west, One Hundred and Ninth street on the south, and the Calumet river on the north. A loan of $1,500,000 to the Federal Furnace company was filed for record a short time ago.

There also was filed for record the sale by Leory C. Dupee to A. P. Callahan & Co. of the 299x115 feet at the northeast corner of South La Salle and West Twenty-fifth streets, for an expressed consideration of $60,000. The Callahan company owns the 300 feet to the north, giving them a holding of 600 feet between Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth streets, La Salle street, and the Rock Island tracks.

Record was made of the purchase by Elias Epstein from Joseph Walinsky of the property at the southeast corner of Springfield avenue and Thirteenth street, lot 50x125 feet, with store and flat improvements, for an indicated consideration of $38,850, subject to an incumbrance of $28,850.

The property in Blue Island avenue, 315 feet southwest of Morgan street, lot 72x88 feet, west front, with a depth of 106 feet on the south, with store and flat improvements, has been sold by Israel Schor to Abe Telechansky for an indicated consideration of $37,500, subject to an incumbrance of $34,000.

The leasehold interest and building at the northwest corner of South Water street and Fifth avenue, lot 80x55 feet, with four story building, have been sold by Thomas J. White to Charles H. McDermott, a nominal consideration being given, subject to an incumbrance of $35,000. The property was leased for ninety-nine years from Sept. 1, 1914.

STEINBRECHER NAMED TO HEAD REALTY BOARD TICKET.

Paul Steinbrecher of Paul Steinbrecher & Co. has been named to head the regular ticket to be acted on at the approaching annual election of the Chicago real estate board. He is one of the younger members of the board, but is one of its most active members and is recognized as a successful and representative real estate broker.

Mr. Steinbrecher has been in the real estate business about fifteen years. He began his business career in the office of the late Dunlop Smith. Following Mr. Smith's death he became connected with the firm of George W. Cobb & Co., and in 1908 started in business on his own account. In 1911 he bought out the business of Mr. Cobb. He is a graduate of the University of Chicago, the University of Wisconsin, and the Northwestern university law school. He is a member of the City, Union League, and University clubs. He is married and lives at 418 Oakdale avenue.

The other more important nominations were:

Vice president—Fred D. P. Snelling.
Secretary—Hyde W. Perce.
Treasurer—Moses E. Greenebaum.
Directors (three years)—Arthur W. Draper and Albert F. Keeney.
Advisory board, valuation committee—Samuel H. Hodge, John F. Wallace.

It is reported an effort is being made to put an opposition ticket in the field, to be headed by Valentine H. Surghner.

TRADING BRISK IN APARTMENTS ON SOUTH SIDE

Lincoln, Ill., Merchant Buys 24 Flat Building in Hyde Park Boulevard.

The feature of the week's market in apartment house property was the sale by John W. Turnquist of Turnquist Bros. to Samuel M. Plaut, a dry goods merchant at Lincoln, Ill., of the twenty-four apartment building at the southwest corner of Hyde Park boulevard and Kimbark avenue for a reported consideration of $175,000.

The lot fronts 177 feet on the boulevard and 143 feet on Kimbark avenue, the building being one of the highest type of apartment buildings in the city, some of the apartments being of the duplex type with ten rooms, with dining room and kitchen on one floor and living room on the floor above. The property sold subject to an incumbrance of $90,000, and in part payment the purchaser conveyed a farm of 236 acres near Lincoln in Logan county, cash, and a part purchase money mortgage for $12,500. Hugo Ash was the broker.

$46,500 for Corner.

The store and flat property at the northeast corner of Ingleside avenue and Fifty-fifth street, lot 112x58 feet, west front, has been sold by Murray Wolbach to Yetta Keim for an indicated consideration of $46,500, subject to an incumbrance of $28,500. The lot is improved with a building containing two stores and ten flats of four and five rooms. John J. Ready Jr. of W. K. Young & Bro. was the broker.

The four story sixteen apartment building, on 22x65 feet of ground, at the southwest corner of Ellis avenue and Thirty-sixth street, has been sold by A. L. Myers, trustee, to Blanche E. Buhlig for a reported consideration of $33,000, subject to an incumbrance of $25,000. In part payment the purchaser has conveyed the six apartment building, with 40x150 feet of ground, at 4024-26 Indiana avenue, at a valuation of $19,000, subject to an incumbrance of $11,000. Robert A. Duarno of L. M. Smith & Bro. was the broker.

Calumet Avenue Sale.

The property in Calumet avenue 100 feet north of Sixty-first street, lot 70x150 feet, west front, with flat improvements, has been sold by H. I. Holton to Almon A. Manson et al. for an indicated consideration of $34,000, subject to an incumbrance of $12,000.

The six apartment building at 346-48 East Twenty-fourth has been sold by Herman J. Ensinger to Dr. Ernst A. Fetherston for a reported consideration of $27,000, subject to an incumbrance of $14,000. The purchaser is stated to have given in part payment California residence property. Carlo Morgenstern of I. Schwartz & Co. was the broker.

H. C. Eckelbrecht has sold to Henson S. Simpson the property in Glenwood avenue, 200 feet south of Albion avenue, lot 50x122 feet, east front, with flat improvements, for an indicated consideration of $30,000, subject to an incumbrance of $17,000.

The property in Racine avenue, 142 feet south of Wilson avenue, lot 50x150 feet, east front, with flat improvements, has been sold by Lina H. Henson to Lizzie Dorsch for an indicated consideration of $25,250, subject to an incumbrance of $11,000.

Six Flat Building in Deal.

Levi and August Nelson have sold to Noah J. Abram the high grade six apartment building at 6823-25 Cornell avenue, having a gross annual rent of $3,600, for a reported consideration of $25,000, subject to an incumbrance of $15,000. C. M. Prideaux of Newton B. Lauren & Co. and Clayton D. Eulette were the brokers.

The apartment house property at 5438-40 Prairie avenue, lot 52⅔x176 feet, east front, has been sold by Amelia B. C. Ramer et al. to Thomas P. Barry for an indicated consideration of $22,000, subject to an incumbrance of $12,000.

The six apartment building at 2734-36 Seminary avenue has been sold by Maria Conrad to Frank Janisch for a reported consideration of $17,500, the purchaser giving Lyons residence property valued at $5,000 in part payment. Schroeter & Weisgerber were the brokers.

LA SALLE BANK BUILDING TO BE AUCTIONED DEC. 14.

It is announced that the La Salle Street Trust and Savings bank, southwest corner La Salle and Quincy streets, will be offered at public auction by William C. Niblack, receiver, Tuesday morning, Dec. 14, at 10:45 o'clock, at room 735 county building. Mr. Niblack stated in a petition to the court that he had received an offer of $412,000 from David J. Kennedy, which he regarded as an inadequate sum, and expressed the opinion more could be secured at an auction sale.

STEEL OFFICIAL BUYS HOME.

The Thomas P. Smith Jr. residence at 4520 Greenwood avenue, one of the most attractive of the Kenwood homes, has been purchased by P. D. Black, vice president of the Inland Steel company of Indiana Harbor. He acquired the property from John N. Snyder, who took it recently in exchange from Mrs. Smith for an apartment building on Woodlawn avenue. The consideration is said to have been $70,000.

BEARS PANICKY, WHEAT SOARS; BIG GAIN MADE

December Goes to Premium Over May; Indemnity Sellers Are Hard Hit.

The wheat market again developed into a big bull affair yesterday, with shorts panicky at the close. Offerings were quite liberal at the start and prices showed a sharp recession. Later there was general commission house buying and as the market gradually firmed up shorts bought in their wheat and there was heavy buying by sellers of daily and weekly offers, who faced big losses as the result of the advancing markets. During the latter part of the session the demand for the December became urgent and the current month at the close was at a premium of ⅛c over the May at $1.16⅜. Net gains for the day were 5¼c for the December and 2⅞@3c for the May.

The pit situation appeared to be the main reason for the advance, as the current news was not especially bullish. Offerings were not heavy, however, except at the start, and commission houses again took a lot of wheat off the market.

Winter Wheat Damage Factor.

Bulls count on a continued buying demand as the winter wheat conditions become more fully realized. The poor quality of the winter wheat assures a steady demand for the spring wheat, as winter wheat mills in all directions are still free buyers of the spring wheat. This is a big factor in the situation. If the loss in winter wheat is as great as claimed the remaining stocks of good wheat for export are not large, while the heavy supplies of spring wheat back on the farms should meet with a good demand.

Primary receipts for the day were 2,955,000 bu. A year ago they were 1,673,000 bu. Receipts of wheat in the northwest were 1,499 cars, compared to 674 cars a year ago, and Winnipeg had 1,543 cars, against 284 cars a year ago. Local receipts were 58 cars. Weekly primary receipts were 19,081,000 bu, compared to 12,337,000 bu a year ago.

Liverpool Cables Steady.

Liverpool cables were unchanged. The undertone was reported firm abroad, however, and the exorbitant freights from Argentina and Australia make wheat prices in this country and Canada look relatively cheap. Argentine reports say little wheat has been contracted so far for January shipment and it is believed the Australian surplus will not be marketed rapidly. There were more reports indicating that England is going to secure the bulk of the Canada crop for herself and her allies.

This leaves the neutral countries only one alternative—to supply their needs until March at least from this country. This should make a big demand for the wheat in this country. Weather conditions were favorable. Clearances for the day were 941,000 bu, compared to 866,000 bu a year ago. Buying of December wheat was led early by Bartlett-Frazier and Raymond-Dynchon.

Corn Firm After Setback.

The late strength in wheat checked the aggressive attitude of short sellers in corn and prices rallied in the late trade, closing ⅜c higher for both months. The country reports indicated fair offerings of corn to arrive, but so far there is no indication of heavy general selling, and the attitude of the farmers, especially in the northern sections of the belt, is bullish. Receipts were 131 cars, or much smaller than expected. Primary receipts were 952,000 bu, compared to 1,758,000 bu a year ago. For the week primary receipts were 5,586,000 bu, against 12,048,000 bu a year ago. Clearances for the day were a little larger than recently at 201,000 bu. Cables were unchanged, but the tone of the market was firm, and Plate offers were light, with further increases in the freight rates. Shipping sales were 60,000 bu. Weather conditions were favorable throughout the belt.

Oats Rally with Wheat.

Oats were influenced by the selling of corn early, but shorts took fright when the market for wheat began to soar and prices at the close more than recovered the early losses, net gains being ⅛c to ⅜@½c. The cash demand was only fair and shipping sales were 80,000 bu. Offerings from the country were moderate. Receipts here were 146 cars and primary receipts were 858,000 bu, against 954,000 bu, while western receipts for the week were 5,479,000 bu, against 6,698,000 bu a year ago. Commission houses bought quite a few oats on the early decline. Cash houses were credited with selling early.

Hog products were easy at the start, but there was covering by shorts and prices finished higher for the day. The cash demand was good and shipments of products continue quite liberal. Hog receipts were 24,000, with 59,000 expected Monday and 265,000 for the coming week. Receipts of hogs the last week were larger than predicted at 288,000, against 250,000 a year ago. Prices at the yards were 5@10c lower at the start, with the close strong, with losses recovered. Top price for hogs was $7.00.

Firm Market for Rye.

Rye was quiet but firm, No. 2 selling at 96½c and No. 3 at 94c. Receipts were 7 cars.

Barley ruled 1c higher, with sales of malting at 69@73c, feed at 62@65c, and screenings at 48@56c. Receipts, 67 cars.

Timothy seed was quiet, with cash lots quoted at $5.00@7.75, nominal. Cloverseed was unchanged. Cash lots, $10.00@19.00, nominal.

Duluth flax closed 1¾@2¼c higher. Cash on track, $2.04¾; December, $2.02¾, and May, $2.02¾. Receipts, 38 cars. Minneapolis was 2¾c higher, with cash on track $2.01¾@2.05¾. Receipts were 40 cars. Winnipeg closed 1¼@2¼c higher. December, $1.83, and May $1.90. Receipts, 80 cars.

NEWS AND GOSSIP OF BOARD OF TRADE.

A Liverpool letter to Bartlett-Frazier said: "The decline in wheat in this market has been caused by a natural pause in the demand after the previous free buying, but it has really no legitimate basis. Our stocks again decreased over 360,000 bu and the world's shipments are moderate. We have probably reached about the lowest point in our stocks, as arrivals are now larger. It is our opinion that stocks are at a dangerously low level in view of the political situation. Europe has to run on American wheat entirely until next March. The character of Argentine and Australian competition later on is problematical. So far Argentine is offering no wheat and the harvest will be a late one. It is almost certain that the Australian crop, being government financed and controlled, will not be marketed either quickly or cheaply, but shipments will be spread over the whole year instead of being heavy in the first few months."

"The demand for our wheat continues active, and the extent of the business has been a big surprise to me as well as to other grain men in western Canada," said R. J. Henderson of Winnipeg, who was here yesterday. "There is no doubt receipts will be heavy for months, as we practically raised a double crop. On the other hand, foreigners have been willing to take the wheat as fast as it is shipped. Some well posted Liverpool houses believe that the English government is making every effort to build up reserve stocks sufficiently large to guarantee a good supply throughout next year, no matter what the 1916 crops are. The fact that the quality of winter wheat is so poor is causing an unusual demand from other quarters for our wheat."

The Argentine shipping situation is a serious one. Yesterday there was a further advance of 5s per ton for wheat, making the rate 112s 6d. This is equal to about 72c per bu for wheat, and the corn rate is about 67½c. These rates are almost prohibitive, and late Argentine cables say practically no business has been booked for January shipments. Australian shippers are in the same position, and the fact that some of the boats have to carry ballast one way to those countries, whereas they can make about three trips to America to one to Argentina, makes a big difference in the situation. Vessel owners are keeping their boats where they can make the quickest and most profitable trips.

The shipping demand for wheat was slow here, but prices were generally steady relative to the future. With an advance of over 5 cents in the December export demand is likely to lag, but at present there is no pressure to sell wheat from the country. Local sales were only 15,000 bu. Northwest reports indicated a fair business.

Cash corn was weak and lower early but firmed up a little later. The trade in both corn and oats was moderate. Shipping sales were 60,000 bu corn and 80,000 bu oats. Country sales of corn early were fair, but there is no indication of a general selling movement so far.

The Board of Trade Mutual Benefit association has gained twenty-seven new members since July 2, during which time there have been lost by death eight members and one membership has lapsed. The present value to beneficiaries is $3,076.

Receipts of wheat at Chicago the past week were 1,163,000 bu and the shipments were 428,000 bu. Corn shipments were 1,185,000 and receipts 2,246,000 bu. Oats shipments were 2,044,000 bu, compared to 2,342,000 bu received.

Lake rates from Port Arthur to Buffalo on wheat were 5@5½c yesterday, the latter to include winter storage. Duluth reported 200,000 bu chartered to unload at 4½c. Charters at Port Arthur were about 1,000,000 bu.

Receipts inspected yesterday were: Wheat, 58 cars; corn, 131 cars; oats, 146 cars; rye, 7 cars; barley, 67 cars; hogs, 59,000 head. Hogs for all next week, 265,000 head.

Russia has perfected arrangements whereby there will be fair shipments of wheat and other grain to Vladivostock. It is said the rates established are low.

Argentine wheat prospects are good, but the fact the wheat is being secured in good shape is not causing much pressure abroad.

One of the leading wheat shippers here reported offering wheat to mills freely yesterday and sold but three cars.

Packing of hogs for the season to date at Chicago total 901,000, compared to 637,000 a year ago.

Total export sales of wheat Friday were finally placed at 700,000 bu and 150,000 bu oats.

Seaboard reports indicated most of the business now being done is in Manitoba wheats.

Continuous quotations for bids and offers are now being posted in the smoking room.

The demand for gulf wheat is reported slow, offers meeting with no response.

Minneapolis wheat stocks increased 280,000 bu for one day.

Tecumseh Coal Produces More Heat With Less Waste

Tecumseh Coal is mined in that famous coal region near Vincennes, Ind.

It comes from the mines that produce the finest coal mined in the middle west, according to Government geologists' reports. 13,400 B. T. U.'s to the pound, with only 9% ash and 9% moisture is what we guarantee you from Tecumseh. Railroads, cities and big manufacturers use and endorse Tecumseh Coal.

They buy heat units when they buy coal, and from Tecumseh they get more power with less waste. Quick on-time delivery is part of the Tecumseh service, the weight and quality of Tecumseh, we guarantee under bond. Write us today about Tecumseh. Buy your power by the B. T. U. method, get better results at less cost. Our coal club plan takes care of small users. Ask for it.

We Guarantee Tecumseh Coal to produce 13,400 B. T. U.'s to the coal pound with only 9% ash and 9% moisture.

OPTION

Advertiser has an option on a manufacturing business with sufficient orders in sight to earn 100% on capital of $50,000.

The product of the plant is a motor absolutely outclassing any similar machine in the world from the standpoint of weight, power and simplicity. These motors have made good under the most strenuous applications in America and Europe.

A small circular mailed to the trade produced orders in excess of $30,000 in six weeks.

Factory completely equipped with up-to-date machinery in charge of a competent superintendent, thoroughly posted on engine designing and practice.

Under my option can acquire this entire business on extremely favorable basis. Present owner must sell for good and sufficient reasons.

Company in good standing with Chicago banks. Will submit report of certified accountant, cost sheets and complete financial statement.

Advertiser will negotiate with a party or parties able to command $30,000 in cash. Investor will be given control. Open for proposition from Boards of Trade within 150 miles of Chicago. Will not negotiate with parties unable or unwilling to submit credentials as to financial resources at first conference.

Demand for hogs at Chicago yesterday was less urgent and the market opened slow and easy on receipts of 22,000 head. The trade had good action, however, and values gradually hardened, closing with all of the early loss recovered and the market strong at Friday's closing level. Top sales were made at $7.00, or the same as on Friday, and the bulk at $6.25@6.80. Packers bought 18,300 head and shippers took 2,500, leaving about 2,000 hogs to be carried over unsold.

Final prices made the general run of hogs 5@10c higher than a week ago, with lightweight hogs and pigs showing an advance of 10@15c. Receipts this week aggregated more than 273,000 head and were among the largest in recent years. Shipments totaled around 41,200 and also showed a substantial increase over shipments of recent weeks.

Hog purchases for the day: Armour & Co., 3,200; Swift & Co., 2,000; Sulzberger & Sons, 2,500; Morris & Co., 2,600; Anglo-American, 1,600; Hammond, 1,000; Boyd-Lunham, 900; Roberts & Oake, 900; Western Packing company, 1,000; Miller & Hart, 300; Independent Packing company, 700; Brennan Packing company, 600; butchers, 1,000; shippers, 2,500; total, 20,800; left over 2,000.

CATTLE.

Firmness pervaded the market for cheap light steers and prime heavy beeves at Chicago this week, but the intermediate grades met with an inadequate demand and closed 25@40c lower. Prime beeves topped the week at $10.65 for regular market stock. This was the highest price of the year, aside from a sale of special college fed stock at $11.50, made on the Thursday market. Cows and heifers closed on a steady to firm basis, while calves also held without important change, although the supply on sale was nearly double that of the previous week. Total receipts of cattle this week aggregated more than 60,000 head and stood the largest of the year to date. The market closed in a healthy condition, with receivers looking forward to better values and increasing activity in the trade.

Cattle at six western markets for the week, 179,400, against 157,400 the preceding week, 149,600 a year ago, and 125,400 two years ago. Total for 1915 to date, 6,664,000, against 6,185,000 the same period in 1914.

SHEEP.

Lambs at Chicago this week sold at record prices for December offerings and closed firm to 25c higher than a week ago. Sheep finished the week at an advance of 25c, and yearlings were up largely 15@25c, as compared with the close a week ago. Receipts for the week were about the same as those of the preceding week and much smaller than a year ago. The market closed on a firm footing, with traders looking for new record prices to be established for lambs and predicting sustained buoyancy in the market for fat sheep and yearlings. Top lambs this week sold at $9.25, while wethers reached $6.50 and yearlings sold up to $7.50. Ewes were numerous at $6.00 and some sold up to $6.10.

Time to Buy Good Bonds.

Bankers are admitting more or less regretfully that they can see no prospect of higher interest rates for an indefinite time to come. If they estimate the situation correctly another wave of investment buying like that which came a few weeks ago is certain to appear in the near future.

In the meantime investors who have idle funds will find it to their advantage to buy the best classes of bonds. Gilt-edged railroad bonds have advanced four or five points in the last few weeks and municipals have risen a point or two, but they are still on a low level as compared with the prices of a few years ago, and on an exceedingly low level in relation to current interest rates. Some high grade railroad bonds can be had at prices to yield almost 5 per cent and good municipals on a 4½ per cent basis.

Many investors have been keeping considerable amounts of money idle expecting that the high rates for money abroad, due to the destruction of capital, would bring such a change in the situation here that bonds could not be sold on a low income basis. The course of the market thus far has not justified those expectations. The gilt edged 4 and 4½ per cent bonds have been "coming back" and bid fair to occupy their old position once more. Nothing but some unexpected disaster can enable investors to buy such securities at much better prices than those now ruling.

An investment in such bonds, while not yielding a large income, has the advantage of being readily convertible into cash at a moment's notice.

Baldwin Locomotive.

A. J. R.—The Baldwin Locomotive company has paid the 7 per cent cumulative dividends on its $20,000,000 of preferred stock in full to date. It paid 2 per cent a year on common until this year, although in 1914 only one-fourth of the preferred dividend was earned. Last year was the worst in the company's history. This year its locomotive business has improved and it has had extensive war contracts. It paid the semi-annual dividend on preferred stock July 1 but omitted the usual 1 per cent on the $20,000,000 of common. A similar payment will be made on Jan. 1. The company's war contracts are presumed to be exceedingly profitable but the amount of earnings on them can only be conjectured.

Norfolk Southern.

C. S., Dallas City, Ill.—The Norfolk Southern first and refunding 5s are outstanding to the amount of $12,967,000. They are secured by first mortgage on 332 miles of road, by junior mortgage on 455 miles and by deposit of stock and bonds of the John Roper Lumber company. This collateral can be withdrawn on payment of $500,000 to the trustees of the bonds. The road did not earn its fixed charges in the year ended June 30 last but is earning them now and its traffic is increasing.

Brief Answers.

E. S.—The Equitable Life Insurance company of Iowa has been writing insurance forty-eight years, and it has grown steadily. It had $86,404,212 of policies in force Jan. 1 last and its balance sheet showed $1,213,757 of surplus aside from the deferred dividend fund. The death rate has been low and management expenses are moderate.

A. B.—Good municipal bonds are the safest investment there is. They always sell on the lowest income basis—except of course government bonds.

New York Banks Show Small Changes as Compared with Past Weeks.

New York banks' statement showed relatively small changes, with an increase of $4,600,000 in loans and a decrease of $1,000,000 in deposits.

Apparently the crest of the movement in deposits has been reached for the time being. The gains of $30,000,000 and $40,000,000 noted for several weeks in succession followed subscriptions to the Anglo-French loan.

The weekly bank statement follows:

ACTUAL BANK STATEMENT.

	Dec. 4, 1915.	Decrease.

Standard Oil of California.

Recent improvement in oil trade conditions has been so marked that the management of the Standard Oil of California is said to be favorable to an extra disbursement about the first of the year. Certain oil interests predict that the company will distribute at least a 50 per cent stock dividend, the present outstanding stock amounting to $50,000,000, with an issue of $100,000,000 authorized.

The Standard Oil of California is profiting especially from the widespread demand for lubricating oils, although liberal allowances have been made for developing practically every feature of the oil industry, including production, refining, transportation, and marketing of oil. The company now is shipping oil east by rail, following the closing of the Panama canal by slides.

Review of Curb Market.

In the unlisted securities department American Chicle common has been easy, declining to 78. Avery common sold at 70 and the preferred at 98. Both stocks were in good demand. Butler Brothers sold at 337 and is in strong demand at 335. Emerson Brantingham preferred advanced five points to 56 and the common three points to 21. Kellogg Switchboard and Supply remains unchanged at 390 to 395.

Inland Steel advanced to 350, closing at that price. Oxweld Acetylene is in excellent demand at 115, with practically no stock for sale. Great Lakes Dredge and Dock is offered at 99, with bids of 97. Goodyear Tire and Rubber common changed hands at 336. There was some inquiry for Babcock and Wilcox around 13½. By-Products Coke corporation sold at 130, an advance of several points. Moline Plow preferred improved five points to sales at 96.

Bank Share Quotations.

The bank stock market has been without special features. Recently reported sales are as follows:

Continental and Commercial National, 278; Central Trust Company of Illinois, 220; First National, 473; Merchants' Loan and Trust company, 437.

Reo Motor Active.

Reo Motor Car has been active, with prices ranging from 54 to 55½; Reo Motor Truck was traded in at 23⅜, closing 22¼ to 23⅝. There has been some inquiry for United States Gypsum common between 39½ and 40½; the preferred is 102 bid, offered at 104. National Grocer common has been active between 90 and 92. The preferred is in demand at 96.

Public Utility securities have been slightly easier. American Gas and Electric common reacted from sales at 145 to 120 bid, 125 asked. American Public Utilities common sold at 38; preferred, 72; Cities Service preferred, 77; Federal Sign System Electric common, 11; Middle West Utilities common, 40½; preferred, 77½@78; Standard Gas and Electric common, 8¼@9½; preferred, 29⅞@30½; Tri-City preferred, 94½; United Light and Railways common, 47; preferred, 75. There was some reaction in the oil stocks, but they were in good demand at the close, especially Prairie Pipe.

Duquesne Light Improvement.

Gross earnings of the Duquesne Light company for the seven months ended Oct. 31, 1915, stood at $2,798,838, an increase of $105,832 over the same period in 1914. The showing was further improved by a reduction in expenses of $155,107 and an increase in net income of $150,702. The comparative income account follows:

Information on Canada.

The first semi-annual "Canadian Municipal Record," the new publication devoted to financial statements, records of outstanding debentures, and other statistics of interest to dealers and investors in Canadian municipal securities, has been received. It is published by Francis Emory Fitch, Inc., New York. James R. Bartholomew of Lee, Higginson & Co. is the editor.

After pointing out the growing confidence in Canadian municipal debentures since the outbreak of the European war the editor predicts that "a considerable portion of Canada's financing and refinancing will continue to be done in this country, even after the foreign markets again return to normal conditions."

NEWS OF THE FINANCIAL WORLD.

The daily tire production of the Akron, O., factories is reported to have crossed the 35,000 mark. This is a record for the tire industry in that location. It is computed that there is now in use in the United States about 2,250,000 cars. A conservative estimate is that there will be 3,000,000 machines in this country by the end of 1916. Allowing five "shoes" on the average for each car, the annual automobile tire consumption will reach the total of 15,000,000 tires for the coming year.

The Federal Dyestuff and Chemical company, headed by the Du Pont interests and other capitalists, has been organized in New York, with a capital stock of $15,000,000. A plant will be built at Kingsport, Tenn., where a 200 acre site has been secured. The construction of buildings will commence at once for the making of dyestuffs and picric acid. The Manufacturers' Record reports that the company has already sold its entire output of picric acid for 1916 to a foreign government.

Latest estimates of earnings of Cosden & Co., the largest independent refining interests in Oklahoma, place net for the year ended Nov. 30 last in excess of $850,000. The company, along with other prominent oil concerns, took on large supplies of Oklahoma crude oil when it was selling around 40 cents a barrel last summer. This oil is now quoted officially at $1 a barrel, and premiums of 40 to 50 cents are said to be common.

Missouri Pacific's fourth week in November is expected to show a gain in gross of considerably over $250,000, bringing the gain for the month to nearly $800,000 over November, 1914. The management is spending liberally from earnings to keep the rolling stock in highly serviceable condition, and in the last five months has rebuilt over 6,000 cars to a first class standard.

With the production of the Chino Copper company close to 66,000,000 pounds, net earnings not less than $6,000,000, at a cost of 6¾ cents per pound, the 1915 report should make three new records. Earnings per share will be about $7.25. Production will probably be 12,000,000 pounds in excess of the best previous year, 1914. The above estimates are based on reports for nine months.

The American Woolen company is reported to have closed additional contracts with the Italian government for army blankets. The company's total orders for foreign army supplies now aggregate about $30,000,000, and its plant is working to capacity.

According to New York advices there is no probability of a dividend on American Ice shares this year. Whether there will be any in 1916 will depend upon weather conditions. It was the low temperature of the summer of 1915 which interfered with ice profits throughout the country as well as summer steamship business.

On Nov. 30, 1915, the total number of national banks organized was 10,805, of which 3,173 had discontinued business, leaving in existence 7,633 banks with authorized capital of $1,077,601,275 and circulation of standing secured by United States bonds, $720,633,061; by other securities, $55,492; and by lawful money, $55,677,100.

A special meeting of stockholders of the Pierce Oil corporation will be held Dec. 23 at Richmond, Va., to ratify an increase of $3,000,000 in the capital stock. The additional stock is to provide for the conversion of the company's 5 year 6 per cent convertible notes, which are to be dated Jan. 1, 1916. The notes will be convertible into Pierce Oil stock at 20.

At the annual meeting of the Cumberland Pipe Line Company of Kentucky the following directors were elected for the ensuing year: Forrest M. Towl, New York City; John Bahan and P. H. Leonard, Somerset, Ky.; H. B. Robinson, Oil City, Pa., and Joseph Geiger, Monticello, Ky. Mr. Towl was elected president.

Calumet and Hecla produced 52,000,000 pounds of copper, from rock yielding an average of 22.35 pounds of copper per ton, during the first nine months of the year. If this rate continues for the remainder of the year the total output should approximate 65,000,000 pounds, the largest in several years.

John A. Mathews, recently elected president and general manager of the Halcomb Steel company and Syracuse Crucible Steel company, announces that preparations are being made to put the new plant of the latter company in operation at the earliest possible date.

Rather positive assertions came from New York that United States Steel corporation will, upon resumption of dividends on the common stock, fix the rate as 5 per cent.

The Standard Oil company of New York has advanced the export price of gasoline 1 cent a gallon, covering all grades and all packages.

Officials of the Hupp Motor company say that the domestic shipment of cars for November were approximately 100 per cent greater than in November, 1914.

IN FOREIGN STOCK MARKETS.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—More favorable reports from Greece, peace talk, and the decline in German exchange assisted the cheerful tone which prevailed on the stock exchange today, but business did not expand. Home funds hardened a fraction, Kaffirs continued firm and active, and shipping shares were strong, with Royal Mail a prominent leader. Rubber stocks declined. American securities, although quiet, developed a better tendency and closed steady. Money and discount rates were quiet and steady. American exchange was steadier at 471 for cable transfers. Bar silver, 26 7-16d per oz. Money, 4@4¼ per cent. Discount rates, short bills, 5¼ per cent. Three months, 5¼ per cent.

PARIS, Dec. 4.—Trading was quiet on the bourse today. Rentes, 64 francs 50 centimes. Exchange on London, 27 francs 60½ centimes.

CLOSING STRONG IN N. Y. MARKET

Opening Stagnant, but Later Demand Causes Gains in Many Specialties.

Total sales of stocks, 224,000 shares.

Total sales of bonds (par value), $2,620,000.

New York, Dec. 4.—A sudden accession of strength in the final half hour was the marked feature of today's short session of the stock exchange. Prior to that period the list showed extreme apathy, dealings in the first hour falling to the smallest total of any day for many weeks. The belated inquiry was so general and embraced such a variety of high grade issues as to suggest something more potent than mere short covering.

Specialties constituted the sole feature of the first hour, some of those issues recording sensational gains, while others were reactionary. General Motors made the new maximum of 492½ on its advance of 22½ points, with gains of 2 to almost 10 points in other war and semi-war shares, Montana Power, Tobaccos, and secondary industrials and equipments.

Coppers Slightly Higher.

Coppers were a point or more above yesterday in anticipation of favorable dividend action during the coming week. United States Steel was lethargic at the outset, but hardened at the end. Bethlehem Steel opened down 10 points, but closed at 470, a loss of 5 points. United Fruit was weak throughout, declining 6½ to 144, and South Porto Rico Sugar lost 6 at 152.

The bank statement furnished a distinct surprise, an estimated cash gain of considerable proportions being turned into a contraction of almost $7,000,000.

The feature of the market for foreign exchange was a decline in remittances to Rome and other Italian points to the lowest rates ever recorded. Demand lires were quoted at 6.56, which roughly represents a discount of 30 per cent. Marks were a trifle steadier, but Austrian exchange hung at the recent low point.

Railroad Reports Show Gains.

Railroad returns of the day for October included the Great Northern line with a net increase of $790,000 and the "Soo," a Canadian Pacific subsidiary, a gain of $346,000. Several minor southern and southwestern lines showed decided gains in gross and net.

Bonds were irregular with a "future" sale of a small lot of Anglo-French notes at 97, the lowest open rate for this issue. United States coupon 4s advanced ⅝ per cent on call during the week.

Mercantile paper, 2¾@3 per cent. Sterling: Sixty day bills, 4.66; demand, 4.7085; cables, 4.71. Francs, demand, 5.85; cables, 5.84. Marks, demand, 78⅞; cables, 78⅞. Guilders, demand, 41⅝; cables, 42. Lires demand, 6.54; cables, 6.53. Rubles, demand, 31⅞; cables, 32. Bar silver, 55c. Mexican dollars, 42½c. Government bonds firm. Railroad bonds irregular.

COFFEE AND SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—The market for coffee futures was very quiet today, sales for the half session amounting to only 3,750 bags. The opening was somewhat irregular, with prices unchanged to 2 points higher, with September relatively firm on a little covering, but after selling at 6.89c, that position eased off to 6.85c under realizing, and the close was 2 to 6 points net lower. December, 6.52c; January, 6.53c; February, 6.55c; March, 6.59c; April, 6.62c; May, 6.65c; June, 6.69c; July, 6.73c; August, 6.78c; September, 6.83c; October, 6.88c. Spot coffee quiet; Rio 7s, 7⅝c; Santos 4s, 9¼c. The world's visible supply statement showed a decrease of 40,622 bags for the month of November compared with a decrease of 154,443 last year, making the visible as of Dec. 1, 10,422,673, against 10,155,587 last year. The cost and freight market was quiet, with no change reported. The official cables reported no change in the Brazilian markets. Brazilian port receipts, 65,000 bags; Jundiahy, 47,000. Santos cleared 131,000 for New York and 26,000 for New Orleans. SUGAR—Raw firm; molasses, 4.43c; centrifugal, 5.20c; refined firm. Futures: December, 4.15c; January, 3.80c; March, 3.42c; May, 3.44c; July, 3.53c.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—SUGAR—The following prices are quoted by wholesale dealers per 100 lbs: Cut loaf, H. & E., $7.35; powdered, standard, $6.40; eastern granulated, $6.18; beet granulated, $5.88; H. & D. granulated, $6.38; extra C, $6.03; canary, $5.75.

RESIN AND TURPENTINE.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Dec. 4.—TURPENTINE—Firm, 54½c. Sales, 50; receipts, 323; shipments, 77; stock, 14,535. RESIN—Firm. Sales, 1,209; receipts, 1,688; shipments, 286; stock, 71,656. Quote: A, B, C, D, and E, $5.85; F, G, H, $5.75@5.90; I, $5.90; K, $6.15; M, $6.30; N, $6.50; WG, $6.75; WW, $7.00.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Cotton goods were firm and active today and yarns tended higher. Burlaps were strong. Linens were very firm; knit goods active.

here, Gentlemen, is a fundamentally Sound Commercial Plan—backed by Over $1,000,000—and successful business men:

THIS is NOT an "Exposition" in the usual sense—it is a permanent commercial enterprise, backed by men of sound business judgment and successful business experience—bankers and manufacturers who know of the need for a central sales and show place for letting the people who have read about your product feel—see and test—your actual products—and at the same time clinch into actual sales the effect of your ad. words—made on the minds of people who have read about your products but never have actually tested them.

A page in a magazine of one million circulation costs over $3,000—your ad. there is valuable but its life is only 30 days and your audience only reads about your products—does NOT see—feel—or test them;

Using our permanent exhibit and sales place—for less than one-fifth of the magazine advertising cost—You can have a year's advertising, reaching over 4 million people—showing your actual Product. Write for facts to-day. Our big book is nearly ready.

Mr. Dunn, a farmer in Kaufman County, Texas, borrowed $2,000.00 from us recently on his 70 acre farm, which lies 7 miles from the County Seat. Our inspector values this place at $6,000.00 for the land and $750.00 additional for the buildings. This farm lies in a choice location, surrounded by well improved farms. It is all tillable black loam land, with 62 acres under cultivation. Mr. Dunn bought this place some 6 years ago and at that time paid over $4,000.00 in cash for it, since when he has erected the improvements and placed it under cultivation. This is a splendid loan and matures November 1st, 1925. Offered by us to net 6% per annum.

FIGHTING FOR FRANCE

Operations of the Allied Troops in the Trenches and at the Front Presented in Stirring Motion Pictures Taken by Government Authorization

Today and every day at the La Salle Theater, Madison St., bet. Clark and La Salle Sts., there will be exhibited the most thrilling, vivid and interesting war pictures ever taken by a film camera.

The Chicago American has secured the official motion pictures taken under the authorization of the governments in France, Russia, Italy and Serbia.

These wonderful pictures—now to be exhibited to the Chicago public—show the Allies in action—in actual battle. They take you to the front, and reveal what war really is with its carnage, its heroism and its destruction wrought before your eyes. The will exhibit these remarkable motion pictures for the first time in Chicago. This is one of the most notable achievements in journalism. It makes you an eye-witness of the greatest conflict since history began.

CHICAGO AMERICAN

FOR THE BENEFIT OF WAR SUFFERERS

The International Red Cross will receive 10% of all the proceeds from the exhibition of this series of pictures

In witnessing this wonderful series of war pictures you not only get the educational benefit of seeing the operations at the front, but you help contribute to the noble cause of relieving the suffering caused by the war.

Do not forget that these pictures are official and under authorization by the Allied Governments. They are not like tame and lifeless pictures you have seen—but genuinely stirring, thrilling and wonderful views of the great war as it really is.

I figli dei Sovrani d'Italia L. L. A. A. R. R. Princ:

Iolanda. Mafalda. Umberto. Giovanna. Maria.

Ai marinai della cara Patria, Saluti e auguri.

THE MOST POPULAR PICTURE IN ITALY.

The above picture of the children of the King of Italy is being sold to increase the Italian Red Cross fund. The inscription reads: "To the sailors of our dear country, greetings and best wishes." The children are: Princess Iolanda, with the baby Mafalda in her lap; Crown Prince Umberto, Princess Giovanna and Princess Maria.

Examining and training German privates and noncommissioned officers with the view of giving them positions of command on the fighting line. Any German soldier who shows ability in action and intelligence above the average is recommended by his superior officers to undergo the course of training for officers. The men are examined by a general before they are given their commissions. Nearly all the younger line of officers who marched in August, 1914, have been killed and their places must be filled from the better trained non-coms.

The Prince of Wales "bumming a light." This picture of Prince Edward Albert, heir apparent to the kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, taken on the occasion of his visit with his father, King George V., to the French front, shows the young English crown prince enjoying a smoke in company with two British officers during an interval of troop reviewing. His full name and title, which must weigh on him as much as the coat in the above picture, is Prince Edward Albert Christian George Andrew Patrick David, Prince of Wales, and Count of Chester, Duke of Cornwall, of York and of Rothesay, of Carrick and of Inverness, Baron of Renfrew and of Killarney, Lord of the Isles and Grand Master of Scotland. He was born at White Lodge, Richmond Park, Surrey, on June 23, 1894.

A wrecked German revolving gun turret used in the trenches. Although Germany demonstrated the obsoleteness of the revolving turrets in the powerful fortresses at Liege and Maubeuge, they later demonstrated that they are not obsolete as far as trench warfare is concerned. In many instances when the French have captured German trenches they have found these revolving turrets. When the trench was captured the French found three dead artillerymen in the turret.

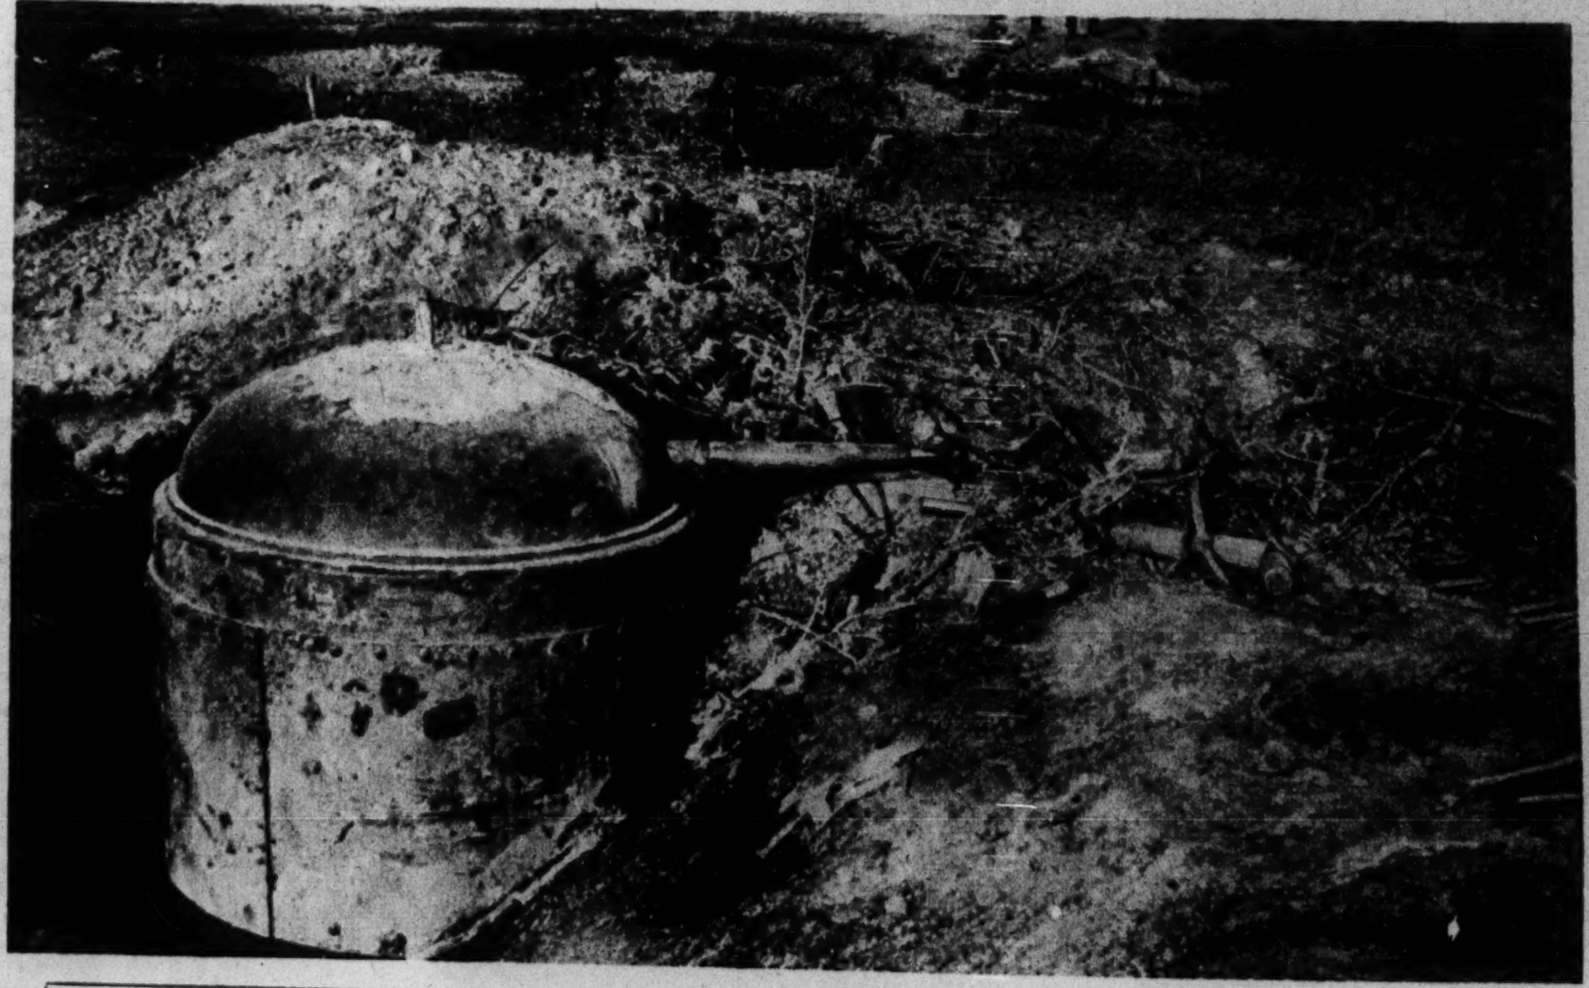
A revolving gun turret used by the Germans in the Champagne district. This photograph shows that the turret used by the Germans is a miniature edition of the turrets used in the fortresses at Liege and Maubeuge. Their effectiveness has been great, according to reports from the front.



Another view of the revolving gun turret used by the Germans in trench warfare. In the background may be seen the posts of a maze of barbed wire which protected the trench against charges until the wire was shot or cut away. In the trench, eight feet deep, shown here, the whole line was supported by a multitude of machine guns and numerous four inch steel turrets. The turrets each contained a 50 millimeter quick firing gun.

Crown Princess Cecile of Germany and her daughter, born on April 8, while the crown prince was at the front. The Prussian royal house has never had any trouble getting male heirs to the throne. The kaiser has one brother living, Prince Heinrich of Prussia, who has two sons. The kaiser also has six sons all born before his daughter, Princess Victoria Louise. The crown prince has four sons besides the new daughter shown above. Prince August Wilhelm, fourth son of the kaiser, has one son.
